Good morning, I would like to convene the meeting of the Board of Trustees. Before we take the roll call vote to go into Executive Session, I want to announce that the full Board will reconvene tomorrow morning at 9:15 am.

I hereby move that the Board recess into Executive Session to consider personnel matters regarding appointment, employment and compensation of public officials, to consult with legal counsel regarding pending or imminent litigation, and to consider matters required to be kept confidential by Federal and State Statutes.

Upon motion of Dr. Wadsworth, seconded by Mrs. Kass, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing motion by unanimous roll call vote, cast by Trustees Wexner, O'Dell, Shumate, Hicks, Schottenstein, Ratner, Marbley, Kass, Reid, Jurgensen, Wadsworth, Kellogg and Smucker.

The Chairman, Mr. Wexner, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on Friday, April 6, 2012, at 9:52 am.

Present: Leslie H. Wexner, Chairman, Walden W. O'Dell, Alex Shumate, Brian K. Hicks, John C. Fisher, Robert H. Schottenstein, Ronald A. Ratner, Algenon L. Marbley, Linda S. Kass, Janet B. Dr. Horn:

A quorum being present, we will reconvene the meeting of the Board of Trustees. So that we are able to conduct the business of this meeting in an orderly fashion, I would ask that the ringers on all cell phones and other communication devices be turned off at this time, and I would ask that all members of the audience observe rules of decorum proper to conducting the business at hand.

The minutes of the February meeting of the Board of Trustees were distributed to all members of the Board, and if there are no additions or corrections, the minutes are approved as distributed.

Mr. Wexner:

Well done. Thank you. Evann.

STUDENT RECOGNITION AWARDS

Ms. Heidersbach:

I would like to invite Tom Shumway and Lauren Madigan up to the table, please, for the presentation of the Student Recognition Awards. Thank you both for being here today. I am going to begin with Tom Shumway.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Shumway is a student in the Masters of Business Administration program in the Fisher College of Business. He is an outstanding student and a true leader in his MBA class and at Fisher.

Tom graduated from Westlake High School and received his Bachelor of Arts degree in English from The Ohio State University, during which time he interned all four summers at Ernst and Young. After graduation, Tom went to work for Big Lots, Inc., JPMorgan Chase and Huntington National Bank, during which time he served in numerous leadership and management roles and contributed very much to the success of each organization.

Tom is currently working on his Masters of Business Administration, like I said, with a concentration in corporate finance. He is the co-President of Fisher Serves, the student-led community service organization, and is active as a mentor to fellow students. Thomas is thoroughly engaged both academically and in extra-curricular activities and he continues to look for ways to make the Fisher experience the very best it can be.

After graduation this June, Tom will be joining Nationwide's Financial Leadership Rotational Program as a management associate. Joining Tom today is his wife, Stephanie Shumway, and his parents, John and Julie. Tom, thank you for being here today and congratulations.

Mr. Shumway:

Thank you.

Ms. Heidersbach:

Now I would like to introduce Lauren. Lauren Madigan is in her third year at the College of Medicine and has consistently led her class in both her academic performance and her extra-curricular involvements.

Lauren received her undergraduate degree from the University of Utah with a Bachelor of Science in Biology, during which time she was the Mountain West Conference 10,000 meter champion and was named First Team Division I Academic All-American.

Lauren's academic performance has been in the top 10 percent of her class in the first and second years here at Ohio State, and she continues to excel in her third year. So far, she has earned a letter of commendation from her Internal Medicine clerkship and a grade of Honors in both Surgery and OB-Gyn. She has been elected to the AOA Medical Honorary Society and the Gold Humanism Honor Society. She has served as a volunteer for the Anatomy Memorial Service, MedPaws (which brings pets to visit the elderly in assisted living), and the Franklin County Children's Services Friendship Volunteer program. She directed the College of Medicine's contribution to the Mid-Ohio Foodbank's KidsPack program and helps to organize the mentoring efforts of the Family Medicine Interest Group for undergraduates in pre-medicine studies. Lauren conducted research focused on the immunologic responses of an animal model to immunosuppression and is revising a manuscript for submission for publication.

She looks forward to exploring her options for her specific interest in her residency program. Joining Lauren today is her husband, Matthew. Thank you again, Lauren, for being here today.

Ms. Madigan:

Thank you very much.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Ms. Heidersbach:

And now I would like to invite both of you to say a few words to the Board.

Mr. Shumway:

I prepared just a few words. I will try to be very quick. I know that everyone's time is short here.

As President Gee had mentioned in his statement just recently, the University is very important to me, and I have had the opportunity to be at the University twice now. When I think back upon my time at Ohio State, I think of the significant role that it has played in my life from being born just down the street at the OSU hospital and then growing up the majority of my youth in Cleveland but returning and reconnecting with the Columbus community for my undergraduate degree at Ohio State.

Since returning there has actually been a tremendous change while I have been at the University. I have had the opportunity to see three different sitting presidents during my time at Ohio State. I have also had the opportunity to see three different Ohio State presidents during my time with President Gee returning just in time for me to come back and get my MBA, and more importantly, four different Ohio State football coaches. Next year, I will sorely miss my student tickets.

But I have also worked within the Columbus community, and I have grown to love the Columbus community and count it as my own. During my time in the professional community, I have seen kind of the tail end of the technology bubble and most recently the financial crisis. Working primarily within banking at that time, I had a very interesting perspective on the impact to our local community seeing both the community I grew up with in Cleveland, but also our local community here in Columbus, and I gained a passion for understanding the financial risks involved and managing those risks; hence, the return to an MBA concentrated on corporate finance.

When I thought about returning, really there was only one choice for me. I wanted to go to a program that was an esteemed program and I wanted to go to one that would keep me involved in the Midwest, hopefully in Columbus, so thankfully I was admitted to the Fisher full-time program two years ago. When I think about what I have learned and the friends that I have made and the opportunities that have been presented to me, I know that every day I have made the right choice in returning.

I am very humbled and honored to receive the recognition from the Board today. I want to thank the distinguished Trustees for this award, and I also want to thank Dean Poon, the dean of The Fisher College of Business, for this recognition. I want to thank Dean Wruck, the associate dean of graduate programs and also one of the finest professors in my opinion at Fisher, the rest of the excellent faculty at Fisher, and I especially want to thank my parents, John and Julia, who are with me here today for always letting me dream. As she mentioned, I think the dreaming partially led to the English degree in undergrad, very far from where I have gone in business afterwards, and my parents have provided me with the limitless encouragement and love and still provide me in my life.

And finally, I want to thank my wonderful wife, Stephanie, who is also here today for her love, her continued support, both emotional and financial, and her constant encouragement of me throughout my time at Ohio State and outside of the University and for providing me with my best gift which I have ever received, which is our son who is about ten months old. He arrived one week before spring finals last year and is doing well at the daycare right now, so you don't have to hear his yells.

So in conclusion, thank you very much again for this recognition and "Go Bucks!"

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Ms. Madigan:

I also wanted to chime in and say thank you very much for this wonderful recognition. I really do appreciate it, and I wanted to take this opportunity to thank all of you who make The Ohio State University one of the best places to learn the art and science of medicine in the country.

I am very proud to be a Buckeye. Coming from Salt Lake City, in my first interview here, I had never been here before, and I can't tell you the amount of kindness and the amount of camaraderie that I experienced when I came here. It is the number one reason I chose to pursue my education at Ohio State, and I really hope that I continue to do work with the Admissions Committee that I can show that kind of kindness and camaraderie to other students that are coming here for the first time and let them know what a wonderful place Ohio State is for learning medicine.

It truly has been a blessing to be here for my education so thank you again and thank you to my husband as well who is also financially supporting the poor med student and, of course, for all of his support emotionally as well. Thank you very, very much.

President Gee:

Let me just say a couple things. You have seen three presidents and I hope you come back and get another degree. I plan on hanging around for a while.

Are you going to be an Ob-Gyn?

Ms. Madigan:

I am still undecided.

President Gee:

Well I just wanted to put a pitch in for that. You know that the Ob-Gyns run the world. Our Vice President is an Ob-Gyn and our Dean is an Ob-Gyn and I have a daughter who is an Ob-Gyn so I will put a pitch in for that, okay?

Anyway, thank you very much. We will go get our pictures taken.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Gee:

Well, ladies and gentlemen, thank you very much. We are very proud of our students, and I just want to say something.

I think you saw the best of our University today. I really do. Our students came. They were concerned. They were respectful. They want to work together. And, you know universities are sometimes strange, awkward, quirky places but they also represent the heart and soul of what this nation is about and we saw that today.

I can't thank all of you enough. I think that our Board has set a very high standard for us in the very fact that we anticipate these issues. The working group has been working on this for almost a year-and-a-half. Almost every issue that was raised, in fact every issue plus many more, we have been working on and addressing. So good work, and I really mean that.

Now I am going to move to my regular report. As you know, the past several weeks have been busy and productive ones. A few weeks ago, at the University's Winter Commencement, we celebrated the degree-completion of 2,226 students. Archie, I believe that takes us up to about 525,000 living alumni now. It was a great day, shared by tens of thousands of faculty, staff, friends and family members.

I am looking forward to June because there is symmetry about this. This will be the last Commencement in the history of this University that will celebrate quarters, and it will also be the 300th commencement at Ohio State University, so it will be an occasion for us to not only recognize but also to celebrate.

The week after Winter Commencement, the University hosted President Barack Obama. More than 2,000 people, by the way, crowded into the RPAC to hear the President's address on energy policies. It was widely reported on, by the way. Just before his speech, President Obama toured our Center for Automotive Research, where Giorgio Rizzoni and six students described their ground-breaking work. In his address on campus, President Obama said this about Ohio State, "This school is a national leader in developing new sources of energy and advanced vehicles that use a lot less energy." The reason he was here was the leadership role we are playing, so I think that's important. Now, I thank him for saying that.

But not only did President Obama praise our work, so too did United States Representative, Steve Stivers, who gave the Republican response. He represents Ohio's 15th District, as you know, and he commented on the breadth of our energy research. I want to underscore the point here, which is that during this contentious political season, Ohio State's superb energy research is one thing about which Democrats and Republicans can agree! So I just want to be on record about that.

I will also say that our friend, our colleague of whom we are enormously proud, Clark Kellogg, has been spending time with President Obama and is doing his part to ensure that the President is fully briefed on what it means to be a Buckeye. We really recognize that. I must say, I was telling Clark today, I hope all of you had a chance to see, what a remarkable thing: Clark's son was playing in the Sweet Sixteen for Ohio University and Clark was doing a Sweet Sixteen game, to see the pride of a father watching his son while he is announcing a game has got to be special, and it was, so we just want to acknowledge that, Clark.

Mr. Kellogg:

It was a special moment for our entire family. Jerry was giving me a little grief about not giving the President the Ohio State Buckeye hat. Because he would not give me a rematch of our past POTUS game, I refused to give him that hat. He promised in a second term there would be an opportunity for a rematch. If that is consummated, he will have a Buckeye hat.

President Gee:

And several of us may spring to buy him that too, as a matter of fact.

My last political note will be that earlier this week, I was honored to dot the "i" in Governor Kasich's name when he signed the State's capital spending bill. It was a very funny, very clever moment. As you know, we had this wonderful occasion in which the University took a leadership role in developing a very powerful way for us to think about how we are allocating resources in this State, and I appreciate the Governor giving me that opportunity. I was there, and all of a sudden he turned to me and said, "I am going to do something that has never been done before. I am going to let the President of Ohio State University dot the 'i' in Kasich." And that is what I did, so on behalf of all of us, I am grateful to him.

This week also marked the Final Four appearance of our men's basketball team as you know. I want to congratulate Coach Matta, who I think is the best in the country, and his players. They represented us so well. Several people commented to me that all the coverage of our players was not about how well they played, but about how good their character was, and I think that is something that we can all take great pride in.

Another moment to celebrate occurred in February, when we commemorated the 50th anniversary of John Glenn's historic orbiting of the Earth. I have a picture which I will always cherish. It is a picture of me standing between John Glenn and Neil Armstrong and, by the way, these are two guys from very small towns, Cambridge, Ohio, John Glenn and Wapakoneta, Ohio, Neil Armstrong. Think about that. Think about the power of Ohio in that effort. We had a wonderful NASA Forum after that. The world came to Ohio State in order to celebrate his orbit, but more importantly to celebrate the great work that we are doing at the University.

I have other great news to report about our students and faculty. Several days ago, we learned that three of our students, Johnny Greco, Ronald Siebenaler, and Grant Yang, have been awarded Goldwater Scholarships. This is tremendous recognition of our students. The Goldwater is the most prestigious national award for undergraduate researchers in science, math and engineering given in this country.

And I just learned yesterday that Henri Cole of our English faculty has been awarded the prestigious Jackson Poetry Prize, the most important poetry prize in this nation. He gets $50,000 as the leading American poet, and this is just the latest in a long list of awards presented to Professor Cole, who not only serves on our faculty but also is poetry editor of The New Republic.

I want to thank and congratulate another English Department faculty member, Valerie Lee, who is our Vice Provost for Diversity and Inclusion. Dr. Lee has assumed the additional duties of Vice President for Outreach and Engagement. In combining the two offices under her leadership, we are leveraging her broad academic experience to expand the reach of our faculty's expertise more thoroughly into the community. As you know, the Office of Outreach and Engagement was led by Joyce Beatty until earlier this year when she left the University to become a candidate to represent Ohio's 3rd Congressional District, which by the way, includes the University. Joyce won the nomination last month, so we are going to work very hard to make sure she wins the general election, and she will be a magnificent addition to the United States Congress.

Before we move on today, I want to briefly mention my trip to India last month. The visit was ten days packed with speaking opportunities and meetings with alumni, friends, high school students and counselors, and faculty at leading universities. The trip culminated with the official opening of our new gateway office in Mumbai and a presentation to a special gathering of the Indian Merchants Chamber of Commerce, the oldest Chamber of Commerce in India, formed by Indians before the British left. It was a wonderful group and opened great doors to us. We established a firm foundation for our new office, which, although we call them gateway offices, they are really embassies because they open the University to the world and the world back to Ohio. By the way, I make it very clear that we represent Ohio and not simply Ohio State, so it is a broad based representation effort.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I would like to break from our usual routine today. I would like to ask our Provost, Dr. Alutto, to discuss the culmination of our extensive efforts in strategic planning. Joe, are you ready? Thank you, sir.

STRATEGIC PLAN PRESENTATION

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you, Mr. President. What I would like to do today is provide a summary of where we are from a strategic planning perspective. If I could summarize all of the activity that I am about to describe, it is really very simple, how does this institution move from excellence to eminence? As a personal definition of what that means, at least to me, it means that I would hope in the future that whenever a student, a scholar, a politician, or a corporate executive is interested in an issue or problem that is being addressed at Ohio State, he or she first thinks about coming to Ohio State for that information. When we reach that point, we will truly have reached eminence in all of our programs.

Let me talk a little bit about what the Board has done in order to reach the stage at which we find ourselves. We have reviewed the academic plan that has been in existence at the University for a number of years. The Board supported the development of a comprehensive physical environment plan, which we all referred to as the Framework. It is a reflection of the One University philosophy that President Gee has talked about in his entire time here at the institution.

There was an initial development, and there is one going on now, in an advancement model, which integrates Alumni Relations, Communications, and Development into one integrated organization, which again gives us an opportunity to think more and more as if we were one institution and not a series of silos.

There has been an evolution of an annual planning process that is focused on all the academic units of the University and all of the support units of the institution. In the process of going through those reviews, the Board also acknowledged that we really have four key activities that must be reflected in every function of the institution. Those are very traditionally stated as teaching and learning, which is really the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, which is a core function of this institution; research and innovation, which means that we are focused not just on the creation of new knowledge, but also on the application of that knowledge; outreach and engagement, which is a reflection of our land-grant history, our land-grant tradition; and then resource stewardship, which says that we have a commitment in everything we do to be both efficient as well as effective in the use of resources, that very precious commodity that all of us have.

In the process, the Board has had an opportunity to describe and develop a statement of this institution, which was essentially the, The Ohio State University will be the world's preeminent public, comprehensive university, solving problems of world-wide significance, and here is the important part of that statement, that we are focusing on world-wide problems that have significance and that we will do it through a comprehensive approach as opposed to a very isolated, a very narrow approach looking at only one or two different issues.

That, however, is a very general statement of where we see ourselves going in the long run. Ultimately, what we are talking about is how we are thinking about the next ten years, how do we become much more specific, how do we become much more focused on a set of activities that will allow individuals in this community and ourselves to know that we are being very focused and very effective? For that, what the Board has said is that the movement from excellence to eminence has to be reflected in Ohio State being consistently recognized among the top ten public, comprehensive universities in the world. This is really important because one of the issues we face is how do you measure success? How do we know if, in fact, we are being successful as an institution?

What the Board has done is to recognize, in effect, there is no single measure of quality, of impact, of eminence that we can rely on, whether it is US News and World Report, the AAU measures or the Financial Times' measures. They are all slightly different. The key here is the word 'consistently' recognized. It is the vectoring of different evaluations, and it is the consistency over time and that is something that we must achieve with the goal to try to achieve that, certainly, within the next ten years.

That, of course, led the Board to a discussion of our overall mission, which is to advance the well-being of the people of Ohio and the global community through the creation and dissemination of knowledge. That is important because this is an interactive process. As we focus on issues that are critical to the state of Ohio, we also begin to define, by definition, issues that are very important to the world as a whole. And as we focus on world-wide issues, we solve problems that ultimately will improve the lives of citizens of the state of Ohio. It is that interaction that is so very valuable, I think, for all of us.

The Board also then focused on the questions, "What is the culture that will result in that outcome? What are the cultural values that we cherish and will move forward with?" The values are commitment to excellence, collaboration as One University, acting with integrity, personal accountability in all that we do, and diversity in people and ideas, and you saw an element of that today earlier this morning with a conversation about how critical that value is in all that we do as an institution. It is a commitment change and innovation as opposed to simply maintaining stability and continuing to do what has been done in the past, although we certainly do cherish the past as well. It is simplicity in our supporting processes so that we don't build a bureaucratically heavy organization that, in fact, stifles the very change and innovation that we are trying to achieve. And, of course, there is an openness and trust that goes to the core of everything that we do as an institution, which is so critical to us.

The Board also then turned to the question, "Who are we and how do we pull together the scale and scope of this institution, which is so vast and so exciting in and of itself?" The difficulty being that we are so big, we have such large scale that there is a danger of dissipating all of our energy with all of the activity that takes place. What the Board did is say, "Look, let's look at what are the major world problems that must be addressed. How do we then relate those world problems to our areas of expertise and strength, and where we are going as an institution?"

Essentially what we the Board did was define three areas, Health and Wellness, Food Production and Security, and Energy and Environment, as discovery themes that should guide much of what we do as an institution as we go forward. All of those themes, of course, are supported and based on some of the basic sciences that are the core of what we do as an institution with a major role to be played by the humanities in that process. The focus on these three discovery themes will guide much of the resource allocation as we go forward in the future all with the assumption that there will be a solid foundation in the disciplines.

The next question becomes, "How do we get there?" Let's talk about that ten-year period when we want to see this significant increase in the recognition of this institution. After looking at a series of projections, a series of comparisons to other institutions, it became clear to the Board that we needed to make a series of investments.

One, we need to increase the number of faculty at this institution who are actively involved in both teaching and research. We think that is about an eight to ten percent increase in the size of our faculty. That is not going to be an easy thing to accomplish because we will be trying to do that at the same time that we are facing a demographic pattern that will result in a significant number of retirements in our faculty and increased competition because of the growth of international universities. But if we are serious about our ten-year goal, we must address this issue and we must be successful. That will cost around $300 million in addition to the current allocations we are making for the recruitment and the retention of faculty.

It isn't only through faculty that we accomplish our goals, that provides the core talent that we need to move forward. We also have to continue attracting the very brightest students and providing access, which goes to the heart of our institution as a land grant institution. In order to accomplish that over the next ten years, we see ourselves having to allocate an additional $200 million in incremental resources in order to achieve that goal.

Increasing faculty and access and reducing economic barriers, which is very, very important to us is not, in itself, enough. We must increase the experience that students are having, an experience that goes outside the classroom and involves the total growth of the student as an individual. In order to put the processes in place to accomplish that, we see the need for about another $100 million as we go forward over the next ten years.

Finally, as the Board has concluded, in order to accomplish all of this, there is an enabling device that has to be provided. There is, in a sense, an enabling device called facilities. Facilities have to be developed that support these goals and objectives. We estimate that is about $1.5 billion that will have to be generated, again, in incremental resources. All of this means that we are facing a situation in which, over the next ten years, we will have to identify and leverage about $2.1 billion in new resources for this institution in order to support the activities and the goals that we believe are very, very important.

We also believe that, and the Board has committed itself to, the notion that these are really not resources that we can turn to the state and say that it should provide. The state is providing a fair amount of resources now. We know we are in difficult economic conditions so we as an institution have to find ways to generate the resources that are necessary for success. The question then becomes, "If that is the case, how are we going to do that?"

There are a series of means. One is a very aggressive, cost savings process. We believe that we need to generate, among other things, about $1.5 billion over that period of time just through more efficient ways of operating and then reallocate those resources to accomplish these goals and ends.

We need to find new, repeatable funding streams that will provide some stability as we go through this period; but, in addition, we need to focus on one-time monetization of assets. For example, that is the primary reason we have been talking about the issue of parking facilities; "How do we take one-time monetization of assets and then redeploy that into support for increasing the number of faculty, supporting students, and providing for that critical learning experience as well as the facilities that provide the enabling device to that end. We need to reallocate from our current commitments and decide what is important, what is critical, what must be continued, and what must grow if we are going to continue to develop these three discovery themes.

We also need to enhance the business and government contract relationships we have for research purposes. We have a very robust relationship with private industry in terms of reporting research. That will have to continue just as we will have to get a larger share of government contracts because we know those resources are going to be limited. And then finally, we need to expect some resources to come in from the state capital bills in order to handle some of the construction costs, although those will not be the primary sources of funding, but will need to be an element in that respect.

But the Board has gone through more than just planning for the future. It has actually involved itself in making some decisions in the short run in what we will do, so let me talk a little bit about the action steps that have flowed from the planning activities that have taken place.

The dominant one we focused on is the issue of access for students, and so we have already committed over the next four years $50 million in additional, incremental support for student aid that is directed in two blocks. The first is focused entirely on students with financial needs, so that access to financial resources will not be a major determinant in whether a student can come and take advantage of the resources that are here at Ohio State. Another half of those resources, $25 million over the next four years, will be allocated to try to recruit some of the best students in the world to this institution because they are a major driver in everything that happens here. They are the individuals who are the stimulus, the catalyst that helps faculty develop the kind of research that has such impact in the world. Those commitments are already in place. Those reallocations have been made, and they come in from a variety of different resources. A lot of it is through cost savings and some through incremental funds that come through a variety of different means.

We want to enhance the student experience, because it isn't just having bright students on this campus, it is also making absolutely certain that they have a growth experience that includes both their class experiences and also their out-of-class experiences, which are critical. We have currently allocated about $2 million for student residential and learning environment improvements, which has been done entirely through some of the new affinity agreements that we have and the revenues that have gone with that. It is a reflection of some of the innovation that we are seeing in terms of resource generation.

For faculty recruitment, we have allocated an incremental $10 million to help us primarily through the reallocation of existing resources, which is part of a much more aggressive plan going forward. Finally, in terms of facilities themselves, what we have done is allocate an incremental $10 million to help us with some short term investments in new facilities primarily, again, through affinity revenues that have come to the University very recently and through other non-state resources. For example, we have about $80 million coming to the University through the capital bill that was recently approved.

In summary, what the Board of Trustees has been able to do for us is develop an aggressive ten-year plan that has been aligned with our core mission and the vision for Ohio State University. These are truly stretch goals. They are not going to be easy to accomplish; they will require a high degree of planning, discipline, execution and focus, but we are convinced, and I believe the Board is as well, that the citizens of Ohio deserve nothing less from this institution.

Thank you very much.

President Gee:

Any questions for Dr. Alutto? We have been discussing this a great deal so I know that this is a wonderful way for us to think about it. I want to thank our Provost for his leadership, which has been really quite extraordinary, and I also want to note that our Provost and our Chief Financial Officer have captured significant funds through innovative means. We are directly applying this notion of creativity and innovation in new financial models, which are allowing us to be audacious and is incredibly important. We will, by the way, be hiring substantial numbers of new faculty, investing in their work, and, at this critical moment as I said yesterday, have increased our financial aid almost more than any university in this country, which will be allocated in support of our students.

Mr. Chairman, it starts with the Board's vision, I want to acknowledge that, it starts with the people in this room, is reflected in our faculty's aspirations, and today, we are staking new ground in this University's march toward eminence. Four years ago, we had a vision and today we have a reality, which we are dealing with very positively. I take great pride in that, so we are now taking our efforts to the world and I am privileged for the University to be part of that.

Today's meeting is a poignant one because we are saying goodbye to Trustees who have been essential to our work and our progress. Again, four years ago, we were doing great work. Today, we are doing work that is really quite remarkable. So I will mention each of them in turn and ask them to say a few words.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

I will start with the youngest, Brandon Mitchell, who has been fabulous as our graduate student representative on the Board. And I just want to acknowledge this, and say this with both Evann and Brandon in front of us, the fact that this University has never thought of our students as Student Trustees. They have been treated in the most important way, which is they are fully engaged in the life of this institution and their views are appreciated and valued as are any of the colleagues around this table and, Brandon, you have done an excellent job.

He is graduating from our law school and joining the general counsel's office at Nationwide, so I am very glad we are keeping him here in Columbus. Particularly I am glad, because we are keeping Mallory, his great wife, here who is one of the bright lights in my life. When I was imagining what Brandon might do with a bit more spare time, I remembered that he and I share a not-so-secret interest in shopping, we do love to do that and we do it, by the way, Mr. Chairman, at Easton! I want you to know that.

Brandon, do you have anything you would like to say?

Mr. Mitchell:

Yes, I do. First of all, I would like to thank the other Trustees. As you said, being a Student Trustee, when you first come on to the Board you think, "What am I going to add to the conversation?" And all of the Trustees have accepted me as an equal, which is hard for the Student Trustee to have that confidence, that they are an equal, and that they are an expert in a certain area. So, thanks to the Trustees for that.

I also want to thank the University administration. They have been great to work with. As a Student Trustee, you only have two years, so you really have to hit the ground running. Any time I had any questions about anything or wanted more knowledge on certain subjects or historical perspective, they have always had an open door policy, and I have been able to go in and talk with them, so thanks for that.

The student leaders as well. As you know, we have monthly dinners with the student leaders of the three student governments. I want to thank them for being open and sharing the views of their constituencies with me and allowing me to do my job well by communicating those views and communicating the concerns of the students. For me, representing tens of thousands of students, it would be hard for me to get out and speak to every student so I want to thank them for fielding those questions or concerns for me and bringing them back to me.

Specifically, I want to thank a few people. My fellow jurists on the Board: Alex, Bobby, and Judge Marbley. They have always given me wise counsel. When I first got on the Board and wondered, what do I say or how do I say certain things, they have always been there for me to lean on and really motivate me to get involved and stay involved and speak up when I have thoughts, so I want to thank you all personally for that.

I want to thank the Board Office, which has been really helpful for me as a student. I am always on campus so I could always pop in and talk to the two David's, Ann, Katherine, Theresa, Bridget, Suzanne, and even Korenia, who probably isn't here anymore, but I want to thank you all for helping me with the onboarding process and with anything I have needed during my tenure.

I look back with pride on the work we have done over the past two years and, while I wouldn't want to be a student all over again, I think I have kind of exhausted my brain as far as being a student, I think if I was advising an eighteen-year-old, there is no other university providing the experience that OSU is, and I am proud of that. This is truly a commencement for me. While I will no longer be paying the University, I will be providing my talents and knowledge that I have gained over this time to this University. I will always love it, and just thanks for having me.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Gee:

Well, Brandon, you won't be far and, Archie, by the way, hand him one of those alumni memberships, please.

Mr. Mitchell:

I am already a member!

President Gee:

That's great but, you know, you really have done a fabulous job. You are so widely respected and I said last night much of what I hope you know that is in my heart about that.

Wally O'Dell. Wally has been very special on this Board because of the fact that Wally has always been a cheerful advocate for what is good for the University, which I deeply appreciate. Wally and Pat, as I said, have also been consummate members of the University family always reaching out, always being present, and always engaging in the things that we think are important.

Wally, of course, has had leadership in industry at the highest levels; at Diebold and Emerson Electric Company, which I think has enhanced our work immeasurably. Wally and I are both baseball fans; I am going to a baseball game with him; we are going to try to go in May, as a matter of fact, and I look forward to that. Wally is not a graduate of this University but there is no bigger Buckeye fan around than Wally O'Dell.

Wally, would you like to say something?

Mr. O'Dell:

Thank you, Gordon. It has been and continues to be a great honor to serve on the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University. Nine years goes by really quickly. It seems like a year ago that Governor Taft called and asked me to serve.

What an opportunity! I have served with ten great Student Trustees, 25 amazing regular Trustees, and even a couple of fabulous Charter Trustees.

The progress over the last nine years has been spectacular. So many things have been accomplished. Many more great things are under way. We have better students, better faculty, great leadership, improved dorms, improved Oval, improved library and the new RPAC and student union, which mean a marvelous improvement in the living and learning environment. We have the Ross Heart Hospital, the Biomedical Research Tower, and the new Wexner Medical Center under way.

Importantly, we have transformed the Board and Board governance, changing from a less than optimal situation to the standard or excellence in Board governance. Of course, the biggest accomplishment in the last nine years was convincing our wonderful President, Dr. E. Gordon Gee, to return and I would like to add that I was so proud of you this morning. It was your finest hour. It was just awesome. Your inclusive ability; just perfect.

I am leaving the Board confident that the future of The Ohio State University will be bright. We have a great Board, great leadership, and great momentum. Thank you.

President Gee:

Wally, we know one of the things that we are really devoted to, David and I, and certainly the previous David, we are very devoted to having the Trustees continue to be engaged in the institution. We expect that and we know you will be but, nonetheless, that is just a reminder that this is not a farewell, this is a passing to a new status and your involvement will be critical.

Alex Shumate, what can I say about Alex? I brought this today, not a lot of people can see it, but I show it because these two guys were on the Board during my first tenure and both of them were very critical in my appointment in 1990. I brought this picture of me. That was the day of my appointment, if you can see that. I want you to know that the headline, this was in The Lantern, it says, "Gee Brings Colorful Legacy to Ohio State." I haven't changed folks. I would just say that.

Alex was the first Trustee from Ohio State that I ever met, and Alex was the chairman of the Board when I went into the wilderness, and Alex was the chairman of the Research Committee when I came back out of the wilderness, so I feel in many ways that I have grown up with Alex from my first tenure as President to now.

I think the thing that we can all agree about with Alex is that he is the most solid human being that I have ever met. I mean, he is just solid. Everyone, if you think about a counselor in the legal sense, he is that, but if you also think about a counselor in terms of just providing advice, that is centered and mature and about which you say, "That's right," that's Alex Shumate.

So, Alex, we deeply appreciate you, and your voice will remain critical to all of us.

Mr. Shumate:

Thank you very much, Gordon, and let me just say that it truly is an honor and privilege to serve on this Board. And certainly Ohio State University is not only an excellent university, but it is also a place that we love. I am very thankful to the fellow Trustees for the opportunities that we have had to work together. I was sitting here this morning and I was thinking to myself that this truly is a Good Friday.

When you think about the students, the conversation that we had this morning, and the responsible and effective manner in which they handled themselves, that is what the University is all about, our students, and we saw an excellent illustration of the learning experience that students can have here at Ohio State and also heard about this in our Provost's talk about the strategic plan. Again, it symbolizes the level of excellence that we now reached as a University, as a Board working together to focus on the big issues, the important issues, and the issues that are going to truly move us to the next level of excellence.

I also want to thank the Board office, in particular. I think we have an outstanding Board office that gives us constant, consistent support and we are very appreciative of that and so appreciative of the leadership, Les, that you have provided over the past several years and Bobby, we look forward to your leadership. If there is anything that we can do to continue to add value, you know that we will.

So thank you, and Good Friday to everyone.

President Gee:

Alex, thank you so much, and there is much left to do, my friend, so you know that.

Finally, today, we are commemorating a changing of the watch, not a changing of the guard, because I do think the chairman of this Board is a watchman in the very best sense of the word. Mr. Wexner is rotating out of the chairmanship. At the conclusion of today's meeting, Bob Schottenstein will assume that role.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Bobby, I think we all agree, is the ideal person to assume this leadership position role at this time. Without question, he understands and values this institution and he is valued by the people here. Bobby, I just need to say that to you that the people around this table have asked you to assume this role with great affection and great respect and you certainly have that from the University administration. You will deepen the work of the University. You will continue the great path forged under the leadership of Les and, for that, we are grateful and we are truly blessed.

About Mr. Wexner, this University has been deeply blessed to have his steady hand at the wheel, as you know, and it is indeed that. He is visionary, he is insightful, he is wise, and he is fearless. Sometimes we feel that fear, as a matter of fact, and the combination of those qualities has made him a leader of incomparable quality, stature, and effect. Les Wexner's work on our behalf of this University has been nothing short of transformational and has been work that he does with great affection and great respect of the values of this institution, and he lives those values.

Les, as I ask for your comments, I have the honor also of presenting you today with a gavel. Of course, you are a man who never needs a gavel. You command attention under any circumstance but I think, on behalf of all of us, we wanted to make sure that you had this gavel; let's give him a round of applause.

Mr. Wexner:

Well, I didn't plan to speak last night and I really didn't think much about saying things today, so a couple of disconnected thoughts go through my mind. One is, sometimes I say to myself, "When all is said and done, sometimes more is said than done," and another is what Alex said, "This is a Good Friday." Genuinely, I think it is a great Friday.

One of the things that I mentioned yesterday was that I don't like the idea of graduations because they sound so terminal. I really like thinking of them as commencements, and I think I view this day personally as a commencement. More than 50 years ago, when I graduated, I thought it was a terminal event. I can remember walking out of that stadium and saying, "Well, I will probably be back here for a couple of football games and now on to life," and not feeling any connectedness, thinking that there wouldn't be any connectedness to the University.

In sitting here today, in real time and in the moment, what struck me is that Gil probably had that same feeling some years ago in graduating from the University, and in many ways commencing a relationship with the University, but also in graduating as a chair and commencing and continuing a relationship with the University. And, coincidentally, Alex and Gordon have both had that graduation event from the University, and then, through time and change, the friendship of Ohio seems to bring us all back, not to ends but to beginnings.

I think there is great symbolism in the events of the last several days, which speaks to that renewal and beginning. Yesterday, ideas that were new to us a few years ago as an institution, as a Board, about tech transfer and hiring really talented people, and thinking about how we can benefit the sons and daughters of Ohio and the citizens of Ohio by bringing to life the real world technology and incomes, which would benefit students with tuition and facilities and a lot of good things, were only ideas.

The progress we have made in thinking about how we are bundling communications and branding and, if you would, marketing and development, we are at a very different place. I thought the discussion, even today, about diversity and about how serious in real time it was I am proud about the way we think about diversity of gender, skills, race, and points of view, and it is a reminder of the high standards of ethics and values and thinking that the Board must set, not only for itself, but for the staff and faculty and the students.

Of course, Joe's presentation, a summary of thinking about the five-year future with bold and aggressive goals, stretch goals, which makes this University a better place, was great. A lot has been done, I think much more than said, and so I think we are very much in a springtime and a beginning here, and it is a great Friday.

I think, on a personal basis, I have benefitted much more from the University than I have ever given back in time or resource. That is very conscious to me, so I feel much as Brandon does and several of the students that we hear, and it reminds me that while the Board has to think about big, strategic, long-term issues that really do impact and change this University and make it a better place for the citizens of Ohio, and our impact on the world, there is a paradox, because the impact of the University is very personal. It impacts one veterinarian and one business school student, and it is the birth of a child and the advancement of a career. So we touch people very much one-on-one, and although our thinking is at a bold and aggressive level, the impact of the University is transformational in individuals' lives, and I think that's what makes it so unique and adds such enormous value.

It has been a pleasure to have the opportunity to work with all of you and to certainly work with Gordon again, and I look forward to continuing to try to pay my debts into the future. Thank you.

President Gee:

Thanks to all of you and thanks to the heartfelt comments and leadership you provide. Now we can continue on with our business, Mr. Chairman.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Mr. Wexner:

Good. There is business. Bob, let's begin with you reporting on Audit and Compliance.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The Audit and Compliance Committee met yesterday and there were a few items on our agenda that I will briefly report on.

First, we received an update from one of our compliance units that focuses on student enrollment policies from Mr. Evanovich. It was a very complete presentation, and you have a summary copy of the good work that is done in that area.

We then received an update on something that you would ask that we pay very close attention to, Mr. Chairman, and we are, which is the timeline on the rebuilding of the entire University-wide compliance system. I am very pleased to report that since our last meeting, which was the meeting where we approved of the new structure, a lot of hard work has been done as we set out to build the new compliance model for Ohio State, beginning with the process of seeking to hire the new Chief Compliance Officer. That process is well under way, and there are a number of very capable individuals that are going to be interviewed that I think are going to be able to perform this role in a way in which we expect. The expectation is that this person will be on board perhaps even before the June meeting.

We also are beginning the process, and it will somewhat wait until that person comes on Board, to craft the charter and mission statement, if you will, for the new Office of Compliance, but I think that we are on target and on time with the various tasks that we need to undertake in order to bring life to this new structure.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

The next thing we did was receive an annual report: the comprehensive update on the status of all University affiliated entities. There are over twenty-five separate affiliated entities over which the Audit Committee provides oversight, and it is a very robust oversight. It is one that we launched a couple of years ago, and I think that it is one that represents one of our better practices. Mr. Culley provided that update and, once again, one of the things we do is we assess why these affiliates were created, whether they still need to exist, what their status is, the status of their annual audits, their performance, and so forth. It was a very good report.

PWC, the external auditors for the University, provided their plan for the coming year. Then finally, we authorized and approved, and this will be on the consent agenda, the establishment of a new University affiliate, and this is one that we discussed yesterday that you referred to a couple of minutes ago, Mr. Chairman, which is the affiliate that will be used and become an integral part of the tech transfer initiative. That concludes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Any questions? I am hearing none. Gil, moving on to the Advancement Committee.

Dr. Cloyd:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The Advancement Committee met yesterday. The first two items I would like to discuss are on our consent agenda.

First of all, we received a report of new fundraising for this year as part of the Foundation report. At this point in time, the new fundraising effort is $217 million versus a very stretch $355 million goal that we set this year. That has us at 61% of goal in 67% of time, so we are a little bit behind. I think, importantly, we are 27% ahead of last year, and we are on the kind of track that we want to have an increase that is consistent with what we want to do prior to the start of the public phase of our development campaign. Also, as a part of the journey goal that we have set in terms of where we want to be in 2020 and we do have a fairly large, what I would say, portfolio of activities right now we hope that we can complete that by the end of the fiscal year. But net, I think we are good there.

The second thing we discussed that is on the consent agenda is an amendment of the University Naming Guidelines. This is in Tab 23 if anyone wanted to further reflect on that. The current guidelines that we developed were last improved by this Board in May of 2010, but as we approach the upcoming public phase of our development campaign, we felt it was appropriate to re-review our naming guidelines, specifically around the subject of corporate or other organization naming of entities or physical facilities. The guidelines, as they exist today, do not allow corporate or other organization naming's of some entities and, basically, preclude naming of physical facilities with the current wording we had.

So we put together an ad hoc group to do an assessment. That group included President Gee, Provost Alutto, Mr. Kaplan, and several Trustees joined in that effort because we wanted to understand what other institutions were doing. So, there was a very in-depth review conducted of 24 universities who we consider to be excellent universities both in terms of their development activities as well as in the stature and character of the universities that has led to a revision of the guidelines that we are proposing.

In essence, the revision in the guidelines will, in very, very select situations, allow a corporate naming of a physical facility or other entity in the University but only after a very diligent, thorough, formal process, which has been added to our guidelines for naming and also assures that we have protections against any real or perceived conflicts of interests in such naming's and includes specific prohibitions of any marketing or other types of marketing signage that we would have on physical facilities or associated with entities.

The Advancement Committee reviewed both of these topics and is recommending approval for them on the consent agenda.

We then undertook a review of the Advancement goals that will become a part of the scorecard for Advancement, which the Board will look at on a regular basis. Recall over a year ago, we agreed to eight original goals that were in the buckets of awareness, engagement, and financial. As we have continued to review these goals within the Advancement Framework Planning Team and the Advancement Committee, our expanded learning as we have been on the advancement journey indicated that we needed to make some changes in the awareness goals and in two of the engagement goals.

The committee yesterday, again, reapproved the goals that we have established for increasing donors in terms of engagement and the two financial goals, which are commitments around the campaign and also our commitments as a part of our 2020 journey goal, which is to become the number one public university in annual total private support.

What we decided to do with the awareness and engagement goals is to develop more specific, or what I will call granular goals around specific cohorts or key segment groups. We agreed yesterday that there are six key groups of stakeholders that we will focus on: alumni, faculty and staff, and that also include retirees and emeriti, students, non-alumni friends, corporations and foundations, and Ohioans. The task that we will be working on and a lot of this work will be done within the Advancement Framework Planning Team will be to develop the appropriate awareness and engagement goals for these six key stakeholder groups. We plan to have proposals ready for review within the Advancement Committee for discussion in June with a target to have final goals in those areas to present to the full Board in August.

We then had an update from the Edelman Group on the work of the Advancement Framework Planning Team. May I just say, briefly, we have essentially completed all of the work the group outlined in the two buckets for the branding of the University and the organizational redesign of the University, which is the discovery phase or the data gathering phase. We are now moving very deeply into the development phase, which will involve both of these activities and then, ultimately, will bring it all together to have a final recommended strategy for Advancement. We are on target to complete that work by the end of July.

Finally, Mr. Hastings provided the latest results that we had in terms of our journey goal. Recall that I just said that we want to be the number one public university in the nation in total annual private support by 2020. When we set the goal, we were number eleven. To remind all of you, we look at a three-year rolling average of total annual receipts, that is the data that is available, and the latest results are just in, Ohio State has made some progress here. We have moved from number eleven to number ten.

To reach our journey goal, we feel, is quite a stretch as we have looked at receipts from Ohio State at our base period to where we would be if we averaged a 3% annual growth rate. We looked at the institutions that are above us, and based on their past history and projections, we projected out to 2020 that if they grew at a 4 to 5% annual rate, what would we have to do? We have to grow at a 9% annual rate to get to where we want to be by 2020.

It is quite a stretch, but I am personally very encouraged that we are getting the progress underway. As I said at the start, to date this year, we are on the track that we want to be on. Now, we are not resting on our laurels. We know there is a lot of work, but I am very pleased that there is a lot of energy and a lot of excitement by the people to keep going after this goal and, obviously, it ties back to what the Provost provided that this is very essential funding for the University to achieve the kind of goals that have been described to really, really provide the leading land-grant mission that we want to have for the world.

That concludes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you, Gil. Any questions? Bob...

Mr. Schottenstein:

I just want to make a comment and really commend Gil and the committee on the work on the naming guidelines. Wally, you mentioned in your remarks a few minutes ago so many great things that we have seen at the University over the past few years and some of the more mundane things that often go unnoticed but represent really good Board work and I think that happened under your chairmanship. I think it might have been your suggestion, Mr. Chair, to look at, not just our naming guidelines, but how we count gifts. Frankly, while we had certain things that suggested how we should do it, they were very inconsistent, lacked clarity and were susceptible to being arbitrarily applied. And, whether or not we are in a campaign, we are always out to raise money, and that we want to make sure we do so in the most even-handed fashion for the benefit of those that we are trying to raise money from, I think, goes without saying.

I just want to say that one of the things that also was interesting was that we did some benchmarking on naming guidelines. We got some good data from a lot of other institutions, but there are a lot of other institutions out there that don't even have them or they have chosen not to address this kind of thing. It is not easy to address it, because you don't want to paint yourself into a corner and you want to give yourself flexibility, but I think that it is a tribute to the work that your committee has done. I think that for this institution the effort to establish appropriate, clear, objective standards on how we recognize fundraising and honor fundraising and contributions to this University is very important work.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Ron, Physical Environment...

Mr. Ratner:

As usual, we had a meeting that ended up running right past the hour, and we had some very important presentations. One was an update on the north residential district, and I think we will hear a little later about some of the extraordinary concepts for the transformative, effective student programming that is really hand-and-glove with the fiscal planning. I just want to provide an update on where we are.

We have made great progress in terms of the physical planning of the north residential district. We have been able in that time to make progress and identify some challenges. We have been able to confirm that we really can create a superlative physical plan that will transform that north residential district into what I am going to call a "living and learning neighborhood." It is really not a district. It will become a neighborhood, a new and wonderful neighborhood containing about 3,200 new beds and 2,800 existing beds. It is most important to also remember that we are building new dining, recreation, and student life facilities that are scaled to the entire 6,000 bed population so that all of that area and all of the outdoor spaces, which are exciting and vibrant and that provide the connective tissue back to the campus and the adjacent neighborhoods, are also scaled and totally new for that entire 6,000 bed population.

We now can confirm that we can do that at the originally projected cost of about $335 million that was identified in the prior financial analysis, and that the site plan that detailed master plan which is really what we are developing in a set of architectural criteria is fully informed by and responsive to the framework principals. We are working within a context, which is something that, again, if you look at the progress that we have made at the University, we could not have said that five years ago. We couldn't say that we had a context for physical decisions so they were pretty much ad hoc and, no matter what the quality of them were, they weren't really related to the rest of the campus.

In this case, we have the framework principals to inform what we are doing, but we have also identified some challenges. We are now going to spend a detailed 90 day period to investigate and think about some of those challenges. The intent here is to come back to the Board with a fully fleshed-out plan at our August meeting. Some of those challenges that we want to investigate are the impact of the increased demolition/replacement scope. If, on the margins, we spend more dollars, which we will have to find out, and we remove a few more of the older buildings that are not slated for renovation and that we know are getting to the point where they are really physically and functionally obsolete would we have a significant improvement on the overall plan, the overall quality of the neighborhood?

We want to fully develop the concept that will drive the iconic building and program at the corner of High and Lane. It is a very special corner. It is an entry corner to the University. It is a very important statement about who we are. We believe we can fully develop the residential program that we have called for without fully engaging that corner but now we have to look at what sort of building should be there. What is the program? What is the activity that should be on that corner both at its grade level and above? We want to confirm the complementary relationship and impact on the neighborhoods, both east of High and north of Lane. We think we have taken that into consideration in both the framework plan and in this work, but it is such a vital and important issue that we really have to look at the planning and the thinking that we are doing both east of High and north of Lane and make sure that we are really complementing and enhancing that.

And we want to evaluate the condition of the existing beds at the conclusion of the development period. It will take us three or four years to complete this project. At that point, what really is the condition of the existing beds? We have some dollars slated just in our normal capital replacement to improve those beds, but we have to be really careful to look at what is the 6,000 bed neighborhood that is so vital to this concept of a transformative two-year experience and what is it going to be like?

Finally, I want to make sure that the overall character and density of the plan both complements and enhances the overall identity of our campus. We want to extend it. We want to challenge it a little bit, but we want to make it feel like it is the best of what is really the OSU campus. I think we have made great progress. We have got some challenges in front of us, and I am very excited to come back to the full Board with the other Trustees who have been working with us to present this at our August meeting.

We then had an update on the capital plan. Again, this has now become a very robust process instead of a frozen five-year plan which we approve and then wait five years and look at it again. We are now engaging in an annual process that creates a rolling plan. We will have both the annual review, the response to a really detailed five-year plan and a capital improvement program that is imbedded in a fifteen-year overview, so we are looking out and not taking things in isolation, but looking out over a longer period.

We have gone through a very detailed capital needs inventory for that 15-year horizon. There are about 700 projects that have been identified from departments and entities throughout the University. That comes to about a $5 billion capital needs program, obviously a huge challenge. The resources, to give you an idea, are about $1.2 billion related to the Medical Center; about $1.8 billion of academic, residential and research buildings; and about $550 million each for student life and for deferred maintenance. A lot of the deferred maintenance needs are accomplished in some of the replacement. Some of these buildings just get replaced.

It is critical that we really are using three analytical lenses. We are looking at the way the physical needs relate to the strategic principals that have been identified, that Dr. Alutto went through, the financial principals of the financial plan, and the framework principals. It is a very significant scope. We will be back again, I believe at the June meeting, with a much more detailed review of this so we can really dig in and understand what those challenges and needs are and look at it from an integrated planning model.

We then had some updates on the chiller plant and the electrical substation. Real progress has been made in the underground, unseen infrastructure that is very important. The south high rise and hall complexes are nearing completion. The first portion of the south high rise is nearing completion. Both of those will be ready for September and then comes the completion of the south high rise complex the new work there will be the following September. To give you an idea of the project, the south residential neighborhood will contain about 5,600 units of which almost 2,000 will be fully renovated, about 1,000 have been previously renovated, and about 870 will be new so, again, we have a great south residential neighborhood which will have its own character and its own quality, so as in north, we are going to have another really significant residential neighborhood.

There are two items on the consent agenda. One is an environmental covenant related to the removal of the Fifth Street Dam, a very exciting project that restores the river as it goes through our campus and creates what will become an extraordinary opportunity for us. We have obviously to approve a series of environmental covenants. It has taken a little bit of work because we are somewhat limited in what we can approve. All of these covenants are related to land that is currently, in effect, a river. It will have no negative impact on our future planning, but we will obviously conform to the needs of the agencies that are funding this, so we are not going to come back in and pour concrete over their newly renovated river.

The other item is an expansion of the Sullivant Hall project, which is a complete rebuilding of that facility. In this case, we are expanding by using development funds to include a wonderful new performance space with about 350 seats and a collaborative space for arts and sciences. I am personally thrilled with what we are doing in Sullivant, and I think it is going to be a real jewel. It is a wonderful building to start with and this is a very sensitive and very complex rehab of an existing, historic building. It is going to create a marvelous set of performance and arts facilities related back to the academic mission, so we are integrating arts and sciences in there. It is the best of what Ohio State is, a real understanding of the liberal arts and the relationship to the sciences, and what the performance arts and the general arts mean to our campus, so it will be a wonderful facility. Again, it is on time and on budget, but we are expanding the scope as we have done a couple of other times as we have been able to track additional funds.

So that is my report. It was a fun meeting!

Mr. Wexner:

I am curious. I don't know if it is in Medical Affairs or in your domain, how we are on the Medical Center in terms of time and budget?

Mr. Ratner:

I should have raised that. That was one of the other updates. Again, we are basically on time and on budget. As you know, we have folded into that the additional oncology center, which was an additional $100 million project that the team in the Medical Center and facilities folded into the construction, which is a real accomplishment.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Wexner:

And the traffic pattern, the Cannon Drive north-south connector?

Mr. Ratner:

We weren't updated on that yesterday. I don't know. You are shaking your head, Jeff.

Dr. Wadsworth:

Yes, that has been very successful and continues to be. It is obviously somewhat disruptive, but with minimal impact.

President Gee:

And another thing that you will notice in terms of our longer plan of moving Cannon Drive and renaming it Wadsworth Drive, a very critical component of all of that is that the Mayor has now approved the removal of that dam, which then allows all the other dominoes to start to fall so we are actually headed where we thought we were, so I am very pleased about all of that.

Mr. Ratner:

I just want to clarify. There are two components of that. One is the work on the relocation of Cannon that we immediately need to accommodate the work that we are doing on the Medical Center and the traffic connections at both ends of that renovated stretch of Cannon. We are moving it over, which both accommodates the current expansion of the Medical Center and opens up significant additional land for development in that area.

Beyond that, we are also working to extend and rebuild Cannon that ultimately will go all the way to Lane and create another major north-south route so that we can relieve some of the traffic on High so that it is not the only north-south route that supports the campus and so it can also be supportive of another entry to the Medical Center. As it expands, we really need to allow for better traffic planning. Again, this is identified in the framework plan. We are working on it. Jeff has done such yeoman work on this that I agree with President Gee, we probably will think about a renaming of it.

Dr. Wadsworth:

I just hope it is not the Wadsworth cul-de-sac, dead end. Let's see, I chaired the Medical Affairs Committee, Mr. Chairman, on behalf of Alan Brass who is indisposed.

Dr. Gabbe has a wonderful practice. He introduces the committee to good news at first, so we heard a lot of excellent things. Of course, one was the naming of the Medical Center, but we also heard that our own Gale Marsh was named the YWCA Woman of Achievement this week which is a very special honor here in Columbus. We also heard about the visit of the Secretary of Health and Human Services, Kathleen Sebelius, who came to tour the progress on the $100 million expansion. That was a Federal HHS grant and, as you know, is incorporated into our project.

The expansion is on time, scope, and budget. It was probably helped a little bit by a mild winter, but Dr. Gabbe had excellent news on our safety record and the awarding of contracts to Ohio institutions, about 80% of our budget stays in Ohio and a significant amount goes to diverse institutions, so that was very positive indeed.

He also talked about the Beacon Awards, something I was unfamiliar with, which are awards to the top 5% nationally of intensive care units. There are only five in the state of Ohio and three of them are at Ohio State University. We are the only one in the city of Columbus, and that is a very impressive award.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

We have also exceeded our goals on patient satisfaction measures as represented by so called H-Cap scores. We have reached the 90th percentile of overall satisfaction and 94th percentile with our nurses, which is absolutely spectacular. I am delighted we have Corbett Price on our committee, because he was able to give us a national perspective on just how very impressive that achievement is. So that is an outstanding outcome.

The CFO, Mike Rutherford, reported on our financial scorecard, which focused on all of our strategic issues related to admissions. Again, we thank Corbett on pointing out that we make money on discharges, so we need to think about that as well. And also, our continued work on the health information systems conversion has been successful. This was a major undertaking that has had a slight financial impact, but that is mostly in timing. As time goes on, we will recover the apparent loss in revenue. It is not a permanent loss, but a timing issue as we introduce a very complicated system. I might point out that the scorecard that is used by the Medical Center has been in place for some time and presaged our own University-wide method and has been a very useful tool.

Now, we heard two reports on programs that were just spectacular. The first talk was given by Ms. Dawn Tyler Lee and was on something called PACT, which is the Partners Achieving Community Transformation project and is part of the University's commitment to the growth and rich heritage of the neighborhood surrounding the OSU East Hospital. It is a partnership with the city of Columbus, The Ohio State University, the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority, and the near east-side stakeholders. We heard a lot about the data as we try to improve the well-being of the people in that neighborhood, which was very impressive.

The second talk was by Dr. Ronney Abaza, which was just stupendous. This was about the Medical Center's leadership in robotic surgery. Robotic surgery, as it implies, uses a robot, called da Vinci machines. It turns out there was a monopoly in this by the da Vinci Company. Only one company makes these machines, which are made in the U.S. and are used worldwide. There is a bit of competition coming up, which is very interesting, but these robotic procedures have expanded considerably into different domains, an exponential growth in the world, and I am just thrilled to tell you that Ohio State leads in this domain. We bought the first machine back in 1999 and now have five. Four are in use and one is in training. I like this man, Dr. Ronney Abaza. He not only wants to get to number one, he is pretty much there, but he wants to drive past number one and make sure he stays number one. He provided a lot of data with a lot of human impact and very exciting work. But not only are they buying and using machines, they are also helping to pioneer the innovative robotic techniques. So they actually work with the company in the latest applications and modifications to these machines.

It turns out there is a competition starting because from a company called Amadeus, just starting up, and the Amadeus machines are made in Canada. Their very sophisticated software allows the robotic handler to actually feel the apparent resistance of the tool as they are cutting. It is a brand new innovation and, again, OSU is working with that company helping to give feedback on how to make these machines effective, and we will be the first institution to buy one.

This is how you get to world leadership, and I just applaud them for this kind of innovation. Then we finally heard that they are working with our engineering department in a multidisciplinary sense to try and introduce engineering innovations from that school in the design of the machine, so terrific, terrific report.

Finally, we approved amendments to the bylaws of the medical staff of the University Hospitals and that will be on the consent agenda. That is my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Cloyd:

Dr. Wadsworth, as we work with these companies in both the software and the hardware, are there inventions or tech commercialization opportunities here for the University?

Dr. Wadsworth:

It is very interesting. Because they are a monopoly, they really don't want to share in some of the proceeds from that kind of collaboration. It turns out, we have some insight into the software, because our Oakridge National Lab under Battelle, I actually wrote some of the early software, was very receptive early on, but now it is a very competitive position. As we make inventions, they will start to. I do think about how to share that intellectual property and, as this competition comes in, it is going to be interesting to see how fast now new advances come in, because these new guys are doing a couple of interesting innovations. I think what we will see is the start of some IP flow.

Dr. Cloyd:

Thank you.

Mr. Wexner:

Janet.

Dr. Reid:

Just to add to what Dr. Wadsworth is speaking of, the surgeon who spoke to us also talked about being able to take data from x-rays and other things and model organs so that surgery can be practiced before it is actually done on the individual patient. That is what we are working on, so there may be ways to look into the technology around that.

Dr. Wadsworth:

Yes, there was a very strong education component and a picture of the device. One test I guess is they are supposed to be able to peel a grape.

Mr. Price:

Yes, on a different note, other than the technology, which was quite impressive, I would like to commend the University, for the record, for being good corporate citizens as illustrated by the activities that are taking place on the east side of Columbus. In terms of that particular program, it is truly making a difference in the lives of the community, and it is showing that the University's commitment to diversity goes beyond the walls of the University.

On a personal note, my two sons used to play in that community when they would come to Columbus on visits to their grandparents' home here in Columbus. I think we just need to sometimes toot our horn about the things that we are doing positively. We are not just reacting to events, but we are actually moving forward and being proactive in terms of changing and making a difference in the lives of the individuals on the east side of Columbus.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. I don't know if you want to continue on, Jeff, with the Finance Committee?

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Wadsworth:

So we met yesterday, the Finance Committee. Four items were presented for discussion and three for action on the consent agenda.

The first was from Mr. Chatas who presented the annual University financial benchmark report. This includes Board defined benchmark institutions as well as comparisons to the top ten public institutions. We have made significant progress overall. There are some areas, this is one of those things that you see greens and you don't discuss those, and you see yellows and you dive in. We do continue to lag behind peer groups in areas such as revenue per student, expenditures per student, and endowment per student. This is a repeating theme we have heard from several of the committees that we have heard and so there is a need for us to expand our efforts to obtain government grants, contract dollars and industry dollars to keep pace with our peer institutions. The strategic plan we heard will endeavor to focus on that. So that was the first report.

The second was Ms. Readey. She presented a construction project status report. This covers all projects under construction with costs in excess of $20 million. It excludes the Medical Center Expansion, which is reported out to the Medical Affairs Committee. There are six projects under this review, and they each have two measures of traffic lights so all of them are on and on time with one exception. There is a slight pause in the south high rise project. It is green vis-a-vis the budget but it is a little bit behind time and that has to do with some of the geothermal well-drilling issues that have come up. Mr. Fisher knows about them and that is being solved as we move ahead.

The third was the annual waiver report for calendar year 2011. This reflects the number of contracts that we enter into for purchases in excess of $250,000 that are not competed for various reasons. We take a look at that and we compare it year-over-year. Everything seemed to be appropriate from our point of view and those waivers are in good shape.

And finally, we had an update on the preliminary discussion on tuition and fee planning for fiscal 2013. As a reminder, the state of Ohio has capped resident undergraduate instructional and general fee increases at 3.5%, and the University leadership will work with the committee to present a recommendation to the full Board for tuition and fee rates as well as room and board and user fees at the June Board meeting.

I would like to thank our President, Gordon Gee, for coming in at very late notice to this committee. There was vibrant discussion and President Gee came in and gave a terrific perspective, his perspective, on this topic. That was very, very valuable to us to get, Gordon, so we thank you for doing that because I know you were busy on many other things, but that 10 or 15 minutes really helped give us the right balance.

So we have three items for authorization. One is to increase the Sullivant Hall construction contract appropriately to the next phase. Secondly, there is an authorization for three individuals to be reappointed on the self-insurance board and, finally, there are some proposed revisions to the University Debt Policy. We reviewed the revisions and approved those recommendations.

That concludes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you, Jeff. Gil...

Dr. Cloyd:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Dr. Wadsworth, as I looked at the background material on that in the benchmarking, I have to admit I paused on the expenditures per student when I went through it. I understand in a general context why that is important and why we are looking at it, but I think we have to have some caution here, because as we think about enhancing productivity and delivering an ever better quality at ever lower costs, this could be misinterpreted on what is really beneficial because a lot of times, if you are a lot better and you are doing it at a lower cost, I think that is terrific.

Dr. Wadsworth:

Fair comment.

Mr. Wexner:

Anything else? Judge Marbley.

Judge Marbley:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. As I noted to the Board earlier, we began our Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee meeting yesterday with the report from Dr. J. about the graffiti incident, so I won't go into that in detail.

We then turned our attention to a discussion of plans for enhancing the second-year student experience through a developmental program model. As we all know, we have been working on this for a while. It is one of the most exciting and innovative initiatives that President Gee along with Dr. J. have developed. Dr. J. reminded the committee that the first year retention rates, graduation rates, and sense of engagement with the University are all enhanced when students live on campus. At our February Board meeting, she provided ample evidence of this, and I will just refresh your recollections.

For students who live on campus, the retention rate for those who live on campus one year is 80.4%, whereas for those who live on campus, it is 92%. The graduation rate overall is 79.7%, but for those who have lived on campus for two years it is 88.2%. For those who have ever lived on campus, the graduation rate is 81.4%. For those who have never lived on campus, the graduation rate is 64.7%, so it is important to note these factors. Addressing these factors, as we have in this cutting edge proposal, would help propel the University toward its overarching goal to become a top ten public university over the next ten years.

What is being envisioned at Ohio State is a transformational second-year experience. Dr. J. reported that a two-year experience will be centered on helping students achieve success and would be guided by the following three principals, which I am going to elaborate on momentarily. One is access or academic engagement with the University. The second is a community with a variety of living and learning environments, and third is self-awareness or co-curricular discovery and development.

During the students first year, the emphasis across these principals will be on discovering the University. As many of you know from being on the Board, this is a massive intellectual platform and attention must be given to just finding where everything is. In the second year, the emphasis will be on looking at and toward the future. Targeted programming and resources will be available for students based upon their unique needs at this critical juncture of their education. Many of the programs would occur in the residential community adjacent to the academic core, thereby increasing student-faculty engagement by allowing faculty to work with students within the University's residential communities.

Some of these programs will include, as I told you I would, access, faculty mentors for the students' major, interests, research foci, etc.; academic advising for the major; integration of learning strategies into the major field of study; and study abroad opportunities and world-view discussions with faculty. Indeed, 50% of students self-reported that they never interacted with faculty outside of class. 17% self-reported that they actively engage with faculty and 30% sometimes engage, so this access will greatly enhance the student experience.

Secondly, community. Under the rubric of community, there will be an emphasis on developing leadership skills; participating in volunteering and service learning opportunities across campus and beyond; attending smaller, interest-based programs; and engaging in ongoing community service planned by the individual student. With respect to community, 86% of our students said that they were satisfied with the on-campus experience. Those are the students who lived on campus. Of those who lived off campus, 77% said they were satisfied with it.

Mr. Chairman, this might be of particular importance to you, because one of the things that we are going to require you to do as emeritus is to come back and talk to our students in these living and learning environments about how you did. It is similar to when we did the "But For..." program. When we rolled out the "But For..." program, you talked with the students, and I noticed the delight and gleam in your eye when you talked to the students much more so than when you just talk to your fellow Board members.

Then we have self-awareness, career development through preparation and participation in internships, so you can expect a flood of applications to intern out on Morse Road at a certain facility. I won't go into it, but you can expect some people looking to intern with you guys. There will also be intergroup dialogue for appreciation of differences, and I think that we saw the need for that given the diverse group that came in here today in support of the various students. We see that there has already been some intergroup dialogue that appreciates our differences here. And there will also be Student Life programming to support intellectual development, sustainability, and health care. Our students reported at an 82% rate that those who live on campus engaged in self-discovery compared to only 64% of those students who live off campus.

To refine OSU's approach to the second-year experience, Dr. Adams-Gaston and a number of colleagues from across the University have visited several institutions throughout the country to assess their second-year programming and residential experience. I will note, parenthetically, that unlike OSU, most of those have been residential experiences. Ours is a living and learning experience where the programming is the centerpiece as opposed to the residence hall itself.

In addition, feedback has been received from several groups, including faculty, staff, and students. We have two committees that have looked at this programming aspect. The committee was introduced to two faculty members who are part of the faculty think tank, helping to shape the direction of the second-year experience. Dr. Susan Robb Jones, of the College of Education and Human Ecology, discussed the importance of learning environments and conditions that promote the success of all students. Dr. Robert Gustafson, of the College of Engineering, explained the small, team-based academic environment within the College of Engineering. This could not only be a model for our broader efforts across the University, but also be a model for the residential learning experience itself.

Dr. Adams-Gaston concluded by noting that the second-year experience that Ohio State is planning will make our University the nation's only institution to transform the student experience on such scale and such a high level.

The committee then endorsed resolutions establishing the Second-Year Experience Programming; the naming of the Hope's Boutique Fitting Room; a number of routine personnel actions; amendments to the Rules of the University Faculty and to the Code of Student Conduct; the establishment of doctor of philosophy degree programs in African American and African Studies and in Italian Studies; the establishment of a master of arts and doctor of philosophy degree program in Portuguese; the abolishment of the Department of Aviation and delegation of authority for its academic programs to the Center for Aviation Studies; a change in the name of the Department of Greek and

Latin to the Department of Classics; a change in the name of the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures to the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Cultures; a change in the names of the academic programs in the School of Earth Sciences leading to the bachelor, master, and doctor of philosophy degrees from Geological Sciences to Earth Sciences; and a change in the name of the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degree programs in the Department of Management and Human Resources from Labor and Human Resources to Human Resource Management.

The committee then went into executive session. That concludes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Any other questions, comments? Jack...

Mr. Fisher:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I have been sitting here listening to all of these great committee reports, and the opportunity you have to communicate good information, and reflecting on what I have tried to do the last couple of weeks, which has been trying to share with all of you that we have a very wholesome, nutritious, cost-effective product for your eating pleasure called pink slime. I want to reflect back as you think about that how that challenge relates to our strategic plan, our discovery themes, and the impact that we have on world food production and food distribution when we go through a discussion like that, but I do recommend that you not call it pink slime. I also recommend that you ask us how we make hotdogs.

We did have a lot of good information in our committee, though. We welcomed Director David Daniels, the new director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture. We have a lot of collaborative activities going on between our regulatory agency and our food system, both plant and animal areas, and collaboration with veterinary medicine and within our college, so we welcomed Director Daniels to our meeting.

We had an update on student recruitment. The change for quarters to semesters is coming on very nicely, and we were very pleased that the faculty and the students and also industry put a lot of effort into upgrading and looking with some vision at our curriculum as we convert from quarters to semesters. There is a lot of exciting information in the Board books, and I hope you do take time to look at it.

We also heard about all of our study abroad programs. We have both a ten-day and a six-week opportunity for our students. It is very well received. We have scholarships involved to help our students with that international travel, and it is a big part of their student experience and opportunity here at Ohio State.

Last, we had a report on the international project through USAID, a $24 million research grant in Tanzania. Ohio State has been involved in the world relative to being a land-grant university to the world since 1955. So we built on that experience and the good things that have been done throughout the world. We are excited about this collaboration with five other land-grant institutions with the lead here at Ohio State, and we look for a lot of good results from that international activity.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Questions, comments? Consent agenda.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 2012-78

Synopsis: Approval of Resolutions in Memoriam is proposed.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees approves the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey copies to the families of the deceased.

Beatrice J. Cleveland

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 14, 2012, of Beatrice J. Cleveland, Professor Emeritus in the Ohio State University Extension.

Professor Cleveland was born September 19, 1920, in Delaware, Ohio. She received a Bachelor of Science in Home Economics degree in 1942 from The Ohio State University, and earned a Master of Science degree in extension administration in 1957 from the University of Wisconsin.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Bea began her Extension career in Ohio in 1945 as the home demonstration agent in Madison County. In 1952, she became the assistant state leader for 4-H on the Columbus campus. She became the associate state leader for 4-H in 1971 and held that position until her retirement.

Bea Cleveland was a mentor and friend who made a tremendous positive difference in the lives of those with whom she worked in 4-H and at The Ohio State University, and in her numerous volunteer roles.

Bea served as an OSU Extension faculty member at Ohio State for 32 years. When she retired in 1977, her duties included overseeing the International 4-H Youth Exchange program and 4-H faculty leadership for the Ohio 4-H Foundation, directing State 4-H Leadership Camp, supervising the Ohio State Fair 4-H non-livestock program, and a host of other responsibilities. She also served on the National 4-H Foundation Board of Trustees and chaired the Extension Committee on Organization and Policy's National Teenage Nutrition Committee.

After her retirement, Professor Cleveland raised millions of dollars for Ohio 4-H and for colleges of The Ohio State University. For example, she founded the A. B. Graham Club for the Ohio Foundation and the College of Human Ecology's Diamond Club, and personally contacted and solicited many of the charter members.

Among her many honors are membership in the National 4-H Hall of Fame, the Ohio 4-H Hall of Fame, the Ohio Women's Hall of Fame, the Ohio State Fair Hall of Fame, the Ohio Agricultural Hall of Fame, and the OSU College of Education and Human Ecology Hall of Fame. She was the 2000 Ohio 4-H "Celebration of Youth" honoree, and the winner of the OSU Everett D. Reese Medal of Philanthropy (Ohio State's highest recognition awarded to fund-raising volunteers). She was honored in June 2010 by the naming of the "Bea Cleveland Board Room" within The Nationwide and Ohio Farm Bureau 4-H Center on the Columbus campus.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus Beatrice J. Cleveland its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Rocco D. D'Angelo

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 28, 2011, of Rocco D. D'Angelo, Professor Emeritus in the College of Social Work.

Professor D'Angelo earned numerous degrees, including his bachelor's degree from City College of New York and his master's degree from New York University. He furthered his education at Ohio University, receiving his master's degree in economics and his doctoral degree in education administration.

Prior to his time at The Ohio State University College of Social Work, Professor D'Angelo was the director of Admissions and Scholarships at New York University. He worked with the NAACP in the City of Orange, New Jersey, to fight school segregation and ultimately served on an advisory council to oversee the city's school restructuring process. He served as president of the North New Jersey Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers in 1965 and 1966, and was appointed as a career consultant to the U.S. Peace Corps.

Upon joining OSU's College of Social Work faculty in 1966, Professor D'Angelo served as Graduate Admissions director and taught in the research and social policy curriculum areas. He engaged in a line of research with high-risk adolescents and their families. His research was funded by the Junior League, the Columbus Foundation, and the College of Administrative Science Research Division. He also maintained a clinical practice at the Interfaith Counseling Center.

Dr. D'Angelo was published numerous times in refereed journals and was frequently sought out by local radio and television for his expertise. He served on boards of social agencies and was appointed consultant to Mayor Tom Moody to mediate problems in the Columbus Ombudsman's Office.

Professor D'Angelo served on several committees at Ohio State and was selected as the Social Work liaison for the University's General Education Curriculum (GEC) Council. His work in redesigning social work and GEC curriculum contributed to a dramatic enrollment expansion in Social Work.

Professor D'Angelo retired in 1992, but continued to teach primarily GEC courses in the College until very recently.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus Rocco D. D'Angelo its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

John B. Gabel

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 7, 2012, of John B. Gabel, Professor Emeritus in the Department of English.

Professor Gabel was a 1948 graduate of Parkesburg High School (Pennsylvania), and The Ohio State University where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1954. He later earned a Master of Arts degree from Wheaton College in 1956 and a Ph.D. degree from Ohio State in 1961. After serving as a member of the University of Illinois Department of English from 1961-1965, Professor Gabel returned to the English department of his alma mater.

Professor Gabel was a notable scholar of both the Bible and Renaissance literature. He co-authored the influential The Bible as Literature: An Introduction, which has gone through a number of editions and remains in print. He worked on early Tudor Humanist writers and translators, and contributed a notable edition of George Chapman's two-part play, The Conspiracy and Tragedy of Charles, Duke of Byron.

Professor Gabel was known for his good humor and inclusive nature, serving as an exemplary mentor and friend to many fellow faculty and students throughout his distinguished career. His scholarship, his editing (both formal and informal), and his teaching were characterized by his powerful intellect, his unceasing intellectual curiosity, his generous spirit, and the most careful application of those attributes. He was a model University citizen, always applying himself where needed; it was in that spirit that he became chairman of English, guiding the Department through the tumultuous 1970's with a capacious sense of fairness and an always steady hand. He was later acting dean of the Graduate School, and served on search committees for the dean of the College of Humanities and for the president of the University. All of these skills and talents came together when he was asked to write the official history of President Edward H. Jennings's tenure in office.

Professor Gabel was for many years an active member of various OSU organizations and associations, including Friends of the Libraries and WOSU, The Faculty Club, the President's Club, the Alumni Association, OSURA, and Phi Beta Kappa. He was a long-time member of Whigs and Tories and the Sunday Evening Discussion Group. He also belonged to the Funeral Consumers Alliance of Central Ohio and the National Parkinson Foundation of Central and Southeast Ohio.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus John B. Gabel its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Weldon A. Kefauver

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on December 20, 2011, of Weldon A. Kefauver, Director of The Ohio State University Press Emeritus.

Weldon Kefauver graduated from Bexley High School in 1946 and earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in English from The Ohio State University in 1949. Mr. Kefauver served his country in the U.S. Army during W.W. II.

As the director of The Ohio State University Press, Mr. Kefauver was most proud of publishing "...And Ladies of the Club" by Helen Hooven Santmeyer. This book reached the number one position on The New York Times best seller list in 1984. He retired from Ohio State in October of 1984.

He was president of the Association of American University Presses from 1977-1978. Mr. Kefauver was the recipient of The Ohio State University Centennial Service award among others.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Director Emeritus Weldon A. Kefauver its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Tony J. Peterle

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 15, 2011, of Tony J. Peterle, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Evolution, Ecology, and Organismal Biology.

Professor Peterle was born on July 7, 1925, and raised in Cleveland, Ohio. He enlisted in the U.S. Army during the midst of World War II. He saw action as a member of the 10th Mountain Division in Italy and in Germany, was wounded, captured, and awarded the Purple Heart following his liberation by General Patton's Army in 1945.

Professor Peterle earned his B.S. degree from Utah State University in 1949 and conducted his dissertation research on sharp-tailed grouse ecology at the University of Michigan, graduating in 1954. He served as a research biologist with the Michigan Department of Conservation and conducted research on red grouse in Scotland under a Fulbright Scholarship with Professor Wynne-Edwards at Aberdeen University before coming to Ohio State in 1959 as leader of the Ohio Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit. He was promoted to professor in 1967 and subsequently appointed as the first chairman of the Department of Zoology in the newly reorganized College of Biological Sciences in 1969, a position he held until 1981.

From the outset, Professor Peterle's career at Ohio State was marked by vision and innovation. He was among the first to apply radioactive tracer technology to understanding the movement and bioaccumulation of pesticides such as DDT and DDE in ecosystems. His publications and testimony before Congressional hearings contributed to the body of evidence that, in 1969, prompted the passage of legislation that banned the use of DDT and related pesticides in the United States. He was a true pioneer and leader in environmental toxicology as evidenced in his authorship of a textbook and 30 peer-reviewed publications in that field alone. Dr. Peterle was a teacher and mentor who led by example and had high expectations for himself and his students, including some 50 M.S. and Ph.D. graduates. During his 12-year chairmanship, the Department grew to national prominence, particularly in wildlife conservation, behavioral ecology, and aquatic biology.

Professor Peterle made significant contributions to the growth and prominence of The Wildlife Society (TWS) as a leading scientific organization in wildlife conservation. He served twice as editor of the Journal of Wildlife Management and was elected president of TWS. He was personally responsible for the emergence of TWS in international affairs through his advocacy and leadership of the International Congress of Game Biologists. He brought recognition to Ohio State through high-profile service to the National Academy of Sciences, National Fish and Wildlife Resources Research Council, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and the National Association of State Universities and Land-grant Colleges. In recognition of his scientific achievements and leadership Tony was presented with the Leopold Award by TWS in 1990. This was perhaps his most cherished honor, because in many ways his career, philosophy, and many talents emulated those of Aldo Leopold, the author of A Sand County Almanac.

Professor Peterle was a role model to his many students and colleagues who loved and admired this humble man of great achievement and enormous generosity.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus Tony J. Peterle its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on December 28, 2011, of William R. Riley, Associate Professor Emeritus in the Department of Physics.

Professor Riley was associated with the OSU Department of Physics beginning as a student in 1949. He received a B.A. degree from Hiram College in 1944 after which time he served as an ensign and lieutenant JG in the U.S. Navy from 1944-1946. He earned three degrees from Ohio State: B.S. (1951), M.A. (1952), and Ph.D. (1959). While in graduate school, he was a graduate assistant and lecture demonstration assistant. He joined the Department of Physics faculty after earning his Ph.D.

He was devoted to the teaching of physics and the training of physics teachers, dedicating his time and energy to the advancement of techniques, content, and the value of the education process. He received 22 peer-reviewed grants from the National Science Foundation, 20 of which were for In-Service Institutes to train secondary school science teachers each Saturday morning during the academic year. The other two were for special summer programs, one for secondary school science teachers, and one for college and university physics teachers in the U.S. and beyond.

In 1962, Professor Riley provided material assistance to Professor Franklin Miller, Jr. of Kenyon College in the making of several of his 19 brief silent film loops for classroom demonstrations. Miller's NSF-supported grant was accomplished primarily using OSU's Physics Department facilities and equipment. These film loops give classroom demonstration of phenomena too difficult, dangerous, or time consuming to be done live.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

This work with Professor Miller led to Dr. Riley's being appointed to the American Association of Physics Teachers' (AAPT) Committee on Visual Aids. He directed AAPT's International Film Loop Competitions III and IV and coordinated the Regional International Bi-Centennial Science Film Show held at OSU in 1976. From July 1969 to January 1976, he served as Film Review Editor for the American Journal of Physics.

In 1964 Bill was among four OSU physicists chosen to be consultants for Summer Institutes of Physics for college professors in India. Over the next several years Bill assumed a variety of roles in India being funded by the NSF, the OSU College of Education, and the Government of India, all aimed at improving the quality of science teaching in India.

For the last 15 years of his teaching career, he served as the course supervisor for the pre-professional undergraduate physics course sequence averaging 1,500 students per quarter across multiple lecture times and many recitation and lab sections. In addition to his administrative, lecture, and recitation responsibilities associated with this role, he actively served in the tutor room. He retired in 1987 and was granted emeritus status. In the spring of 2011, he was honored with the establishment of the William R. Riley Excellence in Teaching Physics Award in the Department of Physics.

Bill was an active member of the University Community Association and Indianola Forest Association and served on the Campus Partners Safety Committee. He also devoted his time and energy to the University Baptist Church, having sung in the choir and served multiple terms on the various boards and committees of this congregation that is active in the University community.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Associate Professor Emeritus William R. Riley its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Susann Erwin Rimer

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 28, 2012, of Susann Erwin Rimer, Instructor Emeritus in the Ohio State University Extension.

Ms. Rimer was born March 15, 1946 in Dover, Ohio. She received her Bachelor of Science degree in home economics in 1969 from Ohio University, and a Master of Science degree in 1980 in education from Wright State University.

Susann began her Extension career in Ohio in 1982 as the county extension agent-4-H in Trumbull County. In 1986 she became the home economics agent in Coshocton County and also served Holmes County as the extension agent for home economics. She later added Stark County to her responsibilities. Her last Extension position held was as the extension agent-4-H in Columbiana County, and she retired from this position in August 1998.

Ms. Rimer's work with 4-H youth educational programs, nutrition projects, and family resource management projects and workshops proved that she was a truly dedicated teacher for Extension clientele. She was a member of and served on many committees of several professional organizations. She enjoyed playing bridge, gardening, and bird watching.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Instructor Emeritus Susann Erwin Rimer its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Carolyn A. Romshe

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 18, 2012, of Carolyn A. Romshe, Associate Professor Emeritus in the Department of Pediatrics.

Dr. Romshe held a Bachelor of Science degree in medical technology from The Ohio State University, and received her M.D. degree from OSU as well. She completed her pediatric internship at St. Louis Children's Hospital and Washington University. She served her pediatric residency and pediatric endocrinology fellowships at Columbus Children's Hospital.

Dr. Romshe joined the faculty at Ohio State in the Department of Pediatrics in 1971. She was a strong clinician in the field of pediatric endocrinology. Her academic interests focused primarily on metabolic aspects of Reye Syndrome, growth hormone disturbances, and adrenal insufficiency. She was enthusiastic about clinical care and teaching, and enjoyed her opportunities to work with Ohio State University medical students and pediatric residents at Columbus Children's Hospital.

Professor Romshe was an avid supporter and fan of The Ohio State University. She was a life member of its Alumni Association. Upon her retirement from the College of Medicine in 1995, she became an Associate Professor Emeritus in the Department of Pediatrics.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Associate Professor Emeritus Carolyn A. Romshe its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Jeanette M. Zupancic

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on December 17, 2011, of Jeanette McCleery Zupancic, Assistant Professor Emeritus in the College of Social Work.

After earning her Master of Social Work degree, Professor Zupancic worked in child welfare as Social Work director in the Juvenile Diagnostic Center, and then as director of casework for Franklin County Children's Services. She was instrumental in changing decades-old practices of warehousing children in Fairfield County, Ohio, and was a pioneer in the emphasis of child development and protection within the family context. Professor Zupancic's efforts challenged political, legal, and medical prejudices that had allowed the continuation of outmoded practices and thinking about child welfare.

Professor Zupancic championed the need to employ highly skilled social workers. She also sought out funding for the development of day care centers for low income families. Her activism included the upgrading of staff credentials, attention to early childhood education curricula, and continuing education for all staff. In addition, Professor Zupancic promoted special education services for the disadvantaged and "reaching out" techniques to parents. She trained and supervised social workers in assessing needs and in maintaining family integration in place of irrevocable foster care and institutional placements.

Professor Zupancic joined the faculty of The Ohio State University College of Social Work in 1960 as an assistant professor. She went on to serve as director of the Undergraduate Social Work program and was awarded tenure by 1964. In her 25-year career at the University, she taught both undergraduate and graduate level courses and was lauded for redesigning courses in social work practice.

Professor Zupancic's professional affiliations included membership in the National Association of Social Workers, service on the Board of the Travelers Aid Society, the advisory board of the Rosemont Center, and the First Community Church Counseling Center. Colleagues said that in all her efforts, Professor Zupancic demonstrated, "...unusual leadership qualities...conscientiousness in completing challenging tasks...and great compassion for people and personal dignity."

On behalf of the University community, The Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Assistant Professor Emeritus Jeanette M. Zupancic its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

AMENDMENT OF THE UNIVERSITY NAMING GUIDELINES

Synopsis: Amendment of the University Naming Guidelines is proposed.

WHEREAS The Board of Trustees approved Naming Guidelines in May 2010 to govern the naming of entities, physical spaces and endowed funds at The Ohio State University; and

WHEREAS The Board of Trustees established an Advancement Committee in June 2010 to consider and make recommendations to the board on matters of policy and strategy pertaining to University development, alumni relations, communications, marketing and relating efforts to foster positive relationships with students, alumni, and other key audiences; and

WHEREAS the Advancement Committee Chair charged a review group to research and assess the current policies and practices for naming buildings and physical facilities at public universities to commemorate philanthropic commitments made to those universities by corporate entities in January 2012; and

WHEREAS the review group based on their research and assessment determined a need to provide greater clarity to and detail in the Naming Guidelines:

NOW THEREFORE

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

BE IT RESOLVED, That the revised University Naming Guidelines be adopted by the Board of Trustees and implemented by the Senior Vice President for Advancement and other University officials as authorized, effective immediately, as follows:

I. Overview

This document governs the naming of entities, physical spaces and endowed funds at The Ohio State University.

The University will enter into a commitment only after careful consideration of the potential impact the naming will have on the University and the campus community. Due diligence will be exercised to make certain that any proposed name would be consistent with University tradition and mission, and we will evaluate what pride and distinction might accrue to the projects and units involved, as well as to the leadership, faculty, staff, students and alumni.

All proposed minimum funding levels and potential building or entity namings must be initiated by a Dean/Unit Leader and routed to the Senior Vice President for Advancement for consideration at the leadership level prior to any discussion with prospective donors or honorees.

Final approval for all namings rests with the University's Board of Trustees. If at any time following the approval of the naming, circumstances change substantially so that the continued use of the name may compromise the integrity or reputation of the University, the University may remove the name. The University additionally reserves the right to dispose of any named property or facility as deemed necessary, via sale, demolition, etc. A name will not be removed without the recommendation of the President, approval by the Board of Trustees and notification of the donor or a legal representative.

II. Types of Namings

A. Commemorative, Expresses appreciation for an individual or organization for substantial philanthropic gift contributions to the University.

B. Honorific, Recognizes distinguished alumni or an individual for outstanding service to the University or extraordinary service to the community (e.g. Bricker Hall). Individuals must be disassociated from employment by or service to the University for at least three years prior to an honorific naming. This rule may be waived by action of the Board of Trustees.

C. Administrative, Relates to the function or location of the building; does not include the name of a person (e.g. Central Classroom Building).

III. Eligible Naming Opportunities

A. Entities, colleges, schools, departments, institutes, academic centers and programs

B. Physical Spaces, outdoor spaces and architectural elements, buildings and facilities, large interior spaces such as classrooms, auditoriums, foyers, lobbies, gymnasiums, hallways and lounges

C. Endowed Funds, a permanent funding source to support a specific purpose such as scholarships, programs, professorship/chair positions, etc.

IV. Guidelines for Funding

A. Entities, Discussions to determine an appropriate gift size for naming academic entities should include the Dean, Provost, and the Foundation with final approval from the Gift Acceptance Committee. Factors to consider include the size of the academic unit as defined by the operating budget, the unit's national ranking, and the "transformative" nature of the gift, meaning it should provide additional operating support that allows the academic unit to move forward in reputation in ways that it could not without the gift support. Gifts to name academic entities should be predominantly for endowment to support new programs and faculty. Generally entities will be named for individual donors and not for corporations.

A corporation or organization may name a University entity in very selective situations. Corporations or organizations proposed for such namings should have a positive image and demonstrated integrity. Additional due diligence must be taken to avoid any appearance of commercial influence or conflict of interest. Signage reflecting a corporate or organizational naming of an entity must conform to all University signage guidelines and will not include the corporation or organization logo or other components of its branding. The gift agreement may specify the number of years during which the entity will be named. If the name of the corporation or organization changes, the University at its own discretion may change the name of the entity. Also, the University at its sole discretion may change the name of the entity if circumstances related to the corporation or organization could damage the reputation of the University. Any consideration of a corporate or organizational naming of an entity must follow the assessment process described for the Gift Acceptance Committee.

B. Physical Spaces, Gifts to name a physical space should be at least 1/3rd of construction costs and should be outright gifts. In select cases (such as when a facility is fully funded or no private fundraising is required for the facility), irrevocable deferred gifts may also be accepted. Exceptions to the 1/3rd rule may occur for projects of extraordinary size and will be based on the available donor pool. Generally, buildings will be named for individual donors and not corporations or organizations. A corporation or other organization may name a University facility in very selective situations and special caution will be exercised in cases when a facility is dedicated totally for educational purposes. Corporations or organizations proposed for facility namings should have a positive image and demonstrated integrity. In the instance of corporate or organizational namings of facilities, additional due diligence must be taken to avoid any appearance of commercial influence or conflict of interest. Any consideration of a corporate or organizational naming of a facility must follow the assessment process described for the Gift Acceptance Committee.

Names will generally remain in place for the life of the physical facility when named for an individual, but in some cases may be negotiated for a term of years. When working with corporate and organizational donors, in some cases the gift agreement may specify the number of years for which the facility will be named. If the name of the corporation or organization changes during that period, the University, at its own discretion, may change the name of the facility. Also, the University at its sole discretion may change the name of the facility if circumstances related to the corporation or organization could damage the reputation of the University.

All signage and artwork must comply with the University's master space plan, will maintain consistency with current signage and visual identity guidelines per the Office of Facilities Operations and Development and University Marketing Communications, and will not include an organization logo or other components of branding. Existing naming opportunities approved in writing prior to March 1, 2009 will be grandfathered in to these new guidelines.

C. Endowed funds, The University invests the donor's(s') gifts in perpetuity and an annual distribution is used to fund the desired activities as requested by the donor(s) and approved by the Board of Trustees.

D. Note that unrestricted gifts may be appropriately recognized with official naming in any of the preceding three categories with the approval of the Gift Acceptance Committee.

V. Approval Process

A. Commemorative

1. Naming of academic entities such as colleges, departments and programs must be approved by the President and Provost after submission by the Senior Vice President for Advancement. All approvals must be received prior to any discussion with a prospective donor.
2. For new buildings and renovations, discussions with donors may begin after a project has been approved by the University but specific spaces within the building will generally not be named until the project reaches the design and construction phase. A complete plan for all naming opportunities within the building will be submitted to the Senior Vice President for Advancement, who will take the request to Integrated Financial Planning for review and comment. Once minimum gift levels are established, the development officer will confirm that any gift commitment meets the minimum funding levels. Any exceptions to these guidelines, or any naming in exchange for an unrestricted gift, will be taken to Integrated Financial Planning for approval and the Gift Acceptance Committee will be consulted as needed. All namings for corporations or organizations must be approved by the Gift Acceptance Committee.
3. Upon execution of the gift agreement, the naming will go to the Board of Trustees for approval at the next meeting.
4. Donor Relations will communicate final approvals back to the originator of the request

B. Honorific Naming

1. Complete naming request form and a list of the honoree's accomplishments; submit to Donor Relations.
2. Approval by Senior Vice President for Advancement is required and requests may be presented to the president and senior management council for comment and action.
3. Upon approval, the Foundation will forward the request to the University's Board of Trustees for approval at the next Board meeting.

C. Administrative

1. Complete naming request form or a letter of request with Dean or VP approval and submit to Donor Relations.
2. Approval by Senior Vice President for Advancement is required.
3. The approved request will be forwarded to Integrated Financial Planning for appropriate action.

Her numerous OSU honors and awards include: from the Department of Internal Medicine (Earl N. Metz Distinguished Physician Award 1999; special recognition in patient care, teaching and research, 1986; Teacher of the Year 1984); and from the College of Medicine (senior class teaching award in 1986, 1977, 1976, 1975, 1974; Professor of the Year 1979; Honorary Member of Class of 1979; AOA Faculty Member of Year, 1973); and from OSU (Faculty Merit Teaching Award 1978).

Sally Horn Academic Advisor Memorial Fund

The Sally Horn Academic Advisor Memorial Fund was established April 6, 2012, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University in accordance with the guidelines approved by the Board of Directors of The Ohio State University Foundation with gifts from her former students. This fund honors the tremendous service provided by all of the academic advisors that have served industrial and systems engineering (ISE) students over the years and in memory of Sally Horn (B.S. 1949) who served for decades as the undergraduate student advisor for what is now the Department of Integrated Systems Engineering.

Sally and the other academic advisors who have served the ISE program were instrumental in shaping the experiences of our students. Not only have advisors kept students informed about the "on paper" requirements necessary to get a degree, they have shared tribal knowledge accumulated over the years about how to take advantage of courses and other opportunities for learning available at Ohio State. Equally important, advisors have created a supportive environment that let the students know that the Department of Integrated Systems Engineering truly cares about them and wants to help them succeed.

The annual distribution from this fund shall be used by the chairperson of the Department of Integrated Systems Engineering, in collaboration with the current academic advisor, to improve the advising experience of ISE students.

In any given year that the endowment distribution is not fully used for its intended purpose, the unused portion should be held in the distribution account to be used in subsequent years and only for the purposes of the endowment, or reinvested in the endowment principal at the discretion of the dean of the College of Engineering.

Closure of Named Endowed Fund

John G. and Zoe Johnstone Woodwind Fund

The John G. and Zoe Johnstone Woodwind Fund was established June 2, 2006, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University in accordance with the guidelines approved by the Board of Directors of The Ohio State University Foundation, with gifts from John G. (Ph.D., 1984) and Zoe Johnstone. The fund was closed April 6, 2012.

Upon motion of Mr. Hicks, seconded by Mr. Kellogg, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote, cast by Trustees O'Dell, Shumate, Hicks, Fisher, Schottenstein, Ratner, Marbley, Kass, Reid, Jurgensen, Wadsworth, Kellogg and Smucker.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Let us take a couple of minutes to go around the table. I think it is a good thing to do. I am particularly impressed with the students you introduced today and their interest and connection to the University.

Ms. Heidersbach:

It is also interesting to hear stories. I always like to hear the back stories and see how we are connected because it seems at Ohio State; it is two degrees of separation as opposed to six.

I will keep my comments very brief. I was thinking about today. I used to swim. I swam for two years, and I swam competitively my whole life. I kind of related this day to the senior meet or the senior day that we would have on swim team. It was not only a day to honor the seniors and recognize their accomplishments, but also a day to swim, compete and continue our success. That is reflective of our progression these last two days. That being said, I just want to offer my congratulations to our senior swimmers. It has been a pleasure working with all of you, and I look forward to continuing our conversation and am looking forward to watching your support for the University as well; so go Bucks!

Mr. Smucker:

Thanks, Les. I wanted to say again that being here for six months or so, it is just an honor every day. The way that this meeting started out today was indicative of the caliber of this University, and I was so proud to be a part of it.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

I am privileged to get to know Brandon. I have known Wally for a number of years. Alex, it's been a privilege that you are on our Board and we have had your consult all the time. We will cherish what you have brought to this University and look forward to your continued support.

Les, I would just like to say, I have had the privilege to know you from afar, so I have not had the chance to know you as well as many in this room. But I want to thank you for your example, the fact that you challenged us, you prodded us to think about doing things that are the higher good, and I truly mean that sincerely. I came across a quote today that I think is indicative of what you have done. It is by Thomas Paine and says, "The world is my country, all mankind are my brethren, and to do good is my religion." You exemplify that, so thank you for what you have done and your example.

Dr. Wadsworth:

I guess we will all have some very similar themes. It was a very interesting meeting, of course, with what happened earlier, very positive, and I also want to extend my appreciation to Brandon, who is just a wonderful guy. We have heard some really wonderful things from him. Of course our friends, Wally and Alex, I echo everyone else's comment.

Les, I was trying to think about how to describe you on a bumper sticker. When I think of you, I think of you as an active thinker. You are a very deliberate thinker. When we talk about something on a Thursday night and come in on Friday, Les will say, "I have been thinking about what we talked about." He is a very active thinker and there are three ways he thinks. They keep knocking me back because each time I think I have caught up with him, he is on to the next big idea. So here is the bumper sticker: "He thinks big, he thinks differently, and he thinks often."

Mr. Wexner:

I appreciate that! My wife has to live with it.

Dr. Reid:

I normally don't put bumper stickers on my car, but I am reassessing that. I too ditto the comments made previously about the pleasure of serving with you and certainly with Wally and Alex, who has been a counselor, I think, to everybody. I really appreciate that.

And to our chair, I can't remember how many years back it was that our chair first talked to me about the possibility of being a Trustee of The Ohio State University. At that point, I thought it was a kind of interesting thing, but I was quite busy at the time. So I want to personally thank you for making my service here possible, because it would not have been possible without you and also without Gil's support, who did a lot of speaking to me as well.

But I also want to thank you for, you speak about curiosity all the time and in my lingo it would be veracious curiosity, your curiosity, not just around possibilities, not just here at the University, but how you think about the world. How you think certainly about the state of Ohio and Columbus is just tremendous. I think you said it best; you never stop thinking. So that is a good thing for you. It is certainly a good thing for us as it is also contagious, so it causes the rest of us to not be so quick to conclude but be quicker to explore. And then when it is the time to conclude, to do so more intelligently than otherwise, so I want to thank you for that.

I also want to thank you for being a part of a two person unit, because it is not just you, it is you and Abigail together who make such a powerful couple. Being still a little bit of a newlywed, I look to you and Abigail in terms of how you have worked together as a unit and as a team to benefit the community. That has been a blessing to all of us.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

The last thing I would like to say is what we saw today is what I hope our nation's future and that is people of all kinds of diverse backgrounds coming together for the purpose of betterment. You can't get more American, you can't get more the state of Ohio than that, and thank God these people are located in our community.

Judge Marbley:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. First, I want to thank Brandon for all of the contributions he made. Brandon was also one of my students, and I don't know that I have enjoyed having anyone in class as much as I did you. You are bright, you are engaging, you have a quest for knowledge, you will do well, and I do look forward to the day when you come back to serve on this Board as a nine-year Trustee.

Wally, it has been a pleasure to serve with you. I don't know if we have a more exuberant Board member than you. You have great passion for this University, and it is infectious. I agree with our President about the many contributions that you have made.

Alex is my big brother. He is my close friend. He has been a mentor to me and the esteem with which I hold him cannot easily translate into words publicly, but he knows what I mean.

And then our chairman. You know, Mr. Chair, I jotted these notes down yesterday while you were talking. I was paying attention to you, but I jotted these things down as you were talking yesterday. We often make the mistake of looking back to determine our measure of success, so I am trying to give you a prescriptive tip not to look back on what you did as chair, but to look forward, because to look back to determine the success of your work would be a great mistake. But if you look forward, you can really determine the effectiveness of what you have done in three years, in five years, in ten years. I want you to look at this Board and the direction in which the University has our trajectory and take great credit for it, because it really will be a testament to your leadership.

I think that your great work in terms of teaching us to think strategically, and if I can digress even more, I love the story of how I have been out to see you a couple of times to talk about student life. You tell me to be out there at 4:30, so I try to get out there by 4:25, and then at 6:30, you are done telling me about strategic planning and I ask you the first question, "Les, what do you think we should do in student life this year?" Then two hours later, you have told me about strategic planning, and I am driving away from your house trying to figure out what just happened. Then the next day, the light will go off, and I see where you have guided me, because I am thinking on the ground and you are looking at this from 30,000 feet, that student life is a part of a greater whole. Only someone with your vision and insight has the mental discipline to keep us on task, because we are thinking about our immediate task and you are thinking about the larger picture, which is why you have been so successful.

The other thing I want to say is that when I began my Board service, I served with Gil Cloyd, who I think will go down as one of our great chairs because Gil was the consummate consensus builder. I did not think that there could be a better consensus builder. I didn't think that you were going to be as good of a consensus builder as you have been, especially given your success and given your knowledge and insights. You could have just basically told us what to do and we would have been constrained on some level to do it. But you took the culture that Gil had established on consensus building, and you built it into an art form.

So we had a Board that had one of the greatest entrepreneurs of any era who guided us by consensus, and I think that is a great testament to your leadership.

Last, I live by the maxim that friendship is essential to the soul. I say that every day. That is the first thing I tell myself when I get up in the morning. You have shown that your friendship to the University has been essential to our soul as an institution, as an organic entity that grows. So I want to thank you for that personally and to thank you for that on behalf of the University.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Well done all of you. And in conclusion, ditto. It strikes me that with a few exceptions, none of us really picked each other. We all got here through our own individual paths and were selected in some cases by different governors, and yet, I cannot imagine a better group of people to serve with. It is a spectacular Board. The secret sauce that sits around this table is really special. I am really going to miss Brandon. I really appreciate what you said earlier and have loved working with you and know that we will work more in the future. Wally, the first person to reach out to me when I joined this Board in 2005 was you, and you never stopped, and I appreciate that. And Alex, who is the rock of Gibraltar, just a granite anchor in so many ways, a wonderful human being and a great friend.

And then you, Les. I loved what you said earlier, Monte, about the one thing that puts a gleam. I never really thought about it but the thing that puts a gleam in your eye other than the pretty lady sitting in the second row and your wonderful children are students. As good as you are with us, you are equally good, if not better, when you are with students teaching, a master teacher, a relentless thinker as Jeff said, always curious. You look at issues three-dimensionally. I don't even know what that means but you do.

It is the most bizarre thing. Just when you think you have got him cornered, a vector is coming from someplace else, and those of us who think differently feel, "How could I be so stupid?" Right? I have loved all those meetings that I have had the privilege of having with you, intended to talk about topic A, when we ended up talking about topic Les. I got a lot more out of it as a result, but I know that those will continue. I know of no one who cares more, thinks more, works harder for this University than you. You have elevated the level of thinking of this Board. I don't know how other universities operate public and private but if there is a better Board out there, we ought to take the plane and go visit them, because I would take them on. But just thank you, thank you, thank you, thank you. We know your phone number, and we know where you live, and we know you are not going anywhere. We need you and will continue to lean heavily on you.

Mr. Hicks:

It is going to be hard to say anything when you get to your side of the room over there. I am glad I am over here. It has been an extraordinary couple of days. I mean it has been, as always, a very productive, very busy and a pretty business-oriented meeting yesterday and today. I thought, just from a business standpoint, the update we got from Joe on strategy was really, really helpful. This strategy is a tough journey; you are kind of trimming the sails all the time to make sure you are heading in the right direction, but I think that with the scorecards that we talked about in our committee meetings, with the direction that we are heading with some of the audacious goals, I feel very good that we have the right strategy and the right strategic direction. I think a lot of that has to do with your leadership, Les.

I also thought, Monte, in our committee on Academic Affairs, the report and the update that we got and the information that we talked about relative to the second-year experience was extraordinary, because it was really the first time that I was able to get my arms around, not just the building aspects of being on campus for two years, but the programmatic improvements and the impact on student learning that is going to happen. I thought it was extraordinary. I hope at some point Dr. J. and her team can make a presentation to the full Board on this, because I thought it was really, really well done.

I also thought the students this morning were incredibly appropriate, respectful, and vigilant with their concerns. I thought that our response was outstanding. President Gee, I thought your response was fabulous to them, and I think one of the reasons our response was so great to the students was because we have been so proactive on the issue. We didn't wait until something happened yesterday. It has been something that we have talked about for a long time. But I also think that we need to recognize that what happened with the incident 48 hours ago or 24 hours ago is going to happen again. It will happen again, and our vigilance as a Board every time something like that comes up to be as proactive, as strong, as critically responsive is going to be really, really important. Because, unfortunately, in this day and age, it is going to happen. We know it is going to happen and until it stops happening, we can't stop being vigilant.

And then the last thing I would say, just to echo everything that was said, is we have got some extraordinary leaders that are leaving the Board, but we are not going to lose their leadership. Brandon has been an outstanding Trustee, and I put an adjective in front of that, an outstanding Trustee. It is amazing, and we are very fortunate that we had your background and your experience and your insight during a time when we needed that had what occurred in the last year or so occurred three years ago, we would have had nobody on this Board that had that insight, so we could not have come through that experience as well without your insight. Thank you for being here at the time. I agree that you are going to be a great nine-year Trustee, not just a great Trustee down the road.

Wally-I have had the experience of serving on the Board with Wally since the day I got here, and it has been extraordinary. There is nobody more passionate about Ohio State. I am so glad that around this time nine years ago, the Governor called you and I did not. You have been just a great, great member of the Board.

And to Alex, with your experience before, your experience now, your steadfastness has been just absolutely extraordinary for the University, and we will all miss your wise and steady counsel.

And, Mr. Chairman, extraordinary leadership. I am not sure how you underscore that or how you put more adjectives to that, because it really has been remarkable. I think Jeff's comment about the way you think is dead on. Every one of us loves this University. Every one of us is part of the family and thinks about Ohio State certainly every week, oftentimes every day. I am not sure that anybody thinks about it every minute like you do, and I am not sure that anybody thinks about it like you think about it and, whatever vector it comes from, I just don't know that anybody thinks about it like you. You know, we have got all these quotes out there from great people who do great things, but this paying forward concept that we will hang our hat on probably has been no more epitomized than what you have done for this University, not just in the last couple of years in your leadership, but really in your lifetime, so thank you. It has been an extraordinary experience to learn from you and watch you, so I appreciate the opportunity to talk this morning.

Mr. Mitchell:

You know, when I signed a scholarship to come to Ohio State as an undergrad about ten years ago, I never would have thought I would be a part of moments like today. I am so proud to be a student and to represent the students because of things like we had this morning. At a lot of other campuses, that situation would have been handled a lot differently and could have gotten a lot more contentious, so I am just thankful to be a part of a university that is open to listen to ideas and to really listen to the students.

I have been really reflective, so I took my notebook I have carried around the same notebook for all the Board meetings to look to the first page to see what the first note I wrote at my first Trustee meeting was and, as a lot of people will remember this, it is, "What is the big what?" Our Chairman posed the question, you know, as the big what; and that is who we are and what are we looking to become. To see Provost Alutto's presentation today, I can answer the question of what the big what is that I had on my first day, so it is great to have that 360 degree view to come back around and be able to answer the questions that I had from my first day.

As I leave physically, of course my thoughts will still be with the University, and I will still be checking in on Board members and calling you all for wise counsel, but I want to issue you a challenge and the challenge is simple. We have heard it a lot, but it's just two words: "Get better."

Dr. Cloyd:

I would like to start my comments with a little bit of a different direction because I think this meeting has represented a very important milestone in the journey that we are on a journey that is probably best described as starting several years ago by Dr. Whitacre, our Vice President of Research, as she began to look at our capabilities and how are we doing with having those wonderful scientific and technical capabilities to impact science, what we were doing in revenue generation. That work was expanded when Dean Poon came to the campus as she began to look at it. We instituted a working group, and I thank Brian Hicks, Jerry Jurgensen and Jeff Wadsworth as they rolled up their sleeves and jumped into that subject. Mr. Chatas, our CFO, got added to the process along the way and, of course, last June when Brian Cummings came here from the University of Utah, the planning moved forward in a much more energetic pace.

We saw an important milestone this week with the opening of our Technology Commercialization and Knowledge Transfer facility and the announcement of our innovation fund. I thank the Board for their support in establishing this important innovation foundation but we really, I think, have made a bold step forward in creating an ecosystem, and it is going to be a journey, but creating an ecosystem that is going to do four important things. It is going to be a revenue generator for reinvestment in this University; it is going to allow the tremendous intellectual capital in science and technology at this University to better impact society addressing some of our most serious problems; we are going to create an outstanding educational opportunity for our students across the campus to really understand innovation, entrepreneurship and enterprise development; and the final thing, it is going to be a very important force in stimulating economic development of this state jobs creation, new business creation. So for me, this was just a wonderful couple of days as we went through that, and I thank the Board for their support.

The other thing I would like to do is to echo comments by all the other Trustees. I want to thank Brandon, Wally and Alex for your wonderful collegueship and service on the Board. I am honestly more thankful, though, for your friendship, which extends beyond this Board and is not going to have any limits. I appreciate that very much.

And, Mr. Chairman, I also thank you for your collegueship, your leadership, your friendship. You are a dynamic force and this University is very well served and is very, very appreciative that you have chosen to put the dynamic force of your intellect to progressing the betterment of this University, so thank you for that.

Mr. Kellogg:

As always, I am extremely blessed and enriched any time we gather for these meetings because of what takes place. Mr. Chairman, you always talk about the work of the work and that never fails to be a huge part of what drives our time together. I am thankful for that because it is work, demanding, important, and challenging work, and we see the fruits of that work in many, many ways at many different times. Certainly that was on display here as we started today's meeting.

I had a couple of thoughts that I wanted to direct to my fellow Trustees, those that are leaving their service as Trustees, but also to the group in general, because every time that I am at a meeting or in the company of you all, it is hard for me not to think about leadership. Mr. Chairman, you planted that seed and, I don't know if you recall this, but I was at your home not long after I had been appointed to the Board knowing you had advocated for me. We sat down and had dinner and you spoke to some folks prior to that about leadership. Since then I have kind of been on a personal journey to study it, look at it and try to grow in it, and I just had a couple of thoughts.

One for all of us, because all of you embody this and demonstrate this, leadership is leveraging one's influence for a worthwhile cause. Leadership can go out, it can go up, it can go down, and it can go around. It is 360 degrees, and that circumference is always part of any interaction I have with you all. The other thing I would say is that leaders are exposers, they are explainers, they are exemplifiers, they are evaluators, and they are encouragers. And that too is represented by all of you.

Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to say so much of what you said yesterday resonated on a lot of levels with a lot of us and like many, I took notes. I try to do that whenever somebody is speaking to learn and to grow. But there were four things you mentioned that I just wanted to share: diverse skills, diverse perspectives, work, and curiosity are requirements of us as Board members, and that is a great reminder as we go forth.

And, lastly, I wanted to close with a paraphrase of one of my favorite verses in the Bible. It is Psalm One, and I am going to paraphrase this because I think of you when I think of this particular Psalm. "Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked or stand in the way of sinners or sit in the seat of mockers," and I am paraphrasing here, "but his delight is in doing what is right, what is best, and what is good for the greatest number of people, and on this he thinks day and night. He is like a tree planted by streams of water which yields its fruit in season and whose leaf does not wither. Whatever he does prospers." You have prospered all of us by your leadership and your example, and I am thankful and appreciate it.

Mr. Jurgensen:

For two days now, I have sat next to him, and I keep telling him that I feel like Steve Kerr because when he is done talking, there is really not a lot left to say that is worth anything.

I just want to try to call out four observations about the individuals that are heading in to the next phase of their commitment to the University. I start with Wally. There is a concept in the Senn Delaney training, that many in the room are familiar with, called observer-critic. To me, Wally always has represented the antithesis of the observer-critic. The notion of it is that observer-critics, when they speak or when they react to things, always find the wrong before the right. What is wrong with this is depicted in an example we experience with the wheelbarrow design. But Wally is the antithesis of that because Wally always finds the right before the wrong. That is really the kind of thing that you can build on to take a good idea and make it better, and I appreciate that in him.

I have had the pleasure of working with Alex both on this Board, but I have also had Alex as a director, which is funny because every time he comes to see me, he always says, "Hello boss." But the reality is he has never worked for me, but I have worked for him. I think the word that sticks out to me, and it was mentioned earlier and it goes under this idea of a wise counselor, is what a fabulous listener he is. I usually speak before I listen, and it has gotten me in a lot of trouble. It has given me more free time, but Alex never does that. Alex always listens first, he listens, he thinks, and he contemplates.

Brandon has been a joy. I question his source of employment on a going forward basis. Actually, that is not true; I think he made a great choice. There are a lot of things I miss about Nationwide, but one of the things I will really miss now is not having the opportunity to work with you there. You are going to find it is a great company, and you are going to make it even better. The reason you are is that you are a values-oriented man and you are principled. It was amazing to me. It was mentioned earlier but it was amazing to me to sit next to you during all of the meetings and deliberations that we went through over our athletics issues to see your reactions, because I always like to see where peoples' first instincts are in an issue and yours always went to values. I hope you never compromise those. I know you won't.

Now with respect to Les, there have been a lot of things mentioned and I, too, like Bobby would say, "Ditto." But one of the things that I appreciate about you is your capacity to reveal the profound in the simple. I am going to give one example, I talk about this all the time when I talk about you behind your back, it is the first time you explained to me the concept of how leaders lead. It is just two words: leaders lead. I have thought about that now for almost a decade, because it was ten years ago you told me that. One of the things I take away from the phrase is that being in charge doesn't a priori make somebody a leader. We are surrounded by all kinds of people in this world who are in charge, but a far smaller percentage of them are truly leaders.

There is really only one thing that defines a leader to me and that is action, and Les, you have a long history of acting with your talent, your time and your treasure. We are all familiar of the concept, "to whom much is given, much is expected," but it is even more important when not a single thing was given to you, and yet you now pass on to others.

You also, to me, lead with integrity. The definition of that is that there is high congruence between your words and your actions. You don't say one thing and do another you do the same. In 1970, there was a concept of leadership coined by a man named Robert Greenleaf called the servant-leader. You represent the best example of servant-leadership, one aspect of which is the notion of building community, and you do that better than anyone I have ever seen.

Mr. Ratner:

You were absolutely right, by the way, that by the time we get to this end of the table, it is sort of hard. I started scratching off things I was going to say as everybody has said them, but it is interesting because in a way it is fascinating. This is a Board that comes from such diverse backgrounds and experiences, and yet, as I said earlier today, we really have very much the same perceptions of our experiences over the last four or five years. As we look forward, I think, and I agree, it was you, Judge, who said that Les and the other members of the Board who are stepping down from their Board role and into a new role with the University will be able to look back in five or ten years and really see the impact of their service. But I am going to start with a very personal comment about my own service on the Board.

I think only Jeff and I share the distinction of not having a prior experience of being graduates of the University. When I was appointed to the Board, I actually knew next to nothing about Ohio State and, I think, I surprised Governor Strickland by saying that I wanted to spend a little time getting to know the University and getting to know its leadership, because I really wanted to be sure that, in fact, I could bring honor to the honor that he had given me by asking if I wanted to serve on the Board. I came down to the University and met with Dr. Cloyd and, of course, that was an extraordinary meeting. I got a sense of what the University was all about and what service on the Board was about.

I met with President Gee, and all of us know what that is like. I came away sort of stunned and shocked saying, "Wow, that will be an experience." Then I got a chance to meet with Les in his office and, in effect, the discussion that I had with Les was sort of an earlier version of his "But For Ohio State..." speech that was so remarkable. He told me a very personal story of his journey at Ohio State, of what it meant to him, and that period of time when he was discouraged as a Board member and had thought about quitting as a Board member, thought about resigning, and then he said, "You know, I decided it really wasn't about me but it was about the much broader issues about what Ohio State meant and what it could be and what it needed to be and about the demands for service and about the obligations to service." I have thought about that a lot because the thing that I have found, as I have learned about the University and as I have experienced through the leadership of Les, Wally, Alex and Brandon, is that Ohio State has a remarkable ability to make a community of 110,000 people and 63,000 students feel very individual and very personal.

Each of us talks about this University now, and I consider myself a sort of foster alum, but everybody talks about this University in a very personal sense. It is a very personal journey, but it is a personal journey that transcends the personal and really becomes about a much broader, much more important community. Les, that is the insight that you gave me. I found that it is very much both an individual experience and one that is embedded in a much broader sense of values and a sense of significant events and moment that has been, in many ways, the story of my experience with you as the chair and with each of my fellow Board members, a very individual, a very personal experience and, at the same time, one where we are all dedicated to a much broader vision.

The other comment I would make is about Les' unique ability to, in effect, disagree without being disagreeable. I always find myself going into a discussion with Les convinced that I sort of know where I want to go and coming out in a completely different place and believing that that completely different place was, in fact, where I wanted to go. Somebody mentioned that Les is a three-dimensional thinker. I think what we all miss is that he is not a three-dimensional thinker; he is a four-dimensional thinker. He adds his own unique dimension to every discussion; therefore, most of us are amazed by the world he has opened us up and introduced us to.

Wally, getting to know you has been really a privilege. It has been a lot of fun. Again, on a very personal sense, I come down here and I just feel better when Wally is in the room. You know that we will dedicate each and every air conditioning unit to you.

Alex, again, everybody has said it, but you are clearly a rock, but I feel deeply that I have created a friendship with you that certainly transcends our joint service on this Board, and I have learned so much from your leadership.

Brandon, I have said this in many other venues that I am always shocked at our Student Trustees. They just add so much to the Board. I think it is indicative of all of our feelings about our Student Trustees that, in fact, we have asked the Legislature to allow them to be full voting members of the Board. I have served on other boards. I have served on other university boards where we have student trustees, but we are afraid to engage them in the way that we engage the students here. That is an engagement that I think, in effect, the Board has permitted and encouraged, but one that has been returned with such depth and meaning. Your service is indicative of the quality of the service that every Student Trustee gives us, and you are not really Student Trustees. I don't really look at you that way. I certainly don't look at you that way, Brandon. You are a Trustee; you are not a Student Trustee, so when you do get your nine-year term, it will simply be an eleven-year term because you really have served in every way as a Trustee and as a friend. I really appreciate that.

So, Les, and the other gentlemen, it really will be a different meeting when you are not in the meeting but, as I said, you should look at what happens to this University and realize that you have set it on an extraordinary path, both at a personal, individual level and for the University as a whole. I really thank you.

Mr. Fisher:

Well, if I could steal a little bit from the example of Wally, there is some good in being towards the end, and that is it is a great feeling of just sitting here and listening to all of you, my colleagues, in terms of what you have to say, how you say it, and how much I believe in and support everything that you have said. It has been particularly rewarding just sitting here and watching this.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Some have characterized board work as a parade of people. If I can use that analogy, I can look at the people that we have served with and now the people leaving this Board, look at all the things that I can reflect on, and can remember and enjoy from this parade and our colleagues that are leaving.

I also had the opportunity to work with a former Student Trustee who is on my staff at the Farm Bureau. Brandon will be right across the street, and I am sure we will have opportunities to work together. Another former Student Trustee is in a very prominent position in the U.S. Senate whom we work with frequently. I am sure Les, Alex, Wally and Brandon; we will all have unique, interesting, and great opportunities to work with all of you in the future.

It is also said that typically, and I think it is very true here, Boards do their best work when they select their leadership. The process may not be too good but in the end, the results are nearly always very good. I reflect back that Dr. Cloyd served a great role at a point in time on this Board and Les, you as well, in terms of being our leader with the issues and challenges we had during your tenure. You have served us well in that role so, to all of you, good work in selecting our leadership.

Brandon, to you, I look forward to seeing you maybe on a daily basis here in the future. I know I will run into Wally and Alex on an ongoing basis. I would end with, of all of you, probably the counselor who has been toughest on me has been Alex. He has given me some pretty firm advice, and what I really appreciate about it is I took it and I learned from it. Thank you, Alex.

Mr. O'Dell:

I think everybody knows that I can usually say what I want to say in about thirty seconds, but I am going to need a little more time than that right now. This has been one of the greatest days of my life. Serving on this Board for nine years is one of the greatest honors of my life. I have loved every second of it, and I am certainly going to miss it. One of the greatest things about this Board is the Student Trustees and, Brandon, you have been an outstanding Student Trustee following a long line of outstanding Student Trustees.

I had a long working career. I was sort of the turnaround expert for Emerson Electric. I moved every two or three years and never really had a permanent home. I moved here from Hong Kong in '91 and put down deep roots over time. It started with people being very, very nice to me when I got here, and it started with Alex. Alex provided a little act of kindness when I moved to town and then so did Governor Voinovich and various other friends that I have developed along the way. This has become our lifelong home for my children as well as my grandchildren.

It has been an amazing opportunity and, Gordon, your friendship, your leadership is a very, very important part of that. I thank you for that, and I want to have a continuing, lifelong friendship.

Les, your leadership and Abigail's leadership in this community, in this University, in this state has made this state and this University the place to be, the place I want to be, and I really, really thank you for that. Bobby, I wish you the very best. I know you will be a great chair and a great leader, and you and your family were great friends from the moment I moved here in '91. I thank you for that.

I wish this University and this Board the best, and I thank each and every one of you for the beautiful, touching, positive comments that you have made today, and in many other days, about me and my family. Thank you very much.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Shumate:

Let me just quickly say, thank you. It is definitely not good bye, but we will see you later.

Dr. Horn:

I just wanted to take a second to make an observation. I think the Board talks about things for so long that they forget what kind of impact they make outside the board room, if you will. Today, the University committed itself to a really radically new two-year experience for undergraduates. The University committed itself to providing 50 million new dollars to students for merit-based aid and need-based aid, and the University committed itself to increasing the size of the tenure-track faculty by eight to ten percent.

To paraphrase the chairman, "This is a big, damn deal." There is no other public university that I know of that can be so bold. There are very few public universities that are even dreaming this boldly, and for that boldness of vision, we owe a debt of gratitude to the whole Board, but I think especially to our chairman for pushing us to be innovative and disciplined, to think big, and to aspire to be one of the great public universities in the country.

I mentioned last night that I have never been as proud as a faculty member of our University, and I hope it is not presumptuous to speak on behalf of the entire faculty to thank Brandon, to thank Wally, to thank Alex, and particularly to thank Les for their discipline and vision and commitment.

President Gee:

I am emotionally spent. I want you to know that. I really am. I must say that this has been one of the most extraordinary days, and this last session, I am just sitting here thinking what I would be able to say. I think I will just say a couple of things because I have had a chance to say what I really want to say about our Board members individually to all of you and individually to them.

I think we want to make two observations. First is that the reason that we can say wonderful things about the folks that are celebrated today is because of the fact that they have had great partners in the rest of our Board, and I think that is important. The work continues. Our aspirations are high. Our aspirations will continue to be even higher. Today, a standard has been set that is going to launch us in directions that are really remarkable as an institution, so I thank all of you for that. I thank every Board member here. I thank particularly the leadership that has been provided, and I am very blessed to have this position.

The second thing I want to say is an observation that we really did rise to our higher angels today. That was about as good as it gets, I think, so thank you very much.

Mr. Wexner:

Again, I said it at the beginning of the meeting and David recapped some of the achievements at the end, I think this hopefully becomes a tradition of going around the room at meetings because I think it is good to have hindsight, and then it is good to have insights, but it is also good to have this kind of reflection about the work of the work, and that is how I really interpreted the comments whether it is about expanding faculty or about expanding student aid.

As Gil talked about, we have gone a few years ago from talking about the idea of technology being important to actually creating a center, hiring talented people and bringing people together so that the technology we have and our thinking can impact the world, but we can also benefit from it by reinvestment in the institution. We have had those kinds of forward-thinking activities.

I am always interested in leadership, because we all wonder how we think or how we appear, because we never see ourselves accurately in the mirror, and people here have talked about caring about mankind, thinking big and differently, voracious curiosity, looking forward, teacher, consensus, friendship, teaming, driving forward, getting better, dynamic forces, the work of the work, about values, about profound and simple, about the notion of integrity and leading from a position of integrity, and servant-leaders, and I put those things together with one thought, you might put this in the notebook, leadership is like the wind; we all know when there is none and we all know when there is a lot whether it is a tornado or hurricane or still, calm air.

Invisible as it is, we feel the force of that leadership. The perspective that I put on the remarks I repeated that you have said, I just see enormous pride in what we have done together, because what you have described is not me but you. I am just the mirror that is reflecting the quality and the integrity of our leadership, the ability to think, the consensus building. None of us can make eagles fly in formation, and none of us can make ourselves think almost, let alone other individuals, and I think that in capturing the moment, there is a secret sauce of the collective efforts. I think it's important that they be reflected in meetings and periodically together to make sure that there is the consensus, there is the integrity, there is the outside the box thinking, there is the voracious curiosity. The University needs that. The work is so important. No matter how we contribute or when we contribute, it requires those skills. I think that the Board, the whole Board, students and people of different backgrounds and perspectives are needed to move this institution forward. So the work of the work is very difficult, and it requires those kinds of collective characteristics.

I am positive that Bob will be successful, and Bob's successor will be successful as long as there is a collective memory and, more than that, actions about those kinds of perspectives. The collective thinking of this group and a broad group, not only of the Trustees, but also of the administration, is the secret sauce; it is what drives the University forward, so I am appreciative of the work that we have done together. I truly see the comments that were made are collective and you should see them as a reflection of yourselves.

I am the small mirror. You guys are the bright lights. Thank you.

We are adjourned.

Thereupon the Board adjourned to meet Friday, June 22, 2012, at The Ohio State University, Longaberger Alumni House, Columbus, OH.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Appointment decisions for regular faculty positions, as defined in rule 3335-5-19 of the Administrative Code, must be based on criteria that reflect strong potential to attain tenure and advance through the faculty ranks. A minimum requirement for appointment at or promotion to the rank of assistant professor or a higher rank is an earned doctorate or other terminal degree in the relevant field of study or possession of equivalent experience. Appointments at the rank of instructor should normally only be made when the offered appointment is that of assistant professor but the appointee has not completed the required terminal degree at the onset of the appointment.

Chapter 3335-23

CODE OF STUDENT CONDUCT

3335-23-01 Introduction and purpose.

The code of student conduct is established to foster and protect the core missions of the university; to foster the scholarly and civic development of the university's students in a safe and secure learning environment, and to protect the people, properties and processes that support the university and its missions. The core missions of the university are research, teaching and learning, and service. Preservation of academic freedom and free and open exchange of ideas and opinions for all members of the university are central to these missions.

3335-23-02 Jurisdiction.

The code applies to the on-campus conduct of all students and registered student organizations, including conduct using university computing or network resources. The code also applies to the off-campus conduct of students and registered student organizations in direct connection with:

- (A) Academic course requirements or any credit bearing experiences, such as internships, field trips, study abroad or student teaching;
- (B) Any activity supporting pursuit of a degree, such as research at another institution or a professional practice assignment;
- (C) Any activity sponsored, conducted, or authorized by the university or by registered student organizations;
- (D) Any activity that causes substantial destruction of property belonging to the university or members of the university community or causes serious harm to the health or safety of members of the university community; or
- (E) Any activity in which a police report has been filed, a summons or indictment has been issued, or an arrest has occurred for a crime of violence.

The code governs all campuses of the university, ~~however~~ However, students attending at regional campuses, ~~and the agricultural technical institute centers, or institutes~~ are advised to consult their local ~~campus publications~~ resources for additional information or rules pertaining to those ~~campuses~~ locations, which may create hearing boards or processes for the ~~campus~~ location, consistent with these rules.

The university reserves the right to administer the code and proceed with the hearing process even if the student withdraws from the university, is no longer enrolled in classes, or subsequently fails to meet the definition of a student while a disciplinary matter is pending.

Students continue to be subject to city, state, and federal laws while at the university, and violations of those laws may also constitute violations of the code. In such instances, the university may proceed with university disciplinary action under the code independently of any criminal proceeding involving the same conduct and may impose sanctions for violation of the code even if such criminal proceeding is not yet resolved or is resolved in the student's favor. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

The storing, sharing, and/or distributing of such unauthorized records by any

JUDICIAL STUDENT CONDUCT PROCEDURES

3335-23-05 Initiation and investigation of code violations.

(A) Initiation.

Person(s) witnessing or experiencing what they believe to be a possible code violation should provide an authorized university official with the information.

- (1) Information and/or complaints about possible code violations occurring in residence halls should be provided to the residence hall director.
- (2) Information and/or complaints about possible non-residence hall related code violations should be provided to the director of student judicial-affairs-conduct, or chief judicial-conduct officer for the regional campuses.
- (3) Information and/or complaints regarding academic misconduct should be referred to the coordinator of the committee on academic misconduct.
- (4) In cases where the alleged activity may involve a violation of criminal law in addition to a violation of the code, information and/or complaints should be provided to the Ohio state university police or other appropriate law enforcement agency. The university will review all information and/or complaints received and may conduct a preliminary investigation of the alleged violation.

(B) Investigation.

(1) Role of the University.

- (a) The Ohio state university police or other appropriate law enforcement agency shall have primary responsibility for the investigation of acts that involve suspected violation of federal, state, local laws or applicable university policies.
- (b) Residence hall directors, assistant hall directors, the director of student conduct, the chief judicial-conduct officer for the regional campuses, and other designated university personnel are authorized to investigate alleged violations other than those involving academic misconduct.
- (c) The coordinator of the committee on academic misconduct is authorized to investigate allegations involving academic misconduct.

(2) Role of other participants.

- (a) During the investigation, the student allegedly involved in misconduct may be:
 - i. ~~sent a letter describing the alleged violation~~Notified of the alleged violation.
 - ii. ~~requesting the student~~Requested to make an appointment to discuss the matter, and

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

- iii. ~~specifying~~Provided a date by which the appointment must be made.
- (b) Any person believed to have information relevant to an investigation may also be contacted and requested to make an appointment to discuss the matter.
- (3) Failure to comply with ~~such~~ a request to make and keep ~~such~~ an appointment relevant to an investigation may result in a disciplinary hold being placed on a student's registration and records and/or the initiation of charges for ~~judicial~~ student conduct system abuse.
- (4) Upon completion of an investigation, the investigator will decide upon an appropriate course of action, which may include, but is not limited to:
 - (a) ~~taking~~Taking no further action,
 - (b) ~~deferring~~Deferring further action with or without conditions, or
 - (c) ~~initiating~~Initiating charges with the appropriate university ~~judicial~~student conduct body. (B/T 3/2/2011, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-06 Filing of complaint and initiation of charges.

A written complaint alleging a violation of the code of student conduct must be filed with the university as soon as practicable following the discovery of the alleged violation. Absent extraordinary circumstances, the written complaint must be filed within six months for cases of non-academic misconduct (paragraphs (B) through (Q) of rule 3335-23-04 of the Administrative Code), and one month for academic misconduct (paragraph (A) of rule 3335-23-04 of the Administrative Code), from the date upon which a university official becomes aware of the alleged violation and identifies the student(s) who allegedly committed the violation. Absent extraordinary circumstances, the university must initiate charges, if any, within one year of the filing of the complaint. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-07 Notice of charges.

(A) Notification.

Students shall be notified of university charges in writing, unless a more effective form of notification is deemed appropriate. Charges may be presented in person, by placement in a student's residence hall mailbox, by email to the accused student's official university email address, ~~(which will~~may direct the student to view the notice on a secure website), or by mail to the accused student's local or permanent address on file in the office of the university registrar.

(B) Current address.

All students are required to maintain an accurate and current local and permanent address with the university registrar.

(C) Meeting with university official.

Following notification of charges, students are strongly encouraged to and shall be afforded the opportunity to meet with a university official for the purpose of explaining the university ~~judicial~~student conduct process and discussion of the charges.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

(D) Failure to respond.

Failure of the accused student to respond to the initiation of charges or schedule a preliminary meeting shall in no way prevent the university from scheduling and conducting a hearing in the absence of the accused student. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-08 Administrative decision.

In all cases, a student charged with one or more violations of the student code has the right to a hearing. However, in a case where a charged student admits to such violation(s) in writing, the student may request in writing to have a decision as to appropriate action made administratively by a hearing officer rather than have the charges referred to a hearing officer, ~~panel~~ or board for a hearing. In such situations, the student waives the right to a hearing and the related procedural guarantees provided by a hearing officer, ~~panel~~ or board hearing. Administrative decisions in academic misconduct cases involving graduate students are to be made in consultation with the graduate school. Following an administrative decision, the student retains the right to request an appeal of the original decision, but may do so only upon the ground that the sanction is grossly disproportionate to the offense/violation committed. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 7/7/2006, 12/7/2007)

3335-23-09 Notice of hearing and request for postponement.

(A) Notice.

If a hearing is to be held, written notification will be provided. The notice may be hand delivered, placed into a student's residence hall mailbox, sent by email to the accused student's official university email address, which ~~will~~ may direct the student to view the notice on a secure website, or mailed to the last known address of the student, ~~either by certified mail or by~~ first class mail, no fewer than ten calendar days prior to the hearing. Unless already provided to the student, the notification will include the charge(s), date, time, and location of the hearing, the designated hearing officer or ~~panel~~ board, a statement of the student's rights, and information on the hearing procedures.

(B) Postponement.

The accused student may request a postponement for reasonable cause or a separate hearing ~~separate~~ from other accused persons. A request for a postponement for reasonable cause must be made in writing, include supporting rationale and be received by the person sending the hearing notification at least two business days before the scheduled hearing. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-10 Hearing procedures.

Although the procedural requirements are not as formal as those existing in criminal or civil courts of law, to ensure fairness, the following procedures will apply and, unless already provided to the student, be included within the hearing notice:

(A) Attendance.

Attendance at hearings is limited to those directly involved or those requested by the hearing officer or ~~panel~~ board to attend. The hearing officer or ~~panel~~ board will take reasonable measures to assure an orderly hearing, including removal of persons who impede or disrupt proceedings.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

(B) Advisor.

The accused student may have an advisor throughout the ~~hearing~~disciplinary process. The advisor may only counsel the student and may not actively participate in the ~~hearing~~disciplinary process, unless clarification is needed as determined by the hearing officer or ~~panel~~board.

(C) Written statements and witnesses.

The accused may ~~submit~~ a written statement, ~~may~~ invite relevant ~~factual~~ witnesses to attend, ~~may~~ invite character witnesses to submit written statements, ~~may as approved in advance by the hearing officer~~ invite character witnesses to testify in person, ~~may~~ ask questions of witnesses called by others, and will be notified of potential witnesses to be called. The accused must also submit a list of potential witnesses, and ~~identify those who are character witnesses only~~, to the hearing officer at least two (2) business days prior to the hearing. The university may present witnesses as well as question those presented by the accused.

(D) Witness absence.

~~Written~~The hearing officer or board coordinator may allow written statements ~~may~~ be used for a fact witness (~~i.e., not a character witness~~) if, for good reason, a fact witness cannot attend the hearing.

(E) Consultants.

In cases requiring special expertise, the ~~panel~~board coordinator may appoint individuals with appropriate expertise to serve as consultants to the ~~panel~~board. The consultants may be present and provide information as called upon during the hearing but will not vote.

(F) Standard of evidence.

~~Students are entitled to a presumption of innocence. Therefore, a~~ A student will ~~not only~~ be found in violation ~~unless if~~ a preponderance of evidence supports the charge(s). In the event of a tie, the ~~panel~~board will continue to deliberate. If after the ~~panel~~board determines that exhaustive deliberations have occurred and a majority decision is not reached the student will be found not in violation.

(G) In cases where prompt review is essential (e.g., when graduation or the end of the academic year is imminent) the accused may be offered the option of an expedited administrative review consisting of an administrative decision or administrative hearing. The accused student may decline such expedited review without the expectation that the process can be completed on an expedited timeline. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 7/11/2003, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-11 Attendance.

Because the most accurate and fair review of the facts can best be accomplished when all parties are present, the accused is expected to attend and participate. If an individual does not choose to attend a hearing, the charges will be reviewed as scheduled on the basis of the information available, and a decision will be made. Although no inference may be drawn against a student for failing to attend a hearing or remaining silent, the hearing will proceed and the conclusion will be based on the evidence presented. No decision shall be based solely on the failure of the accused student to attend the hearing or answer the charges. (B/T 3/2/2001)

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

3335-23-12 Record of proceedings.

A single record consisting of written notes, tape recording, or other method selected by the hearing ~~panel~~board or officer, will be made of all hearings. Such record will remain the property of the university but will be made available to the accused for review during the appeal period. A written notice of the decision and, if found in violation, information regarding appeal procedures will be provided to the accused student. (B/T 3/2/2001)

3335-23-13 Hearing bodies.

- (A) In addition to the committee on academic misconduct, student conduct boards for university housing residence life, and the university ~~judicial panel~~conduct board, the director of student judicial affairsconduct, hearing officers within the office of student judicial affairs, the coordinator of the committee on academic misconduct, and university housing professional staff are to be considered as official university hearing officers, and may hear cases of alleged violations of the code affording accused students the same procedural guarantees as provided in hearings by a ~~panel~~, committee, or board.
- (B) ~~Absent special circumstances, students will be afforded the right to choose an administrative or panel hearing. When necessary to ensure a fair and just process, the hearing officer may determine the appropriate hearing venue. The accused student has the right to accept responsibility for the charges, which will result in an administrative decision, or choose to have a hearing.~~
- (C) Students will generally be afforded the right to choose an administrative or ~~panel~~board hearing, except under special circumstances where, in order to ensure a fair and just process, the hearing officer may determine the appropriate hearing venue. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-14 Committee on academic misconduct.

- (A) ~~On behalf of the committee, The~~ coordinator ~~for the committee shall~~may investigate and resolve ~~or establish procedures for investigation of~~ all reported cases of student academic misconduct that fall under the committee's jurisdiction. The coordinator and chair shall establish procedure for the investigation and resolution of cases. The committee does not hear cases involving academic misconduct in professional colleges having a published honor code. These colleges shall follow their own codes and procedures which can be obtained in their respective central offices. Some allegations against graduate students that fall under the committee's jurisdiction may also implicate the university's ~~interim~~ policy and procedures concerning research misconduct in research or scholarly activities and/or the graduate school's "Guidelines for the Review and Investigation of Allegations of Scholarly Misconduct by Graduate Students."policy on the investigation of allegations of research misconduct by a graduate student. Upon receipt of such an allegation, the coordinator shall meet with the dean of the graduate school or designee, and/or the senior vice president for research or designee, and these parties shall mutually agree on the appropriate procedure for adjudicating the case. Notice of this decision and a description of the procedure to be used shall promptly be given to the student who has been charged. The coordinator or ~~committee~~chair may refer complaints to the office of student judicial affairsconduct if it is determined that the academic misconduct allegation is incidental to some other misconduct.
- (B) The committee on academic misconduct is constituted according to rule 3335-5-48.7 of the Administrative Code.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

- (C) All complaints of academic misconduct shall be reported to the coordinator of the committee.
- (D) Students have an obligation to report suspected misconduct.
- (E) A quorum for a hearing shall be no fewer than four voting members of the committee which shall include no fewer than one student member and two faculty members.

For cases involving graduate students, reasonable efforts will be made to have graduate students serve as the student members of the hearing committee. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 7/7/2006)

3335-23-15 Student conduct boards for ~~university housing~~residence life.

The boards may only hear only those cases that occur within university housing, whether committed by residents or nonresidents. The boards are ~~composed~~comprised of students ~~living who currently reside or have resided in university housing, residence halls within the previous academic year.~~ and The boards may initiate any sanction with the exception of suspension or dismissal. If it appears during the hearing, to the board or to the board advisor, that the violation may be serious enough to warrant suspension or dismissal, the board will adjourn and refer the case back to the hearing officer for referral to the office of student ~~judicial affairs~~conduct. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/7/2007)

3335-23-16 University ~~judicial panel~~conduct board.

(A) Membership.

The university ~~judicial panel~~conduct board is responsible for adjudicating allegations of non-academic misconduct referred by the director of student ~~judicial affairs~~conduct hearing officers, ~~except for cases involving violations of professional college codes.~~ The ~~panel~~board consists of:

UNIVERSITY SANCTIONS

3335-23-17 General guidelines for sanctions.

Sanctions should be commensurate with the ~~violation(s)~~violations found to have occurred. In determining the sanction(s) to be imposed, the hearing officer or ~~panel~~board should take into account any mitigating circumstances and any aggravating factors including, but not limited to, any provocation by the subject of the conduct that constituted the violation, any past misconduct by the student, any failure of the student to comply fully with previous sanctions, the actual and potential harm caused by the violation, the degree of intent and motivation of the student in committing the violation, and the severity and pervasiveness of the conduct that constituted the violation. Misconduct, other than constitutionally protected expression, motivated by bias based on age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status may be considered an aggravating factor for sanctioning. Impairment resulting from voluntary use of alcohol or drugs (i.e., other than medically necessary) will also be considered an aggravating, and not a mitigating, factor. ~~In determining the sanctions to be imposed on graduate students who have violated the code, the hearing officer or panel should be guided by the "Graduate Student Code of Research and Scholarly Conduct."~~ One or more of the following courses of action may be taken when a student has been found to have violated the code of student conduct.

(A) Informal admonition.

An oral or written admonition issued by a hearing officer or residence hall advisor resulting from the student's misconduct. No formal charges, ~~hearing or other compliance with the code is~~are required before the issuance of an informal admonition. However, following issuance of an informal admonition, the student shall be entitled to a hearing upon written request, under the procedures provided in the code of student conduct. A written request for such a hearing must be filed with the university official who administered the informal admonition, within five working days of the student's receipt of the informal admonition. An informal admonition shall not be considered a disciplinary sanction, but may be considered in any subsequent hearings.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

(1) Formal reprimand.

A written letter of reprimand resulting from a student's misconduct.

(2) Disciplinary probation.

This probationary condition is in effect for a specified period of time and may involve the loss of specified privileges. Further violation of university policies during the probationary period will additionally be viewed ~~not only as a violation based upon the act itself but also as a violation of the probation.~~ viewed as a violation of the probation, which shall result in further action up to and including suspension or dismissal.

(C) Conditions of suspension and dismissal.

A student who has been dismissed or suspended from the university shall be denied all privileges afforded a student and shall be required to vacate campus at a time determined by the hearing officer or ~~panelboard~~. In addition, after vacating campus property, a suspended or dismissed student may not enter upon campus and/or other university property at any time, for any purpose, in the absence of ~~express~~expressed written permission from the vice president for student life or designee. To seek such permission, a suspended or dismissed student must file a written petition to the vice president for student life for entrance to the campus for a limited, specified purpose or to have the terms of this condition modified or reduced.

(D) Failing or lowered grades.

In cases of academic misconduct, a hearing officer or ~~panelboard~~ may authorize the instructor to award a failing or lowered grade in the course, a loss of credit on the ~~assignment or examination~~graded coursework, and impose any of the above-listed sanctions including suspension or dismissal from the university.

(E) Other sanctions.

Other appropriate sanctions may be imposed by a hearing officer or ~~panelboard~~ singularly or in combination with any of the above-listed sanctions. Examples include, but are not limited to, making restitution for property damage or misappropriation of university property or services, or the property of any person, residence hall contract termination or reassignment to another room, restriction of access to specified campus facilities and/or property, research assignments, community service projects, special workshop participation, and/or referral to medical resources or counseling personnel. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 7/7/2006, B/T 12/7/2007, 5/14/2010)

- (4) Each party shall be limited to one appeal. The decision of the appeal officer is final.

(B) Grounds for appeal.

An appeal may be based only upon one or more of the following grounds:

- (2) Misapplication or misinterpretation of the rule alleged to have been violated;
- (3) Findings of facts not supported by a preponderance of evidence.
- (4) Discovery of substantial new facts that were unavailable at the time of the hearing; and evidence that was unavailable at the time of the hearing and which reasonably could have affected the decision of the hearing body; or

student organization activity poses a significant risk of substantial harm to the ~~health or safety or security of themselves,~~ others or to property, the student may be immediately suspended from all or any portion of university premises, university-related activities or registered student organization activities, ~~and is not permitted to participate in, or complete academic coursework.~~ This temporary suspension will be confirmed by a written statement and shall remain in effect until the conclusion of a full hearing or administrative decision, without undue delay, in accordance with the rules of the Ohio state university. The student may, within three working days of the imposition of the suspension, petition the vice president for student life for reinstatement. The petition must be in writing, and must include supporting documentation or evidence that the student does not pose, or no longer poses, a significant risk of substantial harm to the ~~health or safety or security of themselves,~~ others or to property. A hearing decision on such petition will be conducted/made without undue delay by the vice president for student life or designee. (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 7/11/2003, 5/14/2010)

3335-23-21 Administrative disenrollment and other restrictions.

(A) A student may be disenrolled from the university; prohibited from all or any portion of university premises, university-related activities or registered student organization activities; and/or permitted to remain only under specified conditions when the vice president for student life or designee finds that there is clear and convincing evidence that:

(1) ~~The~~the student's continued presence poses a significant risk of substantial harm to the health or safety of themselves, others, or to property; ~~or,~~

(2) ~~The student, as a direct result of an apparent health condition, is engaged in substantial, continuing disruption of teaching, learning, research, administration or other university-related activities.~~

~~Before making such a determination, the vice president for student life or designee shall notify the student in writing of the reasons that disenrollment or other action is being considered, provide the student with an opportunity to respond, and consult with appropriate university personnel. The vice president for student life or designee may also consult with any other persons whom the vice president for student life or designee deems appropriate under the circumstances.~~

(B) In those cases under paragraph (A)(1) of this rule in which it appears that the risk posed by the student is a result of a health condition or a disability as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act, and ~~in all cases under paragraph (A)(2) of this rule,~~ the vice president for student life or designee shall also determine whether the risk or disruption can be eliminated or sufficiently reduced through reasonable accommodation and, if so, shall take appropriate steps to ensure that accommodation is made. The vice president for student life or designee may request the student to undergo an appropriate examination, as specified by the vice president for student life or designee, to determine whether any such condition exists and whether any such accommodation is possible. If the student fails to undergo such an examination, and if the other available evidence supports a finding under ~~either~~ paragraph (A)(1) or (A)(2) of this rule, the vice president for student life or designee shall, to the extent reasonably possible, take the least restrictive measure or combination of measures necessary to resolve the risk or disruption.

(C) A student who has been disenrolled; prohibited from university premises, university-related activities or registered student organization activities; or permitted to remain only under specified conditions may petition the vice president for student life for revision of that status. Upon receipt of such a petition, the vice president for student life or designee shall evaluate the evidence and may consult with the student, any appropriate university personnel, and any other persons whom the vice president for student life or designee deems appropriate. The vice president for student life or designee may deny the petition, grant the petition in whole or in part under specified conditions, or grant the petition in whole or in part without condition. ~~In the event of a negative determination by the vice president of student life, the student may request to have the decision reviewed by the executive vice president and provost.~~ (B/T 3/2/2001, B/T 12/6/2001, 5/14/2010)

3335-23-22 Authority section.

The bylaws of the university board of trustees and rules of the university faculty provide that the university president shall have the final responsibility and authority for the discipline of all students of the university (see paragraph (A) of rule 3335-11-01 of the Administrative Code). This responsibility and authority has been delegated by the president to the vice president for student life, whose office is also charged with responsibility for promulgation of rules governing student conduct (see paragraph (H) of rule 3335-1-03 of the Administrative Code).

The deans of colleges and of the graduate school, the directors of schools, and the chairpersons of departments, respectively, are responsible to the president through regular disciplinary channels for the discipline of all students in the activities of their respective colleges, schools, and departments (see paragraph (B) of rule 3335-11-01 of the Administrative Code). Likewise, the deans and directors of the regional campuses are responsible to the president through the executive vice president and provost for the discipline of all students in the activities of their respective campuses.

The Ohio state university code of student conduct is an official publication of the university board of trustees. All petitions for revision and amendment of this code of student conduct should be submitted through the office of the vice president for student life. Proposed revisions to the code shall be reviewed, in draft form, by the office of the president, the office of academic affairs, and the steering committee of the university senate before being presented for approval to the university senate by the council on student affairs. No revision shall become effective unless approved by the university board of trustees and until printed notice of such revisions is made available to students. (B/T 3/2/2001, 5/14/2010)

In an effort to make more efficient use of University resources, updates to this Policy have been recommended. These revisions have been recommended by the Vice President of Financial Services/University Treasurer and the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance.

HIGHLIGHTS:

External Debt

- Definition and approval of leases expanded to cover all types of leases.
- Updates/changes made to titles, approvals and committee names.

Internal Debt

- To allow flexibility to act in the best financial interest of the University, limitations on repayment periods are lifted.
- To better utilize resources, integration of University's capital planning policy into debt policy.
- To provide better flexibility and timeliness, terms and amounts for agreements requiring Board approval changed.
- Removal of Medical Center's authority to issue internal lines of credit.
- To provide timeliness, approval requirement for leases, loans and lines of credit changed.

ENVIRONMENTAL COVENANT
OHIO ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY
FIFTH AVENUE DAM REMOVAL AND RIVER RESTORATION
COLUMBUS CAMPUS

In support of the approved OSU Framework Plan, River Corridor District, the University has been requested to place 40.39 Acres of OSU property along the Olentangy River into an Environmental Covenant with Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (OEPA). This covenant supports the City of Columbus project to remove the 5th Avenue low head dam and restore a section of the Olentangy River from 5th Avenue north to Lane Avenue to a functional, riparian corridor. Benefits of the dam removal and river restoration include improved water quality, habitat, aesthetics, recreational and research opportunities. The land affected by the covenant is currently under water during most of the year but will be an exposed planted river bank once the project is complete. This dam removal and river restoration project is consistent with the Framework strategy to "Transform the River and the Green Reserve" and the vision for the River Corridor. Significant funding for the river restoration is through a Water Resource Restoration Sponsor Program (WRSP) grant, from Ohio EPA. The grant requirements include placing the land in the restoration project area into the Environmental Covenant. The purpose of the covenant is to assure that the restored river corridor and its environmental function are not impaired by land owner activities in the corridor. The covenant language is currently being negotiated to achieve an appropriate balance of river protection and flexibility for OSU and holders of existing easements.

We are requesting that President and/or the Senior Vice President for Administration and Planning be authorized to approve the appropriate documents and grant the environmental covenant and temporary easements upon such terms and conditions as are in the best interest of the University.

1 Executive Summary

The Technology Commercialization Office (TCO) requires authorization to create new groups of affiliates in order to expand the revenue potential from intellectual property created at OSU. The TCO is in the process of completely overhauling its systems, programs, and structure to expand the licensing opportunities of OSU inventions. TCO is currently limited in the type of deals it can negotiate and the ultimate return on investment due to restrictions imposed on state entities which limit direct investment in private companies and restrict the ability to protect confidential information in business negotiations for highly competitive and time-sensitive technologies. The creation of affiliates as proposed will allow OSU to accept equity as compensation for licensing its technology, to actively develop start-up companies to commercialize its technology, and to make follow-on investments in the most promising licensees of its technology, all while honoring conventional commercial confidentiality practices.

TCO requests authority to create a 501(c) (3) significant interest affiliate (Ohio State Innovation Foundation – OSIF) and to delegate to the Senior Vice President of Business and Finance, in consultation with the Vice President for Technology Commercialization, and Senior Vice President and General Council the power and authority to create for-profit and nonprofit arm's length affiliates (TechStart1, TechStart2, etc.) as needed to effect the objectives of this business plan.

OSIF will be a commercialization affiliate that will be the conduit for all technology royalties and fees. It will require a $2 million start-up loan from OSU, which is anticipated to be repaid within five years; after which TCO will be cash-flow positive. This commercialization plan will produce substantial overall benefits to OSU in the next ten years. OSU faculty researchers and students will benefit from $16.8 million in training and support to evaluate the commercial potential of their discoveries. TCO will generate substantial new revenues that will be new funds available to the university.

OSIF will retain all but inventor royalties to pay for all patent-related legal expenses and a contracted portion of TCO staff and administrative expenses. It will retain 25 percent of the remainder to support its start-up programs and to reimburse TCO for the grants TCO plans to award to OSU colleges from TCO operating funds. The other 75 percent will be distributed per OSU policy.

OSIF will be consolidated with OSU in OSU financial statements and will be subject to all Ohio open meeting and public record laws. OSIF exposes OSU to no direct financial risks beyond any direct funding of start-up and operational expenses. Risks include:

1. The risk of lost potential licensing revenue from a failed licensee company;
2. Reputational risk from such actions as insider dealing, conflicts of interest, and misconduct.

Risks are controlled through OSU majority control of the OSIF board, contractual terms in assignment of OSU intellectual property to OSIF, and effective management in the Technology Commercialization Office, which will provide all services required by OSIF.

TechStart I et al. will be non-university-controlled operating affiliate(s) of OSIF and may be nonprofit or for-profit as indicated by their particular activities and purposes. TechStart I et al. will be able

- to form companies to develop and commercialize OSU technologies,
- to take equity in those companies as compensation for that technology,
- to provide services in exchange for cash or equity to licensee companies to enhance the probability of successful commercialization, and
- to make follow-on investments in start-up licensee companies to increase the financial benefit to OSIF from successful commercialization.

Neither of the fiscal two activities are currently open to OSU as a state instrumentality, under both the Ohio Constitution and statute.

No OSU funds will be provided to TechStart I et al. OSU will have minority representation on TechStart boards, but OSU or its designees, including OSIF, may have 100% initial equity ownership in some or all TechStart affiliates as compensation for licenses to OSU technology. All business or operational activities will be conducted by TechStart affiliates. TechStart affiliates expose OSU to no direct financial risks. Their risks include:

1. The risk of lost potential licensing or service revenue from a failed licensee or client company and
2. Reputational risk from such actions as company failure, insider dealing, conflicts of interest, and misconduct.

While OSU will have no majority governance control of TechStart affiliates, it will exercise control through the selection of commercially viable technologies by TCO staff, the negotiation of favorable license terms, the requirement of certain reserve powers in the affiliates code of regulations or operating agreement, the careful selection by TCO staff of start-up or existing companies to commercialize OSU technologies, and the quality of financial and business support provided by TCO staff to third party companies through TechStart activities.

If authorization is obtained in April 2012, the following actions will be taken by June 2012:

- Ohio State Innovation Foundation will be created
- Ohio State Research Foundation will assign all licenses and intellectual property it holds to either the Technology Commercialization Office or to OSIF
- TechStartI will be created to provide software services to start-up companies licensing OSU intellectual property
- A contract will be executed for OSU/TCO to provide staff services to OSIF
- A contract will be executed for OSIF, through TCO, to provide services to TechStartI
- A contract will be executed for TechStartI to provide services to start-up companies

1.1 OSU's Technology Commercialization System and the Value of Affiliates

Technological innovation is a key driver in the Ohio economy which has not reached its potential. OSU is a leader in research but it has not converted that research into commercially viable businesses that generate jobs, tax revenues, and a higher standard of living for Ohio's citizens. Great economies are built around great universities, which can attract industry funding, the best entrepreneurs, and great intellects. When successful, this synergy attracts capital and start-up companies that remain within the region, further feeding a cycle of economic growth and prosperity.

OSU has not yet been successful in creating that synergy and it recognizes that, in a world of uncertain state support, it is vital to tap the talent and commercial potential that is already present. Many changes in the Technology Commercialization Office will help to support researchers in understanding the commercial potential of their discoveries and the steps necessary to evaluate the feasibility of moving that discovery into production. But that is only the first of many steps needed for a business to become viable.

OSIF will be the mechanism for supporting the development of viable businesses that utilize OSU intellectual property. It will be the vehicle for

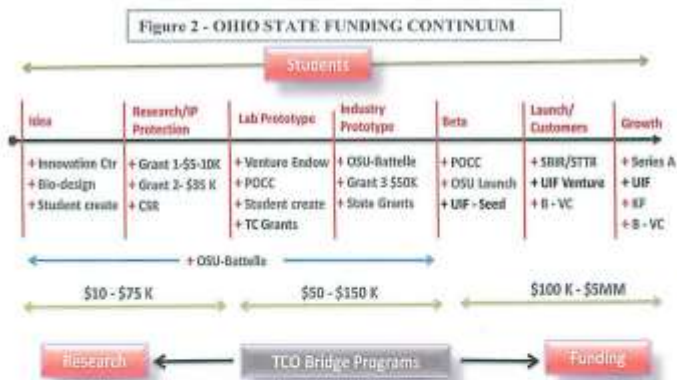

- channelling royalties and licensing fees to OSU researchers and their colleges and departments;
- attracting private contributions to support research commercialization;
- creating independent, arm's length for-profit affiliates (TechStart1 et al.) to work with private-sector investors and entrepreneurs.

The primary goal of OSIF is to create a commercial platform, through the TechStart arm's length independent affiliates, that can support the commercialization efforts of the TCO at OSU. OSIF will provide a flexible platform to develop and expand technology commercialization education and training at OSU and to use TechStart affiliates to pro-actively invest in economic development in Ohio by growing commercial companies using the intellectual property of OSU.

A secondary objective is to create some alternative revenue sources to allow the TCO to become more self-sufficient and to replace dwindling state support. Start-up businesses are high risk undertakings and there can be no assurance that a significant percentage of start-ups will bring significant financial benefit to OSU via OSIF, compared with the more probable benefits of national prestige, research productivity, attraction of capital to Ohio, and development of an entrepreneurial culture at OSU and in central Ohio.

This technology commercialization plan and the proposed creation of OSIF and TechStart1 et al. are based on a compilation of analysis of existing metrics from Milken, AUTM, and Kauffman as well as on interviews and surveys with key stakeholders including companies, inventors, deans, entrepreneurs, and internal staff.

From this review, we determined that over 80% of the top 10% of technology commercialization offices have an independent Foundation like OSIF. This structure provides flexibility and control of activities while allowing the operation to function more as a business. The majority are integrated with the University, particularly by using university employees.

This new entity OSIF, in combination with the TCO, will allow OSU to establish a technology commercialization program along the complete continuum from investigation to feasibility to full commercial production as illustrated above.

This commercialization program has eight goals:

1. Create a responsive and aligned infrastructure that builds and supports an entrepreneurial university culture
2. Integrate – at every level to enhance communication and efficiency
3. Establish small trusted networks of stakeholders to assist with commercialization
4. Evaluate completely and quickly so that we identify non-commercially-viable innovations fast and early
5. Measure outcomes so funds can be used to greatest effect
6. Educate OSU faculty, students, staff, and supporters on the benefits and methods of commercialization
7. Enhance the benefits of public-private partnerships through research and business development
8. Execute so we become the “go to” match-maker by inventors and investors

To accomplish these goals the TCO needs a supporting independent entity to avoid conflicts and perform the following tasks:

- Provide more consistent and effective access to CEOs and executive management talent and maintain confidentiality during negotiations.
- Establish new access to funding for entrepreneurs, and start-up opportunities to investors

- By its independent, non-public status, it can quickly and efficiently create start-up companies from OSU innovations and in an environment well-suited for start-ups.
- With the benefits of independence, this entity will be able to attract the attention of companies and establish more channels for potential exit strategies.

The long-term goal of OSIF is, through fund-raising and successful commercialization activities, to provide support to OSU researchers and students through the creation of unique educational opportunities in key colleges.

2 Business Plan

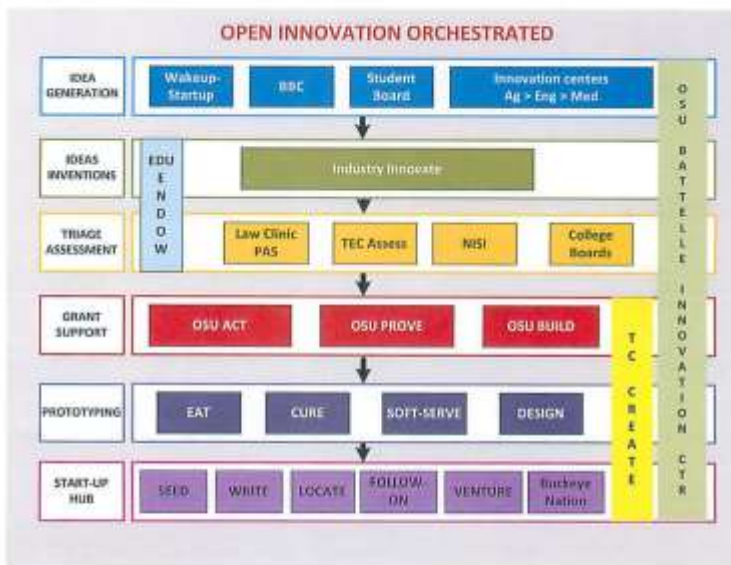

2.1 Goals and Objectives

While OSU consistently ranks high in the amount of sponsored research it conducts, it severely underperforms in the following areas:

1. Number of patents issued,
2. Number of Revenue generating license agreements,
3. Quality of corporate relationships
4. Student involvement and education
5. Assessment and marketing of inventions
6. Engagement of Inventors
7. Support of translational research
8. Start-up creation
9. Equity and liquidity events
10. Total revenue generated from licensing and equity

The goal of the TCO is to address deficiencies #1-7 through a complete overhaul of its systems, processes, support programs, organization structure culture and education and outreach. A representation of this new organization is illustrated in Figure 3. The goal of OSIF is to create an independent entity that will address the remaining deficiencies through its TechStart affiliates, funding initiatives and the creation of start-up services that support shortening the product development cycle and ultimate exit.

2.2 How mission promotes, sponsors, or complements the mission of OSU

The Academic Plan for OSU seeks to advance the well-being of the people of Ohio and the global community through the creation and dissemination of knowledge. OSIF will connect that dissemination to the marketplace to create jobs, improve the economic welfare, and enhance the reputation of the State of Ohio. Through active marketing of OSU intellectual property to businesses and active engagement of faculty and students in the technology commercialization process, OSIF will provide the foundation to advance two of OSU's core values: "Produce discoveries that make the world a better place", and "open the world to our students".

OSU also is focused on improving the economy of the State of Ohio and is fostering the idea that great economies are built around great universities. With a visible and proactive commercialization program, universities attract:

- A wealth of capital
- The best entrepreneurs
- Industry funding
- Superior faculty
- Engagement of interested alumni
- Increased funding

With this combination, great universities become the drivers of technological economic development. This development remains within the local economy as shown by the fact that almost 85% of capital and companies stay within 50 miles of the university where the technology was created.

The focus of businesses on market driven ideas in turn prompts support for education programs and basic and applied research at the university. When properly protected and guided by the TCO this will lead to publications by faculty and students and, through the work of OSIF to innovation and new products in the community.

The potential economic impact of a successful commercialization program is illustrated by the commercialization program of the University of Utah, shown in the following table.

Figure 4 Economic Impact After 40 Years of Technology Commercialization in Utah
Jobs and Wages in 2009

	Jobs	Earnings
Directly created by startups	5,937	$358 million
Indirect and induced impacts	9,830	$395 million
Total Economic Impact	15,767	$754 million
State Tax Revenue	nn	$61 million

Source: Jan Crispin, The Economic Impact of Startup Companies and Invention Licensees Originating from Research at the University of Utah (University of Utah Bureau of Economic and Business Research) March 2011

While there are no guarantees in the start-up business, university-sourced start-up companies have a remarkable history of success in staying viable and converting to publicly-owned status. For example, over 68% of all university start-ups nationally are still in business, compared with a 10% survival rate in the private sector. In terms of successful exit by selling all equity to the public in order to return the university's investment, eight percent of all university start-ups go public, in comparison to a "going public rate" of only seven one-hundredths of one percent of other U.S. enterprises.

2.3 Brief History of IP Commercialization at OSU

Ohio State ranks in the top ten nationally with $716 million in research expenditures in 2009. The university's 2009 licensing revenue, however, was $1.7 million, substantially out of line with its research effort and indicative of shortcomings in its commercialization program. The table below provides data on the technology commercialization success at a few other universities, which suggests the potential for patent and license activity if OSU were to bring this activity more in line with its research efforts.

This illustrates that OSU has the potential to increase its licensing revenue up to tenfold. The prerequisite for this revenue is a pipeline of patents, patent applications, licenses, and start-ups which will take years to develop. The changes anticipated for the TCO and OSIF will address this pipeline problem and, with patience and sufficient funding, will bring OSU licensing income more in line with these other universities.

In interviews with OSU faculty and students, the TCO found the following symptoms for the current disconnect between research and commercialization:

- Many faculty don't know about the patent and licensing process and place a higher value on publishing than making their discoveries known to industry
- Faculty haven't seen rewards so they cannot properly weigh the benefits and costs of protecting their discoveries
- Corporate partners bring too little value to OSU through current licensing agreements
- It is difficult for faculty to become aware of the support available and procedures necessary to protect their discoveries
- There are no feedback mechanisms to help faculty and students to know the criteria which create commercial potential for intellectual property
- There is a lack of funding for the early stages of investigation and development of the commercial potential of a discovery.

2.4 How these Affiliates are an appropriate next step

In combination with TCO, these affiliates will address these five deficiencies:

- Establish standards and guidelines for faculty consulting contracts. Currently fewer than 25% of agreements are reviewed, yet flaws in contracts are the most common way in which universities lose rights to their intellectual property. We are not recommending a review of faculty research contracts but we will post guidelines. - This affiliate will be independent so that it can choose the most appropriate law firms to provide protection for each type of intellectual property.
- Prototyping is an essential step in evaluating the commercial viability of a discovery and in attracting outside investment. This entity will actively finance the production of prototypes at the appropriate stage of evaluation and development of OSU innovations. The need to produce prototypes is especially acute for web lab discoveries.

- The current commercialization program does not provide funding to form start-up companies. This new entity will be a primary source of start-up funding and it will also pro-actively seek outside investors in its start-ups.
- Slowness or difficulty in starting a company is a major area of faculty disaffection with the technology commercialization process. In our survey we found that about 40% of faculty are interested in forming a start-up company but about 30% tried to do it through OSU and felt the process was too complicated and frustrating to pursue. At least half of these then ended up seeking outside assistance in commercializing their discoveries. This new entity will create a rapid, more predictable process to approve and start new companies to develop our faculty's discoveries.

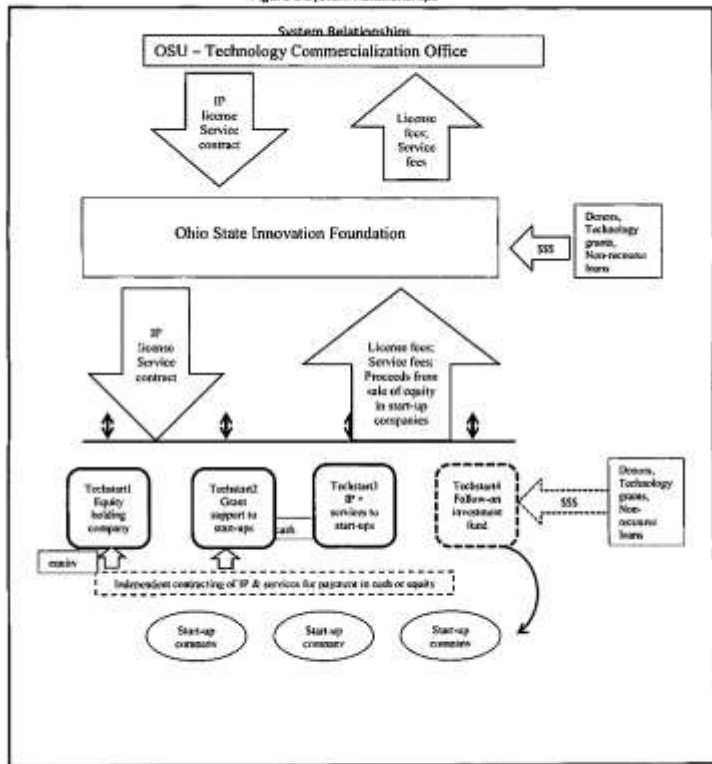

2.5 Nature of business and realistic expectations for commercialization and revenue returns to OSU

The role of the proposed affiliates is best understood in the context of the entire commercialization program, which is illustrated in Figure 6. The TCO will negotiate contracts on behalf of OSIF. License fees and payment for staff services will flow through OSIF back to TCO. OSIF provides staff services to the arm's length TechStart affiliates. The TechStart affiliates will be the operating units which will start up new companies and maximize the return of OSU equity. TechStart can accept payment in the form of cash, which will flow to OSIF, or in the form of equity in the contracting companies, which will be held by a TechStart holding company (TechStart 1 in Figure 6) until the equity is liquidated and the proceeds transferred to OSIF.

In addition, the OSIF affiliate can accept donations from third parties who wish to support OSU technology commercialization and it can apply for and receive grants from the State of Ohio Third Frontier and other commercialization grant programs.

A follow-on arm's length investment fund (TechStart 4 in Figure 5) can accept investments from the OSU Long-Term Investment Fund to in turn invest in the most promising start-up companies formed by other TechStart affiliates. The start-up companies are completely independent of OSU, OSIF, and TechStart. It is likely that TechStart will maintain a relationship with the start-up companies through board seats or through service contracts. Oversight of compliance with the terms of the IP license agreement will always require regular communication with the start-ups.

OSU is creating the arm's length affiliates TechStart in order to accept equity as payment for intellectual property and potentially to allow OSU Long-Term Investment Pool investments in companies started through TechStart.

Figure 7 illustrates the reasons for creating this hierarchy of entities to manage technology commercialization. TCO is an OSU department which is the primary center of OSU commercialization activities. The majority of employees working on OSU commercialization will be TCO staff. In addition, TCO will be the primary interface with faculty and students in training them in the commercialization process and in evaluating the commercial potential of the faculty and student discoveries.

OSIF is intended to be a 501(c)(3) significant interest affiliate. Its financial statements will be consolidated into OSU's statements. Its staff will be exclusively TCO staff provided through contract and it will be assigned all OSU commercializable intellectual property through license agreements with TCO. The primary purpose for creating this affiliate is to enable outside gifts and grants to support commercialization and to enable the creation of arm's length affiliates (TechStart) whose activities will not be consolidated with OSU's.

Techstart et al. are arm's length affiliates which provide services to unrelated, independent start-up companies. TechStart may also have independent employees. As arm's length affiliates, they are able to accept equity from start-ups as compensation for IP and services, they are able to form start-up companies that are independent of OSU, and they are able to form an investment fund that can make follow-on investments in start-ups to mitigate dilution of the initial equity position as the start-up expands and acquires additional investors.

The economic potential of this commercialization program can be evaluated only over an extended period. For example, the University of Michigan has spun off companies for over thirty years. Their endowment reviewed the performance of U of M start-ups and found their performance tracked the performance of other endowment venture investments. The university typically licenses university IP to the start-ups, receiving equity or royalty fees in return. The equity stake is typically diluted over time, so the university has developed a follow-on investment program to mitigate this dilution. This year the university committed $25 million from its endowment to a passive investment program which invests $500,000 in its start-up companies once the start-up has secured venture capital from outside sources (and hence a dilution of the university's initial equity stake). This program has been named Michigan Investment in New Technology Startups (MINTS).

The initial start-up investment and eventual conversion to a net positive return to OSU from OSIF and TechStart activities is summarized in Figure 8. More detailed results and the 10-year plan are discussed in later sections. In addition, the $16.4 million of initial General Fund support to TCO operations can be recovered over this period through OSIF transfers to TCO.

2.6 Governance, independence, and control

The governance and control structure in the proposed commercialization program is different at each level. Figure 9 summarizes the important powers, controls, and resources of the three components of the system: TCO, OSIF, and TechStart1 et al.

OSU maintains full governance control over TCO. TCO will ensure the quality of the commercialization program through the terms of the contracts it executes for OSU intellectual property and for OSU staff services. It will also ensure quality through its evaluation of the commercialization potential of OSU discoveries, advancing to development only those discoveries most likely to reach commercial production. Because TCO will provide the staff for OSIF and for most TechStart needs, its management has full control via its human resource policies and staff evaluations over conflicts of interest, insider dealing, misconduct, and other reputational risks to OSU. TCO can receive only cash from OSIF services and IP licenses. It cannot receive the proceeds of grants or gifts to OSIF. OSIF will be subject to Ohio public records laws.

OSU maintains governance control over the service, licensing, fundraising, and grant application activities of OSIF through holding a majority of the board seats. Since all employees of OSIF will be TCO staff, management control of OSIF will be similar to the control of TCO. OSIF is able to accept gifts and to apply for and receive grants to support its training, education, and licensing activities. OSU will provide no funds to OSIF other than the $2 million start-up loan so that OSU has minimal direct financial risk. Its primary financial risk will be lost potential income from failure of OSIF activities to maximize the commercial potential of the intellectual property which TCO has determined merits development. Reputational risk is controlled analogous to TCO, through the terms of its licensing agreements and service contracts with the TechStart affiliates.

TechStart affiliates are arm's length affiliates so that OSU will have no meaningful governance control over them, other than required reserved powers in the entities' governing documents. OSU representatives will be on some or all of the TechStart boards, but they will be a minority. With this independence, TechStart affiliates will not be subject to Ohio public records laws and they will be able to negotiate licensing agreements and service contracts in full confidentiality. With their independence they will be able to start-up public companies and establish corporate terms and agreements without concern for public disclosure.

OSU will mitigate its risk to TechStart affiliates through its control over the creation of TechStart affiliates and their initial articles of incorporation, which must be approved by the university's Senior Vice President for Business and Finance, the Vice President for Technology Commercialization, and the Senior Vice President and General Counsel in consultation with the university's Research and Commercialization Working Group. Limited control will also be exerted to the extent that TechStart contracts for OSIF staff services from TCO employees. Those contract terms and the terms of intellectual property licensed to TechStart will provide an additional control.

Entity	Governance Control	Contractual Control	Management Control	Public has access to records	Forms of payment permitted	Source of staff
Technology Commercialization Office	OSU department with full control over staff and budget	Contract terms for IP and staff provided to OSIF	Selection of IP to be licensed to OSIF and staff to be provided to OSIF; all staff report to VP-TC and SVP-B&F	Yes	Cash payment via contract with OSIF	OSU direct employees

TechStart I et al. The companies which are started by TechStart and the intellectual property licensed by TechStart will have reputational risk and the risk of lost potential income to OSU. The hiring of employees with strong marketing, management, and commercial negotiation skills will be essential to mitigating those risks. TechStart can mitigate risk through the contract terms it negotiates with those companies, including use of intellectual property, conflicts of interest, and reporting. Those skills will also inform the prudence of accepting equity rather than cash as payment for services and intellectual property. It is expected that TechStart employees will be actively involved in the governance and management of every company started by TechStart to maximize the probability of successful commercial development of OSU's intellectual property.

2.7 Financial benefits to OSU and OSU constituencies (flow of funds)

The OSIF and TechStart activities will require an initial $2 million capital loan which will be repaid by FY2018. They are anticipated to have positive cash flow immediately. As discussed in later sections, some of this capital is anticipated to be provided by Third Frontier grants applied for jointly with Tech Columbus. Please see Section 3.2 for a more detailed discussion of the financial plan.

2.8 Corporate Structure

Upon receiving approval from The Ohio State University Board of Trustees, an Ohio not-for-profit corporation will be formed. That corporation, The Ohio State University Innovation Foundation ("OSIF"), will file an application for 501(c) (3) status with the Internal Revenue Service. OSIF will be a significant interest affiliate as defined under the University Policy on Affiliated Entities. The sole member of OSIF will be another Ohio State significant interest affiliate (e.g. The Ohio State University Research Foundation). The code of regulations of OSIF shall provide for control by Ohio State. A majority of the board of directors of OSIF shall be either employees of Ohio State or be appointed by Ohio State.

From time to time, OSIF shall establish operational subsidiaries to conduct the commercialization activities/operations laid out herein. These subsidiaries can be either for profit or not for profit. The subsidiaries will be arms lengths affiliates as defined under the University Policy on Affiliated Entities. The code of regulations or operating agreements governing these entities may provide the appointment of a minority of Ohio State designated directors or manages and shall provide for certain reserved powers that require the unanimous vote of the Ohio State for adoption. OSIF shall initially be the sole equity owner of these first level operational subsidiaries.

From time to time, the operational subsidiaries may form additional subsidiaries or independent entities to conduct the commercialization activities/operations as set forth herein. The second level subsidiaries or independent entities may or may not be wholly or majority owned by a first level operational subsidiary and will not be defined as Ohio State affiliated entities under the University Policy on Affiliated Entities.

3 Business Model

This affiliate seeks to resolve the following unanswered questions about OSU's technology commercialization potential:

- Can OSU drive economic development?
- Can OSU effectively serve its internal community and enhance the prosperity of the external community?
- Can OSU build a commercialization model that can be replicated from one innovation to the next?
- Can OSU stimulate continued innovation so that it remains a major recipient of research funding?
- Can OSU generate enough value-added and revenue from licensing and starting up and spinning off companies to be able to self-finance an innovation and commercialization program?
- Can OSU create a process that has sufficient order and predictability that faculty can be confident and even eager to create intellectual property and rely on OSU to maximize its commercial potential?

This new entity will use its independence to maximize the value of OSU innovations to prospective licensees and, where it enhances the potential benefit to OSU, to form start-up companies which will give OSU equity in payment for use of its intellectual property. This business-oriented entity will be staffed with professionals who are deal-oriented and experienced in the development of start-up technology companies. Their expertise will result in shorter return on investment for OSU innovations, greater interest from outside companies and investors, and more systematic movement of technology commercialization from prototype to full production and sales.

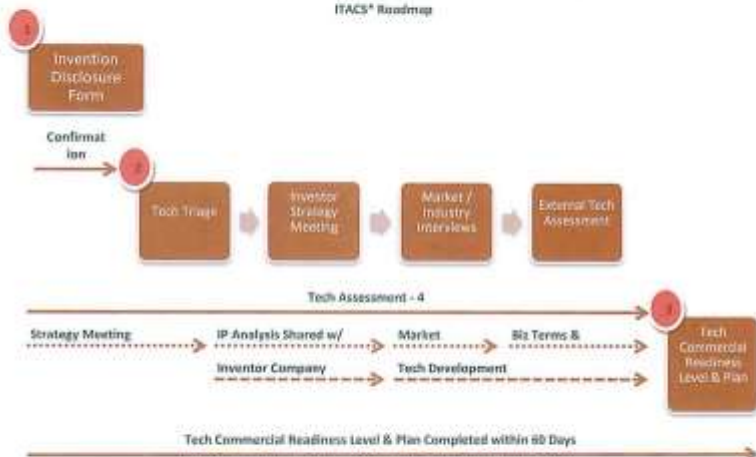

To do this, this entity will bring to OSU technology commercialization:

- New high value corporate partnerships
- Innovation based agreements
- A steady stream of executive talent
- Community participation
- More smart capital - Matching grants
- Capital equipment - Build facilities
- Increased education and outreach
- Centralization >>> Open Customization

3.1 The process of IP development and commercialization

The new process that the TCO is planning to implement is outlined in Figure 11. It is the Invention, Triage, Assessment and Commercial Strategy (ITACS) Program. This program builds efficiency and clarity into the process by providing faculty with a definitive outcome and expert feedback on their ideas, which was a consistent complaint among investors – no feedback was ever provided and the process is a “black hole.” ITACS alleviates this in a system that involves the colleges and enhances the student education mission of the University.

ITACS* Roadmap

*ITAC: Invention Triage, Assessment, & Strategy

This is a prolonged process and there is necessarily uncertainty in the timing of returns. Over 90% of businesses fail because customers won't buy the solution, not because the company can't build it. Another 70% fail due to premature scaling; that is they are spending money beyond the essentials before nailing the product/market fit. These insights are proved in new methodologies called Nail-it then Scale-it (NISI). The TCO is adopting these principles and developing a series of on-line training tools so that before any business is created it must go through this business validation process. This assures a much higher chance of success and forces the entrepreneur to identify a viable customer pain and scalable solution before too much capital is squandered away.

In short, entrepreneurs fail because they follow conventional wisdom about how to build a business. By so doing, they tackle the wrong tasks, do good things in the wrong order, and in the end fall prey to their own strengths. The solution is a remarkably simple process that successful entrepreneurs and startups, from Edison to Intuit, Cisco to Google, have applied to successfully and repeatedly innovate. It is a process we have used to help new startups, struggling ventures, and large businesses leap forward.

The process basically reverse engineers the customer feedback loop and introduces this at the beginning of the process (seen in Figure 12)

The TCO will develop a training series and educate 2-3 graduate students in this process. The certified trainers will then walk and monitor new entrepreneurs through NISI prior to starting a new business. The process usually takes 3-6 months for full validation.

Despite this uncertainty in timing of returns from commercialization efforts, the long-term benefit is positive. Figure 13 illustrates the results at the University of Utah as a result of its multi-decade commercialization efforts.

3.2 Financial Plan (10-year plan)

The most predictable revenue from technology commercialization will come from fees and royalties. Distribution of these fees is governed by the OSU Policy on Patents and Copyrights, which is illustrated in Figure 14. Under current policy, the first $75,000 of fees goes one-half to the PI and one-half to cover expenses for that particular discovery.

After the first $75,000 of fees, and once the expenses of OSIF and TechStart are reimbursed, one-third of the remaining funds go to the PI. OSIF proposes that it retain one-fourth of the remaining funds to support its grant and start-up programs and that the SVP-Business and Finance determine the allocation of the remaining five-twelfths.

OSU Policy on Patents and Copyrights with Proposed Authorized Expense Reimbursements

The expenses which will be reimbursed by licensing fees are illustrated in Figure 15. The first four stages of commercialization will be performed by TCO. Three of these stages will be supported by grants from OSIF which, if the discovery is commercially successful, will be reimbursed by licensing fees from the discovery.

The final stage, growth and exit, will generate revenue upon the sale of companies created by TechStart. The revenue will come from the equity given upon creation of the company to OSIF through the TechStart equity holding affiliate. Up through the exit OSU desires, follow-on equity investments in TechStart -created companies can be made from the OSU Long-term Investment Pool as determined by the university's Chief Investment Officer subject to the investment policies approved by the Board of Trustees.

In this plan TCO anticipates eventually spending about $2 million per year on this developmental support. OSIF will reimburse these expenses beginning in 2015 once its retained royalties and fees are sufficient. The anticipated grant program to OSU faculty and students is shown in Figure 16.

OSIF activities will be conducted exclusively by TCO personnel by contract. TCO anticipates that about eight percent of its personnel and administrative expenses will be paid by OSIF. By 2014 TCO will have three sources of revenue: service contracts to OSIF, reimbursement by OSIF for its grant program, and 75 percent of OSIF net commercial income less expenses and royalties to inventors.

OSIF will receive all revenues from commercialization. To start OSIF will borrow $2 million from OSU, which will be repaid with interest (at 5 percent) over five years. In year 2 it anticipates a fundraising campaign that will raise $1 million, increasing to $9 million annually by Year 10. These funds are exclusively to support IP commercialization, including support of start-up companies.

Under existing policy, the OSU inventor receives up to $37,500 of royalties and fees from the invention before commercialization expenses are subtracted. OSIF will contract for TCO staff support and it will pay directly or by reimbursement to OSU for all patent prosecution expenses. When retained revenues provide sufficient support for commercializable IP in 2015, OSIF will begin to reimburse TCO for TCO's education and grant programs to support the commercialization skills of OSU faculty and students. The remaining net commercialization revenue will be available to TCO for use and distribution per OSU policy.

Figure 17 summarizes the cumulative benefits to OSU. Faculty and students will receive almost $17 million in training and support to test the commercial potential of their discoveries. OSIF will have accumulated over $90 million to be used to support researchers, develop the commercial potential of OSU researchers' best discoveries, and start up new companies through TechStart.

TechStart activities will initially be conducted exclusively by TCO staff whose time is contracted to OSIF. TechStart revenues will come from providing services and IP via license to technology start-up companies, including companies started by TechStart. When cash net revenue is positive, it will flow back to OSIF. Fee and royalties paid through grants of equity in start-up companies will be held in a TechStart equity holding company until the exit strategy is completed and cash is received. At that time the cash will be transferred to OSIF.

3.3 Seed funding requirements and sources

The commercialization program will require about $10.4 million of start-up funding in addition to the use of all existing OSU intellectual property income (other than the required initial share paid to the inventor under current OSU policy). As shown in Figure 18, TCO will require net funding of a cumulative $14,622,334 through year 4. In addition, OSIF requires a start-up loan of $2 million. This loan will be paid back with interest beginning in year 2, with the final repayment in year 7.

OSU currently has very limited monies available for proof of concept testing and prototype development. These funds are crucial in providing the necessary capital to get a technology through the valley of death. No longer can a University sit idly by and wait for a third party seed or venture capitalist to provide these monies. They, along with States, have become the only parties willing to invest such high risk capital in its technologies. The capital pools are woefully lacking at OSU and we propose to create three separate pools of funding through TCO grant programs to support translational research. The prototyping budget (included in the Figures 16 and 18 above) would require at least $740,000 per year and be allocated as follows:

- Prove fund - $40,000 – this money would be allocated on an as-needed basis and would be selected internally by the TCO.
- Act fund - $200,000
- Build fund - $500,000

This would involve a two phase process whereby some of TCO's above outlined objectives would be incorporated into the existing proposal being prepared by TechColumbus for submission to the State of Ohio. Phase Two would entail the submission of a new joint proposal for an additional $2-3 million in funding for the creation of the remaining programs. This RFP is due out in a couple of months.

4 Risk assessment with mitigating strategies and risk metrics

Our vision is to make Ohio State a world leader in commercializing inventions that benefit society. To do so, we must focus on providing the highest value services and producing the greatest value from what is discovered at the university. We believe that the best measurements of success are impact and revenues (although this is a lagging indicator), reinvestment in Ohio State research, and investment made by third parties in licensed technologies. Licensing activity is also important, but quality is more important than quantity once the infrastructure is in place to close licenses efficiently. AUTM metrics are one method to gauge technology commercialization success. Using AUTM metrics for guidance can cause a university to chase activities instead of value or societal impact. While our guide posts differ from AUTM's, we expect that our success will also be reflected in the AUTM metrics. Figure 21 is a summary of goals, implementation strategies, and key metrics for FY12-13.

Goal	Implementation Strategy	Key Metrics
1. Create long-term sustainable revenue growth	Focus efforts on closing "high value" licenses (>$250k revenue within 3 yrs; or >$250k of sponsored research; or external startup that raises at least $250k in 18 months)	Close 10 high value licenses
2. Accelerate commercialization timeframe and opportunities for promising technologies	Establish New Ventures Unit and $5M+ foundation or pre-seed fund	Create three viable university-led ventures (>$250k or more of external financing within 18 months)
3. Create more strategic relationships with key external entities, including licensees, industry, investors and others	Establish key account management program	Outreach efforts commenced with 60 key accounts
4. Systematically locate "high potential" inventions within the university	Establish targeted inventor outreach program	Identify 10 new high potential technologies
5. Improve visibility into overall portfolio to optimize deployment of resources	Implement ranking system and prioritize portfolio of available technologies (estimated at 300)	150 available technologies prioritized

As Joseph Stiglitz put it: "What gets measured gets done. If we have the wrong metrics, we will strive for the wrong things."

The Global Creativity Index evaluates and ranks 82 nations on Technology, Talent, and Tolerance, the three critical "T's" of economic development. The GCI is a broad composite measure based on key measures of technology (R&D investment, researchers, and patents per capita), talent (educational attainment and the creative class) and tolerance (from Gallup surveys of the treatment of immigrants, racial and ethnic minorities, and gays and lesbians).

John Tyler, vice president for the Kauffman Foundation, wrote a summary paper on Advancing University Innovation in which he makes the case for much broader metrics at universities: "People frequently consider money as the primary benefit to a university that advances its innovations, but money may be among the least important. Yes, revenue is available from royalties, license fees, equity positions and options, and sponsored research. In addition, success and good experiences can increase donations from alumni and others associated with the university experience, which can enhance labs, facilities, equipment, endowed chairs, and more.¹ However, there are direct benefits to the university's core academic mission, too. Evidence suggests that when universities engage well with business and strive to maximize their innovation potential, faculty, students, and the university itself can experience profound educational benefits.² For faculty, the experience of engaging with industry while advancing innovations can enhance professional development and lead to coaching or mentoring relationships and other experiences that benefit them in the lab and the classroom.³ For students, hands-on research opportunities increase knowledge and marketability. Working with professors who have commercialized innovations can improve what and how the students learn and can open doors for internships, fellowships, advanced education, and jobs—all of which also benefit industry and our society.⁴ These interactions, between universities and industry, also contribute to the mutually beneficial social networks that facilitate research collaborations, and shared ideas."

In short, monetary tunnel vision can result in too many taxpayer-funded research out-comes not being commercialized or used, much less maximized, in which case there is a disconnect between federal policy and university practices. Consequently, while numbers of disclosures and transactions are relevant, they are limited in what they convey and over-reliance on them as standards of measure and performance can unnecessarily limit the strategies and models a university uses to advance its innovations. Additional measures might be more conducive to pursuing federal policy objectives and better reflect a commitment to advancing innovation in furtherance of economic growth and human welfare, which are not mutually exclusive from revenue. Among these might be the following:

- a. number of people who use or benefit from the innovation;
 - b. number of times an innovation is used in total;
 - c. number of products to which the innovation is deployed;
 - d. number of licensees and sub-licensees;
 - e. number of medical treatments administered;
 - f. number of diseases or health effects treated or prevented;
 - g. number of lives saved or improved;
 - h. number of jobs created or retained;
 - i. total economic impact, including sales volume, revenue, and income and other taxes generated (and exempted because of tax status); J. E. Tyler III 123
 - j. number of new businesses that emerge
 - k. regional economic development effects;
 - l. number of social networks created, enhanced, and expanded; and
 - m. number of new collaborations. (Tyler2009; see also Litan and Cook-Deegan2011).
- Not all of these will apply for every innovation or even most of them, and several of them will be very difficult to calculate and could impose burdens on licensees that should be evaluated. But these types of measures reflect a very different approach to and expectations of university innovation than the financial and linear measures that currently predominate (President's Council of Advisors2008). These types of measures also could attract different sources of funding for research and to support commercialization and utilization efforts. These measures also could motivate more disclosures and greater cooperation from altruistic researchers (Nilsson2006).

We would expect to have a meaningful discussion with the Board about appropriate metrics to consider in pursuit of measuring impact through commercialization. The newest model being proposed by Price Waterhouse is shown in Figure 22:

Goods and services may be purchased by affiliates as a gift for the University subject to the normal review and approval for gift acceptance.

Article V

Personnel Policies

AFFILIATE shall adopt the following guidelines governing the appointment, compensation, and retention of its personnel:

- A. Non-discrimination. AFFILIATE shall not discriminate on the basis of age, color, disability, gender identity or expression, national origin, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status. Notwithstanding these requirements, AFFILIATE'S programs that exist primarily for the disbursement of funds to members of a minority class, such as scholarship funds, may restrict eligibility on that basis to the extent authorized by law. In determining cases of discrimination it is not sufficient to look merely to the articles of incorporation or code of regulations of AFFILIATE; actual practices and operations also are relevant.
- B. Appointment and retention. The appointment and re-appointment of the chief executive officer ("AFFILIATE executives") shall be subject to approval of the AFFILIATE Board and memorialized in an appropriate letter of appointment. Prior to approval, the AFFILIATE Board shall notify the University President regarding the proposed or conditional appointment and/or re-appointment.

AFFILIATE shall not assign the University Marks, or use them for any other purposes unless approved in writing by the University Office of Trademark and Licensing.

Article VII

It is understood and agreed that some proposed changes to this Agreement may require approvals from both the AFFILIATE Board of Directors and the University Board of Trustees.
- C. Term. The term of this Agreement shall commence on the date on which both parties sign the memorandum and continue until the Agreement is terminated pursuant to the terms contained herein.
- D. Termination. Either party may, upon 90 days prior written notice to the other, terminate this Agreement.
- E. Severability. In the event that any provision of this agreement shall be illegal or otherwise unenforceable, such provision shall be severed, and the balance of the Agreement shall continue in full force and effect.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

Section 1.08. Quorum. A majority of the whole authorized number of Directors, which majority must include at least [] of the University Directors, shall be necessary to constitute a quorum for a meeting of Directors, except that a majority of the Directors in office, which majority must include at least [] of the University Directors, shall constitute a quorum for filling a vacancy among the Community Directors. (G) Notice of the time and place of each meeting of any such committee shall be given to each of its members by at least one (1) of the methods specified in Section 1.06 of the Regulations. A meeting of any such committee may be called only by the President or by a member of such committee.

Section 3.02. Removal. The officers of the Corporation shall hold office at the pleasure of the directors. Any officer of the Corporation may be removed, either with or without cause, at Any such removal, however, shall be without prejudice to the contract rights, if any, of the person so removed.

Section 3.03. Duties of the Chairman of the Board. The chairman of the board, if any, shall preside at all meetings of the directors. The Chairman of the Board shall have such other powers and duties as the directors shall from time to time assign to the Chairman of the Board.

Section 3.04. Duties of the President. The president shall be the chief executive officer of the Corporation, shall exercise supervision over the business of the Corporation and shall have, among such additional powers and duties as the Directors may from time-to-time assign to him/her, the power and authority to execute all deeds, mortgages, leases, bonds, contracts, notes, and other instruments requiring the signature of the president of the Corporation, subject to the requirement that such execution must have been either specifically approved by the Directors or must be consistent with guidelines adopted by the Directors.

Section 3.05. Duties of the Secretary. It shall be the duty of the secretary, or of an assistant secretary, if any, in case of the absence or inability to act of the secretary, to keep minutes of all the proceedings of the Directors and to make a proper record of the same; to perform such other duties as may be required by law, the Articles or the Regulations; to perform such other and further duties as may, from time-to-time, be assigned to him/her by the Directors or the president; and to deliver all books, paper, and property of the Corporation in his/her possession to his/her successor, or to the president.

ARTICLE FOUR
INDEMNIFICATION

Section 4.01. Mandatory Indemnification. The Corporation shall indemnify any officer or Director of the Corporation who was or is a party or is threatened to be made a party to any threatened, pending, or completed action, suit, or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative, or investigative (including, without limitation, any action threatened or instituted by or in the right of the Corporation), by reason of the fact that he/she is or was a Director, officer, employee, agent, or volunteer of the Corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the Corporation as a director, trustee, officer, employee, member, manager, agent, or volunteer of another corporation (domestic or foreign, nonprofit or for profit), limited liability company, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, against expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees, filing fees, court reporters' fees and transcript costs), judgments, fines, and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by him/her in connection with such action, suit, or proceeding if his/her act or omission giving rise to any claim for indemnification under this Section 4.01 was not occasioned by his/her intent to cause injury to the Corporation or by his/her reckless disregard for the best interests of the Corporation, and in respect of any criminal action or proceeding, he/she had no reasonable cause to believe his/her conduct was unlawful. It shall be presumed that no act or omission of a person claiming indemnification under this Section 4.01 that gives rise to such claim was occasioned by an intent to cause injury to the Corporation or by a reckless disregard for the best interests of the Corporation and, in respect of any criminal matter, that such person had no reasonable cause to believe his/her conduct was unlawful; the presumption recited in this Section 4.01 can be rebutted only by clear and convincing evidence, and the termination of any action, suit, or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, or conviction, or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent, shall not, in and of itself, rebut such presumption.

Section 4.02. Court-Approved Indemnification. Anything contained in the Regulations or elsewhere to the contrary notwithstanding:

(A) the Corporation shall not indemnify any officer or Director of the Corporation who was a party to any completed action or suit instituted by or in the right of the Corporation to procure a judgment in its favor by reason of the fact that he/she is or was a Director, officer, employee, agent, or volunteer of the Corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the Corporation as a director, trustee, officer, employee, member, manager, agent, or volunteer of another corporation (domestic or foreign, nonprofit or for profit), limited liability company, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, in respect of any claim, issue or matter asserted in such action or suit as to which he/she shall have been adjudged to be liable for an act or omission occasioned by his/her deliberate intent to cause injury to the Corporation or by his/her reckless disregard for the best interests of the Corporation, unless and only to the extent that the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne County, Ohio or the court in which such action or suit was brought shall determine upon application that, despite such adjudication of liability, and in view of all the circumstances of the case, he/she is fairly and reasonably entitled to such indemnity as such Court of Common Pleas or such other court shall deem proper; and

(B) the Corporation shall promptly make any such unpaid indemnification as is determined by a court to be proper as contemplated by this Section 4.02.

Section 4.03. Indemnification for Expenses. Anything contained in the Regulations or elsewhere to the contrary notwithstanding, to the extent that an officer or Director of the Corporation has been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit or proceeding referred to in Section 4.01, or in defense of any claim, issue or matter therein, he/she shall be promptly indemnified by the Corporation against expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees, filing fees, court reporters' fees, and transcript costs) actually and reasonably incurred by him/her in connection therewith.

Section 4.04. Determination Required. Any indemnification required under Section 4.01 and not precluded under Section 4.02 shall be made by the Corporation only upon a determination that such indemnification is proper in the circumstances because the officer or Director has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Section 4.01. Such determination may be made only: (A) by a majority vote of a quorum consisting of Directors of the Corporation who were not and are not parties to, or threatened with, any such action, suit, or proceeding, or (B) if such a quorum is not obtainable or if a majority of a quorum of disinterested Directors so directs, in a written opinion by independent legal counsel other than an attorney, or a firm having associated with it an attorney, who has been retained by or who has performed services for the Corporation, or any person to be indemnified within the past five (5) years, or (C) by the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne County, Ohio or (if the Corporation is a party thereto) or the court in which such action, suit, or proceeding was brought, if any; any such determination may be made by a court under division (C) of this Section 4.04 at any time (including, without limitation, any time before, during, or after the time when any such determination may be requested of, be under consideration by or have been denied or disregarded by the disinterested Directors under division (A) or by independent legal counsel under division (B) of this Section 4.04); and no failure for any such determination, and no decision for any reason to deny any such determination, by the disinterested Directors under division (A) or by independent legal counsel under division (B) of this Section 4.04 shall be evidence in rebuttal of the presumption recited in Section 4.01. Any determination made by the disinterested Directors under division (A) or by independent legal counsel under division (B) of this Section 4.04 to make indemnification in respect of any claim, issue or matter asserted in an action or suit threatened or brought by or in the right of the Corporation shall be promptly communicated to the person who threatened or brought such action or suit, and within ten (10) days after receipt of such notification such person shall have the right to petition the [], Ohio or the court in which such action or suit was brought, if any, to review the reasonableness of such determination.

Section 4.05. Advances for Expenses. The provisions of Section 1702.12(EX5) of the Ohio Revised Code do not apply to the Corporation. Expenses (including, without limitation, attorneys' fees, filing fees, court reporters' fees, and transcript costs) incurred in defending any action, suit, or proceeding referred to in Section 4.01 shall be paid by the Corporation in advance of the final disposition of such action, suit, or proceedings to or on behalf of the officer or Director promptly as such expenses are incurred by him/her, but only if such officer or Director shall first agree, in writing, to repay all amounts so paid in respect of any claim, issue, or other matter asserted in such action, suit, or proceeding in defense of which he/she shall not have been successful on the merits or otherwise if it is proved by clear and convincing evidence in a court of competent jurisdiction that, in respect of any such claim, issue or other matter, his/her relevant action or failure to act was occasioned by his/her deliberate intent to cause injury to the Corporation or his/her reckless disregard for the best interests of the Corporation, unless, and only to the extent that, the Court of Common Pleas of Wayne County, Ohio or the court in which such action or suit was brought shall determine upon application that despite such determination and in view of all of the circumstances, he/she is fairly and reasonably entitled to all or part of such indemnification.

Section 4.06. Article Four Not Exclusive. The indemnification provided by this Article Four shall not be exclusive of, and shall be in addition to, any other rights to which any person seeking indemnification may be entitled under the Articles, the Regulations, any agreement, a vote of disinterested Directors, or otherwise, both as to action in his/her official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such office, and shall continue as to a person who has ceased to be an officer or Director of the Corporation and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors, and administrators of such a person.

Section 4.07. Insurance. The Corporation may purchase and maintain insurance, or furnish similar protection, including but not limited to trust funds, letters of credit, or self-insurance, for or on behalf of any person who is or was a Director, officer, employee, agent or volunteer of the Corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the Corporation as a director, trustee, officer, employee, member, manager, agent, or volunteer of another Corporation (domestic or foreign, nonprofit or for profit), limited liability company, partnership, joint venture, trust, or other enterprise, against any liability asserted against him/her and incurred by him/her in any such capacity, or arising out of his/her status as such, whether or not the Corporation would have the obligation or the power to indemnify him/her against such liability under the provisions of this Article Four. Insurance may be purchased from or maintained with a person in which the Corporation has a financial interest.

Section 4.08. Certain Definitions. For purposes of this Article Four, and as an example and not by way of limitation, a person claiming indemnification under this Article Four shall be deemed to have been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit, or proceeding referred to in Section 4.01, or in defense of any claim, issue or other matter therein, if such action, suit, or proceeding shall be terminated as to such person, with or without prejudice, without the entry of a judgment or order against him/her, without a conviction of him/her, without the imposition of a fine upon him/her, and without his/her payment or agreement to pay any amount to settlement thereof (whether or not any such termination is based upon a judicial or other determination of the lack of merit of the claims made against him/her or otherwise results in a vindication of him/her).

Section 4.69. Venue. Any action, suit, or proceeding to determine a claim for, or for repayment to the Corporation of, indemnification under this Article Four may be maintained by the person claiming such indemnification, or by the Corporation, in the Court of Common Pleas of Franklin County, Ohio in any such action, suit, or proceeding.

(APPENDIX XL)

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES ADVANCEMENT COMMITTEE

April 5, 2012

TOPIC: Revision of University Naming Guidelines

CONTEXT:

In May of 2010, The Board of Trustees approved the Naming Guidelines, which govern the naming of entities, physical spaces, and endowed funds at The Ohio State University. As you may recall, those Guidelines state that the University generally will not name a facility for a corporation or other organization.

Prior to the initiation of the campaign, a special review group comprised of Board members and selected senior University administrators reviewed the Naming Guidelines to address the issue of naming entities, buildings, and facilities for corporations or other organizations. This group researched and assessed the current policies and practices for naming entities, buildings, and physical facilities at peer public institutions to commemorate philanthropic commitments made to those universities by corporations or other organizations.

Based on that review, and in an effort to provide greater clarity to and detail in the naming process, updates to these Guidelines were proposed. These revisions have been recommended by the Advancement Committee Chair, the Senior Vice President for Advancement, the University President, and the University Provost and Executive Vice President.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- States that the University will consider naming entities and physical spaces for corporations or other organizations, but also reaffirms our commitment to the exercise of due diligence surrounding ALL potential namings.
- Emphasizes our responsibility to avoid conflicts of interest and to confirm that any namings approved by the University will positively impact our mission.
- Reinforces the University's right to revisit and revise any naming that jeopardizes the reputation of the institution or is contrary to our mission.

REQUESTED OF ADVANCEMENT COMMITTEE:

Approval

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY FOUNDATION
(DRAFT REVISED Naming Guidelines)
February 29, 2012

I. Overview

This document governs the naming of entities, physical spaces and endowed funds at The Ohio State University.

The University will enter into a commitment only after careful consideration of the potential impact the naming will have on the University and the campus community. Due diligence will be exercised to make certain that any proposed name would be consistent with University tradition and mission, and we will evaluate what pride and distinction might accrue to the projects and units involved, as well as to the leadership, faculty, staff, students and alumni.

All proposed minimum funding levels and potential building or entity namings must be initiated by a Dean/Unit Leader and routed to the Senior Vice President for Advancement for consideration at the leadership level prior to any discussion with prospective donors or honorees.

Final approval for all namings rests with the University's Board of Trustees. If at any time following the approval of the naming, circumstances change substantially so that the continued use of the name may compromise the integrity or reputation of the University, the University may remove the name. The University additionally reserves the right to dispose of any named property or facility as deemed necessary, via sale, demolition, etc. A name will not be removed without the recommendation of the President, approval by the Board of Trustees and notification of the donor or a legal representative.

II. Types of Namings

A. Commemorative - Expresses appreciation for an individual or organization for substantial philanthropic gift contributions to the University.

B. Honorific - Recognizes distinguished alumni or an individual for outstanding service to the University or extraordinary service to the community (e.g. Bricker Hall). Individuals must be disassociated from employment by or service to the University for at least three years prior to an honorific naming. This rule may be waived by action of the Board of Trustees.

C. Administrative – Relates to the function or location of the building; does not include the name of a person (e.g. Central Classroom Building).

III. Eligible Naming Opportunities

A. Entities - colleges, schools, departments, institutes, academic centers and programs

B. Physical Spaces - outdoor spaces and architectural elements, buildings and facilities, large interior spaces such as classrooms, auditoriums, foyers, lobbies, gymnasiums, hallways and lounges

C. Endowed Funds - a permanent funding source to support a specific purpose such as scholarships, programs, professorship/chair positions, etc.

IV. Guidelines for Funding

A. Entities – Discussions to determine an appropriate gift size for naming academic entities should include the Dean, Provost, and the Foundation with final approval from the Gift Acceptance Committee. Factors to consider include the size of the academic unit as defined by the operating budget, the unit's national ranking, and the "transformative" nature of the gift, meaning it should provide additional operating support that allows the academic unit to move forward in reputation in ways that it could not without the gift support. Gifts to name academic entities should be predominantly for endowment to support new programs and faculty. Generally entities will be named for individual donors and not for corporations.

A corporation or organization may name a university entity in very selective situations. Corporations or organizations proposed for such namings should have a positive image and demonstrated integrity. Additional due diligence must be taken to avoid any appearance of commercial influence or conflict of interest. Signage reflecting a corporate or organizational naming of an entity must conform to all university signage guidelines and will not include the corporation or organization logo or other components of its branding. The gift agreement may specify the number of years during which the entity will be named. If the name of the corporation or organization changes, the university at its own discretion may change the name of the entity. Also, the university at its sole discretion may change the name of the entity if circumstances related to the corporation or organization could damage the reputation of the university. Any consideration of a corporate or organizational naming of an entity must follow the assessment process described for the Gift Acceptance Committee.

B. Physical Spaces – Gifts to name a physical space should be at least 1/3rd of construction costs and should be outright gifts. In select cases (such as when a facility is fully funded or no private fundraising is required for the facility), irrevocable deferred gifts may also be accepted. Exceptions to the 1/3rd rule may occur for projects of extraordinary size and will be based on the available donor pool. Generally, buildings will be named for individual donors and not corporations or organizations. A corporation or other organization may name a university facility in very selective situations and special caution will be exercised in cases when a facility is dedicated totally for educational purposes. Corporations or organizations proposed for facility namings should have a positive image and demonstrated integrity. In the instance of corporate or organizational namings of facilities, additional due diligence must be taken to avoid any appearance of commercial influence or conflict of interest. Any consideration of a corporate or organizational naming of a facility must follow the assessment process described for the Gift Acceptance Committee.

Names will generally remain in place for the life of the physical facility when named for an individual, but in some cases may be negotiated for a term of years. When working with corporate and organizational donors, in some cases the gift agreement may specify the number of years for which the facility will be named. If the name of the corporation or organization changes during that period, the University, at its own discretion, may change the name of the facility. Also, the University at its sole discretion may change the name of the facility if circumstances related to the corporation or organization could damage the reputation of the University.

All signage and artwork must comply with the University's master space plan, will maintain consistency with current signage and visual identity guidelines per the Office of Facilities Operations and Development and University Marketing Communications, and will not include an organization logo or other components of branding. Existing naming opportunities approved in writing prior to March 1, 2009 will be grandfathered in to these new guidelines.

C. Endowed funds - The University invests the donor's(s') gifts in perpetuity and an annual distribution is used to fund the desired activities as requested by the donor(s) and approved by the Board of Trustees.

D. Note that unrestricted gifts may be appropriately recognized with official naming in any of the preceding three categories with the approval of the Gift Acceptance Committee.

April 6, 2012 meeting, Board of Trustees

V. Approval Process

A. Commemorative

1. Naming of academic entities such as colleges, departments and programs must be approved by the President and Provost after submission by the Senior Vice President for Advancement. All approvals must be received prior to any discussion with a prospective donor.
2. For new buildings and renovations, discussions with donors may begin after a project has been approved by the University but specific spaces within the building will generally not be named until the project reaches the design and construction phase. A complete plan for all naming opportunities within the building will be submitted to the Senior Vice President for Advancement, who will take the request to Integrated Financial Planning for review and comment. Once minimum gift levels are established, the development officer will confirm that any gift commitment meets the minimum funding levels. Any exceptions to these guidelines, or any naming in exchange for an unrestricted gift, will be taken to Integrated Financial Planning for approval and the Gift Acceptance Committee will be consulted as needed. All namings for corporations or organizations must be approved by the Gift Acceptance Committee.
3. Upon execution of the gift agreement, the naming will go to the Board of Trustees for approval at the next meeting.
4. Donor Relations will communicate final approvals back to the originator of the request

B. Honorific Naming

1. Complete naming request form and a list of the honoree's accomplishments; submit to Donor Relations.
2. Approval by Senior Vice President for Advancement is required and requests may be presented to the president and senior management council for comment and action.
3. Upon approval, the Foundation will forward the request to the University's Board of Trustees for approval at the next Board meeting.
4. Donor Relations will communicate final approvals back to the originator of the request.

C. Administrative

1. Complete naming request form or a letter of request with Dean or VP approval and submit to Donor Relations.
2. Approval by Senior Vice President for Advancement is required.
3. The approved request will be forwarded to Integrated Financial Planning for appropriate action.

VI. Gift Acceptance Committee

The Gift Acceptance Committee is appointed by the Senior Vice President for Advancement in consultation with the President, Provost and Chair of the Board of Trustees. Members may include but will not be limited to:
