ADDRESS TO THE BOARD ON TIMASHEV GIFT

Dr. Fujita:

At this time, I am honored to share a historic announcement on behalf of the university and this Board. Today, we are pleased to announce that Mr. Ratmir Timashev and his family have made a $110 million dollar gift to Ohio State — the largest single gift in the university's history.

[APPLAUSE]

This incredible, philanthropic gift will establish the Center for Software Innovation at Ohio State, expanding opportunities for students in entrepreneurship and advancing education in software innovation, product management, sales and marketing.

These are vitally important areas to our university, to the state of Ohio, and to Mr. Timashev himself, an alumnus who credits his education at Ohio State for helping to found and build innovative software and computer businesses here in Columbus.

We are honored to have Mr. Timashev with us today. Before we invite him to say a few words, please join me, once again, in expressing our profound gratitude.

[APPLAUSE]

Dr. Fujita:

Thank you so much. Mr. Timashev, would you like to, would anyone else like to comment?

Mr. Timashev:

Good afternoon, everybody. Thanks for this opportunity to speak. Thank you, Chairman Fujita, President Johnson and the Board of Trustees and everyone gathered here today. It is my honor to be with all of you announcing this big, humongous plan. It was only three decades ago, in 1992 when I came to Ohio State as a young scientist to the chemical physics program, created and led by Professor Terry Miller. I will always be grateful for the opportunity Ohio State and Terry Miller gave me, which allowed me to realize my American dream. The original idea for the center for software innovation came together during my discussions with President Johnson as well as Michael Eicher and Grace Wang. The idea was very simple, to make Ohio State, Columbus, and the Midwest, the new high-tech mecca. The idea evolved into a vision for the center that has four main pillars. I am going to repeat some of the pillars from yesterday, I am in marketing I like to repeat, repetition is good.

First, it's an educational program and curriculum that combines technical and business education and includes its own endowed professorship and staff. Second, it's a start up accelerator, world class software startup accelerator. Where OSU students and faculty can go through a mentorship program and get initial funding. This accelerator will also be open and will attract the best software start-ups from all over the country and all over the world. So, it's not, in our idea, it's not going to be limited just to OSU students. The third pillar is the community, and the building, in the new innovation district – Carmenton. As that building will become the center for this community. Also, as part of the community effort, we are planning to engage successful alumni, core software professionals and executives throughout the country to contribute to this center by hiring our graduates and help them as members. And finally, the fourth pillar, is the center of excellence for software sales, marketing, and product development. To help startups from all over the world and all over the country to come to Columbus open an office here and hire our graduates. Again, the vision is very simple. The Ohio State University, Columbus, and Midwest will lead the future of the digital economy by partnering with industry leaders, entrepreneurs, OSU alumni, and business scholars to cultivate incredible talent that we have here in central Ohio. I often like to quote Marc Andreessen, the founder of Netscape, and a super successful Silicon Valley venture capital firm, "Software is eating the world, today all products and services have a major software component. In fact, most of the value creation these days in new products and services, is in software". Good examples are, I mentioned yesterday, Tesla which is just a computer on wheels. Or take any banking or insurance app, the service is the software. Or even breakthroughs in medical treatments, it's all based on and powered by software.

Every business is a software business. It doesn't matter if its manufacturing or banking or government. All the money in the next fifty years will be made in software. Technologies like artificial intelligence, machine gunning, cloud computing, quantum computers, will change the world completely in the next 5 to 10 years. I am often being asked what it takes to create a successful technology company and my answer is very simple, be at the right place at the right time and create a brilliant product. With the Center for Software Innovation, I know we have everything needed for success. Right now, this is the right place - its OSU, Columbus, Midwest. Right now, is the right time - software is eating the world. The value of new products and services are in software. And finally, we have a brilliant product, this Center, that will unite all these aspects. Together with this incredible team, led by President Johnson, Michael Eicher, and so many others, we are gaining momentum and bringing this vision to life. By creating an ecosystem centered around software innovation, we will empower this next generation to change the world and to do it from The Ohio State University in Columbus.

Together, we will build out a future, a future virtuous cycle, where more and more OSU students are inspired to study software, more and more OSU graduates work for software companies, OSU alumni rise to become managers and executives at other software companies, and they come back to recruit more OSU students. Inspired by the talent here, companies open new offices in Columbus, covering engineering and all aspects of writing successful technology business: sales, marketing, product management, product development. Ultimately, as a result, a new reputation is cemented for OSU, Columbus, and the Midwest, not just as the geographical heartland, but as the heart and brain of the digitized world. It is my hope that The Center for Software Innovation will ultimately bring my Ohio dream to scale for so many Buckeyes today and in the future. I'd like to use another favorite quote of mine by Steve Jobs, "Only the people who are crazy enough to think they can change the world are the ones who do." I am 100% sure we will be successful, we have all the right pieces, we only need the full support from the leaders like you and the community. And I know, firsthand, how great this community is - the support, the energy, and the potential - together we will define and build out a new future for our university, community, and the region. We will harness the creativity, optimism, and momentum that is already pouring into Columbus. We are just getting started. Thank you.

Dr. Fujita:

Thank you so very much, Mr. Timashev. Now, I would like to invite President Johnson to comment.

President Johnson:

Thank you very much, Chairman Fujita. This is amazing. Ratmir, we're so grateful to you, Angela, and your family for this phenomenal gift, and we're so glad that you could join us here for this historic moment. As Chairman Fujita said, this is the largest single gift ever to the university, yet what strikes me the most is not the dollar amount, it's the vision that we can be the next high-tech mecca. Especially if we focus on those four points, just to make sure you know I was listening, I won't repeat them but they're curriculum and education, it's a startup accelerator with space in Carmenton, and it's creating an innovative workforce that sales, and marketing as well as product development, but I won't repeat them. What I will say is that they're going to further put Columbus on the entrepreneurial map and that's exciting. Your gift will attract faculty and recruit students to a new academic program and make sure that they graduate with real world experience and spur innovative software startups. We're so honored that you've chosen to invest in your alma mater, Ohio State, and partner with us to realize this incredible vision. Your family's immense generosity will uplift our region, this university, and stimulate innovation across the country for a very long time to come. Ohio State is better and stronger because of alumni like you, and because of you, Buckeyes will have so many more opportunities to shape tomorrow and launch the big ideas that will change the world. Thank you very much.

Dr. Fujita:

Thank you. Would anyone else like to comment?

Mr. Mitevski:

As Chairman Fujita noted, this is a historic day for this university, but it is also another example of Mr. Timashev and his family's long history of supporting our students, faculty and staff. Just this past fall, for example, we celebrated the opening of the state-of-the-art Timashev Family Music Building. Today's gift builds exponentially on this generosity, and I am so excited to see the impact it is going to have not just for our students and faculty but also for Ohio's technology workforce. This is a true game changer for Ohio State. Thank you.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dr. Fujita:

Thank you. I will now turn to President Johnson for her report.

President Johnson:

Thank you very much Chairman Fujita and thank you again to the Timashev family. Ratmir's journey epitomizes the American dream -- something that Ohio State is committed to making a reality for so many people.

And before I begin my formal report, I would like to reaffirm that Ohio State joins our Big Ten community and so many others in grieving the lives lost at Michigan State University on Monday. Just as we are here to support our friends in East Lansing in the wake of this senseless act of violence, we are here to support each other. Every buckeye should know that they can reach out for help and that we are here for one another. Students who seek assistance or emotional support should reach out to the Office of Student Life's Counseling and Consultation Service. Faculty or staff can contact the university's Employee Assistance Program.

The world can be a challenging place, yet Buckeyes are as determined as ever to make it better. To grow our impact, we are privileged to welcome some wonderful new leaders to our ranks. Starting with Dr. John J. Warner, who will join us on April 1 as the chief executive officer of the Wexner Medical Center and executive vice president of Ohio State.

He most recently served as CEO of the University of Texas Southwestern Health System and executive vice president for health affairs. His experience as a health care executive, interventional cardiologist and public health advocate makes him a perfect fit for the medical center. And a warm welcome to his wife, Mrs. Lisa Warner, as well. We extend our deep thanks to Dr. Andrew Thomas, Mr. Jay Anderson, Dr. Carol Bradford, and the entire Wexner Medical Center leadership team for their strong work and for their collaboration throughout this transition period. We are also delighted to welcome Mr. Anthony Padgett, who will soon join us as the WOSU general manager. He currently serves as president and CEO of South Carolina ETV, and his first day will be March 6.

Five days before that, March 1, Vice President for Research Dr. Peter Mohler will transition into the role of interim executive vice president of our Enterprise for Research, Innovation and Knowledge. He and Vice President for Knowledge Enterprise Dr. Dorota Grejner-Brzezinska have been instrumental to achieving our tremendous progress toward doubling research expenditures in this decade. We're excited for this work to continue as Dr. Grace Wang prepares to become the next president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute next month.

I'd like to take a moment to congratulate Dr. Grace Wang on this appointment and to thank her for her excellent leadership at Ohio State. Grace and I worked together at the State University of New York, and we were so fortunate to recruit her to Ohio State. Grace — you are visionary, and strategic, collaborative and a very hard-working colleague and partner. WPI is so fortunate to have you as their next leader. Thank you.

As you know, The Ohio State University has five strategic priorities. I'm going to give you a quick update on each of those and try not to repeat some of the great work that was already talked about in committee meetings. But some of them, in my opinion, require extra emphasis. That is the sales and marketing Ratmir.

As we know, our research enterprise has an incredible amount of momentum behind it. In December, Ohio State leaped 12 spots in the National Science Foundation's annual Higher Education Research and Development rankings, going from 24th to 12th among all American universities, public and private.

That increase was driven by our record $1.236 billion in research expenditures for fiscal year 2021. And, as Dr. Mohler shared just a short time ago, we are proud to have surpassed that mark in fiscal year '22 to achieve an astounding $1.38 billion in R&D spending.

This represents 11.7% growth over the previous fiscal year. It's a credit to the collective achievements of our faculty and scholars, who strive every day to create new knowledge and develop solutions people need now.

Sustaining this growth requires a pipeline to support research teams as they pursue high-risk, high-reward projects at the convergence of disciplines.

We've established that pipeline through the President's Research Excellence Fund — and better positioning these teams of faculty to come together to garner extramural support.

Since the program began, 43 teams of Ohio State researchers have been awarded $3.3 million to pursue their cross-disciplinary research. And I am eager to learn what the next round of funding will be, which will be announced in March.

Excellence in research, of course we aspire to continue to be excellent in academics. And the quality of our academics also continues to garner national attention. On the heels of Ohio State's rise last year to 16th in U.S. News & World Report's rankings of public universities, the organization again has been recognized as one of the best in the nation for online education.

The College of Nursing's online graduate program is tied for the second spot this year. Online programs from the colleges of Business, Dentistry, Education and Human Ecology, Engineering and Medicine also garnered special recognition.

Whether students are online or on campus, Ohio State is committed to promoting a safe and healthy environment, free from hazing.

When the university's new anti-hazing policy became effective last month, we took an important step forward in meeting this responsibility to the Buckeye family and our obligations under Collin's Law, Ohio's Anti-Hazing Act.

For the first time, it brings together students, faculty, staff and volunteers under one comprehensive set of rules prohibiting the hazing of students. As part of this policy, all university students and employees are now required to take part in the annual education to help them identify, respond to, prevent and report hazing.

I'd like to thank Associate Dean of Students Ryan Lovell for leading the implementation team and units across the campuses for their collaboration on this important effort.

Excellence in service and clinical care is so important to the Buckeye nation.

We continue to find new ways to enhance how we serve the people of Ohio and deliver compassionate and cutting-edge care to our patients.

We were delighted to learn in January that the Ohio Broadband and 5G Sector Partnership, housed at Ohio State, will receive $12 million in additional grant funding through the State of Ohio, the Ohio Manufacturer's Association, the U.S. Economic Development Administration and the U.S. Department of Labor.

The funding will accelerate our efforts by the Sector Partnership to build a pipeline to fuel the deployment of broadband service and 5G across the state.

On January 16, more than 500 students marked the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday by participating in a day of service.

This annual event, organized by the Pay It Forward student cohort within the Office of Student Life, saw Buckeyes uplift our neighbors in central Ohio through 29 service projects conducted alongside 27 local nonprofit organizations.

The team at the Wexner Medical Center also continues to define excellence. The nursing staff at The James earned the hospital's third-consecutive Magnet® designation from the American Nurses Credentialing Center, which recognizes outstanding patient care and high-quality, innovative nursing practice.

Our thanks go to The James' Interim CEO Dr. David Cohn; Executive Director for Clinical Services Kris Kipp; Chief Nursing Officer Dr. Corrin Steinhauer; Christine Krall and Emily Rush, who spearheaded the redesignation effort; and to all the nurses at The James.

Excellence in operations fuels the rest of what we're doing, including excellence in talent and culture.

Operationally, the university continues to be in a strong position to invest in the future.

Ohio State's issuer default rating and the ratings on our general-receipt bonds have been upgraded by Fitch to AA+ with a stable outlook.

The university also experienced a strong start to the fiscal year, with an increase in operating revenues of $399 million for the first six months of FY23 compared to the same period in FY22.

Thanks to Chief Financial Officer Mike Papadakis and his team for their solid planning and sound management.

Lastly, the excellence in talent and culture.

Enhancing our excellence in talent and culture remains a full-time focus for our university community. Buckeyes are going the extra mile during Ohio State's celebration of #BuckeyeLove, which includes Random Acts of Kindness Week — going on right now — and tomorrow's Random Acts of Kindness Day.

We've known for a long time that doing good for others pays dividends to ourselves. Thanks to two Buckeye researchers, we now have peer-reviewed evidence to back this up.

Professor of psychology Dr. Jennifer Cheavens and former Ohio State doctoral student Dr. David Cregg demonstrated that performing acts of kindness for others helps alleviate symptoms of anxiety and depression among those doing these good deeds. Their findings are deeply moving — so much so that their work was recently highlighted on the TODAY Show.

Buckeye excellence — this can be found all over our campuses. As reported earlier in the ERIK committee meeting, and important enough to summarize again here, we congratulate the following faculty on their well-deserved national awards:

College of Public Health Dean Amy Fairchild, engineering Professor Antonio Conejo, physics Professor Mohit Randeria and psychology Professor Laura Wagner were elected to the 2022 class of Fellows of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This distinction recognizes their singular efforts to advance the study and appreciation of science, it is among the highest honors a U.S. scholar can receive. Congratulations to all four of them!

We also congratulate professors Alan Luo, Judit Puskas, and Longya Xu. They were elected to the National Academy of Engineering.

And we have two new members of the national academy of inventors to congratulate — Professor Jianrong Li and Professor Peixuan Guo — and Professor Dehua Pei was named a Senior Member of the National Academy of Inventors.

Lastly, Ohio State's vice president for knowledge enterprise, Dr. Darota Brzezinska, was recently appointed to the National Science Board by President Joe Biden. And College of Medicine's Dr. Fred Tabung was appointed by President Biden to the National Cancer Advisory Board.

These distinguished faculty and leaders provide inspiring examples to our students, who are of course eager to make an impact of their own.

Among those students are eight undergraduates selected by our Center for Ethics and Human Values for the 2023 cohort of Civil Discourse Fellows. Under the leadership of Director Piers Norris Turner, the fellows will help plan and moderate Civil Discourse Forums on campus and serve as ambassadors for constructive dialogue throughout the year.

In closing, the Buckeyes I've mentioned, as well as our collective achievement over the past few months, are representative of the incredible work our university community does every day.

Ohio State continues to set new standards of excellence. And with the extraordinary generosity of alumni and friends like Mr. and Mrs. Timashev and their family, there really is no telling what Buckeyes can achieve in the future.

Thank you for your time. This concludes my report Mr. Chairman.

CONSENT AGENDA

Dr. Fujita:

Thank you, President Johnson, for that report. We have now arrived at our consent agenda. Please note that we have placed two (2) items for action directly on the consent agenda today – our Resolutions in Memoriam, which recognize the passing of emeritus faculty members, and the Distinguished Service Awards recommendations. We also had two (2) hand-carry resolutions brought forward through our committees this week – Personnel Actions through Talent, Compensation and Governance, and the Naming of Pelotonia Research Center through Finance and Investment – these appear on the consent agenda. President Johnson, would you please present the consent agenda to the Board?

President Johnson:

My pleasure.

Professor Dervin received her BS from Cornell University in 1960, followed by an MA and PhD from Michigan State University in 1971. Her first academic position was in the School of Library and Information Sciences at Syracuse University, which began her lifelong work in information sciences before she moved on to the School of Communication at the University of Washington in 1977. In 1986 Professor Dervin arrived at The Ohio State University where she chaired the Department of Communication (now the School of Communication) before returning to research and teaching. Professor Dervin's scholarship focused on the role of sense-making in dialogue and human information behavior. She was a national and international leader in developing Sense-Making Theory and Methodology, a philosophically derived approach for studying communication as communication. This methodology has been used particularly by researchers in communication and in library and information sciences. In 2000 Professor Dervin was awarded an honorary doctorate in the social sciences for her contributions by the University of Helsinki.

Serving in many disciplinary roles, Professor Dervin was recognized by both the communication and information science fields. She was an elected a Fellow of the International Communication Association and served as its first female president from 1985 to 1987. She co-edited multiple book series on paradigm dialogues and theorizing in the communication sciences. In recognition of her scholarly contributions, Professor Dervin received a Joan H. Huber fellowship from the College of Arts and Sciences at The Ohio State University in 2004; in 2006 she received the American Society for Information Science and Technology's award for outstanding contribution to Information Behavior Research that was followed by her election as a Fellow in 2009.

Professor Dervin mentored many graduate students from several universities throughout her career. At The Ohio State University she supervised 20 doctoral dissertations and masters' theses. She also oversaw funded research that included a million dollar grant from the Institute for Museum and Library Studies. She lectured or gave workshops on her Sense-Making Theory and Methodology to universities in 19 countries. Following Professor Dervin's retirement in 2012 she relocated back to Seattle, Washington, but remained in contact with former students and colleagues.

On behalf of the university community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family and friends of Professor Brenda L. Dervin its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It is directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her friends and family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Norton H. Neff

Synopsis: The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow regarding the death on September 5th, 2022, of Norton H. Neff, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Biological Chemistry and Pharmacology in the College of Medicine. He was 86 years old.

Professor Neff received his BS (1958), MS (1960), and PhD (1964) in Pharmacology/Chemistry from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. He did his postdoctoral research under Bernard B. Brodie, Laboratory of Chemical Pharmacology, National Heart Institute (1963-1965), and Erminio Costa, Columbia University (1965-1968) in the emergent field of Neuropsychopharmacology. He then joined the Laboratory of Preclinical Pharmacology at the National Institute of Mental Health, advancing to Chief Section of Biochemical Pharmacology and Deputy Director (1968-1984). During these years, the Neff laboratory produced and published groundbreaking research on the regulation of neurotransmitters in the brain and periphery. His pioneering and highly cited research contributed to the establishment of the neurochemical basis and treatment of neuropsychiatric disorders. During his tenure he mentored and trained scores of neuropsychopharmacologists who distinguished themselves as researchers, academicians, and leaders at national and international institutions.

In 1984 he joined the OSU community to lead the Department of Pharmacology in the College of Medicine, where he was Professor of Pharmacology, Neuroscience, and Psychiatry. Professor Neff served the University with dedication for 28 years. He distinguished himself as an effective leader, excellent educator, and innovative researcher. Under his leadership the Department of Pharmacology attained national recognition, attracting strong faculty, increasing research funding, and expanding its graduate student program. Excellence mattered to Chairman Neff, and he created an environment that fostered academic and scientific success. In his 16 years as chairman, countless students and postdoctoral fellows were educated, new educational programs were developed, and important contributions to medical research were made, expanding the reputation of the College of Medicine and OSU. He deeply cared about his faculty, students, and staff and kept an open-door policy. He was a good listener, a sage and frank mentor, and a thoughtful administrator whose experience and insight were highly valued. He advocated for his faculty and was a strong proponent of policies supporting junior faculty development. He displayed strong leadership skills and did not shy away from challenges. His character and integrity as an administrator, educator, and scientist were exemplary.

Professor Neff established the Neuropsychopharmacology program in the College of Medicine with continuous NIH funding. He teamed up with his wife and longtime research partner, Professor Maria Hadjiconstantinou, and published seminal work on retina neurochemical pharmacology, neurotransmitter transporters, neurodegeneration and repair in aging and Parkinson's Disease, and nicotine addiction. He was particularly proud of the many graduate, MD/PhD, and postdoctoral researchers trained in his laboratory, whom he considered family and kept in contact with, never forgetting birthday and holiday wishes.

In 2000, Professor Neff stepped down as chair, and dedicated his time and effort to medical and graduate student education. He served as Assistant Dean for Graduate Student Education (2004-2007), Associate Director (2004-2007) of the newly established Integrated Biomedical Science Graduate Program, and Director of Medical Student Research (2007-2010). In these capacities, he promoted graduate student education, advocated for medical student research education, and introduced programs that enriched medical student education and life. He was a wise and patient advisor and a caring teacher beloved by many. Professor Neff was an active and highly respected member of the OSU community, which he served with loyalty and enthusiasm until his retirement in 2012. Through academic committees, the OSU Foundation Board of Directors, and the University Senate he worked tirelessly to make OSU a premier learning institution.

On behalf of the entire university community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family and loved ones of Professor Norton H. Neff its deepest sympathy and compassion for their loss. It is directed that the resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the board's heartfelt sympathy and appreciation.

Board of Trustees Conflict of Interest Protocol

This Protocol summarizes the process by which the Office of Legal Affairs and Office of the Board of Trustees assist individual Trustees of the Ohio State University, as well as members of the Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center Board, and members of any Board Committees, in meeting their commitments under the Board of Trustees' Statement of Ethical Conduct and Leadership Integrity ("Statement") and Ohio Ethics Laws.

Candidate Screening: The Office of Legal Affairs will support the Board of Trustees in pre-screening potential trustees, Charter Trustees, Wexner Medical Center Board members, and members of Board Committees, when known, for possible ethics or conflict of interest issues based on publicly available information, prior to their appointment.

Charter and Committee Members: The Statement of Ethical Conduct and Leadership Integrity applies to both University Trustees ("Trustees") and Charter and Committee Members ("Members"). University Trustees are also governed by Ohio Ethics Laws. Members are expected to recognize potential conflicts of interest and respond accordingly, and the Office of Legal Affairs will assist both Trustees and Members as requested.

Ethics Education: At the time of his or her appointment, each Trustee and Member shall be invited to participate in a one-on-one education session by the General Counsel. The session will cover Ohio Ethics Law as it applies to the Trustee or Member and the Statement of Ethical Conduct and Leadership Integrity.

In addition, the University will provide Trustees and Members with an annual ethics education session that will cover Ohio Ethics Law as it applies to the Trustee or Member and the Statement of Ethical Conduct and Leadership Integrity.

The Board Office will also distribute the Summary of Substantive Provisions of the Ethics Law and Related Statutes prepared by the Ohio Ethics Commission and create a repository of relevant ethics documents that is accessible to Trustees and Members online.

Individualized conflict management plan: Where requested by an individual Trustee or Member, the General Counsel will define a management plan to assist in the management of a potential conflict. Such a plan may include assisting the Board Secretary in reviewing the Board Meeting agenda, prior to a meeting, to identify the potential conflict affecting individual Trustees or Members. Depending on the nature of the potential conflict, the Board materials may be redacted and other steps taken to ensure that the Trustee or Member appropriately recuses him- or herself from the discussion.

Optional Provision of List of Interests: Once a year the Secretary of the Board shall circulate a form to each Trustee on which the Trustee may, at his or her option, list any entities in which the Trustee (1) serves as a director or other fiduciary (both for-profit and not-for-profit entities), or (2) holds (combined with other members of the Trustee's family or the Trustee's business associates) five percent (5%) or more of the ownership of the entity. A Trustee is encouraged to update the Trustee's entity list at any time the Trustee agrees to assume a directorship or other fiduciary relation with an entity or acquires a five percent (5%) or larger ownership interest in the entity. The form shall be submitted to the General Counsel along with a request for legal advice pertaining to the Trustee or Member's obligations relating to their service. The information so disclosed shall be held in confidence. Members may avail themselves of this process at their own initiative. The General Counsel will provide the Trustee or Member a confirmation letter as well as a summary of preventative actions the University will take to assist the Trustee or Member in managing the disclosed relationship(s).

Potential conflicting vendor list and University purchases: To assist Trustees in meeting their obligations under the Ohio Ethics Laws, and otherwise to manage their potential conflicts of interest, the Board Office, upon request, will provide to the Trustees the University's vendor list.

Financial Disclosure Filings: Annually, the Board Office will remind trustees of Ohio Ethics Commission financial disclosure filing requirements and upcoming deadlines, pay for filing fees, and confirm with each trustee that he or she properly filed their financial disclosure with the Commission.

Agenda Review: The Board Office will review each Board, Wexner Medical Center Board, and/or Committee agenda to identify items for action on those agendas that may pose potential conflicts of interest for individual Trustees and Members, based on previously disclosed or known information, and will consult with the individual trustee or member and the Office of Legal Affairs, as appropriate.

Exit meeting: At the time that a Trustee or Member retires from the Board or Committee, General Counsel will offer to review the ongoing ethical obligations of the Trustee or Member and offer ongoing support in interpretation of those obligations.

OHIO ETHICS LAW MEMORANDA FOR TRUSTEES OF PUBLIC COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

I. INTRODUCTION TO THE ETHICS LAW AND RELATED STATUTES

This handout contains general information about the Ohio Ethics Law and related statutes (Chapter 102. and Sections 2921.42, 2921.421, and 2921.43) as they apply to individuals serving as trustees of state colleges and universities. To assist you, this handout outlines, in general terms, your responsibilities under the Ethics Law and related statutes.

The prohibitions of the Ethics Law and related statutes protect both individuals who serve in public positions and the general public. The law includes requirements for financial disclosure by trustees of public colleges and universities, as well as general provisions that condition the conduct of public officials and employees to help protect against conflicts of interest.

- A. Intent:
 - To prevent public officials and employees with conflicts of interest from acting on those conflicts
 - To provide remedies of education, advice, and enforcement
- B. Application:
 - All public officials and employees at every level of government in Ohio, and those who do business with them
 - All trustees of state public colleges and universities are public officials and are, therefore, subject to Ohio's Ethics Law.
 - Limited exception for teachers and other educators with no administrative responsibilities [Ohio Revised Code ("R.C.") 102.01 (B)]
- C. Ohio's Ethics Law:
 - Found in Chapter 102 of the Revised Code
 - Related statutes are R.C. 2921.42 and R.C. 2921.43

- D. Investigation – R.C. 102.06.
 - 1. Authority – Analogous to specialized grand jury

 - b. Accused can request disclosure of a complaint, if the accused has successfully defended the complaint

3. Resolution Authority – After consultation with the accused, the person filing the complaint, and any other person the Commission considers necessary, the Commission or a prosecutor may agree to settle a charge with the accused.
 4. Demand exceeds resources:
 - a. An estimated 18,000 elected office holders and 500,000 public employees subject to authority

- E. Financial Disclosure – R.C. 102.02.
1. All state college and university trustees are required to file individual financial disclosure statements with the Ethics Commission by April 15th of each year.
 2. These statements aid trustees in identifying financial interests they hold that may present conflicts of interest for them in the performance of their public duties.
 3. The Ethics Commission provides financial disclosure statements to college and university trustees by February 15th of each year.
 4. Financial disclosure statements reflect the entire preceding year's financial interests held by the filer, even if the trustee did not serve during the preceding year.
 5. College and university trustees are required to disclose:
 - Sources of income of over $500;
 - Sources of gifts of over $500 (excluding most family members, but including spouses);
 - Investments over $1000;
 - Debtors and creditors over $1000;
 - Most ownership and leasehold interests in real property, located in Ohio.
 6. Statements filed by trustees of public colleges and universities are confidential except for any part of the disclosure that reveals a potential conflict of interest. Each confidential statement is individually reviewed by the Ethics Commission to identify sources of potential conflict. These may include a trustee's financial interests, because a trustee may not use his authority to affect his own interests if they have business or regulative relationships with the college or university.
 7. The General Assembly has mandated timely compliance with the deadline. As a result, the Ethics Commission will assess a late filing fee of $10 per day, up to a total of $250.00, against individuals who fail to file statements by the deadline.
- F. Legislation – R.C. 102.08.
- Recommend legislation relating to ethics, conflicts of interest, and financial disclosure
 - Recent examples:
 - H.B. 300 in 1986
 - H.B. 285 in 1994

IV. SUBSTANTIVE PROVISIONS OF THE ETHICS LAW AND RELATED STATUTES

General Rule – Whenever the personal financial or fiduciary interests of a public official or employee, his family, or his business associates are involved in a situation before the official or employee, there is an ethics issue.

In addition to financial disclosure requirements, the Ohio Ethics Law contains provisions regarding the private activities of public officials. These provisions deal with four general areas: conflicts of interest; public contracts (including nepotism) and public investments; post-employment, confidentiality, and representation; and, supplemental compensation. These general restrictions are summarized below.

A. Conflict of Interest – R.C. 102.03 (D), (E), (F).

1. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from taking any action, including voting, discussing, deliberating, and formally or informally lobbying, on any matter where the official, his family, his business associates, or others with whom he has a relationship that would affect his objectivity, would receive anything of substantial value [102.03 (D)].
 - a. R.C. 102.03 (D) prohibits a public official from using his authority to secure anything of value that could have a substantial and improper influence upon the official in the performance of his duties. This section prohibits any formal or informal action in a matter where a substantial thing of value may benefit the official, his family, or his business associates.
 - b. The law defines “anything of value” to include money, goods, chattels, future employment, interests in realty, and “every other thing of value.”
2. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from accepting or soliciting anything of substantial value, including gifts, travel, meals, and lodging payments, and consulting fees, from improper sources including parties that are doing or seeking to do business with, regulated by, or interested in matters before the board or commission she serves [R.C. 102.03 (D) and (E)].
 - a. R.C. 102.03 (E) prohibits a public official from merely soliciting or accepting anything of value if the thing of value could have a substantial and improper influence upon the public official in the performance of his duties.
 - b. “Anything of value” could have a substantial influence upon a public official if the thing has a substantial value. The Ethics Commission has stated, for example, that season tickets for a professional sports team have a substantial value and cannot be provided to a public official by a party doing business with or regulated by the public agency [OEC Adv. Op. No. 95-001].
 - c. A thing of value could have an improper influence upon a public official if it is provided by a source that has a direct relationship with the public agency served by the official. Those sources, which are “improper” because of their relationships with a public agency, include parties doing or seeking to do business with, regulated by, or interested in matters before the public agency. Those “interested in” matters might include an association of parties doing business with the public agency.

3. The law also prohibits a private party, or any person, from promising or giving anything of value to a public college or university trustee if the thing of value could have a substantial and improper influence upon the public official or employee in the performance of his duties [R.C. 102.03 (E); OEC Adv. Op. No. 90-001].
 - a. One example of a situation where these restrictions have been applied is travel, meals, and lodging. A public college or university trustee is prohibited from accepting travel, meals, and lodging, from any improper source, which would include parties that are doing or seeking to do business with, regulated by, or interested in matters before the public agency [OEC Adv. Op. No. 89-014]. A trustee is also prohibited from accepting or using any frequent flyer benefits accrued while in the course of travel in his official capacity, unless the benefits are used in official travel [OEC Adv. Op. No. 91-010].

B. Public Contract Restraints - R.C. 2921.42; R.C. 102.04.

1. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from authorizing or using his position to secure authorization of a public contract for himself, a member of his family, or a business associate [R.C. 2921.42 (A)(1)].
 - a. A “public contract” is any purchase or acquisition of any property or services, including employment, and casual, as needed purchases, and any design, construction, alteration, repair, or maintenance of any public property [2921.42 (G)(1)].
 - b. The Commission has stated that a prohibited “interest” in a public contract must be definite and direct, and may be either pecuniary or fiduciary [OEC Adv. Op. No. 78-005].
 - c. The term “a member of his family” includes, but is not limited to, a spouse, parent, grandparent, child, grandchild, or sibling. It also includes any other person related by blood or marriage to the public official and residing in the same household with the official [OEC Adv. Op. No. 80-001; Walsh v. Bollas, 82 Ohio App. 3d 588 (Lake County 1992)].
 - d. A “business associate” is a person with whom a public official is engaged in an on-going business enterprise, such as a partner in a partnership, a co-owner of a business, or an outside, private employer [OEC Adv. Op. No. 92-003].
2. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from profiting from a public contract he approved, or that was approved by the board of trustees of which he is a member, even if he abstains from the approval, unless the contract was competitively bid and awarded to the lowest and best bidder [R.C. 2921.42 (A)(3)]. This restriction applies while the official is connected with the public college or university, and for one year after he leaves his position.
 - a. This section prohibits a member of a governing board, such as a college or university board of trustees, for one year from the time he leaves his position, from accepting employment with his public agency, if the employment was authorized or the position was created during his service. R.C. 102.03 (D) (discussed above) also prohibits a member of a governing board from using his position to secure employment from the public agency he serves [OEC Adv. Op. No. 87-008]. These restrictions do not mean that a former college or university trustee is prohibited from securing employment with the college or university he had served, so long as the board of trustees did not create the position or authorize the employment during his service, and the former trustee did not seek the employment opportunity until after he left the position of trustee.

3. Nepotism

- a. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from authorizing the hire of, or using his authority to secure the hire of, or employment benefits for, any member of his family (parents, grandparents, children, grandchildren, spouse, siblings, or any person related by blood or marriage and residing in the same household) [R.C. 2921.42 (A)(1)].

4. Improper Interest in Public Contracts

- a. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from having an interest in the profits or benefits of a public contract entered into by the institution with which he is connected [R.C. 2921.42 (A)(4)]. The term “connected with” has been defined by the Commission as being related to or associated with the institution [OEC Adv. Op. No. 87-002, 89-004, 90-007].

- i. EXEMPTION: A trustee of a public college or university is not considered to have an interest in a public contract entered into by his college or university with a private corporation if his interest in the corporation is limited to being a stockholder of less than five percent or a creditor of less than five percent [R.C. 2921.42 (B)].

- ii. EXEMPTION: A trustee of a public college or university is not prohibited from having an interest in a public contract entered into by the college or university he serves so long as: (1) the purchase is a necessary purchase; (2) the goods or services are unobtainable elsewhere for the same or lower cost, or are furnished as part of a continuing course of dealing started prior to the trustee’s connection with the college; (3) the service provided is the same as or better than the service provided to other clients or customers; and (4) the public official does not participate, the contract is at arms length, and the college or university has full knowledge of the board member’s interest [R.C. 2921.42 (C)].

- iii. The application of these two exemptions is dependent upon the facts.

Please contact the Ethics Commission for further information.

- b. A trustee of a state college or university is prohibited from authorizing investments, or employing authority to secure investments of public funds in any security, if he, a member of his family, or any of his business associates either has an interest, is an underwriter, or receives any brokerage, origination, or servicing fees [R.C. 2921.42 (A)(2); State v. Strabala (1993)].

5. Sale of Goods

- a. A trustee of a state college or university is prohibited from selling any goods or services to any state entity, except through competitive bidding or as provided by exemption [R.C. 102.04 (B)].

- i. EXEMPTION: Sales to state agencies other than the college or university served are exempted when the trustee completes and files a disclosure of the sale of goods or services, as described in R.C. 102.04 (D), before entering into the sale. The trustee must file the disclosure with the college or university he serves, the state entity to which the sale will be made, and the Ethics Commission [R.C. 102.04 (D)].

C. Post-Employment Restrictions – R.C. 102.03(A), (B); 102.04(A),(C).

1. General Revolving Door – R.C. 102.03(A):

A trustee of a state college or university is prohibited, during public service and for one year thereafter, from representing anyone, before any public agency, on any matter in which he personally participated while he was a member of the board of trustees. For some matters, the prohibition remains in effect for two years [R.C. 102.03 (A)].

- a. A “matter” is any case, proceeding, application, determination, issue, or question [R.C. 102.03 (A)(5)].
- b. “Personal participation” is any decision, approval, disapproval, recommendation, the rendering of advice, investigation, or other substantial exercise of administrative discretion [R.C. 120.03 (A)(1)]. Supervision of another public official or employee can be, but is not always, personal participation [OEC Adv. Op. No. 91-009].
- c. “Representation” is defined as any formal or informal appearance before, or any written or oral communication with, any public agency [102.03 (A)(5)]. “Representation” includes preparing documents, regardless of whether the individual himself signs them, or they are signed by someone else [OEC Adv. Op. No. 86-001]. The restriction applies even if the represented party is another public agency [OEC Adv. Op. No. 93-011]. The restriction does not apply to behind-the-scenes consultation with a client or new employer [OEC Adv. Op. No. 92-005].

2. Representation – R.C. 102.04 (A).

- a. A trustee of a public college or university is prohibited from receiving compensation except from the institution of higher education he serves for any service rendered personally on any case, application, or other matter before any state entity, except as provided by exemption [R.C. 102.04 (A)]. Ministerial matters like tax preparation and filing incorporation papers are removed from the restriction [R.C. 102.04 (F); OEC Adv. Op. No. 89-016].
 - i. EXEMPTION: Receiving compensation for providing services on matters pending before state agencies other than the institution of higher education served is exempted when the official completes and files a disclosure, as described in R.C. 102.04 (D), before performing the personal services. The trustee must file the disclosure with the college or university he serves, the state entity to which the sale will be made, and the Ethics Commission [R.C. 102.04 (D)].

3. Confidentiality – R.C. 102.03 (B).

- a. A trustee of a state college or university is prohibited from disclosing or using confidential information acquired in his state position, without appropriate authorization. There is no time limit on this restriction [R.C. 102.03 (B)].

4. Representation - Influence peddling – R.C. 102.04 (A)(C).

D. Other Restrictions.

1. Supplemental Compensation – R.C. 2921.43 (A).

- a. A trustee of a state college or university is prohibited from accepting compensation, other than from the college or university he serves, for the performance of his public duties [R.C. 2921.43 (A)]. Private parties are also prohibited from offering or giving supplemental compensation to university trustees [102.03 (F); 2921.43 (A)].

2. Honoraria – R.C. 102.03 (H)

- a. The general restriction enacted by the Legislature in 1994 that prohibits a public official who files a disclosure statement from receiving an honorarium does not apply to any member of the boards of trustees, or any president, of state institutions of higher education. However, a trustee or president is prohibited from accepting honoraria or travel expenses from parties that are doing or seeking to do business with, regulated by, or interested in matters pending before his college or university [102.03 (I)].

3. Rate-Making – R.C. 102.03 (C).

E. Additional considerations

1. Copies of the law – R.C. 102.09 (E).

- B. Cannot solicit or accept things of value
- C. Cannot disclose or use confidential information

As previously stated, this information summarizes the Ohio Ethics Law and related statutes in Chapter 102. and Sections 2921.42, 2921.421, and 2921.43. These laws are criminal statutes designed to protect the public from decisions that could be influenced by improper conflicts of interest for those who serve the public interest. Although the majority of public officials and employees meet or exceed these standards, these provisions serve to assist in deterring or punishing the few who do not. Your careful consideration of the prohibitions is appreciated.

The Ohio Ethics Commission is an independent agency of state government charged with interpreting and administering the Ohio Ethics Law for many state and local public officials and employees. The Commission has been serving the public, and state and local governments, since its formation as part of the Ohio Ethics Law in 1973. If you have any questions about how these restrictions apply to you, or for more information about the Ethics Law in general, please contact the Ohio Ethics Commission at (614) 466-7090.

This memorandum was prepared by the Ohio Ethics Commission for informational purposes only. It is not intended as a substitute for the laws referenced or Ethics Commission advisory opinions construing those provisions.

PUBLIC SESSION

The Wexner Medical Center Board convened for its 45th meeting on Tuesday, February 14, 2023, at the Longaberger Alumni House on Ohio State's Columbus campus. Board Secretary Jessica A. Eveland called the meeting to order at 1:00 p.m. As co-interim leaders of the Wexner Medical Center, both Jay Anderson Chief Operating Officer, and Andrew Thomas, Chief Clinical Officer, were in attendance, but only Dr. Thomas served as a voting member for this meeting.

Item for Action

1. Approval of Minutes: No changes were requested to the November 15, 2022, meeting minutes; therefore, a formal vote was not required, and the minutes were considered approved.

Items for Discussion

2. Interim Co-Leaders' Report: Dr. Thomas began by taking a moment to acknowledge the recent events at Michigan State University and asked all of us to continue to keep all of those involved at Michigan State – students, parents of students, faculty and staff – in your thoughts and prayers. He welcomed Dr. John J. Warner, our new executive vice president and chief executive officer effective April 1, 2023. Dr. Thomas shared some awards and recognitions starting with recognition from the American Hospital Association - commemorating 100 years of membership by the OSU hospital, now named the WMC Medical Center. The award was received in front of Starling Loving Hall which was the original hospital building here on campus. He also shared the WMC was recognized as a Climate Champion by Healthcare without Harm, an organization focused on climate and environment as it relates to healthcare; the Dodd Inpatient Rehabilitation Center team was once again recognized as the best rehabilitation center in Ohio in Newsweek Magazine based on quality of care; and Castle Connolly, a physician led organization recognizing top doctors across the United States, nominates peers selected on excellence in their profession, shared our numbers increased this year from 350 OSU physicians named last year to 440 named this year. Some individual awards shared included Fred K. Tabung, OSUCCC-James, named to the National Cancer Advisory Board by President Biden. He will be one of six experts influencing the federal government's approach to cancer research including advising the National Cancer Institute on setting the course of the future for research from the federal government's perspective; Dr. Michael Dick, OSUWMC Emergency Medicine, medical director at University East, received the Jack B. Liberator Lifetime Achievement Award for the State of Ohio EMS Star of Life Awards; and Cindy Koutz, recently received a lifetime achievement award in Association of Physician Assistants in Oncology.

Mr. Anderson shared the recent wrap up of our triannual Joint Commission reaccreditation, it went extremely well and was pleased with the reaction of the surveyors. We also received national recognition for outstanding patient care by Press Ganey and Magnet. Mr. Anderson introduced additional leadership team members of WMC – Sarah Sherer, senior associate vice president and chief human resources officer; Stacy Brethauer, interim chief quality and patient safety officer; and Crystal Tubbs, senior director of clinical quality and patient safety. He then handed it over to Dean Bradford to discuss the new department in College of Medicine - Department of Molecular Medicine and Therapeutics, which Dr. Matthew Ringel will serve as department's inaugural chair. Mr. Anderson then discussed the recently launched our Hospital to Home program, the newest model in patient centered care. We are one in only about 250 hospitals in the country received approval from the Centers of Medicare and Medicaid to implement this program. In conclusion he shared the Comprehensive Transplant Center celebrated their 12,000th organ transplant. Our center is one of the largest in the country.

3. Leading the Way: Neurological Institute: Dr. Benjamin Segal, Chair of the Department of Neurology kicked off the presentation by sharing The Neurological Institute at OSUWMC is on a steep positive trajectory. He described the increase in incidences of neurologic disease in the US and globally over the past 10 years. This increase in incidences not only effects diseases more common in the elderly population such as Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease and stroke but also neurological diseases that effect younger individuals such as multiple sclerosis which usually presents in young adulthood. The incidence in MS has taken a sharp upward turn. The Neurological Institute is a first class internationally recognized program at OSUWMC in terms of neurology, neurological surgery, physical medicine and rehabilitation, and neuroscience, all working together to provide the best care ultimately leading to a cure. Dr. Russell Lonser, Chair of the Department of Neurological Surgery, gave background on The Neurological Institute which is comprised of five departments, 300 faculty, last year $35 million in research awards and over the past 3 years philanthropy has hit $51 million. He outlined the ten foundational programs in the Neurological Institute and dove deeper in to 3 of those programs – Neuro-Immunology, Movement Disorders, and Stroke. A newly introduced Parkinson's multidisciplinary clinic treats patients with Parkinson's Disease which is a movement disorder effecting gait, balance, it can slow movements and trigger involuntary movements like tremors. People with Parkinson's disease usually suffer from depression as well as physical limitations. This is one stop shopping where a patient will be evaluated by multiple experts to get cutting edge care. The introduction of this Parkinson's disease multidisciplinary clinic as well as other clinics and innovations in Parkinson's disease has led to OSUWMC being named a finalist as a Parkinson's Center of Excellence by the National Parkinson Foundation. They concluded by discussing an inspiring young patient who had a stroke that was managed by the stroke program.

4. James Cancer Hospital Report: Dr. Cohn highlighted the innovation in care delivery models in the recognition that differentiates our cancer program as one of the finest in the country to advance our top ten mission. He shared The James is one of the few cancer programs across the country truly committed to the principle of providing care to the patients at the right place at the right time to drive superior both experience and patient outcomes, optimal access points and coordination among community based, acute and post-acute settings is truly the hallmark of our cancer program. In an effort to deliver on the promise to treat the right patients in the right place at the right time The James Cancer Hospital and Solove Research Institute designed new and innovative care models with dedicated infrastructure. He shared the recent appointment of Raquel Reinbolt MD, medical director of the Cancer Care Continuum. The program she oversees delivers complex care across the continuum, aims to maximize efficiency by expanding patient access, reducing length of stay, reducing hospital readmissions and ultimately delivering world class quality and compassionate care to our patients. It is recognized that cancer care continuum starts well prior to the diagnosis of cancer and early diagnosis is the key to improving patient outcomes. A James Cancer Diagnostic Center has been created to direct, expedited access to diagnostic testing, self or provider referrals, same-day or next-day appointments either virtual or in-person. The clinic is led by oncology advanced practice providers and avoids unnecessary emergency department visits and admissions. This program is unique across the country, possibly the only one that exists. It has gained recognition by The Association of Cancer Institutes with their 2022 Innovation Award. Dr. Cohn also discussed the patient's needs during cancer treatment and shared how patients can access Immediate Care Center to treat patients who may be experiencing conditions such as dehydration, pain, fever, etc. In addition, The James Transition of Care Clinic was developed to address the needs of patients recently discharged from the hospital prior to their follow up with their specialist. Patients are identified for highest risk of readmission or poor outcomes and have them evaluated in this clinical setting. Dr. Cohn also called out recognition of nursing excellence with The James being awarded its third Magnet designation by the American Nurses Credentialing Center. He also recognized The James receipt of the Guardian of Excellence Award for 7 consecutive years, and the Pinnacle of Excellence Award for the 4th consecutive year. These awards are for exceeding the 95th percentile in hospital patient experience and showing year over year consistency in executing on our commitment to patient care delivery.

Cybersecurity considerations

Factors and forces elevating cybersecurity risks:

- Shifts to remote work, online customer engagement, digital finance – “remote everything”
- Acceleration of digital strategies/transformation
- Surge and sophistication of cyber attacks
- Risks, vulnerabilities posed by third-party vendors

Your considerations for robust oversight:

- Focus on internal controls, access, and security protocols
- Increase diligence around third-party vendors
- Insist on a robust data governance framework
- Clarify responsibilities for data governance across the enterprise
- Reassess how the board—through its committee structure—assigns and coordinates oversight responsibility for cybersecurity and data governance frameworks, including data privacy, ethics, and hygiene

Audit considerations:

- Evaluate risks of material misstatement resulting from, among other things, unauthorized access to financial reporting systems (e.g., IT applications, databases, operating systems)
- Determine whether there is a related risk of fraud
- Develop audit approach based on risk assessment
- If a cybersecurity incident occurs, we understand and evaluate its effect on our audit approach, as well as evaluate management's assessment of the effect on the financial statements and disclosures

Our audit of the financial statements of The Ohio State University (OSU) as of and for the year ending June 30, 2023, will be performed in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America.

Performing an audit of financial statements includes consideration of internal control over financial reporting (ICFR) as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's ICFR.

Additionally, we will perform a single audit in accordance with 2 CFR 200.

Materiality in the context of an audit

We will apply materiality in the context of the preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements, considering the following factors:

Misstatements, including omissions, are considered to be material if there is a substantial likelihood that, individually or in the aggregate, they would influence the judgment made by a reasonable user based on the financial statements.	Judgments about materiality are made in light of surrounding circumstances and are affected by the size or nature of a misstatement, or a combination of both.	Judgments about materiality involve both qualitative and quantitative considerations.
Judgments about matters that are material to users of the financial statements are based on a consideration of the common financial information needs of users as a group. The possible effect of misstatements on specific individual users, whose needs may vary widely, is not considered.	Determining materiality is a matter of professional judgment and is affected by the auditor’s perception of the financial information needs of users of the financial statements.	Judgments about the size of misstatements that will be considered material provide a basis for a.Determining the nature and extent of risk assessment procedures; b.Identifying and assessing the risks of material misstatement; and c.Determining the nature, timing, and extent of further audit procedures.

Risk assessment: Significant risks

Significant risks	Susceptibility to:
Management override of controls	Error	Fraud
Management is in a unique position to perpetrate fraud because of its ability to manipulate accounting records and prepare fraudulent financial statements by overriding controls that otherwise appear to be operating effectively. Although the level of risk of management override of controls will vary from entity to entity, the risk nevertheless is present in all entities.		Yes

Significant risks	Description of significant risk	Susceptibility to:		Relevant factors affecting our risk assessment
		Error	Fraud
Valuation of patient accounts receivable (healthcare entities)	Management's estimate of the allowances for uncollectible accounts is based on analysis of open accounts receivable, average historical collection experience, and other relevant factors to arrive at an overall assessment of collectible net accounts receivable.	Yes		Significant assumptions used that have a high degree of subjectivity: Historical collection experience is the key driver in evaluating the future collection of outstanding patient accounts receivable. Additional consideration is given for changes in aging as well as process changes year over year.

Risk assessment: Significant estimates

Additional risks identified	Relevant factors affecting our risk assessment and planned response
Valuation of alternative investments	Due to the relative lack of transparency into the underlying assets, including that these investments are not valued on a daily basis, nor readily available, we will perform various procedures to determine whether net asset values (NAVs), as applicable, are reliable, including confirming balances and ownership percentages as of year-end, obtaining underlying audited annual financial statements and back-testing reported NAVs, evaluating NAV valuation and cash changes between the audit date and the University's fiscal year end.
Valuation of marketable securities, which are reported within current and noncurrent assets on the statement of net position	Management's estimate of the fair value of marketable securities, including stocks and fixed income assets, held directly by the University is determined based on quoted prices in active markets.
Valuation of pension and other post-employment benefit liabilities and related accounts	Management's estimates of net pension obligations reported are based on a variety of actuarial assumptions related to participant mortality, as well as interest rates, historical experience, the provisions of the related benefit programs, and desired reserve levels.

Shared responsibilities: Independence

Auditor independence is a shared responsibility and most effective when management, those charged with governance and audit firms work together in considering compliance with the independence rules. In order for KPMG to fulfill its professional responsibility to maintain and monitor independence, management, those charged with governance, and KPMG each play an important role.

System of Independence Quality Control

The firm maintains a system of quality control over compliance with independence rules and firm policies. Timely information regarding upcoming transactions or other business changes is necessary to effectively maintain the firm's independence in relation to:

- New affiliates (which may include component units, equity method investees/investments, and other entities that meet the definition of an affiliate under AICPA independence rules)
- New officers or trustees with the ability to affect decision-making and persons in key positions with respect to the preparation or oversight of the financial statements

Certain relationships with KPMG

Independence rules prohibit:

- Certain employment relationships involving trustees, officers, or others in an accounting or financial reporting oversight role and KPMG and KPMG covered persons.
- The University or its trustees, officers, from having certain types of business relationships with KPMG or KPMG professionals.

SAS 145 Adoption

We will expand our risk assessment procedures, particularly in relation to the entity's use of IT.

We may modify the nature, timing, and extent of our audit procedures and request different information compared to previous audits.

SAS 145 (AU-C 315), Understanding the Entity and Its Environment and Assessing the Risks of Material Misstatement

- SAS 145 clarifies and enhances certain aspects of the identification and assessment of the risks of material misstatement to drive better risk assessments, and therefore, enhance audit quality, such as:
 - Requirements and guidance related to the auditor's risk assessment, in particular, obtaining an understanding of the entity's system of internal control and assessing control risk
 - Guidance that addresses the economic, technological, and regulatory aspects of the markets and environment in which entities and audit firms operate
- It does not fundamentally change the key concepts underpinning audit risk, which is a function of the risks of material misstatement and detection risk. Amendments have been made to other AICPA Professional Standards
- Affects both preparers and auditors
- Applies to audits of financial statements for periods ending on or after December 15, 2023. However, KPMG is early adopting SAS 145 for audits of financial statements for periods ending on or after December 15, 2022.

On the 2023 higher education audit committee agenda

January 2023

As the pandemic subsided in fiscal 2022, many colleges and universities experienced a rebound in operational performance amid residual federal stimulus funding, despite headwinds from inflation, workforce disruption, and a changing political landscape. Heading into fiscal 2023, higher education institutions faced geopolitical instability, surging costs, less favorable debt markets, lingering workforce and supply chain issues, and the prospect of a global recession. Given these issues, as well as long-standing pressures around the industry business model, access, equity, affordability, and outcomes, boards and audit committees will once again need to refine their risk-driven agendas.

College and university audit committees can expect their institutions' financial reporting, compliance, risk, and internal control environments to be tested by an array of challenges in the year ahead, from cyber risks to social risks—including continued stress in attracting and retaining talent. The increasing complexity and fusion of risks—and their unexpected interconnectedness—put a premium on more holistic institutional risk management and oversight. In this volatile operating environment, demands from creditors, donors, grantors, and other stakeholders for action, as well as increased disclosure and transparency, will continue to intensify.

Drawing on insights from our interactions with higher education audit committees and senior administrators, we've highlighted several issues to keep in mind as audit committees consider and carry out their 2023 agendas:

- Maintain a sharp focus on leadership and talent in finance and other key functions.
- Understand how the institution is managing and reporting on environmental, social, and governance (ESG) risks.
- Keep a watchful eye on the institution's management of cybersecurity risks.
- Sharpen the institution's focus on ethics, compliance, and culture.
- Help ensure internal audit is focused on the institution's key risks—beyond financial reporting and compliance—and is a valuable resource for the audit committee.
- Reinforce audit quality and set clear expectations for frequent, candid, and open communications with the external auditor.
- Take a fresh look at the audit committee's agenda, workload, and capabilities.

Maintain a sharp focus on leadership and talent in finance and other key functions.

College and university administrators face a very challenging environment today. To make the higher education business model more efficient, many institutions are implementing new enterprise resource planning (ERP) applications to enhance a variety of core business processes, from budgeting, financial reporting, and student services to payroll, procurement, grant compliance, and endowment management, among others. At the same time, institutional leaders are contending with talent shortages in key financial, IT, risk, compliance, and internal audit roles as they try to forecast and plan for an uncertain economic environment. It is essential that the audit committee devote adequate time to understanding risks related to transformation strategies and personnel constraints—to help ensure that the finance and administration organization has the leadership, talent, and bench strength to execute those strategies while maintaining its core operating responsibilities.

In 2022, colleges and universities experienced unprecedented demands for greater workplace flexibility and equity, higher compensation costs, and in some cases, significant attrition in specialized administrative positions. The traditional campus-based work model, an aging demographic in senior administrative roles, and historically leaner staffing models have only intensified pressures on recruitment and retention. United Educators' Top Risks Survey of colleges and universities conducted in September 2022 affirmed that recruitment and hiring jumped from the 14th most-cited risk in 2021 to the third in 2022, just behind data security and enrollment.¹

While the competition for talent in finance, accounting, internal audit, and IT roles has abated in some parts of the country—as well as in certain competing sectors—personnel turnover and unfilled positions in a sector that generally offers lower salaries and provides less work-life balance than in the past have left some institutions struggling to appropriately staff certain roles and functions. To mitigate further attrition, many colleges and universities have had to recalibrate remote work policies, find new ways to promote employee engagement and collaboration, strengthen recruiting efforts, provide stay bonuses, or renegotiate compensation.

To help monitor and guide the institution's progress as it refines the business model in a resource-challenged environment, we suggest the following areas of focus for the audit committee:

- To address staffing issues in the near term, higher compensation and benefit expectations and costs may place additional strain on the institution's budget or could adversely affect decisions around hiring and organizational roles. Does the audit committee understand how the institution is coping, particularly as to specialized resources needed to manage mission-critical processes and controls, and mitigation of fraud risks?
- The tax, compliance, and cultural ramifications of remote work arrangements and benefit program changes are complex and evolving. Does the institution have the appropriate infrastructure to monitor and manage these requirements, as well as potential increased cyber risks?
- As finance and internal audit functions combine strong data analytics and strategic capabilities from new ERPs with traditional financial reporting and auditing skills, their talent and skill-set requirements must change accordingly. Are these functions attracting, developing, and retaining the talent and skills necessary to match their needs? Are personnel embracing and accelerating available automation solutions—especially in traditionally labor-intensive areas such as accounts payable and payroll? Has management taken a fresh and holistic look at business processes and controls that may be overly burdensome relative to the risks involved?
- Do the chief business officer, chief compliance officer, chief audit executive, and chief information security officer have the appropriate internal authority and stature, organizational structures, resources, and succession planning to be effective moving forward?

Understand how the institution is managing and reporting on ESG risks.

ESG involves integrating material environmental, social, and governance risks and opportunities into an entity's strategy to build long-term financial sustainability and value. In today's increasingly competitive and transparent operating environment, ESG has become a board-level imperative reflecting and aligning with an entity's mission, values, goals, and reputation.

The learning and research missions of many colleges and universities inherently correlate to or embed ESG goals. These institutions face increasing stakeholder demands—from board members, creditors, and local communities to students, faculty, and donors—for more visible and higher-quality information about ESG risks and opportunities, particularly around stated goals such as climate (e.g., “net zero”) and student access. How is the institution addressing climate and other ESG risks and issues, particularly diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) efforts? Beyond students and faculty, ESG factors into virtually all institutional activities, such as endowment and facilities management, supply chain, fundraising, sports, international activities, and alliances. For universities with academic medical centers, additional considerations may include health equity and charity care.

In 2022, colleges and universities confronted no shortage of developing risks that could impact several long-standing social, climate, and governance priorities. For example, a Supreme Court case on affirmative action expected to be decided in 2023 could have far-reaching ramifications on student diversity and admissions, including recruitment, scholarships, standardized testing, and legacy preferences. Recent rule changes involving Name, Image, Likeness (NIL) opportunities for student athletes have introduced dynamics that may complicate management of athletic programs and exacerbate inequities. In addition, spiraling campus utility costs (which according to the Higher Education Price Index rose 43.1 percent during the year ended June 30, 2022²) have heightened expectations for institutions to demonstrate progress on climate action plans. And while cyber risk management may not jump to mind as an ESG imperative, it is considered critical to effective governance. Indeed, the integration of many ESG-related risks into the institution's enterprise risk management (ERM) profile is increasingly evident. The higher education sector is still in the early stages of the ESG reporting journey. In our experience, while many institutions do not have a formal ESG strategy (or publish formal reports), most have long had initiatives pertaining to ESG objectives that may be tracked and reported on by various departments. Several institutions have made public commitments around student access and affordability, faculty diversity, and divestment of fossil fuel holdings in their endowment portfolios. Others are just beginning to inventory existing ESG activities and considering how to develop a comprehensive ESG approach. At all stages, there is ample room for alignment on and understanding of ESG definitions and a critical need for quantitative, reliable data. Still, for most colleges and universities (and for entities in other sectors), the absence of a generally accepted ESG framework and lack of consensus around key industry performance indicators remain major obstacles to progress.

The extent to which higher education institutions will be subject to ESG disclosure requirements is uncertain. ESG reporting is a priority for public companies regulated by the SEC, which in 2022 issued rulemaking proposals for climate and cybersecurity disclosures and is anticipated to issue additional rulemaking on human capital disclosures. Although the SEC does not directly regulate the higher education sector, its oversight of public debt markets includes conduit offerings by colleges and universities. To date, the SEC's rulemaking has not applied to such offerings. Nevertheless, some institutions have begun to provide sustainability data in their offering documents, while others have published reports including DEI data on their investment managers. In addition, S&P and Moody's recently reaffirmed that ESG factors will continue to influence credit quality in the higher education sector^{3,4} by incorporating ESG scoring in their methodologies and explicitly discussing ESG considerations in ratings reports. And as recently proposed in the U.S. House of Representatives, the Endowment Transparency Act of 2022 would amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to mandate that colleges and universities annually disclose information about investments managed by women- and minority-owned firms as well as the percentage of bond issuances underwritten by such firms. Accordingly, as alignment of the institution's investment and financing strategies with its stated ESG goals likely becomes more apparent to donors and other stakeholders, accurately compiling and properly evaluating ESG data from third-party managers and advisers will be critical.

As to other standard setters, the Financial Accounting Standards Board and Governmental Accounting Standards Board each have acknowledged and deliberated the intersection of ESG matters with financial reporting standards (although neither has established ESG disclosure requirements). In addition, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) has issued guidance on sustainability reporting and related attestation by auditors, evidencing the marketplace's interest about the structure and integrity of ESG disclosures more broadly.

Although standards are still evolving, audit committees should encourage management to inventory and fully assess the scope, quality and consistency of the institution's ESG internal and external disclosures, as well as safeguards to ensure data utilized in reporting is reliable. This evaluation should include consideration of the available methodologies and standards; how the institution is defining metrics, as well as understanding the expectations of creditors, donors, and other stakeholders; and the appropriateness of the ESG reporting framework(s) for the institution.

While ESG reporting in higher education is nascent and likely to evolve over the next several years—including as it pertains to the role of governance in the process—oversight of an entity's ESG activities is a formidable undertaking for any board and its committees. The decentralized management structure of many comprehensive universities only complicates the process. In the corporate sector, the nominating or governance committee often takes the coordinating role, and the audit committee is beginning to look at the company's ESG disclosures, whether or not in SEC filings.

- Consider where ESG information is currently disclosed, e.g., sustainability and DEI reports, the institution's website, etc. Who are the stakeholders using such information? What mechanisms exist for them to provide feedback and ask questions about our data? What internal controls and procedures are in place to ensure the quality of data used, and is it reviewed with the same rigor as financial results?
- Do we understand and receive reports on the basis for the disclosures and the processes used to generate them?
- Does the institution have an ESG or similar strategy, and who is responsible for its execution? Should a disclosure committee comprising appropriate senior administrative leaders, such as the chief sustainability officer, chief diversity officer, and chief information security officer, be created to facilitate the ESG strategy?
- How are material ESG risks identified? Are these risks integrated into the ERM profile?

- Does or should the institution utilize an ESG reporting framework?
- Have we enlisted faculty with ESG expertise to help us think through our strategy and framework?
- What metrics are used to measure progress against stated goals, and how are such metrics defined? Who within the institution will be responsible for generating and tracking such data and ensuring its conformity with applicable standards?
- Clarify the role of the audit committee in overseeing the institution's reporting of ESG risks and activities, particularly the scope and quality of ESG/sustainability reports and disclosures. How are the full board and other committees involved in overseeing ESG initiatives?
- Does (or should) the institution obtain assurance from internal or external auditors about certain ESG information to provide stakeholders with a greater level of comfort?

Keep a watchful eye on the institution's management of cybersecurity risks.

Our experience suggests that cybersecurity continues to rank at or near the top of the higher education audit committee agenda. In today's increasingly distributed technology environment, it is almost inevitable for a company or institution to experience a significant cyber event. And the threat landscape is only expanding, with cybercriminals employing increasingly sophisticated tactics and technologies to wreak havoc on their targets. Their motives may vary, with some cybercriminals working on behalf of nation states to create chaos on U.S. soil, and others seeking monetary compensation, intellectual property, or other sensitive data. Moreover, cybercriminals do not adhere to an academic calendar; they work around the clock to find windows of opportunity to cause disruption. While higher education institutions are working diligently to improve their cybersecurity infrastructures, bad actors are moving more quickly.

Indeed, several colleges and universities have succumbed to high-profile attacks, resulting in data breaches, network outages, and ransom payments to regain control of data or networks. A recent report by S&P⁵ indicates average weekly cyberattacks per organization in all industries are growing, and that education and research entities experienced 1,600 weekly attacks in 2021—the highest of any industry. The report notes that the cost of insuring against such attacks is also growing, with rated colleges and universities experiencing year-over-year increases of 40–60 percent in cyber insurance rates.

At the center of higher education's cybersecurity landscape are three common themes: (1) colleges and universities—particularly those with significant research activities and academic medical centers—are high-value targets; (2) the sector continues to lag others with respect to cyber spending, staffing, and expertise at the board level; and (3) the stakeholder landscape is among the broadest of any industry—students, parents, faculty, staff, board members, alumni, donors, grantors, researchers, patients, the federal government and associated regulatory bodies, among others.

Although higher education stakeholders make important and wide-ranging financial and strategic contributions to the institutional mission, their varied interests can make quick decision-making a challenge. Fulfilling the needs and expectations of a such a complex network of stakeholders undoubtedly gives rise to more cybersecurity concerns. To mitigate these, institutions must be willing to embrace cutting-edge security solutions to manage the growing volume and sophistication of threats they face. It is therefore imperative that institutions accelerate the implementation of robust security processes and controls that continuously assess and mitigate cyber vulnerabilities. As no university wants to fall victim to a breach while cybersecurity policies await revision or proactive measures need sign-off, every second counts.

The complex and rapidly changing cybersecurity and data governance regulatory environment includes a number of different security and privacy frameworks applicable to higher education institutions, including, among others, the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), which may apply to federal and other grants; the EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), a data protection law for EU citizens; and the Safeguards Rule of the Gramm-Leach Bliley Act (GLBA), which regulates the collection, disclosure, and protection of consumers' nonpublic information and applies to colleges and universities receiving federal funds. Significantly expanded GLBA requirements that became effective on December 9, 2022, clarify that a qualified individual (typically a chief information security officer) must oversee the entity's security programs and include mandatory annual penetration testing and vulnerability assessments, training for security personnel, periodic assessments of service providers, written incident response plans, and periodic reports from the qualified individual to the board, among other requirements. Establishing processes to monitor and map the various requirements of applicable cybersecurity and data privacy frameworks—which will continue to change and expand—to the institution's enterprise-wide cybersecurity program is essential.

In addition to approaching cybersecurity with a heightened sense of urgency and staying on top of regulatory changes, colleges and universities can enhance protocols by:

- Implementing regular training, awareness campaigns, tabletop exercises, and phishing simulations for students, faculty, staff, and other key stakeholders.
- Narrowing the scope of access to secure systems. Colleges and universities should be mindful to limit system access only to those who truly need it. For example, visiting professors should not have remote access to an institution's network once their teaching or research assignment is complete.
- Diligently deploying, tailoring, testing, and refining baseline tactics. This may mean increasing the frequency of penetration testing, "red teaming" (which tests how the security team responds to various threats), and system backups, as well as refreshing incident response playbooks on a more regular basis.

⁵ Source: S&P Global, Cyber Risk in a New Era: U.S. Colleges and Universities Go Back to School on Cyber Security Preparedness, September 29, 2022.

- Developing a comprehensive response playbook for ransomware. It is essential that institutions have a firm stance on their willingness to pay (or not pay) ransom before their systems are compromised. Purchasing ransomware insurance is a key aspect of this preparation, as is identifying who will make the ultimate payment decision in the event of a breach.
- Establishing minimum cybersecurity standards for all vendors and regularly monitoring them.
- Understanding third-party vendor risks associated with cloud-based systems that create new access points to sensitive data. Such vendors need regular vulnerability assessments, and their internal controls require independent assurance from auditors through service organization controls (SOC) reports.
- Do we have a robust institution-wide data governance framework that makes clear how and what data is collected, stored, managed, and used and who makes related decisions?
- Is security training for students, faculty, and staff regularly provided? Is training completion monitored and enforced? How is security awareness periodically assessed?
- Do security and privacy terms in agreements with third-party IT providers meet the institution's criteria for adequate protections? Does management regularly review SOC reports and evaluate the institution's complementary controls to flag possible issues? Do such vendors carry cyber insurance?
- How are we monitoring evolving and expanding federal, foreign, and other regulations governing data security and privacy to ensure our cybersecurity program and data governance framework reflect the latest requirements?
- Do we understand the coverages, limits, and underwriting criteria of our cyber insurance policy?
- Who reports on cyber to the audit committee and board? Is it a chief information security officer or similar position who speaks in business terms and understands that cyber is an enabler as well as a risk?

With so much data and high-value information at stake, colleges and universities are at an inflection point and should focus on adopting a Zero Trust mindset toward cybersecurity. The Zero Trust security model is increasingly viewed as a viable security approach in the postpandemic world. Zero Trust represents a significant mindset shift in which cyber teams assume their systems will be compromised and thus make security decisions based on that assumption, with a focus on the identity, device, data, and context of each entry into the system.⁶ Of course, adopting such a dynamic response protocol is costly and will require institutions to allocate additional funds for cybersecurity technology and personnel. To ease this burden and allow security professionals to prioritize matters requiring human intervention, mitigation of lower-level threats and routine testing should be automated.

To help ensure the institution has a rigorous cybersecurity program, the audit committee should consider the following questions:

- Do we have clear insights into our cybersecurity program's maturity, gaps, and threats? Does leadership have a prioritized view of additional investments needed? Are the institution's most "valuable" assets adequately protected?
- Do we have the appropriate leadership, talent, and bench strength to manage cyber risks? What are the risks to the institution in the event of unexpected turnover or inability to fill key positions?
- Does the institution regularly test its incident response plan? How frequently are penetration and red team testing performed, and is there a formal process to address findings?
- How often are data and systems backed up, and how accessible are the backups? Resilience is vital to restoring operations after an attack.

Sharpen the institution's focus on ethics, compliance, and culture.

The reputational costs of an ethics or compliance failure are higher than ever, particularly given the increased fraud risk due to employee financial hardship, pressures on management to meet enrollment and other budgetary goals—as well as rankings and other nonfinancial targets—and increased vulnerability to cyberattacks. Fundamental to an effective compliance program is the right tone at the top and culture throughout the institution, including its commitment to stated values, ethics, and legal and regulatory compliance. Reinforcement of these imperatives is especially critical in the decentralized operating environments of comprehensive universities, where navigating the myriad of regulatory and ethical considerations around research activities, technology innovation and commercialization, and intercollegiate athletics is increasingly complicated.

With the radical transparency enabled by social media, the institution's culture and values, commitment to integrity and legal compliance, and brand reputation are on full display. The audit committee should closely monitor the tone at the top and culture throughout the institution with a sharp focus on behaviors (not just results) and yellow flags, considering the following:

- As we've learned, leadership and communications are key, and understanding, transparency, and empathy are more important than ever. Does the institution's culture make it safe for people to do the right thing? It can be helpful for board members to get out into the field and meet employees to get a better feel for the culture.
- Help ensure that regulatory compliance and monitoring programs remain up to date, cover all vendors in the global supply chain, and clearly communicate expectations for high ethical standards. Does the institution have a clear and current code of conduct, and are annual acknowledgments or certifications of the code required for faculty and staff?
- Focus on the effectiveness of the institution's whistleblower reporting channels and investigation processes. Are all available reporting channels clearly and regularly communicated to the campus community to ensure awareness and use? Does the community utilize those channels? Does the audit committee receive regular information about whistleblower complaints, understand how such complaints are resolved, and receive data that enables the committee to understand trends? What is the process to filter complaints that are ultimately reported to the audit committee?

Help ensure internal audit is focused on the institution's key risks—beyond financial reporting and compliance—and is a valuable resource for the audit committee.

At a time when audit committees are wrestling with weighty agendas—and issues like cybersecurity and burgeoning regulations are putting risk management to the test—internal audit should be a valuable resource for the audit committee and a crucial voice on risk and control matters. This means focusing not just on financial reporting and compliance risks, but also on critical operational and technology risks and controls. Is the internal audit plan risk based and flexible, and does it adjust to changing business and risk conditions? This is an increasingly common question that audit committees are (or should be) asking the chief audit executive. The internal audit function must be able to effectively pivot to address unanticipated issues and risks as well as ongoing institutional risks highlighted in the original audit plan.

The audit committee should work with the chief audit executive and chief risk officer to help identify those risks that pose the greatest threats to the institution's reputation, strategy, and operations, such as tone at the top and culture; workforce issues; ERP implementations and enhancements; data governance; research compliance and conflict risks; international activities; third-party risks; and integrity of data used in ESG, rankings, and other reporting. Expect the latest internal audit plan to reflect these emerging risks and reaffirm that the plan can adjust to changing operational or risk conditions. Mapping internal audit's areas of focus to the institution's key business processes and risks, how does the current plan compare to last year's plan? What has changed or is expected to change in the institution's operating, data, and related control environments? What is internal audit doing to be a valued business adviser to other departments?

Set clear expectations and ask whether internal audit has the resources, skills, and expertise to succeed—especially as the tight labor market may impact recruitment and retention. Clarify internal audit's role in connection with ERM and ESG risks more generally—which is not to manage risk, but to provide added assurance regarding the adequacy of risk management processes. With the tight labor market, does internal audit have the talent it needs? Recognize that internal audit is not immune to talent pressures. In addition, help the chief audit executive think through the impacts of digital technologies—including routines and dashboards used by internal audit for risk assessment and real-time auditing, as well as systems used by the institution generally—on internal audit's workload and effectiveness.

Reinforce audit quality and set clear expectations for frequent, candid, and open communications with the external auditor.

Audit quality is enhanced by a fully engaged audit committee that sets the tone and clear expectations for the external auditor and monitors auditor performance rigorously through frequent, quality communications and a robust performance assessment.

In setting expectations for 2023, audit committees should discuss with the auditor how the institution's financial reporting and related internal control risks have changed in light of changes in the macroeconomic, industry, and institutional risk landscape. Regulatory and federal funding changes, workplace and supply chain disruptions, inflation, higher interest rates, executive transitions, endowment volatility, changes in donor credit profiles, the risk of a global recession, and other factors all have the potential to affect the institution's significant judgments, estimates, and disclosures, as well as related controls.

Set clear expectations for frequent, open, candid communications between the auditor and the audit committee—beyond what's required. The list of required communications is extensive, and includes matters about the auditor's independence as well as matters related to the planning and results of the audit. Taking the conversation beyond what's required can enhance the audit committee's oversight, particularly regarding the institution's culture, tone at the top, and quality of talent in the finance and compliance functions.

Audit committees should also probe the audit firm on its quality control systems that are intended to drive sustainable, improved audit quality—including the firm's implementation and use of new technologies. In discussions with the external auditor regarding the firm's internal quality control system, consider the results of external and internal inspections and efforts to address any deficiencies.

Remember that audit quality is a team effort, requiring the commitment and engagement of everyone involved in the process—the auditor, audit committee, internal audit, and management.

Take a fresh look at the audit committee's agenda, workload, and capabilities.

Keeping the audit committee's agenda focused on its core responsibilities—oversight of financial reporting and compliance, internal controls, and internal and external auditors—is essential to the committee's effectiveness. Beyond these duties, audit committees at colleges and universities oversee a growing plethora of other institutional risks, compounding the workload challenge and making efficiency paramount. As the role and responsibilities of the audit committee continue to expand and evolve, the committee should regularly reassess its composition, independence, and leadership to ensure they are keeping pace and to mitigate the risk of “agenda overload.” The committee—with input from management and auditors, as appropriate—should conduct self-evaluations annually.

In our interactions with institutions across the country, we sometimes hear that evaluating the audit committee's effectiveness in a sector as specialized as higher education and in the context of each institution's unique operating environment can be difficult. Compared with corporate audit committees—which are often highly regulated and for whom industry benchmarking, executive education, and networking opportunities are commonplace—college and university audit committees have a nontraditional focus and scope (e.g., not-for-profit accounting, research compliance, etc.) and are generally unregulated and more insular, complicating the determination of what is “optimal.” External and internal auditors, as well as industry organizations such as the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges (AGB) and the AICPA, may offer relevant and objective guidance. Moreover, the higher education sector is perhaps the most collegial in the U.S., with peer institutions frequently sharing insights, so there may be opportunities to learn from and collaborate with similar institutions.

We recommend the following areas to probe as part of the committee's annual self-evaluation:

- Does the committee's charter align with and reflect the actual goals and work of the committee?
- How many members have direct experience with financial reporting, compliance, and internal controls? Is the committee relying too heavily on one member to do the “heavy lifting” in overseeing these areas?
- Does the committee include members with the experience necessary to oversee emerging areas of risk that the audit committee has been assigned—such as cyber and data security? Is there a need for a fresh set of eyes or deeper (or different) skill sets? Should other board committees take on or be created to address certain risks?

- Does the committee spread the workload by allocating oversight duties to each audit committee member, rather than relying on the committee chair to shoulder most of the work?
- Are committee meetings streamlined by insisting on quality premeeting materials (with expectations they have been read), using consent agendas, and reaching a level of comfort with management and auditors so that certain activities can become routinized (freeing up time for more substantive issues facing the institution)?
- Is sufficient time spent with management and auditors outside the boardroom—to get a fuller picture of the issues and enhance the productiveness of committee meeting time?
- Are executive (nonpublic) sessions with management, internal and external auditors, and members only at the beginning or end of meetings scheduled? Establishing a regular cadence of such meetings helps ensure that sensitive matters, if any, can be addressed and allows for more open sharing of ideas and perspectives.
- Do members have access to robust orientation and continuing education programs? Are they provided with relevant industry information sourced from outside the institution? Are mechanisms available to network with counterparts at comparable institutions?

Legal, Audit, Risk, and Compliance Committee
Public Session
February 2023

cybersecurity FOR YOU

Ohio State and C4U

- Per Proofpoint's 2022 State of Phish report, "Cybersecurity skills are life skills, not work skills".
- A lack of easily accessible, effective cybersecurity awareness training for university and medical center employees led to the creation of C4U in 2019.
- By engaging users in both personally-relevant content and compliance training for work activities, C4U enlists users to be part of the solution by:
 - Changing the culture of Ohio State to be more security aware
 - Changing the perception of security as being burdensome
 - Promoting users to be more self-interested in security
 - Changing habits and behaviors of users, not just compliance
 - Making security more fun and approachable

C4U Metrics of Success

- Since its launch, C4U has seen 18,881 individual employees voluntarily utilize it, with 77.9% return visitors.
- In 2022 alone, there was 66% increase in new users. Much of 2022's increase can be traced to the inclusion of the Institutional Data Policy Awareness (IDPA) training into C4U.
- Many of these new users first visited C4U between February and April (the IDPA window). Users were asked at that time to complete a single piece of IDPA content.
- Of these new users in 2022, 811, or 15%, went on to achieve a full level in C4U
- Effectively, C4U was able to present users with a single awareness training and the content engaged them enough that 15% began an optional, self-directed cybersecurity education journey.

Future Development

- Present state, C4U strictly promotes cybersecurity awareness and encourages staff and faculty to change their behaviors to be more secure.
- In our first 4 years of C4U, we have been recognized as a leader in Big Ten cybersecurity awareness platforms.
- The ultimate goal is long-term sustainment and culture change within the entire university community.
- The platform will be opened to students this fall.
 - Student groups will be engaged to test the platform and its content during the Spring Semester.
 - Will be promoted at summer student orientations.
 - Marketing campaigns will promote the wide release of the platform in the fall.
- Expanded reward options to include digital rewards and donation options to the James' Fund for Life and The Ohio State Fund for Scholarships.

Impact of C4U

Awareness of Reporting Phish Increasing Year to Year:

- Per Proofpoint, 47% of their polled users either do not know what phishing is or answer incorrectly.
- Within the Ohio State community, there has been a month over month increase in reporting of phish at the university since C4U's implementation (from March 2020 to January 2023).

User Personal Testimonials:

- “Right after I read the article, I went on my phone to check/adjust my privacy settings.”
- “It was easy to check my settings while I went through this training!”
- “Thanks for the tips - I was making some mistakes on public Wi-Fi for sure!”

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

TOPIC: Fiscal Year 2023 Interim Financial Report – December 31, 2022

CONTEXT: The purpose of this report is to provide an update of financial results for the six months ending December 31, 2022.

FINANCIAL SUMMARY

The university's overall financial position remains strong, driven by the post-pandemic rebound. Fall and summer semesters were characterized by the return to normal university operations and a full college experience for our students. Operating revenues increased $399 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023 compared to the first six months of fiscal year 2022, driven primarily by strong growth in healthcare revenues, increases in all major auxiliary enterprises, and tuition and fees increases. Specific impacts include:

- A $243 million increase in healthcare revenues, reflecting strong outpatient surgical activity and service mix and practice expansion.
- A $55 million increase in auxiliary revenues, primarily due to the return to normal operations for Business Advancement, an additional home football game and one additional premium game, housing and dining rate increases for new first-year students, and increased revenues from on-campus events.
- A $50 million increase in student tuition, due primarily to resident and non-resident rate increases and a rate increase to those undergraduate students not in the Ohio State Tuition Guarantee.

The year-to-date increase in net position was $186 million, down $367 million compared to the prior year. The decrease is primarily due to a $217 million decrease in net investment income, a $97 million decrease in federal COVID-19 assistance programs, $32 million increase in net operating loss, and an $18 million increase in interest expense. Additional details on university revenues, expenses, cash and investments and cash flows are provided below.

Revenues

Student tuition and fees, net - increased $50 million or 10%, to $538 million for the first six months of fiscal year 2023, compared to the first six months of fiscal year 2022, due primarily to an increase in gross tuition of $18 million and a decrease in scholarship allowances of $31 million. Gross tuition increased by $20 million for autumn semester and decreased $2 million for summer semester. Autumn tuition increased $20 million primarily due to resident and non-resident rate increases and a rate increase to those undergraduate students not in the Ohio State Tuition Guarantee. Summer tuition decreased $2 million primarily due to a two-day shift in academic calendars. Scholarship allowances decreased $31 million due primarily to decreases in HEERF financial aid to students.

Grants and contracts – increased $26 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023 compared to the first six months of fiscal year 2022 due to increases in private grants of $20 million, federal grants of $9 million, and state grants of $3 million, offset by decreases in local grants of $7 million.

Gifts – decreased $30 million over the prior year due primarily to decreases in current use gifts of $26 million and private capital gifts of $3 million.

Sales and services of auxiliary enterprises - increased $55 million over the prior year due primarily to increases in Business Advancement (Schottenstein Center, Blackwell, and Fawcett Center) revenues of $22 million, increases in Athletics revenues due to an additional home football game and one additional premium game (totaling $19 million), and increases in Student Life housing and dining revenues of $14 million.

Federal COVID-19 assistance programs – decreased $97 million from the prior year primarily due to decreases in HEERF grants to students of $50 million; HEERF institutional grants of $47 million; Shuttered Venue Operators Grant for the Schottenstein Center of $10 million; Ohio Department of Health grants of $3 million; and Payroll Protection Program grants of $1 million; offset by increases in FEMA funding of $8 million; and Ohio Governor's Emergency Education Relief of $6 million. This trend will continue as we return to normal business operations post-pandemic as COVID financial assistance programs dissipate.

Sales and services of the OSU Health System and OSU Physicians, Inc - increased $243 million to $2,633 million. The Health System has had strong outpatient surgical activity and service mix. The Health System also experienced growth in oncology and non-oncology infusion volume and increased nuclear medicine treatments. OSU Physicians revenues increased $141 million due primarily to practice expansion and integration of the departments from the Health System to OSU Physicians.

Sales and services of educational departments – increased $5 million to $101 million reflecting the return to normal operations.

Expenses

University – expenses increased $94 million to $1,789 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023. Salaries increased $63 million, or 9%, primarily due to a 3% increase in faculty and staff salary guidelines and additional investments in human capital related to research growth, faculty investment, staffing support returning to normal operations, and equity adjustments due to the current competitive workforce marketplace. Benefits increased $24 million, or 12%, primarily due to increases in salary guidelines and composite benefit rates as well as strategic hiring. Graduate fee authorizations decreased $4 million, or 6%. Supplies and services increased $22 million, primarily due to inflation, increased travel activity and related expenses, fees paid to Ohio State Energy Partners, and increases due to the resumption of normal operations and research growth, offset by a reduction in COVID-19-related expenses.

Student aid decreased $16 million primarily due to decreases in Federal assistance from HEERF III funding. Depreciation increased $3 million compared to prior year.

OSU Health System and OSU Physicians - expenses increased $291 million to $2,401 million. The Health System experienced increased expenses due to growth in outpatient surgery and pharmaceutical volumes. The Health System continues to experience high agency spend due to the hiring and staffing challenges that continue to impact the healthcare industry.

Auxiliary – expenses increased $46 million to $224 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023. The increase is primarily due to increases in Student Life housing and dining of $17 million, Athletics of $15 million, and Business Advancement (Schottenstein Center, Blackwell, and Fawcett Center) of $14 million due primarily to increased number of events and labor and supply costs.

Cash and Investments

For the six months ending December 31, 2022, total university cash and investments decreased $400 million to $10,855 million compared to June 30, 2022, primarily due to decreases in temporary investments (including unexpended bond proceeds) of $992 million, investments held under securities lending program of $147 million, and other long-term investments of $4 million, offset by increases in cash and cash equivalents of $650 million and Long-Term Investment Pool of $94 million. Additional details are provided below.

Unexpended bond proceeds decreased $239 million, reflecting expenditures for capital projects. Deposits and advance payments for goods and services were up $568 million, primarily reflecting tuition and fee receipts for spring semester. These amounts will be recognized as tuition revenue over the course of the semester.

Cash Flows

University cash and cash equivalents increased $650 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023 compared to June 30, 2022. Net cash used in operating activities was $156 million, compared to net cash used by operating activities of $108 million in the first six months of the prior fiscal year. The increase in cash usage relates primarily to payments to vendors and employees, offset by increases in receipts for student tuition and grants and contract receipts. Net cash provided by noncapital financing activities was $448 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023, compared to $576 million for the prior year. The decrease is due primarily to decreases in Federal COVID-19 assistance. Net cash used by capital financing activities was $641 million in the first six months of fiscal year 2023 due primarily to the payments for capital assets of $535 million. Net cash provided by investing activities was $999 million, primarily due to sales of investments.

One nominator wrote that “as busy as she was with her career and while juggling enormous responsibilities, she still found time to share much of her time, talent, and fund with Ohio State and her community.” Karen has served on the Ohio State Board of Trustees (1999-2008), the National Council for OSU Women, the Fisher College of Business Dean's Advisory Council, The Ohio State University Alumni Association Board of Directors (1983-1985) and Advisory Council (1986-1989), former Director of the OSU Research Foundation, and Critical Difference for Women Alumni Society. She currently serves as an OSUAA Scarlet & Gray Advantage Alumni Ambassador.

Karen has not only supported the university with 41 years of giving, but she has also worked to bring additional support to the university. She served on the National Major Gift Committee for the Affirm Thy Friendship campaign and played a critical role in raising funds for a new chemical engineering building, Koffolt Laboratories, from the project's inception to completion. One nominator wrote that “Karen's outstanding service to Ohio State has not only improved OSU; it has created a next generation of successful leaders who are committed to “giving back” to Ohio State.”

James S. King, MS '62, PhD '65

James King is recognized for his leadership and commitment to the university. Though he retired in 2003 after 38 years with the university, James continued to work on special projects with the medical center deans for an additional 12 years – making his official retirement year 2015 and marking 50 years of service to Ohio State. His career began as an instructor and professor before rising through the ranks to become the director and associate dean of the School of Biomedical Science. He was a strong advocate for developing a robust neuroscience program at the university and made it his goal early on to bring all neural research under one department. As the director of research for the Division of Neurological Surgery, James established the Department of Neuroscience at OSU in 2000, and hired, mentored, and organized faculty to focus on spinal cord injury research. His efforts have contributed to Ohio State being among the top 3 US institutions in this field today. He then worked to expand the department and add two interdisciplinary graduate programs. One nominator wrote that “I can think of few others who had had such an illustrious five decades of service to our university. His selection for this great honor would be a fitting tribute for his contributions.”

Beyond his work as a faculty member, he has represented Ohio State as an expert in the field of neuroscience. He has served on numerous National Institute of Health study selections, reviewed for countless medical journals, and has himself published 84 peer-reviewed publications, 90 abstracts, and 10 book chapters. He is a founding member of his local church and has worked locally and internationally to give back to those less fortunate. James has supported the university with 19 years of giving.

Brad Myers, BS '77, JD '80

Brad Myers retired as the university registrar in 2016 after nearly 20 years of service to Ohio State but has a 45-year history with the university starting as an undergraduate student in 1973. As the university registrar, Brad played a central role in numerous university-wide projects and was an admired leader and expert in student records and registration, financial aid, and orientation. From updating the telephone registration system BRUTUS to a web-based system, to implementing the PeopleSoft Oracle SIS system, to overseeing the design and construction of the new Student Academic Success building, Brad played a significant role in improving the student experience at the university. For his significant contributions, he received a Distinguished Staff Award in 2007. In addition to his work, he also actively volunteers to advise student organizations, lead alumni groups, and helped found what is now known as the LGBTQIA Caucus. Brad also serves on the OSU Alumni Association Advisory Board as well as numerous student award selection committees. One nominator wrote that Brad is “widely viewed as a team player, both within his own unit and beyond, [and] he is committed to staff professional development, admired by, and a mentor to, those who work directly with him.” Brad demonstrated that his commitment to Ohio State extended beyond his retirement when he assisted the university during a transition period by serving as interim registrar from January – April 2020.

Outside of the university, Brad is an active member at the national and state level of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers. He is also a member of the Academic Program Advisory Committee of Associate Deans. Brad has supported the university with 44 years of giving.

The following individuals contributed to this nomination: W. Randy Smith, Molly Ranz Calhoun, and Jack Miner.

Thomas (Tom) Rieland

Tom Rieland retired as the general manager of WOSU Public Media after 19 years of service. Tom was committed to investing in local programming and wanted to position WOSU as a reliable, trustworthy source of content that engages, informs, and inspires. Under his leadership, WOSU produced three Emmy-award-winning programs and enhanced the local news presence with 89.7 NPR news. Seeking a space where WOSU could engage directly with the Columbus community, Tom developed a partnership with COSI in 2006 to create WOSU@COSI studios. This partnership created space for television broadcasting and expanded FM radio service to make WOSU the only 24/7 provider of NPR and Classical 101.1 in Central Ohio. Tom also facilitated the use of regional radio networks linked to the Marion and Mansfield campuses to bring these two stations across the region. After 10 years of partnership with COSI, Tom, in collaboration with campus partners, aimed to bring WOSU back to the main campus. He led a successful seven-year campaign to build a custom headquarters at University Square. This new building has increased WOSU's capacity for university partnerships and student internship and learning opportunities.

Tom has also represented Ohio State proudly in the community, serving on the board of directors and committees for numerous organizations, such as PBS and the Gateway Film Center. One nominator wrote that “Tom is a national leader in public media” whose service and “work has brought tremendous recognition to the university and the city.” Tom has supported the university with 20 years of giving.

I. Executive Summary

This document proposes the addition of a Professional Practice Faculty track to the University Libraries tenure initiating unit. The University Libraries proposes that professional practice faculty can be appointed at the Professional Practice Assistant Professor, Professional Practice Associate Professor, or Professional Practice Professor level. Professional Practice faculty members will be appointed for an initial term of five years on a probationary basis, and then can be reappointed for additional periods of three to five years (Assistant or Associate Professor) or three to eight years (Professor). The percentage of professional practice faculty for the University Libraries will not exceed 20% of total faculty members within the tenure initiating unit (TIU).

There are four guiding rationales for establishing a Professional Practice Faculty track in University Libraries:

1. Resolves the issue of librarian roles performing similar functions operating in different classification schemes – some in academic titles, some in staff titles. Both the Office and Academic Affairs and university Human Resources are supportive of moving librarian roles that support similar instructional/librarianship functions to academic titles appropriate to their job functions. Not all roles currently operating with staff librarian titles would be in scope for professional practice faculty titles because their job functions do not align appropriately.
2. Positions Ohio State among its peers, many of which rely on similar clinical/practice faculty roles to support teaching, learning, and research.
3. Creates an additional faculty category that enhances the ability of University Libraries, the Health Sciences Library, the Law Library, and libraries on the regional campuses to connect the research, instructional, and service support they perform with students, faculty, and external stakeholders.
4. Solves a potential issue created by the Career Roadmap project, by which many professional librarians in staff roles would be reclassified into titles detrimental to recruitment and retention.

II. Background Information

A. University Libraries – Mission and Organizational Structure

University Libraries (“Libraries”) seeks as its mission to promote innovative research and creative expression, advance effective teaching, curate and preserve information essential for scholarship and learning at Ohio State, and share knowledge and culture with the people of Ohio, the nation, and the world. The Libraries provides information resources and professional expertise to support the evolving educational, research, and outreach and engagement missions of the university and its faculty, students, and staff. The Libraries – through the work of its faculty – actively advances knowledge creation in library and information science and archival and curatorial practice through innovative research and original exhibitions, often advancing new models for professional practice for other research libraries and academic librarians.

Librarianship is an interdisciplinary field of research, teaching, and practice that draws broadly from a variety of fields of scholarship and application including managerial studies; computer science; information technology; various social science disciplines including education, sociology, anthropology, law, and history, among others; assessment and evaluation; materials science; and an array of areas of practice including metadata and description; teaching and learning; digital scholarship; publishing; copyright and intellectual property; preservation; area studies; digital libraries; archives; and curatorial studies. Core scholarship in the field examines how material, organizational, societal, and descriptive factors impact modes of knowledge transfer for individuals and groups.

As a field of practice, research librarianship provides researchers and students with the scholarly and cultural heritage information necessary for effective knowledge creation and learning. Academic research librarians support research, teaching, and learning across all academic disciplines by collecting, preserving, describing, and making discoverable and accessible primary and scholarly documentation across time and by teaching the knowledge practices and dispositions required to make best use of information.

The organizational structure of the Libraries reflects the multifaceted, interdisciplinary nature of the field of librarianship and its dual roles as a tenure initiating unit (TIU) and an academic support unit charged with sustaining research, teaching, and learning across the university. As such, the Libraries has no academic departments and is organized as a single-level TIU with divisions aligned with areas of professional practice, including research and education, content and access, distinctive collections and area studies, and digital technologies and programs. The Libraries offers a small number of credit-bearing courses through the College of Arts & Sciences; and Libraries faculty often teach in other academic departments, both as co-instructors and as instructors of record.

The University Libraries TIU differs from many others at Ohio State in that it incorporates faculty from several separate university administrative units, including University Libraries, the Health Sciences Library, and the libraries at the regional campuses. Per the University Libraries Pattern of Administration, tenure-track faculty librarians balance a significant teaching/librarianship load (~80% of appointment) with a rigorous research requirement (~20% of appointment). Promotion and tenure for tenure-track faculty librarians is driven by the demonstration of sustained excellence in librarianship/teaching, research, and professional service.

B. Comparative Data

Many peer institutions rely on professional practice faculty, or local equivalents, in the delivery of their research and instructional support programs. Within the Big Ten Academic Alliance, Maryland, Nebraska, Penn State, and Rutgers utilize a professional practice faculty track, in addition to tenure-track faculty roles. Iowa and Purdue are pursuing the establishment of professional practice faculty roles. For comparison purposes, Penn State reports 122 faculty librarians (98 tenure track, 24 professional practice equivalent); and Nebraska reports 31 faculty librarians (25 tenure track, six professional practice equivalent).

C. Proposal History

In 2020, the University Libraries faculty was approached by the Moritz College of Law to discuss the potential negative implications on recruitment and retention for staff librarians across campus as a consequence of the Career Roadmap project. After conversations between the University Libraries, the Moritz College of Law, representatives from the regional campuses, the Office of Academic Affairs, and university Human Resources, the decision was made to pursue a proposal to add a Professional Practice Faculty track to the University Libraries tenure initiating unit, with the goals of moving staff librarian roles across the university to professional practice faculty roles where appropriate and correcting the longtime incongruence of similar roles being mapped to faculty and staff titles. The decision to move forward with the proposal was made in consultation with and with the support of both the University Libraries Faculty Advisory Committee and Appointments, Promotion, and Tenure Committee.

This proposal is the result of a continuing commitment to incorporate a Professional Practice Faculty track among the University Libraries faculty roles. On January 28, 2022, the faculty of the University Libraries voted in favor of moving the proposal forward to the Council on Academic Affairs (CAA). On October 27, 2022, the faculty of the University Libraries voted in favor of moving an amended proposal (this document) forward, following feedback from CAA.

III. Rationale for the Establishment of a Professional Practice Faculty Track

There are four guiding rationales for establishing a Professional Practice Faculty track in University Libraries:

1. Resolves the issue of librarian roles performing similar functions operating in different classification schemes – some in academic titles, some in staff titles. Both the Office and Academic Affairs and university Human Resources are supportive of moving librarian roles that support similar instructional/librarianship functions to academic titles appropriate to their job functions. Not all roles currently operating with staff librarian titles would be in scope for professional practice faculty titles because their job functions do not align appropriately.
2. Positions Ohio State among its peers, many of which rely on similar clinical/practice faculty roles to support teaching, learning, and research.

3. Creates an additional faculty category that enhances the ability of University Libraries, the Health Sciences Library, the Law Library, and libraries on the regional campuses to connect the research, instructional, and service support they perform with students, faculty, and external stakeholders.
5. Solves a potential issue created by the Career Roadmap project, by which many professional librarians in staff roles would be reclassified into titles detrimental to recruitment and retention.

IV. Terms and Conditions of Appointments

A. Type and Term of Appointment

The percentage of professional practice faculty for the University Libraries will not exceed 20% of the tenure-track, practice, and research faculty in the TIU, per University Rule 3335-7-03.

Professional Practice faculty can be appointed at the Assistant, Associate, or Professor level. As specified by Faculty Rule 3335-7-05, Associate Professional Practice Professors or Professional Practice Professors will require the approval of the Office of Academic Affairs. Professional Practice Faculty appointments are fixed term contract appointments that do not entail tenure.

Professional Practice faculty members will normally be appointed for five years on a probationary basis, as specified by University Rule 3335-7-07, and will at the end of each year of the probationary period be notified as to whether they will be reappointed for the following year. University Libraries is requesting an exception to the above rule for current professional librarians in staff roles who would transition to professional practice faculty roles and have been employed by the university for five or more years. The probationary period for this transitional group of professional practice faculty will be waived, and they will be appointed as regular (non-probationary) professional practice faculty. University Libraries is also requesting an exception to the above rule for current professional librarians in staff roles who would transition to professional practice faculty roles and have been employed by the university for less than five years. This transitional group of professional practice faculty would have their probationary periods reduced by the number of years served.

By the end of the second-to-last year of the contract, the professional practice faculty member shall be notified whether a new contract will be offered. In the event that a new contract is not extended, the final year of the probationary contract is the terminal year of employment. There is no presumption that a new contract will be extended. In addition, the terms of a contract may be renegotiated at the time of reappointment.

After the completion of the probationary five-year contract, the professional practice faculty member may be reappointed for additional periods of three to five years (Assistant or Associate Professor) or three to eight years (Professor), at the discretion of the Dean. These extended appointments are not probationary, and the individual may only be terminated for cause (see rule 3335-5-04 of the Administrative Code) or financial exigency (see rule 3335-5-02.1 of the Administrative Code).

B. Criteria for Appointment, Reappointment and Non-Reappointment, and Promotion of Professional Practice Faculty

Per rule 3335-7-06, procedures for appointment of professional practice faculty shall be established by University Libraries and shall be set forth in that unit's appointments, promotion, and tenure document. Appointments at the rank of Professional Practice Associate Professor or Professional Practice Professor require prior approval of the Office of Academic Affairs (OAA).

The presumption is that all faculty searches entail a national search in addition to the internal posting. Upon request, OAA will consider waiving the requirement for a national search for regular professional practice faculty, but the University Libraries must demonstrate why doing so is in the best interests of the unit and university. OAA and University Libraries approvals are required to waive a national search for a Professional Practice Faculty position.

Professional Practice faculty may hold a variety of graduate degrees, but minimally would be expected to hold a Master's degree or appropriate professional credentials demonstrating expertise and experience in their relevant area of study.

Professional Practice faculty serve under fixed term contracts and are not eligible for tenure. The titles of professional practice faculty in the University Libraries include Professional Practice Assistant Professor, Professional Practice Associate Professor, and Professional Practice Professor. Individuals hired as regular professional practice faculty are primarily focused on librarianship (teaching) and service/professional activities. The criteria for appointment of professional practice faculty are similar to those for tenure-track faculty (University Rule 3335-7-05) but will emphasize service and librarianship (teaching). In general, candidates should be held to a very high standard of excellence in the areas central to their responsibilities. Core responsibilities for practice faculty in University Libraries will include librarianship (teaching) and service at the Assistant, Associate, and Professor levels of appointment.

Professional Practice Assistant Professor

A Master's degree and/or appropriate professional credentials demonstrating relevant expertise in the field of study and appropriate workplace experience for the role are minimum requirements for the rank of Professional Practice Assistant Professor. Evidence of potential for high-quality librarianship and high-quality service to the profession is highly desirable. Appointment to the rank of Professional Practice Assistant Professor is for an initial term of five years. At the end of each year, a review of the contract must take place and a decision made on reappointment. At the end of the second-to-last year, a review will take place and a decision made on another term.

Criteria for appointment as a Professional Practice Assistant Professor:

- A Master's degree and/or other appropriate professional credentials demonstrating expertise in library or information science and/or the relevant librarianship sub-specialty
- Evidence of professional experience appropriate to the teaching and service role expected within the unit of hire
- Evidence of current knowledge of research impacting practice within library or information science and/or the relevant librarianship sub-specialty

Professional Practice Associate Professor

The awarding of the rank of Professional Practice Associate Professor must be based on convincing evidence that the professional practice faculty member has achieved excellence as a librarian and as one who provides effective service and can be expected to continue a program of high-quality librarianship and service relevant to the mission of University Libraries and to the university.

Criteria for appointment as, or promotion to, a Professional Practice Associate Professor:

- All criteria as noted above for Professional Practice Assistant Professor
- Minimum five years professional experience appropriate to the teaching and service role expected within the unit of hire
- Evidence of ongoing engagement with practitioners in relevant context
- Evidence of sustained high-quality librarianship
- Evidence of high-quality and impactful service both within and outside of the university

Professional Practice Professor

The awarding of the rank of Professional Practice Professor must be based on convincing evidence that the professional practice faculty member has a sustained record of excellence in librarianship and has demonstrated leadership in service at the local, state, or national level.

Criteria for appointment as, or promotion to, a Professional Practice Professor:

- All criteria as noted above for Professional Practice Associate Professor
- Minimum eight years professional experience appropriate to the teaching and service role expected within the unit of hire
- Current professional credentials demonstrating expertise in the field of study
- Evidence of advanced knowledge of research impacting practice with the field of study
- Evidence of ongoing engagement with practitioners in relevant context
- Evidence of sustained high-quality librarianship

- Evidence of high-quality and impactful service both within and outside of the university
- Evidence of high-quality and impactful service at a local, state, or national level

V. Activities and Responsibilities of Professional Practice Track Faculty

Activities and responsibilities of professional practice track faculty include three primary areas: the practice of librarianship, advising and service in the unit, and voting privileges in unit governance. These three areas will be discussed separately.

A. Practice of Librarianship

The primary responsibilities of professional practice faculty are expected to be in the area of librarianship; their librarianship responsibilities would be a minimum of 90% of their overall workload.

Librarianship is the performance of the faculty member's role in support of Libraries and university research and instructional missions. Librarianship takes many forms; the Appointment, Promotion and Tenure Criteria for The University Libraries document (2019) defines it as carrying out one's "appointed position, which may include, but not be limited to, the following [p. 15-16]:

- Analyzing curricular and research needs of the candidate's assigned areas and matching scholarly and information resources to those needs.
- Sustaining and enhancing/expanding comprehensive knowledge of information resources in the areas of the candidate's expertise, as well as an awareness of the general contours of the information landscape.
- Developing and applying knowledge of use of collections to effectively manage resources and increase the value of collections for faculty's and students' research, teaching, and learning.
- Leveraging knowledge of publishing trends, open access publishing and other publication models, and of scholarly communication in order to support faculty and student scholarship.
- Supporting content discovery through resource description and the appropriate deployment of technologies in order to sustain access to resources.
- Managing, organizing and evaluating data and information to align with user behavior.
- Supporting scholarship at various stages of its creation and dissemination.
- Creativity in advancing the Libraries' mission through program leadership.
- Creativity in the development of instructional materials and effective pedagogies for a variety of teaching situations.
- Designing and redesigning courses and curriculum and supporting faculty in redesigning courses and curriculum using current instructional design practices and Libraries resources.

- Providing expert assistance with and interpretation of policies regarding intellectual property; advising faculty and students on strategies for effectively managing and exercising their rights in their work.
- Building and integrating complex information technology systems and structures to promote faculty and student use of Libraries resources and expertise.
- Serving in an ex officio capacity on committees, task forces, working groups etc. within the scope of one's position.”

B. Course and Curriculum Development and Delivery

Teaching and developing courses will be a common librarianship duty of professional practice faculty, though not all roles will include these duties. Courses taught by professional practice faculty are anticipated to be practice or skills-based, where the theory of information science and other disciplines are applied to simulation of real-world tasks that students may encounter in their post-graduation careers. Professional Practice faculty may be involved in graduate, professional, or undergraduate courses as well as research, information literacy, and other training sessions. Professional Practice faculty may also work with instructors from across the university to develop courses and curricula.

C. Advising and Service in the Unit

A secondary area of responsibility for professional practice faculty is service to the TIU, campus, and/or university. The nature of this service will vary by the individual. In some cases, it is anticipated that a professional practice faculty member might supervise undergraduate or professional student independent research or student interns. Professional Practice faculty may serve as student advisors, while in other cases they might be recommended to apply for Graduate Faculty status in the Graduate School. As stated in section 12.1. of the Graduate School Handbook, regular clinical faculty are eligible for appointment as Category M graduate faculty. The qualifications and rights and responsibilities of Category M graduate faculty, as noted in Section 12.4 of the Graduate School Handbook, are as follows:

Minimum Category M Qualifications. The faculty member

- holds a regular, tenure-track, or regular clinical faculty appointment
- holds a master's degree or higher, or equivalent

Rights and Responsibilities of Graduate Faculty. The faculty member

- acts as the advisor for master's students
- participates in the governance of graduate education at all levels within the university
- serves on doctoral examination committees at the discretion of the graduate studies committee.

Approval to advise and supervise graduate students must be obtained from the graduate school as set forth in rule 3335-5-29 and detailed in the Graduate School Handbook.

D. Role in Unit Governance

As indicated by rule 3335-7-11, professional practice faculty are ineligible to serve on the Appointment, Promotion and Tenure Committee, and would not have a vote on appointments of or promotion and tenure for tenure-track faculty. Professional Practice faculty may be permitted to participate in other faculty governance including serving on governance committees and voting on all other matters, including appointment of additional professional practice faculty, and where appropriate, on the promotion and retention of professional practice faculty. Professional Practice faculty may be appointed to other TIU-level committees as appropriate and be elected to serve as university senator representing the University Libraries TIU. Decisions on participation in faculty governance activities for professional practice faculty, such as those listed above, would be determined by subsequent vote by the eligible faculty, should this proposal be approved.

VI. Differentiation of Responsibilities of Professional Practice Track Faculty

Professional Practice faculty will primarily perform librarianship as defined by the Appointment, Promotion and Tenure Criteria for The University Libraries document (2019) excerpted above in Section V. Librarianship responsibilities would be a minimum of 90% of their overall workload. There will be no requirement that professional practice faculty perform and communicate research through publications, exhibitions, etc. in order to achieve Assistant, Associate, or Professor status, as is required for tenure-track faculty. Finally, as specified above, professional practice faculty members would not have a voice or vote on appointments, promotions, tenure, or investigations of tenure-track faculty.

VII. Oversight and Evaluation

A. Annual Evaluations

Annual evaluations of professional practice faculty will be performed by the supervisor, including input from the faculty. These evaluations will take place at the same time as those for tenure-track faculty. The evaluation will be communicated in writing to the professional practice faculty member, together with an invitation to discuss the evaluation in person if the professional practice faculty member desires. Required documentation will be described in the Appointment, Promotion and Tenure Criteria for The University Libraries document.

Professional Practice faculty at the Health Sciences Library, the Law Library, and on regional campuses (local administrative units) will be reviewed annually by the appropriate local administrator and University Libraries Associate Dean. The local review focuses mainly on librarianship and local service. The report of the local administrative review will be forwarded to the Dean of University Libraries for the personnel file. The Associate Dean who is the liaison to local administrative units will write an annual review of the overall service and scholarship (if relevant) of the professional practice faculty member. A copy will be shared with the faculty member, the Dean of University Libraries, and the local administrator. In the event of divergence in performance assessment between the local administrative unit and the University Libraries, the Dean of University Libraries will discuss the matter with the local administrator in an effort to clarify and reconcile the divergence, so that the faculty member receives consistent assessment and advice.

B. Reappointment / Nonreappointment and Promotion

Annual reappointment of a probationary professional practice faculty member requires the approval of the Dean of University Libraries, who makes the final decision. When the TIU and administrative homes are different, the Dean will work in consultation with the appropriate local administrator on reappointment decisions.

Reappointment for regular (non-probationary) professional practice faculty will be decided by the Dean of University Libraries or their designee at the contract interval. When the TIU and administrative homes are different, the Dean will work in consultation with the appropriate local administrator on reappointment decisions

By the end of the penultimate year of each contract period, the professional practice faculty member will be informed as to whether a new contract will be extended at the conclusion of the current contract period. If a new contract is not extended, the final year of the current contract is a terminal year of employment. There is no presumption that a new contract will be extended.

A recommendation not to renew a probationary regular professional practice faculty member's annual contract requires the approval of the Dean of University Libraries.

Promotion recommendations must be reviewed by the executive vice president and provost, whose decision shall be final.

C. Criteria for Evaluation

Evaluation of professional practice faculty shall be based on the quality of performance in 1) librarianship; and 2) advising and service to the unit, university, and/or community; and 3) knowledge of research impacting practice with the field of study or practice.

Contract renewal of a regular professional practice faculty member requires a review and recommendation from the University Libraries Appointment Promotion and Tenure Committee, and the approval of the Dean of University Libraries, who makes the final decision. The Dean has the authority to terminate a professional practice faculty member's contract before the end of the appointment. In instances when the TIU and administrative homes are different, the Dean will work in consultation with the appropriate local administrator on any decision to terminate a professional practice faculty contract before the end of an appointment. Before terminating a professional practice faculty contract before the end of the appointment, the Dean must consult with the University Libraries Appointment, Promotion, and Tenure committee.

D. Periodic Review of the Professional Practice Faculty Track

At five-year intervals, University Libraries will evaluate the impact, both positive and negative, of the professional practice faculty track. Both quantitative data (percentages of professional practice and tenure-track faculty in the TIU) and qualitative data (surveys, focus groups, etc.) regarding the perceived benefits and costs of having professional practice faculty will be obtained. Input will be sought from administrators, faculty, staff, graduate and undergraduate students, and community stakeholders, as appropriate. If the input from such an evaluation suggests an overall negative impact, the University Libraries may choose not to make further professional practice faculty appointments. Also, per the Ohio State University Academic Organization and Curriculum Handbook, reports will be submitted to CAA annually.

E. Transfer to Faculty of Practice Role

Per Faculty Rule, 3335-7-09, a college, school, or department may provide for the possibility of transfers from the tenure-track faculty to the regular professional practice faculty track if appropriate to its circumstances. University Libraries may permit a tenure-track faculty member to transfer to a professional practice faculty position with a 2/3 vote from all tenure-track faculty in the University Libraries. Transfers must abide by the following:

- (1) The request for transfer must be initiated by the faculty member in writing and must state clearly how the individual's career goals and activities have changed;
- (2) When a tenured faculty member transfers to the regular professional practice faculty track, tenure is lost; and
- (3) All transfers must be approved by the Dean and the executive vice president and provost.

Per Faculty Rule 3335-7-10, transfers from the professional practice track faculty track to the tenure-track are not permitted. Professional Practice track faculty may apply for tenure-track positions and compete in regular national searches for such positions.

VIII. Resource Availability and Impact

Financial resources to fund Professional Practice faculty hires will come from general and development funds.

The overwhelming majority of prospective Professional Practice faculty appointments will be extant staff librarian roles transitioned within the Health Sciences Library, the Law Library, University Libraries, and libraries on the regional campuses. These positions are funded from general funds allocated to these administrative units.

Any future Professional Practice faculty within the University Libraries TIU will be funded through general funds and development funds raised to support such positions by the administrative units proposing the positions. It should be noted that there is no intention of expanding the percentage of Professional Practice faculty appointments within the TIU in the future.

Keith B. Key

PRESIDENT AND CEO

KEITH B. KEY ENTERPRISES LLC

As CEO of Keith B. Key Enterprises and Omni Management Group, Keith brings a host of banking disciplines and entrepreneurial skills to the operations and financial management of both corporations. Keith has been involved with over $1 billion dollars of real estate development, inclusive of residential, commercial and religious-oriented projects.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Keith received his Bachelor of Science in economics from The Ohio State University and is a former Ohio State football player. Following graduation, he entered a career in banking with Huntington National Bank. During his tenure at Huntington, Keith became one of the founding fathers of the bank's nationally recognized Community Centered Banking Program. Keith's banking career provided him with experiences in the areas of trust, investments, commercial real estate lending, small business lending, mortgage banking and more. Later, he embarked upon a career in bank consulting with P.T. & Associates where he managed seven sites, aiding Huntington National Bank's affiliates in the implementation of the Community Centered Banking Program and community development projects. He also worked directly with over 150 churches and faith-based institutions.

After a successful career in banking and bank consulting, Keith, along with partner Adam Troy, founded Omni Management Group (OMG). OMG, in addition to working with banks and private corporations, engaged in real estate development. OMG, in only a few years, became one of America's largest African American real estate development firms. OMG has completed single and multi-family housing, as well as commercial office projects, primarily in urban communities.

In an effort to expand in real estate development and business formation, Keith founded Keith B. Key Enterprises. KBK Enterprises is a multidimensional corporation, strategically positioned to develop real estate in urban America and to form business enterprises to serve businesses and governmental bodies. KBK Enterprises has offices in Columbus, Ohio; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; and New Orleans, Louisiana. As a further commitment to KBK Enterprises mission of "changing lives by going beyond bricks and sticks," the KBK Foundation was formed. The KBK Foundation is a 501(c)3 charitable non-profit, which provides community supportive services to residents of properties either owned or managed by KBK. The Foundation's primary focus areas includes: quality affordable housing, economic development, social services, entrepreneurship and Section 3 training.

Keith has also provided community service and leadership to the following organizations: Columbus State Community College Foundation; Mt. Hermon Missionary Baptist Church; The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc.; Omega Charities; The Ohio State University Alumni Association; The Ohio State University Foundation and numerous other committees and councils.

Keith was also the first non-pastor board member of the Housing Commission of the National Baptist Convention. Keith is married to Donica D. Key. They have two daughters, Danielle and Darienne, and one son, Keith Brandon.

Spring Commencement

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
MAY 7, 2023

Pomp, circumstance, and other songs of a lifetime

—by Professor David Citino, 1947–2005, Late University Poet Laureate (Originally presented as the 2000 Winter Commencement address)

If you're like me, you've got a big head, not to mention a funny robe, full of music—
poems and melodies, the tunes we move to, shower and shave by, study, write to. Not just the incidental,

but the momentous music keeping time.
Our histories are measures of song.
Listen to your heart: drums of Africa,
sea-spume of blind, far-sighted Homer, Sappho's honeyed love lyrics. Often, music speaks for us, one note saying a thousand words. Like Rodolpho in Puccini's La Bohème, Sono un poeta.

I am a poet. Che cosa faccio? What do I do? Scrivo. I write. This ceremony is loud music—pomp and circumstance of the life you began freshman year or that first day of graduate school.

In my head I press Play, and the CD of Big Days kicks on. I leap and linger over moments too sweet, nearly, for words.

I'll never escape rhymes from the nursery.
Up above the world so high, like a diamond in the sky. We knew from the start our universe was aglow with wonder.

Italian, Latin, English songs in nasal accents of Cleveland. Gaudeamus igitur, Juvenes dum sumus. So, let us rejoice, while we are young. Youth is that gift we can't comprehend while we're young. This ceremony means you all are less young than you were.

Don't let the heavy knowledge gained from your studies deprive you of the gifts of youth, to be able to rejoice at the drop of a hat, to care for, be moved by others.

Now I hear golden hits of five decades.
Big Mama Thornton, and that so-called King (King of what, fried butter sandwiches?)
who stole away her hound dog. You ain't never killed a rabbit, you ain't no friend of mine. As with those profs and TAs, course after course, you had to produce—kill some rabbits—to earn respect.

And at times OSU may have seemed like Heartbreak Hotel, down at the end of Lonely Street, so difficult was it to do your best. Tennessee Ernie Ford, "Sixteen Tons": St. Peter don't you call me 'Cause I can't go. I owe my soul to the company store.

You have been digging deep in mines of knowledge. We all owe our souls to Ohio State, company store of learning, shared experience—precious ore
we have in common forever.

Now I hear Domenico Modugno's fervent urging to wish, sing, fly,
Volare, Wo-oo. Cantare, Wo-o-o-o-o.
My grandfather was a peasant farmer,
a contadino in Calabria in the toe of Italy. He knew it's the human lot to dream of flying. Lucky, lucky, lucky me, I'm a lucky son-of-a-gun.

I work eight hours, I sleep eight hours,
That leaves eight hours for fun.

Hey! He sailed in steerage across the Atlantic, came to Cleveland, where he stayed long enough to work 52 years for the B&O Railroad, before lying down to rest in good Ohio soil. So many of us here today came from elsewhere, or ancestors did. From Tennessee, Italy, Africa, Asia, Appalachia—even,

President Kirwan, the wilds of Kentucky and Maryland. Women and men with backs supple as birch trunks. The courage it took to pick up stakes and begin again in a new world! Think of the work those older ones did. For you. You all are facing a change right now.

This sheepskin is your passport.
You're bound for emigration to the next song of your life. Ohio State is the ark on which you've been sailing.
You've been the precious cargo.

But, as Noah once said, I can see clearly now the rain is gone. The ark, our university, was filled to overflowing with the diversity of us. Diversity.
Networks and talk shows devalue the word.

Commencement Address

Bryan A. Stevenson

Doctor of Public Service

Bryan A. Stevenson is living proof of the positive impact that strong legal representation and advocacy can have on vulnerable people's lives.

Mr. Stevenson has spent his career as a voice for the voiceless. In his role as founder and executive director of the Equal Justice Initiative, he has been a tireless advocate for some of the nation's most marginalized citizens, working to challenge the use of the death penalty and expose how racial bias can prevent just outcomes, particularly in jury trials.

Mr. Stevenson has won major legal challenges eliminating excessive and unfair sentencing, exonerating innocent death row prisoners, confronting abuse of those who are incarcerated and with mental illnesses, and aiding juveniles who were prosecuted as adults.

His critically acclaimed bestseller Just Mercy was named by Time magazine as one of the 10 Best Books of Nonfiction for 2014 and has received multiple honors, including the American Library Association's Andrew Carnegie Medal for Excellence in Nonfiction.

Mr. Stevenson is the author of many highly cited academic and scholarly works published in law journals. He has also been published in several widely disseminated manuals on capital litigation and has written extensively in wider media on criminal justice, capital punishment and civil rights issues.

In 2018, the Equal Justice Initiative opened the Legacy Museum as well as the National Memorial for Peace and Justice, which documents and pays tribute to lynching victims from across the country. Inspired by the Holocaust Memorial in Berlin, Germany, and the Apartheid Museum in Johannesburg, South Africa, the National Memorial for Peace and Justice ranks among the most powerful architectural expressions depicting the horrors of bigotry and injustice.

Mr. Stevenson was inducted into the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in 2014 and won the Lannan Cultural Freedom Prize. In 2016, he received the American Bar Association's Thurgood Marshall Award. He received the Martin Luther King Jr. Nonviolent Peace Prize from the King Center in Atlanta in 2018.

Mr. Stevenson has received over 40 honorary doctoral degrees, including degrees from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, the University of Pennsylvania and Oxford University.

Recipients of Honors

Carla D. Hayden

Doctor of Humane Letters

Few understand the intersection between knowledge and public access better than Carla D. Hayden, who has been at the forefront of the digitization of materials to expand and improve engagement with critical information throughout her career.

Dr. Hayden has served as the librarian of Congress since 2016 — a position to which she was nominated by U.S. President Barack Obama. She is the first woman and the first African American to lead the world's largest research library, which contains more than 173 million items.

Digitization of materials has been among Dr. Hayden's leading initiatives alongside expanding the library's outreach programming, including traveling exhibitions and performances geared toward children and rural communities.

Prior to her current position, Dr. Hayden served as the CEO for the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore, Maryland. She became the first Black woman to receive Library Journal's "Librarian of the Year Award" in recognition of her outreach services, which included an after-school center for Baltimore teens offering homework assistance and college and career counseling. Later, she won accolades for keeping the library system open during the 2015 protests following the death of Freddie Gray — an effort designed to promote libraries as a place of refuge. She served as president of the American Library Association from 2003-04.

Dr. Hayden previously served as deputy commissioner and chief librarian of the Chicago Public Library from 1991-93. Prior to that, she was an assistant professor for library and information science at the University of Pittsburgh and library services coordinator for the Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago.

She began her career at the Chicago Public Library in 1979. She jokingly refers to herself as an "accidental librarian" because she stumbled across the profession after receiving her undergraduate degree from Roosevelt University in 1973.

Dr. Hayden received an MA and PhD from the Graduate Library School of the University of Chicago.

Recipients of Honors

Donna A. James

Doctor of Business Administration

Donna A. James is a pioneering business executive with decades of experience leading at some of the world's top brands and Fortune 500 companies. She has worked in board leadership roles at Coca-Cola Enterprises, Time Warner Cable, L Brands, Boston Scientific and Marathon Petroleum.

Ms. James currently serves as the managing director of Lardon & Associates, her own business advisory firm, as well as co-executive director of the African American Leadership Academy. She is on the board of directors for public companies American Electric Power, The Hartford Insurance Group and Victoria's Secret & Co., where she serves as board chair. Ms. James has helped Victoria's Secret prioritize diversity and inclusivity and establish a mission to be "the world's leading advocate for women." She is also board member for private company Xponance investment management.

Prior to starting her own business, Ms. James retired as president of Nationwide Strategic Investments, a division of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, after 25 years of service. Her stint as an accounting professional with PricewaterhouseCoopers provided the foundation for her effectiveness in both business and community endeavors.

Ms. James' humility is well known, and she is deeply committed to giving back. She is a dedicated community leader in the greater Columbus area and was the co-founder and former board chair of the Center for Healthy Families, a nonprofit focused on transforming the lives of pregnant and parenting teens and their children.

Advocating for women and children is important for Ms. James, who has served as co-chair for Columbus' CelebrateOne initiative, which is designed to reduce infant mortality. She has also held volunteer-leadership roles with the Women's Fund of Central Ohio, the Health Policy Institute of Ohio, the United Way of America Board of Governors, and the YWCA of Columbus, among many other organizations.

Art, too, is a passion for Ms. James and her husband, Larry, who have pledged to donate their collection featuring works by prominent Black artists as an estate gift to the Columbus Museum of Art.

Ms. James has received multiple recognitions throughout her career, including Red Cross Humanitarian of the Year and the Ohio River Valley Women's Business Council Trail Blazer Award. She has been named to the National Historically Black Colleges and Universities Hall of Fame.

Keith B. Key

Doctor of Public Service

Keith B. Key is a real estate developer, social entrepreneur and a leader in philanthropy. He is the president and CEO of Keith B. Key Enterprises, LLC (KBK Enterprises), a national real estate development company that specializes in large-scale urban redevelopment projects across the country, with over $1 billion of real estate development. Mr. Key received his Bachelor of Science in economics from The Ohio State University, where he was a member of the Buckeye football team. He also led many student organizations, became a member of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., grew the university's chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People into the largest in the region, and helped establish what would become Ohio State's annual African American Heritage Festival.

Mr. Key co-founded Omni Management Group, one of the largest African American real estate development firms in the country, and later established KBK Enterprises, which strategically positions to develop real estate, revitalize historically neglected neighborhoods and create economic opportunity. He is committed to changing lives by going beyond bricks and sticks, and has established the KBK Foundation to provide supportive services to residents of properties either owned or managed by the company.

Mr. Key has provided leadership to a wide range of community organizations, including the Columbus State Community College Foundation, Mt. Hermon Missionary Baptist Church, the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc., Omega Charities, Columbus College of Art and Design, and The Ohio State University Foundation and Alumni Association. He is a well-regarded philanthropist and has established The Keith B. Key Center for Student Leadership and Service at The Ohio State University and The Keith B. Key Buckeye Social Entrepreneurship Program (KBK BSEP) at Ohio State. Mr. Key pours so much of his time into the students at The Ohio State University through mentorship, offering internships, guest lecturing for various classes and through the incredible work for KBK BSEP.

Mr. Key is married to Donica Key, and they have three children: Danielle, Darienne and Keith Brandon Key.

Recipients of Honors

Karen A. Bell

Distinguished Service Award

Karen A. Bell, who served as dean of The Ohio State University's College of the Arts (now part of the College of Arts and Sciences), recognizes the impact that art has on community empowerment and enrichment — and has spent her career promoting the medium and expanding opportunities so more people can experience its many benefits.

Professor Bell, who came to Ohio in 1980, is a professor, choreographer, dancer and arts booster. As chair of the Department of Dance, she was instrumental in paving the way for the implementation of African and African-based dance forms throughout the curriculum. She was also an early adopter of integrating advanced technologies throughout the department.

Professor Bell, who is now a professor emerita, was named the university's first associate vice president for arts outreach in 2008. Under her leadership, Ohio State became the first North American collaborator with the Royal Shakespeare Company on "Stand Up for Shakespeare," a teacher-training program aimed at incorporating the playwright into the curricula of area schools.

Professor Bell received her BA in sociology from The State University of New York at Potsdam and her MFA in dance from Sarah Lawrence College, where she was the recipient of the Bessie Schönberg Dance Scholarship. She also has taught on the faculties of Cornell University and Wells College and is the co-author of Women Leading the Way: Reflections on Life and Leadership.

Outside of academia, Professor Bell provided a leadership role at the Greater Columbus Arts Council, which recognized her profound influence, saying she "singlehandedly changed the face of the arts in our community."

Professor Bell was instrumental in the founding of Ohio State's Urban Arts Space in 2008, a gallery and performance venue in downtown Columbus that serves as a primary point of contact between the university and the community through concerts, plays, lectures, workshops and exhibitions.

Professor Bell and her husband, Ben Maiden, are also the creators of the Karen A. Bell Dance Fund for Community Outreach, a scholarship program that supports student projects, performances and workshops that benefit people who have limited access to dance.

G. Gilbert Cloyd

Distinguished Service Award

Few understand the transformative nature of education more than G. Gilbert "Gil" Cloyd, and he has spent a lifetime helping others access academic opportunities.

He was the first person in his family to graduate from college and has since dedicated his time to providing opportunities to graduates of Ohio high schools seeking to further their education.

Dr. Cloyd received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from Ohio State in 1969 and returned for graduate work in veterinary pathology two years later.

Dr. Cloyd entered private practice in Cincinnati and began consulting work in toxicology, including work with Procter & Gamble, which he joined full time in 1974 and quickly rose through the ranks. After serving in several positions in the product safety division, he moved to Norwich, New York, in 1984 and assumed responsibilities for research and development in the company's pharmaceuticals business. He was appointed vice president in 1991 and later assumed responsibilities as vice president for research and development in Asia, a position he held until 2000 while residing in Kobe, Japan.

Dr. Cloyd returned to Cincinnati in 2000 to serve as Procter & Gamble's chief technology officer. In this capacity, he had overall responsibility for the company's global research and development organization, an operation that included about 9,000 employees in 28 global technical centers.

Dr. Cloyd was appointed to Ohio State's Board of Trustees in 2005 and served as chair from 2007-09. He has chaired the university's Foundation Board since 2019.

A devoted philanthropist, Dr. Cloyd is dedicated to expanding college access, most notably by establishing scholarships benefiting veterinary medical students and students from his hometown of Lima, Ohio. He is also a firm believer in boosting Ohio State's research capabilities to create solutions the world needs now and foster economic development.

Dr. Cloyd has received numerous university awards and recognitions, including the College of Veterinary Medicine Distinguished Alumni Award in 1996, the College of Veterinary Medicine Alumni Society Recognition Award in 2006, the John B. Gerlach Sr. Award in 2010 and induction into The Ohio State University at Lima Hall of Fame in 2016.

The Academic Costume

The colorful ceremonies of The Ohio State University commencements derive from practices originating in the Middle Ages. When European universities were taking form in the 12th and 13th centuries, the scholars were usually clerics, and consequently they adopted costumes similar to those of their monastic orders. Cold halls and drafty buildings called for caps and floor-length capes with attached hoods, and the sobering influence of the church probably resulted in the staid character of the caps and gowns.

As the control of the universities gradually passed from the church, some aspects of the costumes took on brighter hues. Old prints and engravings, however, reveal a strong similarity between the regalia worn in early universities and that of the present day.

In light of our nation's English heritage, academic costume has been in use in the United States since colonial times. To establish a standard of uniformity in regard to the practice, an intercollegiate commission was formed to prepare a code for caps, gowns and hoods that has since been adopted by all academic institutions.

Originally round, the shape of the cap is now the familiar mortarboard square — a shape that, according to ballad folklore, resembles a scholar's book. Legend also has it that the privilege of wearing a cap was the initial right of a freed Roman slave; the academic cap, therefore, has become a sign of the freedom of scholarship. The flowing gown has become symbolic of the democracy of scholarship, for it covers any dress that might indicate rank or social status. The hood, reserved at The Ohio State University for those receiving doctoral and master's degrees, not only indicates the type of degree, but also is lined with the official colors of the university.

The Gown

Bachelor: The bachelor gown is black, full-cut with long pointed sleeves.

Master: The master gown is black, long or short sleeves, with an arc-shaped panel extended for each sleeve.

Doctor: The Ohio State University Doctor of Philosophy, Doctor of Education, and Doctor of Nursing Practice gown is scarlet with gray velvet panels on the front and three velvet bars on each sleeve. Other doctor gowns are black with velvet panels and bars, the color of which is distinctive of the field of study.

Honors Emblem

The Ohio State University honors emblem is a scarlet and gray tasseled braid worn over the gown. Students eligible for this curricular honor are those graduating summa cum laude, magna cum laude, cum laude, with distinction and with honors.

The Hood

Bachelor: Three feet long with a two-inch-wide velvet edging.*

Master: Three and one-half feet long with a three-inch-wide velvet edging.

Doctor: Four feet in length with a five-inch-wide velvet edging and panel at the sides.

The lining of all hoods, which is folded out, bears the official colors of the institution granting the degree. The color of the velvet indicates the field of study.

* Not usually worn by candidates for a degree.

Inclement Weather

In the case of inclement weather, every effort will be made to hold commencement as planned. Commencement will take place in Ohio Stadium, unless weather conditions are dangerous or severe, in which case the ceremony will be canceled. No indoor facility on campus can accommodate the graduating class and their guests.

On commencement day, Ohio State officials will be in continuous contact with the National Weather Service to monitor approaching weather. If it is feasible to delay the start of the ceremony and wait for clearing or less severe weather, the start of the ceremony may be delayed up to one hour. Should this happen, any changes will be announced on-site to graduates and guests. Graduates will remain in the assembly locations; guests are asked to remain in protected areas of Ohio Stadium. Your patience and cooperation will help facilitate this plan.

In case of cancellation

If it is determined that severe weather will not permit us to hold commencement, the ceremony will be canceled. Once cancellation has been announced, graduates should report to the locations below one hour after cancellation to receive their diplomas.

It is strongly advised that graduates and guests prearrange a meeting place in case the ceremony is canceled. Guests should not go to French Field House or RPAC where most diplomas will be distributed to graduates. St. John Arena and various locations on West Lane Avenue are some suggested meeting sites.

Diplomas will remain in the following locations until 4 p.m. on commencement day. Diplomas not picked up by 4 p.m. will be taken to Buckeye Link on the first floor of the Student Academic Services (SAS) building, 281 West Lane Avenue. Diplomas will be available for pickup there between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., May 8-12. If a graduate's diploma remains unclaimed after 12:00 p.m. on May 12, it will be mailed to the permanent address on record within two to four weeks of commencement. Graduates can verify/change their mailing addresses by navigating to the Buckeye Link website at buckeyelink.osu.edu. Click on "My Student Center," then scroll down to the "Personal Information" section to view the address. Click on the "Permanent Address" hyperlink if there is a need to edit it.

I say, rather, the richness of us, precious difference, the grand multiplicity of selves that balance this globe and enable it to spin true. Grandson of peasant immigrants, I was given the opportunity to earn a doctorate in English literature from Ohio State—because my family labored long nights around the kitchen table trying to learn this arduous English. I sat where you're sitting twenty-six years ago.

Bob Dylan and Smokey Robinson got me through. Yes, it took a prophet and Miracles!
My son earned an OSU Ph.D. in history.
Now you, graduates, are being honored—by degrees. We've all come together around the kitchen table of Ohio State.

Ohio, Round on the ends and high in the middle. For the years to come we'll sing together, Beautiful Ohio, in dreams again I see, Visions of what used to be. These psalms, sacred thoughts of our tribes, 78's and 33's, tapes, CD's—they take up space in shelves of our skulls, our hearts. They remind us we want a song beyond the run-of-the-mill thrill, the moment throbbing with pleasure or bathed in the blues.

We ache for something grander than pure selfishness. Songs sung for one alone are not true music. Arias shared are music of the spheres, ways of saying to another something from the soul.

Of course the Buckeye Battle Cry
is there. Drive, drive on down the field,

Men (and women!) of the Scarlet and Gray. Well, you drove on down the field, and you drove up and down the streets, around and around crowded lots, looking for a place to park, and you searched our dark, ancient library for a decent place to study. My wife, Mary's, father marched in the first "Script Ohio," in 1936. He's here today with us, blowing his horn, I can't help but feel, as is the sweet mother

I lost last year, the one who gave me the stars. Today's music makes us think of the debts we owe, and never can repay.
So many of us would not be here were it not for the lullabies and songs of dear parents, their parents, theirs.

Some are here today in the flesh.
Many are not. We mourn them with cadences of our hearts. Think how many people sang before us, gave us a name, a voice, taught us the right words. We must cherish them by remembering every song.

When we sing to others, we honor our fathers and mothers, thank them for this day of profound scarlet and gray pomp and circumstance. O, come let's sing Ohio's praise, And songs to Alma Mater raise. Alma mater.

Ohio State is our sweet, nurturing mother.

We came of age here, with her help.
Well, Mother, we love you, but, like,
it's time we moved out, got a place of our own. You're standing there, Mom, gray hair, eyes scarlet from crying. We won't forget you.

Now, even though this ceremony means we're being weaned, taken off the nipple, let's take care to cherish her all our days. Let's remember the words to the songs she taught us, and pass them on. We'll remember always, Graduation Day. Summer's heat, and winter's cold, The seasons pass,

the years will roll, Time and change will surely show How firm thy friendship,

O-hi-O. We call that little number Carmen Ohio. Carmen means song in Latin. You've worked hard; she is your reward; today is your reward.

You're filled to overflowing with the notes, the poems we've written together. You know the score.
Continue to work hard for yourselves, and one another. Find the ones who need you to sing to, for them, in the world.

Graduates, this joyful litany, this hymn
our ancestors collaborated on with us, the calling of your name today is music to our ears. Sing that name proudly all your days, as if your life depended on it. It does, you know. It has been an honor for me to speak—and sing—to you today. Thank you, graduates, and, again, Congratulations.

BACKGROUND

TOPIC: Approval of an amendment to the Fiscal Year 2023 Ohio State Energy Partners Utility System Capital Improvements Plan

CONTEXT: Pursuant to the First Amended and Restated Long-Term Lease and Concession Agreement for The Ohio State University Utility System dated July 20, 2018, and as amended (the "Agreement"), Ohio State Energy Partners LLC (OSEP) will fund and implement capital improvements to the Utility System. Capital investments made by OSEP will be tied to the annual Utility Fee structure pursuant to the Agreement.

Proposed capital projects are evaluated for alignment with applicable strategic, financial, and physical plans and to ensure continued reliability, safety, and compliance.

Approval of these projects will be pursuant to project scopes, project cost breakdowns, and total project costs outlined below; applicable university directives, project approval request forms, and supporting documentation submitted pursuant to the Agreement.

OSEP capital projects are categorized into one of four types:

1. Life-Cycle Renovations, Repair, and Replacement Projects (LFC): LFC projects are capital improvements to existing utility system plants and distribution networks.
2. Expansion Projects (EXP): EXP projects are to expand the capacity of the campus utility systems or to extend the campus utility systems to new campus facilities.
3. Energy Conservation Measure Projects (ECM): ECM projects are capital improvements to improve the energy efficiency of campus buildings, utility plants, and utility distribution networks.
4. Special Projects (SPC): SPC projects are utility system projects that do not fit well into the other three categories and/or are subject to special conditions.

SUMMARY:

Steam Vaults Repairs and Replacements 133-23-LFC

Scope: Repair and/or replacement of several steam distribution system underground vaults. This project was previously approved for design. Early design work identified an urgent need to replace the 12th Avenue/Doan Hall vault in order to ensure maintenance of traffic. This partial project request is only for this 12th Avenue vault. Construction approval for the remaining vault repairs and replacements will be requested once the design is complete.

PERPETUAL STORM SEWER EASEMENT BETWEEN THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY AND THE CITY OF COLUMBUS KENNY ROAD, COLUMBUS, FRANKLIN COUNTY, OHIO BOARD BACKGROUND

Background

The Ohio State University is performing infrastructure improvements along Kenny Road to support west campus expansion. This easement is for a storm sewer, which includes extension of an existing roadway culvert and construction of a new wingwall near Martha Morehouse. The city of Columbus requires a new perpetual storm sewer easement as the culvert and wingwall extend beyond the current right of way.

In late 2022, the university granted the city a 25-year easement for construction of the storm sewer. This easement was intended to serve as an interim step to providing the city a perpetual easement, which cannot be granted until approval is received from the State of Ohio General Assembly. Timelines to obtain Assembly approval are currently unknown.

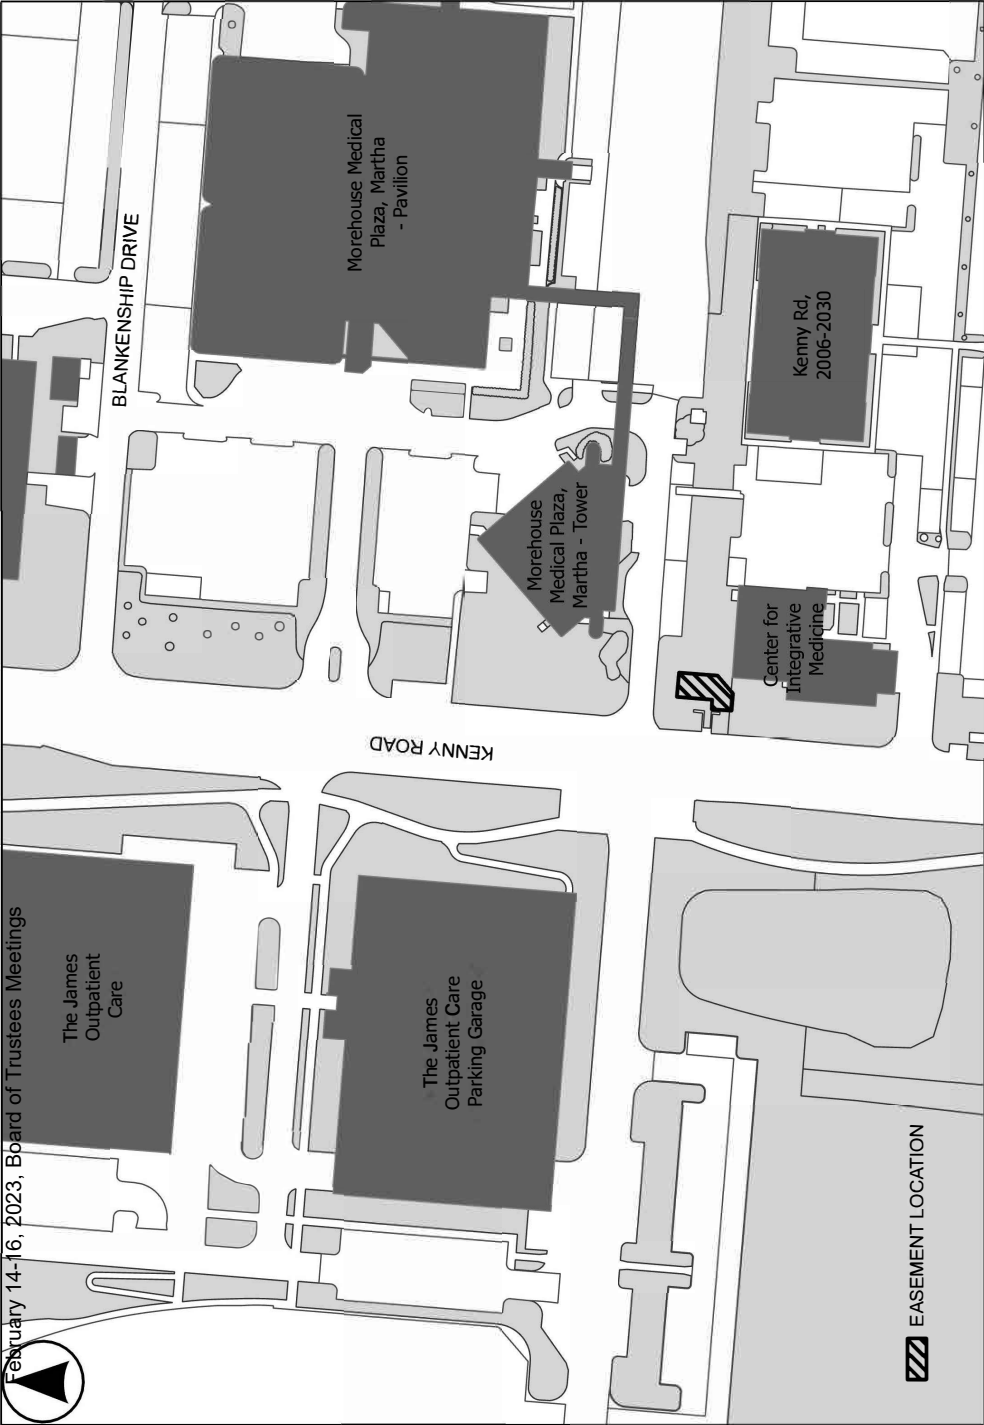

Location and Description

The property to be impacted by the proposed perpetual easement includes Franklin County parcel identification numbers 130-011841 and 130-011864. The property is located within the city of Columbus and lies within the Columbus campus.

The easement area comprises 0.022 acres and the university will be responsible for the maintenance and operation of the storm improvements within the easement area.

Easement Recommendation

Planning, Architecture and Real Estate (PARE) recommends execution of the perpetual easement under terms and conditions in the best interest of the university. This action is being brought before the Board of Trustees because easements for terms greater than 25 years require Board approval.

TOPICS: Men's Basketball Ticket Prices

CONTEXT:

The Ohio State University Department of Athletics continues to be one of a very limited number of self-sustaining athletics programs in the nation. Currently, the Department of Athletics funds more than 1,000 student-athletes in successful endeavors of academic achievement and athletics competitions, as well as personal and professional development, with a Graduation Success Rate of 93% and a career placement rate of 94%. The Department of Athletics transfers approximately $59 million annually to the University for contributions and payments for goods and services provided to the Department, which includes $37 million for grant-in-aid.

The Department of Athletics first introduced premier-game pricing in 2013 and beginning with the 2017-2018 basketball season adopted an expanded variable pricing model for all individual game tickets while also offering discounts for public, faculty and staff full-season ticket purchasers. The scaling of the arena was expanded from four price zones to six price zones beginning with the 2019-2020 season. This pricing model provides a fluid pricing structure to align to market demands, offers significantly more choices for ticket purchasers, and has contributed to successfully increasing both sales and attendance. The Athletic Council and university administrators recommend the continuation of these pricing guidelines. Historical pricing for the previous three seasons is included in the attached appendix.

RECOMMENDATION:

- Price the individual games according to exhibition, non-conference, conference or premier opponent categorization, with a maximum of five games per season categorized as premier.
- Assign the individual game and season ticket pricing for the 2023-2024 men's basketball season as indicated in the following table.

CONSIDERATIONS:

- Variable ticket pricing is widely used by other Big Ten institutions and various athletic programs across the country, provides better access and affordability for fans, and has been successful at Ohio State since it was first introduced for the 2013-2014 season.
- Discounts for full-season ticket packages will remain for faculty, staff, and the general public.
- The student ticket price will remain at $9 for all opponent categories.
- Premier games for previous seasons have been designated as follows:
 - 2019-2020 season: Cincinnati, Villanova, Maryland, and Michigan
 - 2020-2021 season: No tickets sold due to COVID-19 restrictions on attendance
 - 2021-2022 season: Duke, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan State and Michigan
 - 2022-2023 season: Iowa, Michigan State, and Illinois
- The schedule for the 2023-2024 season has not yet been determined but is projected to have 16 regular home games.
