Dr. Cloyd:

Before we close the meeting I want to extend a thank you to two Trustees who are participating in their last Board meeting. The first is Debra Van Camp. Debra is completing her second year on the Board as a Student Trustee representing undergraduate students. Deb, all of us on the Board have appreciated the energy, the passion, the proactively and thoughtful perspective you have always brought to all of your Trustee responsibilities. You have kept the students perspective constantly in front of the Board in its deliberations and you have done it in a very influential way. In addition to that you have also taken time to be proactive and take leadership in helping us improve the Board's processes. We thank you very much for that, and we are going to miss you. You really are an extraordinarily intelligent individual, and you have a huge motivation to improve the lives of people. I know you are going to do very well in your professional pursuits and make this University very proud. Again, thank you for your great service and please accept this Board's best wishes to you for all of your future endeavors.

President Gee:

I was going to wait and say nice things about you later on, but I think I will do it right now. I had the opportunity to meet Debra's family last evening and I had the occasion of just thinking a little bit about her because she had that wonderful story about her rubbing elbows with the important people of this institution. I think as I said last evening, and I will say again, I think it has been a privilege for all of us to rub elbows with you Deb. You really represent what this University is all about, tenacity, and hard work. She came to this institution because we made it available for her to afford to come to this institution. This was the front door to her dream, and thanks to the hard work of this University it was so. Debra also represents in so many ways the best angels of this University. A person who I think by the very nature of her intelligence and hard work will not only make us proud but also will be devoted to this institution for her life. Debra, one of the things that we have not done very well is we have not had a continuing relationship with our Student Trustees and with our former Trustees, and we are going to do a much better job, and we expect you to lead that effort. Congratulations to you.

Ms. Van Camp:

Thank you for this plaque, I am going to take it to Taiwan with me and hang it up. I just wanted to briefly say a few thank yous. It has been a real privilege. I was appointed by Governor Strickland a couple years ago to serve on this Board. I especially want to thank Dr. Cloyd for the leadership you have had in the two years I have served on the Board. I can say you are the best chairman because I have not known any other. I want to thank all the other Board members for being very open to the perspectives that I had to share. I especially want to thank you David for your friendship over the past two years, and the secretaries at the Board office, Korenia, Ann and Suzanne. I am glad Maureen is here too because she is retired, but she put up with a lot and helped bring me onboard, and I know everyone has hectic schedules, but especially for a student on campus. I do not know if I would have got everything done if it were not for the secretaries, so I really appreciate their help. I also cannot thank the administration enough. The faculty and staff have been tremendously supportive; conveniently missing the first couple days of school here, and they have been enormously understanding with me in different classes and things, as well as some of the administration. Dr. Adams-Gaston and student life and student affairs, and even some of the other people you would not think of working with students like Chris Culley, he explained things to the Student Trustees when we did not understand legal issues and different things. Dr. Cloyd I am really glad you mentioned our student government leaders, Jason, Peter, Ted, and one more name I want to add to the list is Alex Swain, who is the chair on the Council for Student Affairs. They have done a fabulous job and I think that we have had a synergistic relationship this year. We have been able to accomplish a lot of things for students that might not have been possible in the past. I am really grateful for their friendship.

I just want to say two brief things, and one is kind of repeating a little bit of what I said to the Board yesterday, so first to the Board members. Again, I appreciate your being open to my perspective and how much you truly value the students' perspective on the Board. I hope you will continue to challenge the undergraduate student trustee and the graduate student trustee to bring that perspective forward and you will use it to inform all the decisions that you make. I will say it publicly, I said to you last night, I know my personal story is a true testament to how these high level decisions you are making, sometimes you are at the fifty-thousand foot level and you do not think, you know we are talking about budgets and Medical Center issues and different things, and I am just glad that you value the student perspective so much that you are keeping consciously in mind how all these big high-level decisions are making an impact on the daily lives of students, faculty and staff.

The last thing that I just want to say is not really to the Board members, but everyone else here, is that we are truly blessed at this institution to have Board members and administrators that value a student perspective. I have had the opportunity over the past couple of years to talk with Student Trustees around the state as well as around the country and I have talked with enough of them to know that we have a really unique opportunity and a really good thing. A lot of other boards they may have students on them, but they really do not incorporate students into all the processes and decisions of the board in the way that this Board does. I can honestly say that all the Board members here are people of high integrity, that are trustworthy, you all hold yourselves and each other accountable to the future successes of this institution and we are just really lucky to have you.

April 3, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Thinking about graduation, as Les was telling me yesterday, I should not really think about it as graduation but as commencement, and I am going to miss a lot of things about Ohio State, especially the late night partying with you, President Gee.

President Gee:

Thanks Debra, there are newspaper reporters around here.

Ms. Van Camp:

I am going to miss a lot of the friendships, but I leave this institution knowing that it is not the end of these relationships but it is really just the beginning of a new phase, and I will always be connected to this University, so thank you very much.

Dr. Cloyd:

Next, our vice chair, Dimon McFerson is completing nine years of remarkable service to this University and Board. Dimon in your tenure on this Board you have been an active contributor to all parts of Board work. Your positive imprint is found everywhere as we look at Board work and around the University. This has been most evident in recent times and the leadership role that you have played, and how we can structure this Board and have this Board operate in a more efficient and effective manner. In absence of your leadership, we would not have made the kind of progress that we have made today. Importantly you have always assured that we make these changes in ways that we are making systemic change, change that will last for a long period of time going forward, and in that regard, as I said last night, I think people will look back on this as just a truly critically important and remarkable contribution to this University, as a legacy, and thank you for that. Also you have been the role model for what someone should have in terms of collegiality. Your open-mindedness, a sense of fairness, a trustworthiness and appreciation for other people, not only their viewpoints in an objective context, but an appreciation for other people as fellow human beings and the kind of courtesy and kindness you show them has really set a standard for all of us to aspire to, and certainly is something that I have found constantly inspiring to be around you and something I have appreciated very much. Dimon, this Board is going to greatly miss you. They are going to miss your leadership and the collegiality that you always bring to all of our meetings, but I think you can safely trust that the very positive impact that you have had on this Board and on this University will remain long, long in the future. As I said last night, I also know with the great love that you have for this University and very importantly the great love and passion you have for education and seeing young people get a quality education is going to open the door for many more opportunities for us to enjoy your collegueship and for that I am very, very grateful. Again, Dimon, speaking for the entire Board of Trustees, thank you for the remarkable service you have provided.

President Gee:

I want to just add a comment here about Dimon. I have known him when he was Dick, as a matter of fact, but for twenty years, a legendary community leader. The thing you represent so much to us is the fact you are like Cincinnatus, instead of going into retirement, you came off the fields again, to the fields of education. Not simply higher education, nine years of service on this Board, but also little known to many people is that Dimon also serves as a member of the Olentangy School District Board, and I think that shows an un-airing commitment to our children, however we calibrate them, K-12 and onto life and that in and of itself is a great blessing to us, but a great service to this community. Dimon, I know that I speak for all of those that are served by this institution, your steady hand, good wit, good humor and your ability to be able to constantly nudge and inspire is something that we deeply appreciate. On behalf of all of us who have served this institution and for those who have been served by you, I congratulate you and thank you very much for what you have done.

April 3, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. McFerson:

Thank you for those kind words. I had a chance to say a few words last night when the Board had dinner together. Debra, congratulations to you as well. This has been a unique and wonderful experience for me. Quickly how the nine years have passed, it seems like just yesterday that I was appointed. I want you to know in the nine years I have never had a parking ticket on this campus, so the Secretary has not had to help there.

It really has been a privilege. I remember well, just seeing Judge Bob Duncan out there, thank you Bob for coming. Back in the days when Board members served on a lot of Committees and a lot of boards and a lot of task forces, I had the privilege to be on campus here or other facilities a couple hundred of times or more over the years. You learn a lot when you do that, but I remember very early on in my tenure, we were sitting, Bob, you and I, and I think Jo Ann you might have been with us that day. We were in Dr. Fred Sanfilippo's office, it happened to be 9/11. That is where we were on 9/11, at the Medical Center when we got the report and we did not know what to think, and shortly after that we got the second report, and we said we had better end this meeting and get home to our loved ones and see what is going on. So it has been a real pleasure for me to be a Trustee. I have learned so much about this great, fabulous, wonderful University. I was lucky enough to be retired the whole time I served, so I got to put in the extra time and got very exposed to things as a result of that.

So to all the great people that work for this University, that serve this University, my colleagues have heard some of this last night, but this fabulous staff we have seated around the second row, and in the audience, and others interested in hearing, this is an incredible place, and we are blessed to have you on the team to serve this flagship University of Ohio which is being recognized now nationally, and in some corners of the world even internationally. We can all be very, very proud to be Buckeyes. To sit and hear the reports from these students, month after month is just incredible. I mentioned to Jack, I said "can you believe what these two young ladies have accomplished already in their lives, and think of what they will accomplish 30 years from now, and 40 years from now." It is unbelievable, so a great legacy is being built.

Maureen it is good to have you here as well. We Board members get spoiled by the Secretary's office, and she was there virtually all my time here, so thanks for your great service, and David, as our Secretary, and now Ann and the other ladies that work in that office. You make it pretty easy for us to serve. So I leave with some great memories. It has been a wonderful run. I appreciate the opportunity to have served, and I do not know what lies ahead for me in life. I still have all these grandkids in school, so I will stay on that school board for awhile, and hopefully a whole bunch of them will come to Ohio State, as certainly a lot of the kids at Olentangy. I use as an example over and over again, I do not know if it is plagiarism or what, but things I learn here I take back to K-12 and keep telling them we have to raise the bar. Olentangy is a great district. It meets all the state standards, but they can do better because Ohio State has raised that bar, and because of that bar being raised across the state at Ohio State, then the local school districts have to do a better job as well. We have to get those average ACT scores; we have to get more kids taking advanced placement classes, because that is what it is going to take to be successful at the University level and at this place. Thank you, I do not know what to say except thank you and I love you all and I love Ohio State and before I tear up I will say thanks.

April 3, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Gee:

Many of you may not know, but Dimon is a graduate of UCLA. Going from being a Bruin, I do not know what a Bruin is, is it a teddy bear or something like that, to being a killer nut, I am not certain you moved up in the world but none the less we are glad to have you.

This is a moment for me personally to remember, Universities are institutions of transition. We are constantly in transition, the spring comes the flowers come out, our students leave, the fall comes the leaves start to turn, our students come again. - natural places of transition, so we are used to it, in profound ways. The nature of Universities are ones of constantly changing landscape, but this is an unusual moment in the history of this institution. For the first time in its history at least in the modern time, we have had a two-term chairman, so the leaves did not change for him last year, and the spring came and went, and he continued to serve, and serve very ably. Dr. Cloyd is, without a doubt, one of the most remarkable human beings with whom I have ever worked with. I say that and not hyperbolically, but truthfully. Tenacious in resolve, gentle in word, takes copious notes - I am always afraid of what are in those notes, and I hope they never surface - and committed to leadership in the best form of leadership; he practices leadership, he does not just talk about it, he practices it. He is a representative of what has been so, I think, important about this University. It allows people to come off the farms and fields and achieve greatness. He is from humble background, came through our Lima campus, came to this institution, succeeded mightily, received a doctorate of veterinary medicine, goes on and has a remarkable achievement in terms of his professional life with Procter & Gamble, rising to the very top of that great corporation, all the while doing it with humility I might add. I think, Gil, one of the things that I do not think we rightly recognize about you is the true service nature that you have. You are a servant and you have humility about you. So today, I know that I speak on behalf of all of the members of this Board, and all of our faculty and staff, our 457,000 living alumni, who around the world celebrate this University in so many ways, because your leadership had made such an enormous difference. Mr. Chairman this is my last time to actually be able to call you Mr. Chairman in that role, but I want you to know it is a professional honor to have worked with you and it is a personal pleasure to have you as my friend. Congratulations to you, we really appreciate your work.

Dr. Cloyd:

Thank you very much, you are too kind Gordon. I told the Board at the dinner we had last evening that service on this Board has been the most nurturing and personally rewarding experience in my professional life. This is really truly a great University with great people and it has really been a true honor to participate with all of you and others in its noble mission. First I want to thank you President Gee, Provost Alutto, other members of the senior leadership team, faculty that are here, faculty that are not here that I have worked with, staff that are here and staff that are not here that I have had a chance to partnership with, and really the terrific and very important work that this University does. I also want to thank Dr. David Frantz, who has helped me charter my way through many paths. David, it just would not have happened without you. I want to thank Ann Lawrence, Korenia Query, Suzanne Nagy and Theresa Drummond, who just do such great work, and pick up all of my foibles so that they are not too public in that regard and I appreciate that very much. This Board would not operate the way it does without the support we have of the Board office. Judge Duncan, thank you for your mentorship. I have tried to do my best in succeeding the great leadership you have brought to this Board, and Maureen, I have been following your orders as best I can, and staying with it. Thank you for all of that.

April 3, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Finally I really want to thank all the members of this Board. You really are remarkable people. It is wonderful to associate yourself with people of high intellect around a passionate mission. It can bring a real diversity in view points. You know a Mormon, Stephen Covey, who I got to know quite a bit when I used to teach his course and spent some time with him, and he always had a great comment. He said "if you get a whole group of people together and they all have the same point of view, why are you talking, there is no point in it." When you have a chance to work with a group of individuals like those sitting around this table that can bring that passion and diversity of intellect, but do it in a highly collegial way, it is just very, very special. It is something that I have found constantly inspiring. I think it is really a wonderful gift that you have given me, and I am really indebted to all of you in that regard and I thank you for that very much.

So I do leave this Board with a sense of sadness, but also with a sense of joy for the time I have had, and even more importantly with a great sense of inspiration and confidence for where this great University is going to go. Ohio State will move from excellence to eminence. The University has great leadership, great faculty, great staff, it's got the right mission, and it will positively impact millions of people around this globe directly and indirectly, and improve their lives and make a future possible for them that would not otherwise exist. As Gordon referenced, I was the first person in my family to go to college. When I started we did not have the money to come to main campus, fortunately there was the branch in Lima. I was able to start school there and continue to work and get some money and finally come to this campus, but when we talk about this University being the doorway to the future for people, that is what it is. You have a noble mission. I know you are going to do it very well, and I am also very, very pleased to be succeeded by Mr. Les Wexner who brings tremendous intellect, vision and passion as our next chair, so it is my distinct pleasure Les, to present you with the gavel.

Mr. Wexner:

I was sitting last night listening and today listening, and that notion about commencement rather than graduation, and I think about that in the spirit of way back in the dark ages when I was a student and I did not have the sense about commencing, I was graduating. There was finality. Having served the Board at another time, I thought I graduated, and I think there is a lesson about all of us commencing that optimism that an institution has individually and collectively we have. It also struck me, the season's pass the years will roll, how firm thy friendship O-H-I-O, and I think that speaks to the seasonality and the renewal and also about commencing. We are in that constant state of growth and renewal.

In the intimacy of the Board and for everybody here, I think about when this University was celebrating it's 136th or 137th birthday, little did we know then that the Board would about double in size; little did we know then that we would change the structure of the Board in terms of electing a leader; little did we know that the president of the University would retire; little did we know that the provost would be retired in that period three years ago; little did we know that the head of medicine would retire, and the change of much of the leadership in medicine would change; and little did we know where we would be in research and state funding, and federal funding, and matching. Little did I know, or did we believe we have confidence to begin the largest project in this University's history, or that we would be at this point in our journey having gone through all that change and come through so much change in such a short period of time so successfully.

My appreciation goes to Bob Duncan who was the father of that three years ago, and the work that he did, and then most recently, in this turn to Gil. You do not have this in terms of recruiting new presidents, provosts, changing the structure of the University, going to semester systems, fundraising, and development. I look around at the leadership in this room and the amount of change that this institution has had, and could not have gotten through it so positively without incredible leadership. I give Bob credit, and most of all Gil I give you credit. I have learned more about leadership in the past three years watching you and Bob than I have learned my whole life, and I thought I knew something about it. It is the deepest regard that I have for that learning, and the leadership that you provided for the University at such a critical time. So, how firm thy friendship.

After speaking about commencement, I think we will commence to adjourn.

Thereupon the Board adjourned to meet Friday, June 5, 2009, at The Ohio State University, Longaberger Alumni House, Columbus, OH.

TOPIC: Distribution Policy

CONTEXT:

Appropriate distribution policies for the gifted endowment have been under review by the University Administration for some time.

A review of OSU as compared to peer institutions showed that:

- OSU's distribution rate is in the 4%-5% range generally used by most institutions. (Attachment 1)
- OSU's distribution algorithm (a maximum/minimum collar and two different rates) for the two pools is the most complex.

Consultation with the University leadership revealed a great deal of support for simplification but concern about the financial impact on units.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. Combine the two pools into one, resulting in one consistent payout rate for all funds
2. Eliminate the collar and replace it with a temporary one-year floor limiting the total distribution decline to 3% for Fiscal Year 2010
3. Move to a 4.25% payout rate
4. Move to a seven year moving average
5. Re-evaluate in 12 months

CONSIDERATIONS:

- What impact will these changes have on endowment principal? (Attachment 2)
- What impact will they have on the colleges? (Attachment 3)
- What impact will they have on donors and fund raising?
- What impact will they have on academic support units?

Approval is being requested.

Note: FY09 is estimated as new gifts through June 30, 2009 will affect the ultimate distribution.

Long-Term Investment Pool Distribution Policy

Distributions will be made at the beginning of each fiscal year according to a formula approved by the Trustees as follows:

1. The distribution amount will be calculated on a seven year (84 month) moving average of the market value per share of other pool as of the end of the calendar year (effective Fiscal Year 2010).
2. The distribution rate is 4.25%.
3. A one year floor will be utilized for Fiscal Year 2010, limiting the total distribution decline to 3% as compared to Fiscal Year 2009.

In order to maintain an orderly distribution of income under the distribution policy, an income reserve shall be maintained to accrue amounts to be distributed to the endowment funds.

Distributions are made to a fund's income account which is part of the University's Operating Fund. Distributions may be reinvested into principal; however, any reinvested distribution cannot be redistributed or withdrawn at another time.

April 3, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

(APPENDIX XXXIV)

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES DEVELOPMENT AND INVESTMENTS COMMITTEE

April 2, 2009

TOPIC: Asset Allocation

CONTEXT:

The Long-Term Investment Pool asset allocation has been reviewed and modified periodically.

The Chief Investment Officer has reviewed the current asset allocation and has recommendations for further improvements.

A review of the current asset allocation, imbedded in the investment policy, showed that:

- OSU's policy is too rigid and does not allow for tactical shifts of assets to take advantage of changing market conditions.
- OSU's policy does not focus on risk, instead utilizing conventional definitions of asset classes.

Consultation with leading peers, consultants, and other experts in the field suggests a need for a more flexible and risk oriented asset allocation model.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. Adopt new nomenclature to categorize assets into fewer, broader asset classes.
2. Adopt ranges for asset classes rather than targets.
3. Allow the use of futures, options, forwards and swaps for efficiency, cost and defensive purposes.
4. Re-evaluate in 12 months.

CONSIDERATIONS:

- What impact will these changes have on the portfolio?
- Will this provide the proper framework to review our asset exposures?
- Does this provide an appropriate level of flexibility for the CIO?
- How will we compare ourselves to others if they use the traditional asset classes?

REQUESTED OF DEVELOPMENT AND INVESTMENTS COMMITTEE:

Approval is being requested.

Office of Investments

Asset Allocation Discussion

Jonathan D. Hook
Vice President & Chief Investment Officer

Rationale for amending the Asset Allocation

- ◆ OSU has adopted a reasonable and aggressive approach to its Asset Allocation and the usage of Alternatives.
- ◆ Over time, investment managers have blurred the lines between asset classes.
- ◆ The LTIP needs to have some degree of flexibility in terms of opportunistic investing (where appropriate).
- ◆ All Hedge Funds are not the same. Some have more risk and volatility than others. Some are more equity oriented than others.
- ◇ Conclusion: Without a large change to the underlying allocation, we can reshape our portfolio to better express the types of risks we want and do not want in our portfolio.

Why Does this Change make sense?

Traditional Asset Classes and their performance benchmarks are of diminishing relevance for large Endowment portfolio management:

- Move from More asset classes to Fewer, Broader asset classes
- Broad ranges around Target Allocations
- Allow for greater Flexibility and to be Opportunistic
- Capital flows move much too quickly for slow processes
- Greater ability to focus on Alpha for tactical/strategic decisions

Why Does this Change make sense?

Key Drivers:

- Globalization
- Unconstrained Investment Mandates
- Mispricing of Asset Classes
- Blending of Asset Classes

Why make a distinction between Traditional and Alternative Assets when they are all "approved assets" for the portfolio?

Why lump all hedge funds in one bucket when they have many different strategies and risk profiles?

Notable Enhancements to New Asset

Allocation

Ranges placed upon each "Bucket" to allow for strategic/tactical movements (more flexibility for liquid asset types)

- 10-50% for Market Exposure (Public Equities)
- 25-50% for Risk Reducers (Lower Risk Hedge Fds. and Fixed Income)
- 10-25% for the Two Less-Liquid Buckets

Sublimits on specific asset limits

- Each subcomponent has a sub-limit for internal management purposes and to prohibit too much or unintended concentrations

Liquidity Screen added in to monitor the portfolio's liquidity and the ability to convert assets into cash, if necessary

Revised Benchmarks for Asset Allocation

Risk Reducers: 90 Day T-Bills + 4.0%

Return Enhancers: 120% (80% Russell 3000 + 20% EM Index)

25% (NACREIF Real Estate Index)

What we have Done/Undone

Added significant liquidity through Fixed Income Exposure
– Treasuries; Corporate Bonds; TIPS

Eliminated significant exposure to REITS before market collapsed

Declined several Private Equity Approvals/Recommendations

Description/Scope:

The Medical Center Facility Master Plan is a strategic initiative that will enable the Medical Center to expand its services in meeting its research, clinical and education missions to achieve parity with top-quartile academic medical centers nationwide. Project One will result in a net increase of approximately 270,000 gross square feet of parking; a net increase of approximately 1,060,000 gross square feet of clinical, faculty/staff/administrative, and support space; and renovate approximately 75,000 gross square feet of space.

This report provides an update on the project status and repackaging of the Medical Center Facilities Projects (Project One).

- EOC Clinical Expansion - Cancer and Critical Care
- Infrastructure and Roadways
- WOC Surface Parking Lot
- Spirit of Women Park/Landscape Architecture
- Decommissioning and Demolition of Med Center Facilities
- 10th Avenue Parking Garage
- RDJC-WEP Upgrades
- Cramblett Hall Renovation

Funding Status and Source: Funding has been confirmed and approved. Construction expenditures must be coordinated with the available debt capacity. The fundraising goal for the project is $75,000,000. It has not been determined which projects will require development funds; therefore, projects that will require development funds will be determined prior to requesting construction approval and submitted for BOT approval prior to construction for the CORE plan projects. Note that the Infrastructure and Roadways projects will move forward in 2009 for construction approval but will not have development dollars applied to them.

Logistics: There will be multiple logistics issues related to the amount of construction associated with these projects as well as across campus and surrounding communities. A global Construction Manager will be hired to ensure coordination.

Energy and Sustainability: Energy and sustainability will be addressed during the design phases as requested by the Board of Trustees.

High Voltage Switch and Cable Replacement

OSU-07 1598

Requesting Agency(s): FACILITIES OPERATIONS AND DEVELOPMENT

Location(s): See Project Information

ASF/O GSF App:

Description/Scope:

This project will replace existing primary switches with outdoor pad-mounted SF6 switches. This project will also include high voltage electrical cable replacements. The cable upgrades will provide for future growth in demand for the north campus area.

How does this project advance the Academic Plan? This project advances the Academic Plan by improving campus facilities, thereby enhancing the teaching and learning environment.

Logistics: This project will replace existing equipment that has reached life expectancy; increase electrical system reliability; add load capacity; add switching flexibility and speed under emergency conditions; and improve electrical system safety.

Risks: This project will significantly reduce maintenance costs as new switches have a longer life expectancy and reduced maintenance requirements.

Deferred Maintenance: This project will begin to address the approximately $20.4M in deferred maintenance along with phase 2. Switches are failing, causing unplanned extended building outages and emergency repair costs.

Requesting Agency(s): OHIO AGRIC RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CTR

Location(s): Animal & Plant Biology Isolation Facility

Description/Scope:

The proposed BSL-3 Isolation facility is a new integrated facility for the research of biological agents and pathogens in animals and supports critical research activities. The specific facility location was established through a secondary siting study during the feasibility study phase of the project. The size of the facility has been determined and the conceptual budget established. The program includes three large animal labs, with a fourth large animal lab included as an alternate.

How does this project advance the Academic Plan? To pursue research to prevent, treat, detect or control infectious diseases of animals. The facility is part of the OARDC Bio Ohio Research Park concept on the Wooster campus to enhance economic development in Northeast Ohio.

Funding Status and Source: Funding sources have been reviewed and validated. Funds associated with the grant monies from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) and the U.S. department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) are to be used for design. Half of the DHHS and HUD funds must be expended during the 2009 federal fiscal year (Oct - Sept). The balance of funds must be expended by September 2010. Any funds not expended will expire.

Risks: The building will have to be commissioned before it can be occupied, which may take a year to complete. During this time the facility will not be operational and cannot collect revenue.

PURCHASE OF REAL PROPERTY

FIVE (5) PARCELS
COLUMBUS, OHIO 43201

Location and Description

The University is presented with the opportunity to purchase real estate located at 328 W. Lane Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201. The property is located on the north side of West Lane Avenue, west of Tuttle Park Place, and proximate to the new Student Academic Services building. The property is being offered exclusively to the University by an Affiliated Entity (Campus Partners) for $20 million.

The property known as Holiday Inn on the Lane was owned by Harper Hotels Inc. since April 1993 prior to the anticipated sale to Campus Partners. The property consists of five (5) parcels containing approximately 2.1 acres, improved with a full-service eleven-story hotel building constructed in 1973 with 243 guest rooms and an attached multi-level concrete parking garage with 244 parking spaces. The University intends to purchase the property and convert the hotel building into a dormitory for student housing with a capacity of 450 beds, along with food service facilities, and student learning centers. The property has been appraised by two MAI appraisers, Nash-Wilson Associates and Columbus Real Estate Consultants, Inc., with their appraisal reports indicating values between $30,000,000 and $31,450,000 after the conversion is made for University student housing.

The estimate of costs to renovate the property to student housing for a targeted September 2009 occupancy is $8,500,000. Additional future renovations to the windows and curtain walls are currently being evaluated in terms of costs and gained energy efficiencies but are not required at this time to successfully convert the existing facility to meet student housing needs.

Use of the Property

It is the intention of the University to acquire this strategic property to accommodate the need for additional student housing. The cost for acquisition of the property and alterations will be funded by University bonds. Principal and interest for the bonds will be paid by Student Life through the collection of room revenues, food sales, and other miscellaneous income. Parking revenues may also be used to amortize the debt. Student Life projects a long-term use of this facility with a life of twenty years or longer.

The Chairman, Mr. Wexner, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on Friday, June 5, 2009, at 1:00 p m. He requested the Secretary to call the roll.

Present: Leslie H. Wexner, Chairman, Jo Ann Davidson, Douglas G. Borrer, Walden W. O'Dell, Alex Shumate, Brian K. Hicks, John C. Fisher, Robert H. Schottenstein, Alan W. Brass, Algenon L. Marbley, Linda S. Kass, William G. Jurgensen, Janet B. Reid, Jason W. Marion, and Alexis L. Swain.

Mr. Wexner:

Good afternoon. That rendition of the Buckeye Battle Cry is from when it was played in Dr. Gee's study, in that city in Tennessee, so I knew it would get him the second time. So we can conduct the meeting in an orderly fashion, I will turn off, and if everyone will turn off their cell phones and other devices, that will help us.

I would like to begin the meeting in welcoming our new Trustees and by thanking Governor Strickland. He has been very thoughtful in his appointment of Trustees to the Board, and likewise so was Governor Taft. That is appreciated and I recognize the seriousness, as he does, of these appointments. It is important to the state, and clearly important to the University, and obviously important to Governor Strickland and Chancellor Fingerhut.

First let me recognize my friend, Jerry Jurgensen. We have worked together on a lot of community good projects in the community, and some even in the state. Jerry is an incredibly generous spirit in terms of giving of his time and effort for community good. His record of accomplishment and support in the state, the country, and particularly in central Ohio; the generosity of Nationwide's gift to Columbus Children's Hospital, his work in higher education and economic development as part of Columbus partnership is really amazing. Jerry's background in his profession and his business career in terms of understanding large complex organizations and cultures will be of immense value. It has been already, so formally I welcome you.

Secondly let me recognize Dr. Janet Reid. Janet and I are also friends; I guess we have known each other over a decade. Janet has a Ph.D. in organic chemistry from Howard University, had a distinguished career as a teacher, as an executive at Proctor & Gamble, and then created her own company called Global Lead, specializing in human resources and understanding culture and people in much broader ways than just a human resource executive. She brings a wealth of background and experience to the University, so it is a pleasure to welcome you also.

Most recently, not a tenure acquaintance but maybe ten hours, is Alex Swain, our new student Trustee serving a two year term. Alex is from Huron, Ohio pursuing a dual degree in business administration, accounting and health sciences, and is a recipient of the Ohio Board of Regents Academic Scholarship, and the OSU Traditions award. Alex is very active in student organizations and we look forward to your contributions and we look forward to working with you too.

Next let me call on Provost Joe Alutto who I have known for more than ten years. I have known everybody but Alex for more than ten years.

DISTINGUISHED UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS PRESENTATION

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. Today I am delighted and very proud to present to the Board three stellar faculty members, truly exemplars for the conferment of the title Distinguished University Professor. This title is the highest honor that the University bestows on faculty members, and to date only 38 other faculty members have ever received this prestigious honor. Distinguished University Professors, along with Ohio Eminent Scholars, compose the President's and Provost's Advisory Committee. This is a group to which Gordon and I frequently turn to as a sounding board to brainstorm ideas and to hear suggestions and receive sound counsel. In addition to being among our most trusted advisors, Distinguished University Professors receive a one-time cash award of $30,000 from the Office of Academic Affairs.

Our distinguished faculty honorees are from vastly different areas of research and are all recognized as being among the top scholars in their respective fields and superb teachers who have given significant service to their disciplines and beyond. Ohio State is truly enriched by having such world-class scholars in our ranks.

Would Professor Ruth Colker, The Heck-Faust Memorial Chair in Constitutional Law at the Michael E. Moritz College of Law, and Dean Alan Michaels now come forward?

Professor Colker is credited with founding the field for disability legal studies and is also a widely recognized scholar in constitutional law and feminist legal theory. Nominators wrote that her work "has been cited by the United States Supreme Court, influenced the United States Congress, and has long been very widely cited and relied on by other legal academics."

She is author of several books including The Law of Disability Discrimination. Professor Colker received Ohio State's University Distinguished Lecture Award, the Service-Learning Award, and the Distinguished Scholar Award. She earned her bachelor and law degrees from Harvard University. Dean Michaels will talk more about her outstanding contributions shortly. Congratulations, Ruth.

Would Professor Fritz Graf, chair of the Department of Greek and Latin; and Interim Dean of the Colleges of the Arts and Humanities, John Roberts, please come forward?

Professor Graf's nominator wrote that he is "a towering figure in two fields, Classics and History of Religion, and among the top five classisists in the world."

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

He is the author of five major books with two more on the way, a co-author of a sixth book, an editor of four volumes, and a co-editor of seven more. He earned his doctorate at the University of Zurich and continued postdoctoral training at Oxford University. Before coming to Ohio State in 2002, he was the Andrew Fleming White Professor at Princeton University. One of his nominators wrote that "he has been a pillar of the University, leading the Department of Greek and Latin from strength to strength."

He is also a recipient of the 2009 Distinguished Scholar Award, truly a banner year. Interim Dean Roberts will talk more about Professor Graf in a few minutes. Congratulations, Fritz.

Would Professor Richard Steckel, Department of Economics; Interim Dean Gifford Weary of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences; and Professor Don Haurin, Chair of the Department of Economics, please come forward.

Professor Steckel is internationally known for his path-breaking work in an area of economic history, and the author or co-author of four books and dozens of articles published in prestigious journals. Professor Steckel has won several prestigious honors at Ohio State, including the University Distinguished Lecturer Award, the Joan Huber Faculty Fellow Award, and the Distinguished Scholar Award, and he is the recipient of distinctive honors in his discipline, including the Lifetime Achievement Award in the field of Cliometrics, a field that I hope he is going to tell us more about.

He earned a bachelor degree in economics from Oberlin College, a master degree in economics and a master's degree in mathematics from the University of Oklahoma, and then a master's degree and a doctorate from the University of Chicago. Congratulations, Rick. Interim Dean Giff Weary will tell us more about your work shortly.

Now I would like to invite Dean Michaels to make some remarks.

Dr. Alan C. Michaels:

Thank you Joe. I am so excited to be here today for our recognition of Ruth Colker. We hired Ruth as a chair in constitutional law a little over ten years ago, so she came to us already with an extraordinarily distinguished record in her field. We were fortunate enough to have a gift that allowed us to make a major hire, and she was said hire. She came in with an expertise in constitutional law and her expertise in that area related to some issues regarding federalism, which was a hot issue at the time. She was also in feminist legal theory - a leading scholar. Disability law was more in her future at that time, and she is known as the founder of the field. She is really a creature of statute. When I was in law school in the 1980's there was no field and then Congress passed some statutes that made disability law. I am sure everyone sitting in this room is aware of the impact of that law, in employment and education. Congress passes this statute, and it was out there to be used by courts, and by lawyers. Ruth Colker is the person who already with an extraordinarily distinguished record got energized by that and organized that as a field of academic discipline. Writing the first casebook, being a leader at being something taught to students, and then as more and more law develops, and scholars start looking at it, the starting point for research in that area. Her record of scholarly energy throughout a career that has many years to go, I am happy to say as dean, is truly extraordinary and exemplary.

Just a couple of other points I would like to touch on though, is certainly in our field, law, which we are training people to practice law and so there is sometimes a tension between professors who are very interested in theory on the one hand, a more academic approach, and professors who are interested in the training, the actual practice of law. Ruth really exemplifies bridging that gap and being a leader in both fields. She is cited for her theoretical work but also is intimately involved with the bar and training lawyers. Her disability work, for example, leads to have her articles cited in Supreme Court briefs and opinions, and also drawn on her expertise in a consultation way, both from litigants in the field and from both Ohio State and the local courthouse, having her help them figure out how can we do things the right way. Along those lines, the three parts of our mission: scholarship, teaching and service; she is an extraordinary scholar, a founder of her field, unbelievable in that regard at the top of our profession, but not at the cost of those other two areas. Instead she has found a way to integrate what is exciting her in her scholarly agenda, into teaching and service. In the disability area, she has started a new class that has a "clinical component," so her students go out and do accessibility studies, applying the disability law to The Ohio State University in the first instance, and to some courthouses coming up. Similarly with special education, she not only teaches them the law but has her students go out and work with families with kids with special needs and makes sure they have a good relationship with the schools they are going to. She integrates her leading theoretical and practical knowledge as an academic into the teaching and service mission. That regard is a model for really everything we are trying to do at the law school, and we are so pleased that you are recognizing her in this way, because we are so very, very proud of her. Thank you and let me turn it over to Professor Colker.

One more thing, she is not in fact disabled. I know you saw her come up in a walker. Just ten days ago, Ruth, who is a very fit crew in colleges, was on a long bike ride, and someone did not have their dog properly restrained, and the dog ran out in front of the bike and Ruth had a serious accident with a broken femur. She is here with three pins in her leg with six weeks to go until she can really start walking again. We are very grateful that she was able to make it in for us today, but now she is seeing and living some of her scholarship in a way that I am sure she wished she did not have to, but I am especially appreciative of her ability to make it here today.

Dr. Ruth Colker:

Well I can only say that I am extremely honored and humbled by this award. I knew I had been nominated by the law faculty but never dreamed that I would actually win such a prestigious award. As Alan well knows, no one in the law faculty has ever won such an award, and I am just so honored to be the first, but I hope the first among many, because the law school is such a fine unit of the University and there are so many of my colleagues who do such outstanding work, that I am pleased I can be their first representative here today.

As Alan says, I really do enjoy combining experiential work with theoretical work. I did not realize I was going to have to experience using a walker for ten days before I could win this award, so I guess it was worth it to have that bike accident so I could really be qualified to understand my field even more fully. On a more serious note, there are so many people I would like to thank. I would first like to thank the great Heck-Faust family who endowed the Chair in Constitutional Law, that made it possible for the law school to steal me from the University of Pittsburgh, my hometown, a city I was very happy to live in, but the enticement of joining this community was just so strong, and the opportunities that this chair brought me were just so many, that I thought I needed to relocate. In fact I interviewed for this position ten days after giving birth to my little boy. He is not so little, sitting behind you, so I really appreciate your generosity in making such gifts possible. I know many people in this room are the kind of people that help those gifts be available, and I want you to know how much us faculty appreciate your efforts.

My work was generously supported by foundations and grants, and two that are noteworthy, are the USX Foundation, which supported my empirical work the day I arrived at the law school, and really allowed me to get going doing the empirical work I have been wanting to do for years, and did not know a way to access the resources I needed to do that work, and I am very thankful that they helped me get started. At the law school we have a center for interdisciplinary law and policy study and that center has also supported my work for the last twelve years, and I very much appreciate that.

There are so many people who have supported me. Greg Williams was the dean when I was hired. He did a fabulous job recruiting me, but everything he said was true, and that is "the easiest way to recruit people is when what you tell people is simply the truth." Nancy Rogers followed in Greg's footsteps and was a fabulous leader as well, and now Alan is doing a great job. Barbara Snyder was the chair of the appointments committee when I was hired, and I am sure you all know Barbara, a dear friend of the University, and if she were here I know she would be very grateful to see this accomplishment. So many other people at the law school have supported me. I also wanted to mention my family. My parents would so much like to be here today; they heard my distinguished lecture; they were here when I got my Distinguished Scholar Award, and if my mother was not terminally ill, they would be here today. My children who are here, they are sitting behind me, and I really appreciate that they are here. My daughter has been here for each of those three events, and my son has been here for two out of three, when he was a couple of years old we thought he was better off staying home, and I think we all would agree with that one. I just want to thank you so much for all you do and for your wonderful support, and I am going to rededicate myself to show that I really have earned this award, and I hope that in future years people will look back and say, "Wow, Ruth really did great things," after they made the mistake of giving her the Distinguished University Professor, so thank you.

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you. Dean Roberts.

Dr. John W. Roberts:

It is a great pleasure both personal and professional to have this opportunity to publicly congratulate Fritz Graff on being named Distinguished University Professor. I could easily say that this honor could not have happened to a nicer guy. While this beseeched statement would be literally true, it would not capture the qualities that make Fritz deserving of this honor. Fritz is an immensely talented scholar with an impressive record of achievement in his field of classics where he specialized in the study of the religions of Greece. His intellectual stature is attested to by the lengthy list of publications that he has produced, the honors, the awards and fellowships that he has received over the years, the positions of leadership in which he has been placed by his colleagues at the university and in his profession, and the success of the students that he has mentored that have gone on to be the next generation of scholar teachers at some of the most prestigious universities in the world.

In rehearsing the accomplishments that have guarded this honor, I would want to note the mirrored ways that he has contributed to the excellence and vibrancy of his field. During his tenure at the University of Zurich, for instance, he served as president of the Swiss Association of Classical Studies and was a founding member of the Swiss Association for the Study of Religion. Currently he is an active member of at least five professional societies, including the American Philological Association, American Academy of Religion and the American Society for Greek and Latin Epigraphy. Through his professional affiliations, Fritz continues to ensure that the study of the classics remain a viable part of the curriculum, as well as the foundational discipline in the contemporary university.

At Ohio State, colleagues across the campus appreciate and benefit from Fritz's genteel brand of collegiality, which is always evident in his interactions with colleagues and students. Those of us who live and work in the confines of University Hall are particularly appreciative of Fritz's open smile, cheerful greetings and warm hospitality. For us, he has come to signify the most appropriate demeanor for approaching the all too serious business of education, especially on days that we find it difficult to emulate him. Those qualities combined with his incredible intellect and scholarly productivity has made him an ideal candidate for this honor. They also make it easy for us to rejoice with Fritz and his family today as he receives this well deserved recognition for his outstanding contributions to the life of the mind.

On behalf of myself and all of his colleagues in Arts and Humanities, I want to express our sincere appreciation to the Board of Trustees for recognizing the many contributions of Fritz Graff to his students, his profession and The Ohio State University. Thank you.

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you. Fritz would you like to say something.

Dr. Fritz Graff:

I am honored, humbled and overwhelmed by this Board, and I thank you for thinking of a classicist, as I would call myself, a Classical Philologist. I think I am the first Classical Philologist in this University who got this award, and it is still so new that my mind has not wrapped itself fully around it.

Looking back on my career, I want to thank all these people who helped bring me here, and who have helped my research and my accomplishments at this University. I thank, especially my dean, John Roberts, not only for his very kind words, but for his very kind and helpful presence in University Hall. I thank colleagues in Greek and Latin, and I thank especially the one institution - Ohio State, in the first place, and that has proved to be a major source of research possibilities both for my own research and for having European and American research that is the center for epigraphical and plographical studies, because one of my fields, classical philology is vast and vague, one of my fields in there is Greek and Roman epigraphy, the study of inscriptions, and Ohio State is happy having an institution which in its existence and its possibilities is almost unique not only in this country, but in the entire world. It is one of the very few centers for the study of Greek inscriptions.

My other sub-field is Ancient Greek and Roman religion and magic. I wish I could have done some magic when the sound system broke down, but I am afraid it does not work. My magic is entirely theoretical and the one thing that amused me a couple of years ago, I published a book on Greek and Roman magic, it was a discussion on Amazon on whether this book would help magicians, and the final note came from someone, this guy is a university professor, it does not help. I would still think what I am doing as a classicist as a student of antiquity, is to connect with the present world and to make a step back to look at this route from their world and to understand what this world is about by understanding what their world is about. I am immensely grateful that this award not only confirms that this is a good and useful approach, but that this award gives me the possibility for years to come to work on that project once again and to use the epigraphy center among other things for this project. Thank you.

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you Fritz. Dean Weary.

Dr. Gifford Weary:

The Distinguished University Professor Award is really, of all the awards we give, one of the most important and one of the reasons for that is to receive this you have to really excel in all three of our performance areas, research, teaching and service. There is no question, that Richard Steckel has achieved great accomplishments in all three. Probably the most central requirement for any Distinguished University Professor is a stellar research record, and on that front, there also can be no doubt what so ever about Richard's very real and very significant strengths. He has done groundbreaking research into the relationship of height to economic health and welfare, basically creating a new interdisciplinary field. A field that spans biology, economics, history, demography and physical anthropology. That should give you some idea about why Richard Steckel was selected for this award.

Through his research he has been able to convince a very skeptical audience of scholars and scientists in these diverse disciplines that the measurement of height and other physical parameters can shed important new light on previously known relationships between income, equality, productivity and various measures of health. Importantly he has made his work very accessible to people working in these disciplines and to the lay public. His work on the study of human growth includes National Science Foundation projects on several different countries. The superlatives that his nominators used to describe his work and his research is "his path-breaking sets the standard," "it is important," "it is influential and it is of Nobel Prize quality," and I would only say that I agree with all of those. The Distinguished University Professor designation as you hear from Provost Alutto, only adds to Richard Steckel's impressive list of recognitions at Ohio State. It is well deserved and on behalf of all of your colleagues, congratulations.

Dr. Richard H. Steckel:

I too am very humbled and honored, and have many people to thank, but I would begin with my wife Barbara, who is sitting back here, who has been a lifelong partner, or at least as far as my research is concerned. We met at the University of Oklahoma, and there was instant attachment or attraction, and she has helped me code data, so she has really been part of the research program as well as very much an emotional partner in all of this.

Let me say a few words about my research because it seems to be so unusual, and I can keep this under a minute and a half. My field is economic history, and the central questions in that field are; when, how, why and where did we become rich and healthy compared to our ancestors. We are much better off than the people who lived five to ten generations ago; they would all think we live in heaven I believe. Well how did that happen? Well we need measurements of social performance in order to figure this out. The standard measurements of life expectancy and per capita GEP only go back about 100 years or less, 150 years in some countries perhaps, so we needed ways to appraise progress, and there are very good ways in the dimension of health that is working with heights. After considerable discussion with experts, and my mentor in this was J.M. Tanner who is a very well-known human biologist at the University of London, I learned that we are all biological machines. That is, we consume fuel: calories, protein, vitamins, minerals, and micronutrients. The demands on those fuels as a result of basal metabolism such as just keeping warm in bed, and there are demands imposed by physical work and by disease. So, we can think of ones opportunity for growth as reflecting that nutrition or nutritional status. Children will not grow well or rapidly if they have low nutritional status, either poor diet, hard work or heavy disease load, they all play a role.

I also knew that historical heights were very abundant from military records, muster rolls that go back to the 1700's, also from slave manifests that started to be collected in about 1808. There are dozens of sources of heights, millions and millions of records available for study that had not been tapped for purposes of studying history of social sciences. So when I started this project in the late 1970's it was very difficult getting funding, even getting work published. I had most of my papers, early ones, rejected, some several times, and actually NSF did not support any of this earlier work, nor NIH for that matter. It was The Ohio State University who made this happen. It was absolutely critical for my success. When I arrived here in the mid-70's I discovered, much to my delight, that I had a research assistant provided by the department who could help me code data, along with Barbara, and I had computer time on the main-frame, now PCs. I have visited many other universities and one of the strengths of Ohio State is this kind of technical support in main-frame computers and PCs and the like. It is really stellar. Moreover, I had something very unusual in my early years here, and that is free data entry. Back in those days it was key punching; now it would be in a spreadsheet or something like that. The computer center provided the key punching and verification, and I became their major customer in those years, accumulating dozens of boxes of punch cards with the kind of data that I used. Moreover there was the college and university small grants programs that enabled me to hire people to travel and do those things. I think this work would have atrophied without that kind of support. It was just too much of a leap for NSF and others to buy; they do now, but back then, no.

So that is number one to thank. Number two, this is very interdisciplinary work, and I benefited enormously from the size of Ohio State. It has virtually all fields and departments covered. During the course of my research I have used every library on campus, and I have had many conversations with people all over the University throughout the social sciences and the humanities, but also math and physical sciences, geodetic sciences, even biochemistry, and a lot of interaction with people in the med school who help bring people in with related interests such as mine, most recently Dr. David Barker, and before that J.M. Tanner himself.

Finally I would say what has facilitated this interdisciplinary work is Midwestern friendliness. Ohio, Columbus, Ohio State are just friendly places. People are approachable. I have never been turned down for an opportunity for coffee, lunch, a telephone conversation, or what have you. People here are just very approachable. It is a great strength of the University as far as I am concerned and it certainly added to my success. With that I think I will stop.

Dr. Alutto:

Thank you Rick. Mr. Chairman that concludes my program, but I hope you have a sense of both the breadth and the excitement that is created by these scholars. If the Board has any questions of the honorees, the floor is open.

Mr. Wexner:

The only idea that came to mind, that I whispered to Gordon, we have a great recruiting video right here just listening to these distinguished scholars.

Thank you and congratulations.

STUDENT RECOGNITION AWARDS

Mr. Marion:

Today I have the wonderful pleasure of presenting to you all, one more time, and to the members of the Board, two outstanding students coming to us. They are both highly deserving of this recognition, and they are joining us today.

The first student we will be recognizing is a 1993 graduate of The Ohio State University in psychology and now he is back, Mr. Dennis Niekro. He comes to OSU pursuing a master of science in nursing degree. Since arriving in September, he is already making a big impression. His peers indicate he is articulate, inquisitive, energetic and passionate about continuing his education, and very passionate about a career in healthcare. He brings integrity, which is evidenced by the fact that he was able to secure a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Scholarship in the new careers in nursing field. His college tells me great things.

Beyond being active on the college's diversity committee, he has been instrumental in creating a new student organization in the college called N-SPIRE (Nursing Students Promoting Initiatives to Reinforce Equality), that aims to combat health disparities through community outreach and collaboration with healthcare professionals.

In addition to these academic activities and his student organization activities, he has been very active in the community and important health care related activities, impacting all persons at all stages in their life cycle, from young to old. For example, as a community health educator for Planned Parenthood of Central Ohio, he has designed and implemented a demographically-appropriate sex education curriculum for tenth grade health education students in an urban high school, and he has also been a spiritual counselor for Jewish Community Hospice, and in that capacity he collaborated with an interdisciplinary hospice team to develop care plans and a spiritual assessment tool for patients and families and developing and coordinating the agencies bereavement services program. He has provided bereavement after care to families and educated staff and volunteers about Jewish death and mourning customs and rituals. Also related to his interests in culturally competent communication, Dennis has developed an inner-generational family education program for the Wexner Heritage Village in which he educated participants about Jewish perspectives on aging and the tradition of ethical wills. After reading all of this, definitely an exemplary graduate student at this University who fulfills all the components of what we look for in a Student Recognition Awardee by this Board. I believe he is planning on graduating with a master of science in nursing in 2011. With that being said I will invite Dennis up for recognition.

I will read the certificate, the Student Recognition Award. The Ohio State University Board of Trustees hereby recognizes Dennis M. Niekro, College of Nursing for this Outstanding Leadership and dedicated service to The Ohio State University, and Dennis is joined today with family and I believe friends and Dean Lentz. He is an outstanding recipient.

Dean Roberts is getting a lot of fame today as one of his students is being recognized. Ms. Robyn Young comes to The Ohio State University from Rochester, New York. She is a dance major in what I believe is probably a top dance program in the country, with a focus on dance education. She recently received her dance education licensure. During her time at OSU she has been very active on campus and in the community through a variety of venues. She currently is the coordinator of the student organization, Dancing to Zion, and is a member of the African American Voices Gospel Choir, which is an outstanding program, and they do excellent concerts. Her accomplishments within her field of study include the co-production of a distinction project, Inherited Movement, Traditions Redefined, which brought campus and community audience members together to experience evening-length performances of dance forms of the African Diaspora.

Upon completion of the performances, she and her project partner, Ms. Erika Harris, performed lecture/demonstrations for audiences in the greater Columbus community, including the 4-H Center at Indianola Middle School, Fort Hayes Metropolitan Education Center, Manor Care Facilities, and dance courses on the OSU campus.

Ms. Young was recently honored by Dr. E. Gordon Gee at the President's Salute Dinner, along with some of the most accomplished students of the University. This month, she will be receiving the Multicultural Center Outstanding Undergraduate Student Award. In addition, beyond all of her other activities she has also been engaged in some undergraduate research. She secured second place at the 2009 Denman Research Forum in the category of arts/architecture for her distinction project. After graduating this spring, Ms. Young will be joining Teach for America to continue pursuing her passion for teaching.

With that being said, Ms. Robyn Young, will you come up and join us.

Mr. Dennis M. Niekro:

Ladies and gentleman of the Board of Trustees and President Gee, please allow me to begin by extending my gratitude for bestowing this award on me. I am overwhelmed by your consideration and recognition. It is a true privilege to be here with all of you today and to say thank you, not just for this award, but for all that you do to make The Ohio State University foremost among American universities.

Even as a child I knew that Ohio State would be a significant part of my future. After graduating from high school 22 years ago, I began my undergraduate studies at OSU with the aspirations of pursuing a career in healthcare. I explored various potential paths as I worked diligently to complete the requisite foundation coursework. To be immersed in a research rich learning and research environment where excellence is the standard was a dream come true.

Early in the third year of my studies however, I was forced to abandon my educational goals when I was unexpectedly diagnosed with a life limiting illness. With the new priorities of achieving healing and restoring wholeness, I sought a different kind of relationship with the University as a staff member who supported the work of faculty and students. Eventually my passion for learning called me back to the classroom, and I graduated with a B.A. in psychology in September 1993. I went on to work as a research assistant in the department of psychiatry and then as a psychometrist at University Hospitals.

Over the years my quest for wellness has also led me in directions away from OSU, but I always maintained a sense of connection to the University and to my identity as a Buckeye. I have sought professional and volunteer opportunities to promote self care in others and to support their discovery of the innate human capacity for healing. Every experience has been steadily bringing me full circle back to Ohio State, back to pursuing my dream of serving others through a career in healthcare.

I now endeavor to complete my master of science in nursing and become a certified adult nurse practitioner. Inspired by the many healthcare providers here at OSU who have helped me on my healing journey and have influenced my experiences and facilitated wellness in self in others, I strive to offer an empathetic compassionate presence to all of the patients for whom I provide care.

It is an honor to represent the student body of the College of Nursing today. Dean Lentz and Dr. Dailey, my advisor, thank you for being here to celebrate this moment with me. The support and encouragement I have received from each of you and from the other faculty and staff at the College of Nursing have contributed to making my first year as a graduate nursing student incredibly meaningful and rewarding.

I have no doubt that the knowledge and clinical experiences I am gaining will prepare me well for a successful career as an advanced practice nurse. I look forward to making you proud in the years to come. Last, but not means least, I want to thank my partner, Paul, whose sacrifices and hard work helps to make it possible for me to achieve my goals. Paul, you helped me to remember how to dream big, I know I would not be here today if it were not for your love, endless patience and support.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Again, thank you, to each of you for all that you do for inspiring me, supporting me and making it possible for me to attain my full potential.

Ms. Robyn J. Young:

Good afternoon. First I would like to start with a thank you to all who have supported and encouraged me over the past four years. My family, in their absence, they could not be here today, as well as the chair of the department of Dance, Susan Van Pelt Petry who is here with me today, and some of my professors, Val Williams and Dr. Dixon. I would also like to thank the Board of Trustees and Dean Roberts for this prestigious award.

When I arrived at Ohio State from upstate New York, I never imagined I would be honored so generously by you. My goal was simply to learn and explore as much as I could and to prepare myself for the workforce, so to be recognized for all my hard work and effort is quite gratifying.

Attending Ohio State has afforded me so many opportunities to engage in research both scholastically and kinesthetically inside and outside the classroom. With the help of faculty and fellow students I have researched and spread my knowledge and diversity not only to the OSU campus community, but also to the greater Columbus community. I have had an incredibly fulfilling undergraduate experience, one that exceeded my former expectations of college. As a first generation graduate I do not take higher education for granted. In light of this I am thrilled to be moving on to employment with Teach for America in Charlotte, New York where I will spend the next two years educating students who deserve a better education.

Because of my degree from Ohio State, I am now in a position to make a lasting difference in the lives of many children, and for that I thank you. I will show my gratitude by taking all that I have learned and experienced these past four years and use it to help young students find their way to a better education and life. Thank you.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much. I think we will move on to the President's report.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Gee:

I am going to try and be as fast as I can because I must say I am inspired by just what we have seen. Three truly world class faculty members. Let me say I do not use that word just widely, they are truly world class, and bring great distinction to this institution and obviously those two wonderful students, undergraduate and graduate, who will go on and make their mark in the world, will make us very proud and more importantly who will do significant things to bring honor to themselves, to their family and make this a civilized society for which I am most grateful.

I want to welcome our new Board members, Jerry, welcome. I will just tell a quick story about Jerry Jurgensen. When I came to this institution I determined that one of the things we needed to do was engage in culture change, and so I went and visited Jerry who had been thinking a lot about this and had developed a process through Senn Delaney, a group we are now working with, convinced me that it was a wonderful process. We have them working with us, and I think the change in culture of this institution in many ways is due to your own inspiration for me, and I just want to acknowledge that, so now you are going to have to live with it.

And, Janet, welcome. We are honored to have you here. I know you slightly, I know you by reputation in so many different ways, and I know the value you will bring to this Board will be extraordinarily important. I might just say to Larry Lewellen over there, the first question she asked "Are we thinking about the holistic values about the whole person?" Something that in our high performance culture, we are really working on.

Alex Swain is one of the great young students who will serve on this Board, and Alex, we are very proud of you. I am very proud of you. So we have much to thank in terms of additions to the Board, and I want to thank our Governor as our chairman did for making superb appointments. The strength of this University is its faculty, staff and students, and the strength of this University is this leadership through its Board. So I acknowledge his great work and I also want to acknowledge, the Governor and the bipartisan legislature, that despite tumultuous times they continue to support this University at unprecedented levels. They have many difficult choices to make, but one of the choices they have made is the continuing support of education and higher education, realizing that the future of this state is going to be determined by its ability to reinvent itself and we are the reinvention vehicle, and so we stand here in great appreciation of their support, but we also pledge to them, and I have written a note to each of them saying that I pledge on behalf of all of my colleagues at this institution and our Board that the best investment you will make in Ohio is in this University. In turn we will do as promised, which is to make an enormous difference to all 11 million Ohioans, and so I want to acknowledge that.

I did have an opportunity to note that spring has fully arrived on campus, and we know that not because of birds, bees and baseball. The surest signs are frisbees, flip-flops and free advice on the Oval - if you have not been part of that.

Spring is also awards season on campuses across the country, and I am proud to say that the University is claiming a rightful share of those. As many of you know, I just hate these rankings, but I am falling in love with them because we are doing so damn well. I want you to note, we are doing superbly well.

The latest U.S. News and World Report rankings of graduate programs were additional fodder for my evolving perspective. Among the highlights, Ohio State now has 11 graduate programs ranked in the top ten nationally. That moves us into the front ranks of American institutions. Among them are: American politics, social psychology, social stratification, several programs in education, supply chain management and dispute resolution, and many are knocking on the door.

We also saw a notable rise in the rankings of the colleges of medicine and engineering. Medicine I believe had the largest single rise in ranking of any medical school in the nation. Steve, am I right about that, shake your head and say yes. That was a rhetorical question Steve, you know that, and also engineering and the Fisher College of Business, three of our distinguished colleges, but indeed they are being recognized for their worth.

Finally, U.S. News has cited Ohio State as one of the nation's best places for undergraduate research. After touring several hundred extraordinary Denman Research projects in the RPAC last month, I will tell you this: U.S. News got its facts right. We have an extraordinary program. I will say this to the Board, of which our undergraduates have an opportunity to engage in. Clear headed and opportunistic research, which very few students in this country can, and we have such a large array for people that it is quite remarkable. Our individual faculty members make a real difference in the lives of our undergraduates.

In the English Department, John King has received a Guggenheim fellowship. Two faculty members were elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, joining our leader here, Ann Hamilton in art and Tina Henkin in microbiology. I might just add as a note that Ann Hamilton also received the Heinz Prize this year which in many ways recognizes the best of American living artists, so she has had an extraordinary year. Polar climate expert Ellen Mosley-Thompson was named to the National Academy of Science, and a new star is headed our way. Joseph Steinmetz will assume the position of Executive Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences on July 1. Dr. Steinmetz is internationally regarded as one of the leading authorities in neuropsychology. He was the interim provost and dean at the University of Kansas and has made a lifetime of fostering academic collaborations, so he is exactly the right person at this institution at exactly the time that we need him.

On score, I want to publicly thank Joan Leitzel who like Cincinnatus came off the fields to do what she has done. We will have an opportunity to recognize her later, but Dr. Leitzel has done a remarkable job as our Interim Dean, and I thank her. I want to publicly acknowledge the faculty leadership. Dick Gunther, where are you, raise your hand, and Heather Allen. You know we just had a meeting yesterday, and we talked about issues confronting the institution. We have forged a collaboration of extraordinary power and importance between the University and its administration. That is not due to us, that is due to the faculty leadership. Visionary indeed and I cannot thank you enough. I will also miss both of you, but will still be around; I want you to know that. I am grateful for their service, and Katie Hall, where are you Katie, raise your hand down there. We have at this institution a wonderful staff, and we have great staff leadership. I want to make a point, I made it to all the Board, but this year our faculty and staff gave $5.1 million to this institution in an internal campaign. The largest amount given by any group of faculty and staff to their university in this country, and it was a 6% increase in a time of economic turmoil. I think that Katie and her team deserve a round of applause.

As always our students are the liveliest part of the University, and they are accomplishing great things. The list of their national awards is a long one, nearly as long as the list of my university presidencies, and so I will mention just a few. Hudson McFann, an undergraduate majoring in geography was named a Beinecke Scholar. The scholarship will provide substantial funding for his doctoral work. Nathan Webb, a senior majoring in mechanical engineering has received a NASA Aeronautics Scholarship, one of only five I might note nationwide. The award includes not only fellowship support, but also an internship at NASA. Stacyann Russell, another engineering student has been elected chair of the National Society of Black Engineers. With 31,000 members, that organization is one of the nation's largest student-run groups.

This spring, I will note, our athletes have been described in the newspapers as having a "season to remember." The women's pistol team completed an undefeated season, winning the NRA Intercollegiate National Championships. I will not be making any jokes about women's pistol, I will assure you. Our fencing team finished third in the NCAA Championships. For the second time in two years the wrestling team finished second in the NCAA. By the way Coach Tom Ryan, our wrestling coach and his assistant were both named national Coaches of the Year. I would say that we have deep bench strength there. Men's tennis came very close to the NCAA title, as you know they were ranked number one all season, and then lost to those devils from USC. Our baseball team won the Big Ten title. In this winning season, Associate Vice President and Athletic Director, Gene Smith received the 2009 Distinguished American Award from the National Football Foundation, and he also was named the best athletic director in the country.

And yes, our spring game drew 97,000 fans, extraordinary; people need to get a life! I think the reason everyone shows up is because that is the one game we are going to win, for sure. I should not say that, but it is great.

A couple of quick observations on our facilities. Last spring we held a topping ceremony for the new Ohio Union. Just last week we had a plank-signing ceremony there. I will not go into anything about eye-patches and swords or whatever, but last month we christened the reconfigured Thompson Library with my spring address to the faculty. The Library has been restored in ways that are both inspiring and practical. Some of you have seen it, and crews are busy moving books in now, and the building will be ready for use in the fall. It is probably the most technologically advanced library in this country, if not the world.

In closing I want to simply say that the end of this season, I firmly believe this institution will lead the way in educational innovation and in partnership with the communities we serve. During the past few months I have traveled to three of our extended campuses and to more than half a dozen states. At every turn, I have been overwhelmed by the love and support of our alumni and friends. Nearly half a million strong, our alumni are one of this University's most powerful assets. I am beholden to them as I am beholden to this Board, as I am beholden to our 40,000 faculty and staff and our 62,000 students for allowing me to lead this great University. So I thank you every day for this opportunity.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Are there any questions of Dr. Gee?

Now we will move to the Committee reports.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Audit Committee had two meetings since our last Board Meeting. One in May and one yesterday in June. I was unable to attend the May meeting, and in a moment I will ask Committee Vice Chair Fisher to report on the matters from the May meeting.

As for yesterday's meeting we had a fairly brief agenda. We reviewed the internal audit work plan for fiscal year 2010. You can see it in your Board books. It is extremely robust with the various audits broken down into departments or colleges, or projects, which are audited annually, those which are audited every three years, and those which are audited once every five years. The committee was very satisfied that we have adequate staffing to do that which is necessary. We also were briefed on two compliance matters, one in the area of human resources where Mr. Lewellen brought us up-to-date on some new rules that have been promulgated, that allow for us to establish some of our own designations and procedures for Civil Service employees, and also some changes to Federal COBRA legislation, and how we are managing each of those to achieve compliance.

Finally Mr. Shkurti made a presentation in the compliance area dealing with the potential for us to be receiving federal stimulus money, and based upon the likelihood that we will, how can we best prepare ourselves to make certain that not just the money is spent the way it is supposed to be, but that we comply with whatever requirements we may see as a result of receiving that money. We do not know what those requirements are, so this was somewhat of a 30,000 foot report, but in order to ready ourselves for the possibility that we may be receiving stimulus funds, a special taskforce has been formed to begin to address this so we can assure compliance.

Jack if you would bring everyone up to date on the May meeting.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Fisher:

Thank you. There are a lot of things that go on here at the University relative to our quality of life and quality of operations for the extended family. I want to share briefly about three of those, and if they do their jobs well, we will never hear about them again until the next review. I want to give them their due credit.

First of all Dr. Andy Thomas, and Ms. Almeta Cooper along with a great number of people, who put together the vendor interaction policy, which will become effective July 1, and this will be at the Medical Center, and the purpose of the policy is to outline acceptable business practices and ethical principles that will guide the interactions of all faculty, staff and trainees at the University Medical Center with vendor corporations and vendor representatives.

We also heard from Mr. Doug Archie, from the Athletic Department, talking about compliance and certainly we put a high priority on compliance in the athletic department. A lot of time is spent on education, and what we have to follow relative to the NCAA and Big Ten conferences is fairly complex and so it takes a lot of time sorting out what we need to do and understanding the complexity of the program. Certainly we are very appreciative of the effort put forth by the athletic department. We did have a number of violations, but we have an extremely large athletic program, and in the scheme of things we are doing very well.

I do want the Board to know that there is a very strong commitment from Mr. Archie and all of his comrades in the athletic department to have a top-notch compliance program.

Next we heard from Scott Lissner, relative to the Americans with Disabilities Program here on campus. We are a leader in this program area, again training is very much a part of this and also access to information is very critical to its success. I would like to share with you just a few numbers about the challenge that they have in implementing an effective Americans with Disabilities Program. Eight hundred and sixty three buildings on 15,000 plus acres, of that 483 buildings right here on the Columbus campus, on 1,741 acres and as we are all very much aware, the average age of both construction and renovation of these buildings is 28 years. We have 114 miles of sidewalk, 800 curb ramps, 30,000 parking spaces, 851 disability parking spaces and all of us know about ongoing construction. So they have a big challenge in putting forth a very successful Americans with Disabilities Program.

Mr. Shkurti and Mr. Culley reported on, first in the area that we are trying to monitor which is our fiduciary work relative to the cost of all compliance, be it the total auditing program and all the things that we look after in terms of internal procedures. We are trying to keep a handle on that.

Lastly all of you on the Board know of our ongoing effort to deal with our responsibilities in working with governance, finances, reporting, and all the guiding principles with our affiliated entities. That work is progressing very nicely, and I think we are indeed happy with the progress Chris, and our relationship with all the affiliated entities.

Mr. Wexner:

Any questions for the Audit and Compliance Committee?

Thank you.

Trusteeship, Alex.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Shumate:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Committee on Trusteeship discussed four agenda items yesterday. First on the Charter Trustee report, secondly, faculty membership on the Academic Affairs Committee, third, Board Committees in general and then a brief discussion regarding the Board orientation program. The former chair, Gil Cloyd had asked Ambassador Ong and Speaker Davidson to take the lead with starting the process for the appointment of our Charter Trustees. As the Board members know, we have committed to adding three national or international Trustees to our Board, in our efforts to consistently strengthen the skill set and the expertise and value that we add to the University. That decision was made. Speaker Davidson did report on their efforts to date. In phase one they have identified the set of skills, experiences and backgrounds that would be appropriate to supplement the current strengths and background in experience of this Board. They have reached out to Trustees for recommendations consistent with the selection criteria. Also, Mr. Chairman we have consulted with the Alumni Association, believing that alumni of the University are a very important category of potential national or international Trustees, and we have also consulted with our Foundation Board. At our next meeting there will be an update report where we will begin to analyze recommended potential Trustee candidates, consistent with the skill set screen.

Secondly at the request of Ambassador Ong, who chairs our Academic Affairs Committee. We discussed a recommendation that we add a faculty member to the Academic Affairs Committee. As we all know the Academic Affairs Committee does fully engage with our faculty at our meetings, receiving various reports and also interacting with them on initiatives of the University. The Committee on Trusteeship does endorse the addition of a faculty member to become a member of the Academic Affairs Committee. We will be writing a process protocol for the selection of that faculty member and coming back to the Board to adopt that process and procedure.

Our third agenda item we discussed the current committee structure of our Board. Again in our process of continuous improvement we are looking to ensure that our Committees are aligned with the strategy of the University. We are working with Dr. Chait to do that analysis and again we will be coming back to the full Board with any recommendations for revision or change.

Finally we talked about the Board orientation program. We are certainly very pleased with our two members, and the Trusteeship Committee has volunteered to be very actively engaged with our Secretary and the University with the on boarding process for our new Trustees and also take a fresh look at our orientation program to again see where we can strengthen and improve that program.

That completes my report Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Questions? Thank you Alex.

Alan Brass, Medical Affairs.

Mr. Brass:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Committee met yesterday and had a lengthy meeting, and I am going to try and summarize it very quickly. We first spent time on ProjectONE which is obviously our new expansion program for the Medical Center. We went through a series of things including taking a look at green space and the atrium and the design of the building again, just to make sure from a due diligence standpoint we are reviewing everything two and three times. We are not finished with that process. It is looking good. We will have a series of meetings over the next month to complete that process.

The scorecard where we track the macroeconomics concerning this project is looking very good. I say that because this is a very difficult economic time and medicine across this country is very fragile - Medicare, Medicaid, federal and state budgets and so on. As I mentioned at the last Board meeting, I will mention it again this time, we have undertaken another step backward from the standpoint of having our outside and inside folks take a look at our forecast again, of which ProjectONE is being built on to make sure that, in fact, the macroeconomic numbers are what we think they will be. We will have those numbers back in September. We will have our due diligence done in September as it relates to ProjectONE.

We have on the consent agenda today one item as it relates to ProjectONE and that is the 12th Street Tunnel that will allow us to continue to expand the utilities to get ready for ProjectONE, and it was approved by the Committee yesterday as well as approved by the Fiscal Affairs Committee. As it relates to the volume, our volumes at the Medical Center continue to go up, and it is an important variable as we continue to monitor the progress we are making with the Medical Center. A couple things to note, our ambulatory visits from last year to this year are up 40,000 more visits, our emergency room is up 10,000 more visits, these are substantial volume increases, and at the same time our accounts receivable and our bad debt are holding at last years levels which is good news in the light of the economy. So we have to monitor that very carefully.

Dr. Gordon Gee mentioned something and I think it is worthy of repeating. Our medical school has had tremendous increases as it relates to its rating. It has actually moved up 17 slots, that is how strong our medical school is getting, that is how strong the recruitment that Dr. Gabbe and Dr. Souba who are leading that have done. We should not take this lightly, these are big moves. We are now in the top ten of public medical schools, that was a goal set of ours three years ago, so I am going to pause for a second, let's give them a round of applause. Nice job, and to all of your colleagues, nice job.

Also on the consent agenda today is a reorganization program of our Medical Center Governance with the creation of a Medical Center Board that will report to this Medical Affairs Committee of our Board. That is a very important item in light of the fact that we are continuing to expand and it will give us an organization model to make sure that we are very organized within our organizational structure of the medical system. That is on the consent agenda, it had unanimous support of our committee.

Last night we had 200 plus physicians graduate out of our medical school, and we have an incoming class of 220 coming into our medical system. Average GPA is in excess of 3.7, this is amazing, 49% of them are women, 13% are minorities, that is up from 7.5% the year before. This is an outstanding class coming in, and I think it again speaks to how well our medical system here at The Ohio State University is doing.

Dr. Souba was kind enough to share with us a number of key recruits. A superstar in radiation oncology, specializing in the brain, chief of anesthesiology, a new associate dean for admissions to our medical school, and I could go on and on, but the kind of recruitment that is taking place right now is a direct relationship to the ranking and how well we are doing.

The last thing I would like to make sure we highlight is what is going to happen in the next couple of months is very important. We mentioned that we are taking a look at the forecast again to make sure the macroeconomics are holding. 2010 and 2011 will be tough years for healthcare in this country, so we have to make sure we have it right. We are taking a look at nine major issues as it relates to ProjectONE and what we are now calling ProjectTWO for lack of a better word, but mostly the long-range medical center expansion to make sure that it is fully integrated into our University as a whole. These are big issues; these are bigger than just the medical center. For example Cannon Drive, housing, and I could go on. The long and short of it is that in September we hope to have a pretty good handle on those nine issues. We may not have them all resolved, but those are important to make sure our University and our Medical Center specifically are working hand in glove to resolve macro issues.

This is a good news report on the behalf of the Medical Center. Our system is doing very well, our medical school is doing very well, and I really attribute that to the leadership of Dr. Gabbe, and Dr. Souba and all the other folks. Nice job. Mr. Chairman that ends my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. This is such a major part of the University, what we are doing and will do in the future, so we will entertain questions or comments for Dr. Gabbe, Alan, and Dr. Gee.

Dr. Gabbe:

I appreciate your Board and your counsel as you have been a member of our team. I wanted to share with the Board of Trustees that just yesterday, keep this under wraps; Dr. Ali Rezai announced that he would be joining us. He is the nation's leader in deep-brain stimulation and neurosurgery and he is bringing his team here from the Cleveland Clinic. This is attributed to Dr. Chiocca, head of neurosurgery; Michael Racke, head of neurology; and our neurological signature programs, so you will be seeing a lot of press about that.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Just the difficulty of the work the Medical Center is doing with 40,000 more visits and 10,000 more visits to the emergency room in the first five months of the year, that is about 300 more visits a day to the hospitals. In terms of traffic and what this means to capacities, whether it is so many patients coming to the hospital through the ER as the hospital continues to improve, and the nature of the visitors to the hospital gets greater because we become a greater asset to the state, and we will attract more patients from out of town, whether it is national or international, let alone statewide, that mix of patients and the support for them and the kind of traffic is I know something Alan, Dr. Gabbe, Dr. Souba and everybody is looking at. This is a very dynamic situation that we are currently in.

Mr. Brass:

I will tell you the forecasted model we had on volumes is being accelerated. Just think of 100,000 patients a month coming in, because that is where we are.

President Gee:

About half of those new visits are mine personally. I am such a hypochondriac and I have instant access to great healthcare, why not.

Mr. Brass:

Thank you Mr. Chairman.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you for sharing Dr. Gee. Wally, do you want to give us the report from the Development and Investment Committee.

Mr. O'Dell:

Yes, Mr. Chairman. We met yesterday afternoon. Senior Vice President for Development Peter Weiler reported on fiscal year to date fundraising results and the gift acceptance and accounting guidelines. Fundraising totals for fiscal year 2009 through April were $260 million, which is 74% of the fiscal year goal, and four percent ahead of last year. Peter projects that University fiscal year 2009 fundraising totals will be close to $303 - $307 million. One to two percent ahead of prior year and this is an outstanding performance in a very difficult environment. Also, the Board is aware, Peter has been working with his team, the Trustees, and the Foundation Board to develop gift acceptance and counting documents that will guide the University during the campaign. Under the development tab of your notebook you will see the policy highlights. The overarching areas addressed by the policies are transparency, consistency and best practices. Peter has reached out to all Board members individually to review the documents and answer our questions. He clarified for us yesterday that the naming guidelines for building spaces, colleges and departments are also under review and will follow the same vetting and approval process as the gift acceptance policy. We can anticipate seeing those at an upcoming Board meeting in the fall. Peter is here today if there are any further questions about the campaign or gift counting guidelines.

Peter, do you want to make a comment?

Mr. Peter B. Weiler:

No, just I appreciate everybody's thorough review of those, and for your input.

President Gee:

I just have to comment. I think it is an extraordinary performance given the tumultuous nature of where we are. If you take a look at some of the major institutions in this country, some of the major institutions that are really down about 20 – 30% in terms of what they are doing right now, so I just cannot underscore how hard and how effective Peter and his team are working right now. It also shows the investment that people are making to this University. The difference between good and great, and now great and eminence as I have said is the private support that we are receiving and so you are making a real difference, I want you to know that.

Mr. O'Dell:

Next, Peter reviewed the development report, and the committee yesterday approved the establishment of 14 new funds and two revisions to only $3.3 million. Next Vice President and Chief Investment Officer Jonathan Hook requested the committee to approve a revision to the long-term investment policy. Changes requested to the policy included the following inserting the new asset allocation policy that was approved at the April Board of Trustees meeting, inserting the new distribution policy that was approved at the April Board meeting, amending our proxy voting policy to allow our investment managers to vote, the proxy statement is in accordance with the directions of the Ohio State investment office, and the inclusion of a new strength in conflict of interest statement. Following discussion by committee members, the policy was approved as recommended.

Mr. Hook then gave the committee an update on the performance of the long-term investment pool, with some special attention paid to explaining the degree of liquidity contained in the investment pool. Performance has been strong through March, April and May, with the long-term investment pool back in, in excess of $1.6 billion as of April 30. This has been especially positive since we are carrying a higher level of fixed income currently to maintain more than ample liquidity and safety while the market remains highly volatile. It is expected that the May returns should come in at or in excess of 3% for the month. Our asset allocation is well within its ranges and is operating as expected. We have been able to maintain an opportunistic posture in seeking out good new investments, yet remain focused on risk management and liquidity needs. The committee then walked through the liquidity and funding requirements for the long-term investment portfolio. Historical data and contractual requirements were discussed to explain in detail how our liquidity needs were met and future funding risks were minimized. Following a spirited question and answer session the committee adjourned.

Mr. Wexner:

Questions, comments?

Thank you very much. Doug are you going to report for Academic Affairs and Student Life.

Mr. Borrer:

I certainly am, thank you Mr. Chairman. We had a very busy meeting yesterday. First, Vice President for Student Life, Javaune Adams-Gaston discussed the steps taken to deal with the H1N1 flu virus. This was a major collaborative effort with multiple disciplines throughout the University, the city and the state. Through their very organized frequent and accurate communication, they were able to alleviate on-campus concerns and help prevent any public panic. It was a job well done in a very closed community.

Next Dr. Adams-Gaston presented a proposal to create a student legal service. The new service would cover a wide variety of additional legal services for our students, and she will be presenting a complete plan at our September meeting.

Next we heard from Dean of Undergraduate Education, Martha Garland. Martha discussed the issues of student access to Ohio State. This fall as we have already heard, we will be expecting 6,500 new first quarter freshman. That is up about 300 from last year. Once again this class will be Ohio State's best ever. We will be once again establishing a new record for the average ACT score, but at the same time we are maintaining our levels of need-based and minority students, another fine tightrope to walk.

Following that we heard from Vice President for Human Resources, Larry Lewellen. Larry presented the staff talent plan to the Committee, and then he discussed the 2009 compensation report. The Office of Human Resources will include the staff talent report in the University's five year goal setting process along with appropriate strategies and milestones. A scorecard will be developed and tracked.

Turning to the 2009 compensation report, Mr. Lewellen reported that the report shows our competitive position for faculty, staff and graduate associates. This shows the relative position of Ohio State in relationship to other universities when the cost of living is taken into account. So that takes us to the next year when we will be using the Runzhemier Living Cost Index in planning our faculty compensation. The University will also be developing policies for the faculty reward system based on performance objectives. At Ohio State only unionized staff has retained across the board pay increases, and one of our two unions right now are being transformed from a time and grade pay structure to a pay for performance structure. What I believe, Larry, is the first one of these in the United States, in a union contract. So this is a very laudable effort. Also looking forward to year 2010, Mr. Lewellen said that the compensation budget is averaged at a 2.5% increase, but all of those are market and performance based.

Next we heard from Vice President for Research, Caroline Whitacre. She briefed the Committee on the Centers of Excellence that the University System of Ohio has asked each of Ohio's 13 public institutions of higher learning to develop. Ohio State is proposing the following Centers of Excellence: Climate, Energy and the Environment; Health and Well-Being, Human Behavior and Bioinformatics; State, Regional and Urban Development; Food Production, Supply and Safety, Materials, Manufacturing Technologies and Nanotechnologies. That resolution will be coming before the Board.

We then heard resolutions for this meeting: one being the deaccession of the Pressey Teaching Machine and the donation of the machine to the Smithsonian Museum, the establishment of a Ph.D. program in Translational Plant Sciences, changes to classified civil service rules and, as I said earlier, the establishment of the University System of Ohio Centers of Excellence presented by Dr. Whitacre.

The meeting concluded with the committee's endorsement of a number of routine personnel actions. That concludes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. A lot of work. Any questions, comments?

Jo Ann would you like to report from the long awaited Fiscal Affairs Committee.

Ms. Davidson:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. There were several routine reports given to the Fiscal Affairs Committee yesterday. On a quarterly basis we always look for a financial update. Obviously you have already heard some of that good news. Our enrollment numbers are good, the health system is doing well, a couple of factors the Committee is watching carefully, but it is doing well, and a little bit of the unpredictability of the state budget situation. We are very appreciative of the support the governor has given and both houses of the legislature, as they have each handled their version of the state budget, in continuing the strong support for the student share of instruction at the state level. We realized that they are now entering into the final phase, which is a conference committee. This is going to really have to deal with some revision of the revenue estimates and there is some concern there which we will be watching very carefully. So far, higher education has been one of their priorities and we are very pleased with that situation.

There was a quick review of how we handle OSU debt at the request of the Committee members to be more fully briefed on when we go into issuing debt, how do we handle the repayment of it and for the members of the Board if you had not had an opportunity to look at that in your Board book, it is something you might want to pull out and keep because it is a very good illustration of how this indebtedness is a sign to each unit that incurs it and how there is a Memorandum of Understanding that we enter into before the debt is actually issued. There was a very brief report on our deferred maintenance. The fact that they are going to come back in the fall with a more complete report on that and the concept is that we need to coordinate what we are looking at in deferred maintenance with our master planning efforts. Sasaki has, I think, actually reviewed each one of our academic buildings as far as what our deferred maintenance is, but the whole effort here is going to be coming back with a one integrated physical plan so you can look for an in depth report on that issue in the fall.

Our regular report on waiving of competitive bidding which we do in a very narrow basis here at the University, there are sometimes sole source and other cost reasons or emergency reasons for doing that. The resolutions that are on the consent agenda today for your consideration are all recommended for your approval by the Fiscal Affairs Committee. The leadoff resolution deals obviously with setting our tuition for the main campus and our fees and other charges for the school year which will begin in the fall. We always try to do that at this time so we can let our students know what it is going to be, those people who are planning to attend and our new students coming in. The recommendation is a tuition freeze. This would be the first time that there has been a back to back to back no tuition increase in more than fifty years at the University level. Obviously this reflects the strong support we have been receiving from the state in the student share of instruction. There would be a 2.5% increase in the graduate fees, a 2.5% increase in our out of state surcharge and other fee increases that were reflected in your book. That is obviously a very important resolution for us and one of the commitments that we have traditionally made to our students is that once we set that tuition that will be what they can count on for the next school year. We are not setting the tuition yet for the regional campuses that will come to the Fiscal Affairs Committee in July.

The next resolution is somewhat typical but a little different this time. It is giving the University the opportunity to operate under an interim budget at the same level of the 2009 budget for the first two weeks of July, but also authorizing the Fiscal Affairs Committee, since we are not having a Board meeting next month, the Fiscal Affairs Committee to review the proposed fiscal year 2010 current funds budget and with their authorization to operate under that budget until the full Board can confirm that full budget. So I wanted to make sure that you are aware that the resolution had been redrafted.

One of the things I want to go back to and cover on the tuition, which I really did not, includes a 2.18% in the health system increase. You might ask what the rankings are and where do we stand with the changes in some of our fee structure and where we are with our tuition. Our ranking in the selective admission universities is almost really very close to the bottom. Our ranking with our Big Ten universities and our other peer universities either puts us right in the middle, even though some of those decisions have not been made yet, but even as they are made since they are above us already we will stay right in the middle or just a step below the middle with our peer universities and our Big Ten universities.

We have three resolutions that are coming to you that make changes because of some restructuring and responsibilities being given to different individuals in the authorization of some of our stocks and bonds and some of our real estate transfers. They are not changing our policies; they are only changing the designation. As you know our treasurer has been redesignated as our assistant vice president for financial services, and Jeff Kaplan has been given some additional responsibilities, therefore we are only changing the nomenclature in these authorizations to the appropriate official.

There is a resolution for approval of design, construction and increased design contracts for several projects. Two of which are very important to the ongoing work we are doing in preparation for ProjectONE of the Medical Center. It also authorizes a joint use agreement with Children's Hospital on some funds that were designated to the University that are to be used by children for the purchase of certain research equipment.

There is a resolution on accepting and authorizing three easements for Columbus and Southern Power, all three of which benefit the University. And finally there is authorization of a purchase of a piece of property that is adjacent to OSU Hospital East, and we will give them property next to property they already own. A very good deal, I think the purchase price is $40,000 against an appraisal of $54,000, so we are recommending that for your approval too.

Mr. Chairman that completes my report. I would be happy to answer any questions.

Mr. Wexner:

Any questions, comments?

Mr. Jurgensen:

Les I need to abstain from item 16.

Dr. Frantz:

We will do a roll call vote.

Ms. Davidson:

There are two to come up for separate vote I think.

Mr. Marion:

Mr. Wexner, if I could let the Board know, it really reflects on how monumental of an occasion this is for undergraduate students to receive a 0% increase on tuition for three years in a row. I know we have stated it and mentioned it, but this is truly a remarkable time, not just in Ohio, but in this country, and given these times. As a student at this University, even though the graduate students are still getting a very nominal increase of 2.5% which I am very grateful for as a graduate student, this is really monumental and all the folks downtown, I know we have sung their praises before, but we need to continue doing so. This is a monumental occasion.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you Jason.

I share that view and I am sure we all do, and we appreciate your comment.

We have a total of 20 resolutions on the consent agenda with changes to item number 12 and two additional ones brought forward by Doug Borrer and Alan Brass in their reports, and we are asking for separate votes, Jerry which we do on ones in which there are potential reasons to abstain or not vote and that would be on items 16 and 17, therefore we are seeking approval for the following:

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 2009-92

Dale J. Blackledge

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on April 4, 2009, of Dale J. Blackledge, Assistant Professor Emeritus of The Ohio State University Extension.

Professor Blackledge was born in September 1938 in Kalamazoo, Michigan. He received two degrees from The Ohio State University, a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree in 1964 and a Master of Science degree in agricultural education in 1974.

He began his Extension career in Ohio in July 1965 as the county extension agent—4-H in Licking County. He continued in this position until his retirement in 1992, after which he was awarded emeritus status.

Dale's contributions in providing extension educational programs during his career for over 2,100 4-H youth in Licking County proved that he was a truly dedicated teacher. He also was responsible for recruiting and providing training programs for more than 270 adult volunteers during his career. He was recognized for his innovative work in developing and conducting effective programs for financially disadvantaged young people throughout his career.

Professor Blackledge received the Distinguished Service Award presented by the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents in 1978. He also received the Excellence in 4-H Award in Ohio in 1988.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Dale J. Blackledge its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

George P. Schoyer

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on April 3, 2009, of George P. Schoyer, Associate Professor Emeritus in the University Libraries.

Born in Pittsburgh in 1918, Professor Schoyer earned a B.A. degree in American history at Yale University in 1941. In World War II, he served with distinction and was wounded. Returning to civilian life, he resumed his interest in history at the University of Pittsburgh and achieved an M.A. degree, specializing in American history. After additional graduate study in history at the University of Pennsylvania, Professor Schoyer chose librarianship as a career and earned a Master of Library Science from the Carnegie Library School in 1954.

Librarianship remained the focus of his professional career. Following service in public libraries in Pennsylvania and in Washington, D.C., Professor Schoyer came to The Ohio State University as librarian of the History, Political Science, and Philosophy Graduate Library in 1956. He served as map librarian also.

A capable and conscientious librarian, Professor Schoyer was a respected faculty member of the University Libraries. In 1964, he became a tenured instructor in Library Administration. Three years later his accomplishments in teaching, research, and service led to promotion to assistant professor. In 1981, three years before his retirement, Schoyer achieved the rank of associate professor.

As a member of the faculty, Professor Schoyer published in history and in librarianship. His contributions to scholarship included book reviews, bibliographies, and articles in the Journal of Library History ("Lucien Herr, Librarian and Socialist") and in College and Research Libraries ("Anti-Semitism at Ohio State University"). His History of The Ohio State University Libraries, 1870-1970, published for the University's Centennial in 1970, remains a useful and much consulted work.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor George P. Schoyer its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Charles B. Smith

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on March 30, 2009, of Charles B. "Bill" Smith, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering and Geodetic Science.

Professor Smith received a Bachelor of Science degree in civil engineering in 1936 and a Master of Science degree in civil engineering in 1949, both from The Ohio State University. He was active in Theta Tau, an engineering fraternity. He first worked for the Mount Vernon Bridge Company; the company had a government contract that built landing craft boats for the World War II effort in Ireton, Ohio.

Professor Smith began teaching at Ohio State shortly after the war effort started winding down. He was a teacher to two generations of civil engineering students, remaining a professor at OSU from 1947-81. He retired as Professor Emeritus from the Department in 1981.

He consistently demonstrated his excellence in the very essence of teaching by instilling a desire to learn in a student and making the experience pleasurable. In 1987 Professor Smith was awarded the Outstanding Civil Engineering Alumni Award.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Charles B. Smith its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

William Jefferson Tyler

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 2, 2009, of William Jefferson Tyler, Professor of Japanese in the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures.

Professor Tyler received his B.A. degree from International Christian University in Tokyo and an A.M. degree and a Ph.D. degree from the Department of East Asian Languages and Civilizations at Harvard University. He came to The Ohio State University in 1991 after a distinguished career of teaching at Amherst and the University of Pennsylvania and serving as the director of the most prestigious intensive Japanese language program, the Inter-University Center of Japanese Language Studies in Yokohama. However, it was at Ohio State that Professor Tyler gave full play to his extraordinary array of talents.

The body of scholarship left to us by William Tyler is truly impressive. With the publication of his The Bodhisattva (Columbia University Press, 1990) and The Legend of Gold and Other Stories (University of Hawai'i Press, 1998), he established a national and international reputation as one of the foremost scholars and translators of modern Japanese literature. His latest book, Modanizumu: Modernist Fiction from Japan, 1913-1938 (University of Hawai'i Press, 2008) is a monumental work of scholarship. It is in itself a modernistic work of art, with translations interwoven with lengthy commentaries on the narratives, perceptive explications of historical contexts, and always a deep appreciation for the linguistic and imagistic experimentation and imagination of the modernistic literary movement in Japan.

Professor Tyler was a dedicated and inspiring teacher. His courses for undergraduates were among the most popular offered by the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures, and he devoted a great deal of time and effort to teaching and guiding his graduate students to successful careers. He was unstinting in his service to the profession and the University.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor William J. Tyler its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Claude Earl Warren

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 10, 2009, of Claude Earl Warren, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering.

Professor Warren was born in January 1914. After attending public schools in Columbus, Ohio, and serving for two years in the Civilian Conservation Corps, he matriculated at The Ohio State University and graduated in 1938 with a Bachelor of Electrical Engineering degree. In 1940, he earned a Master of Science degree, also in electrical engineering, from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Professor Warren then worked as a design engineer at Westinghouse in Pittsburgh for the duration of World War II. In 1945 he returned to Columbus and joined the electrical engineering faculty at Ohio State where, for the next 36 years, he served with distinction until his retirement with emeritus status in 1981.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Professor Warren was, first and foremost, a scholar in the highest sense of that word. Extremely well read, able to synthesize wide-ranging works of others, he spent his life of learning in order to know, not merely to become proficient in his discipline. Yet, for all the years spent in scholarly pursuits, Professor Warren never isolated himself from the student. To the end he remained a diligent and sensitive teacher with exceptional abilities to relate to, communicate with, and inspire young engineers. It was said of him that Professor Warren had the practice of selecting one student in his class and teaching to that student; the wonderful and amazing thing, however, was that each student in the class felt that he was the one.

Beyond classroom technique the mark of a great teacher is his effectiveness in the transfer of new knowledge to the student. In the case of Professor Warren, this effectiveness began with a thorough and exhaustive evaluation of literally every written work in the then new and largely incoherent area of statistical communication theory, including the theories of Shannon and Wiener which today undergird all modern communication technology. Looking back, the number of instructors around the country who understood these works in 1949 or 1950 was very small, and the number who were teaching this material was smaller still. No one did a better job of translating so early on these difficult concepts into a unified framework than Professor Warren. It was through his effort that the Department of Electrical Engineering formed a foundation in communication theory that serves us today.

His influence on the graduate curriculum was paralleled at the same time by Professor Warren's dedicated efforts in the early 1950's to obtain the Department's first analog computer. This computer played vital roles in research and teaching for over a decade when, in the late 1960's, through a similar dedicated effort by Professor Warren the Department was able to obtain a DEC PDP-9 digital computer. He was responsible for the acquisition, the installation, and the maintenance of the PDP-9, devoting even uncompensated summers to this important effort – important because the machine was the primary research tool for many faculty members in the Department and also ultimately supported the research of more than 40 theses and dissertations and was used in teaching and development of new teaching materials.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Claude Earl Warren its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Larry R. Whiting

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on March 29, 2009, of Larry R. Whiting, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Human and Community Resource Development.

Professor Whiting held a Bachelor of Agricultural Journalism degree, a Master of Journalism and Mass Communications degree, and a doctorate in Education degree, all from Iowa State University.

He served as chairman of the Department of Information and Publications in the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland before coming to The Ohio State University in 1985. He became professor of agricultural education and head of Communications and Technology in the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences and served in that capacity until July 2001. He then transferred from his administrative position and taught in the agricultural communication degree program, before retiring in 2006, after serving the University for 21 years.

Professor Whiting served his students and profession at the highest levels. In 2004, the students in the College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences dedicated the annual college student awards banquet in his honor. In 2005 the College honored him with the Price Student Advising Award. He received the ACE (Agricultural Communications Excellence) Outstanding Research Paper Award in 2002; the Journal of Applied Communications Research Article of the Year Award in 2004; and the ACE Professional Award in 2005.

Larry Whiting was an active member of the University community and served on numerous department, college, and University committees, including the BioOhio Planning, AmeriFlora Planning, University Distance Education, Ohio Livestock Industry Task Force, and Rural Ohio Summit. He was an impassioned proponent of quality teaching and student-centered learning.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Larry R. Whiting its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Mr. Brass, seconded by Ms. Kass, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution with eleven affirmative votes, cast by Trustees, Davidson, Borrer, O'Dell, Shumate, Fisher, Schottenstein, Brass, Marbley, Kass, Jurgensen and Reid, and two abstentions cast by Trustees Wexner and Hicks.

President Gee:

I would like to note a few items from the personnel actions. We have some new colleagues who are joining us who are just wonderful. We have some promotions too, but I want to note two of them. Chris Culley is being promoted to senior vice president, and Chris has just done a remarkable job, and Jeff Kaplan is expanding his world. He is taking over half the University, so we are recognizing him, and we want to do that. Also I would just note that our athletic director, our former athletic director, now our associate vice president and athletic director has been appointed as associate vice president. This is not just an honorific title, I believe he is the only associate vice president in the country who is an athletic director, and more importantly he has been given substantial new responsibilities in managing large parts of our business and is doing a terrific job.

Mr. Wexner:

Before we adjourn I would like to try something new. I would like to go around the room and have everyone share reflections or observations on the day, or about the meeting or committee meetings.

Wally I will start with you this time, and work around this way.

Mr. O'Dell:

It was an excellent day, and I am really thrilled with the way the University is headed and its leadership.

Mr. Hicks:

Outstanding day, congratulations on Ali Rezai, that is a remarkable recruitment.

Judge Marbley:

I want to echo what my colleagues have said. I want to welcome three outstanding new trustees, I just happen to know of Dr. Reid, and Mr. Jurgensen a little better than Ms. Swain, and I want to note the importance of today's session when we focused on matters of governance and the direction of the University. I thought that was one of the best meetings we have had in my two years on the Board. Congratulations, Mr. Chairman and Dr. Gee.

Dr. Reid:

I am so pleased with the level of scholarship that we were exposed to today, and also to the two students who have done so well.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Marion:

Well it is quite evident that our University is pretty great, it is excellent. As we see through our committees, we are only beginning to roll up our sleeves and we have much work ahead of us, but it is a great time to be at The Ohio State University.

Ms. Swain:

I am very excited to be here, and want to thank you all for the warm welcome so far. I am very excited.

Mr. Jurgensen:

Same for me, it is a fantastic institution. It has made, and will continue to make absolutely vital contributions to our state and country. I could not be more pleased to be a part of it.

Ms. Kass:

Welcome to our two new trustees, and I just think the talent in this institution is just amazing.

Mr. Brass:

You know I am reminded of a small quote, "the smallest good deed is better than the grandest good intention," and we have a tremendous number of deeds that are taking place. Very proud to be part of this.

Mr. Fisher:

Transition to one University is very exciting and I am glad to see our total commitment in that regard.

Mr. Shumate:

It is a very exciting time to be a member of this Board and the affiliation with the University. Like Brian I would like to echo the congratulations on recruiting Dr. Rezaei. He truly is one of the world's outstanding researchers and his techniques with brain research are just world renowned. It is really an outstanding recruitment.

Mr. Borrer:

Great meeting Les.

Ms. Davidson:

It's exhilarating to see the quality of our faculty, the quality of our students, the good reports we have had on all of our departments that are moving up, and your great new leadership Mr. Chairman. Congratulations on your first meeting.

President Gee:

I am grateful to have a job, thank you very much.

Mr. Wexner:

My comment is that I really appreciate all the leaders of the University; the student leaders, the faculty leaders, the staff leaders, just everyone. I think we have in our making significant progress, and I think that progress is in line of sight. I think the Board, thinking about the work of the Board and being self critical and curious about what we do and how we can become more effective is progress as well. Mobilizing more energy in support of Dr. Gee's leadership, because I think that is significant in terms of changing the standards, the quality and the momentum and the trajectory of the University. That momentum and trajectory is a hard thing to get liftoff. It does not come easily and when you have it, us all leaning into this and stacking hands to make stuff happen and again it is supporting all of the leaders.

The next meeting is not until September 18, and the Board will continue to work hard. Ron Ratner has put a lot of days in, he is not here today, Ambassador Ong has put work in, unfortunately he had a domestic injury, and hopefully he has a speedy recovery, but he has put a lot of effort in, as all the committees have. To the degree we can, as we have these future committees, I am really encouraging with the participation we can have if we would cross functionally amongst ourselves in all committees. I am not encouraging everybody to go to every committee, but clearly in my view, the committee responsibilities, where people have interest or curiosity or point of view, you are quite welcome to go to all committee meetings and talk to the chairs. If there are items you want to find out about ask David to report back so the momentum of communication amongst us is facilitated and I think that will help us. Again, I encourage curiosity, communication and good behavior with the President and within the Board.

Thank you.

2. Eliminate the collar and replace it with a temporary one-year floor limiting the total distribution decline to 3% for Fiscal Year 2010.
3. Move to a 4.25% payout rate.
4. Move to a seven-year moving average.
5. Re-evaluate in 12 months.

ADDITIONAL CHANGES:

Proxy voting authority may be delegated from the Chief Investment Officer to investment managers to maximize fund value, reserving the right to direct the voting on specific issues as needed.

A new Conflicts of Interest section is added as Section XIII.

I.PURPOSE

The purpose of this Long-Term Investment Pool Policy (hereinafter referred to as the "Policy") is to establish the overall management, investment strategies and discipline of The Ohio State University (hereinafter referred to as "The University") for the Long-Term Investment Pool (hereinafter referred to as the "Fund"). This policy is intended to permit sufficient flexibility to capture investment opportunities, yet provide parameters that ensure prudence and care in the execution of the investment program.

This policy is issued for the guidance of fiduciaries, including the Board of Trustees, Investment Committee members, staff, investment managers, investment consultants and custodians for oversight of the Fund. It also states the standards and disciplines adopted so that the Board of Trustees and its Investment Committee can effectively evaluate the performance and operations of the Fund.

II. GOALS

The Fund was established to provide financial support for the long-term use and benefit of the University in support of its mission. The goal is to manage Fund assets with prudence and discipline to achieve that purpose. The Fund will be invested using a total return objective to meet its goals. Funds will be invested in a manner that over the long-term will preserve and maintain the real purchasing power of the principal while allowing for an annual distribution.

III. COMPONENTS OF THE LONG-TERM INVESTMENT POOL

For the purposes of this policy the Long-Term Investment Pool shall include endowments, quasi-endowments, term endowments and those held for the benefit of others invested in the Fund.

Endowment Funds are funds received from donors or other sources with the restriction that the original principal is not expendable.

Quasi-Endowments are funds in which the principal can be spent at the discretion of the university's Board of Trustees and can include monies whose sources are in accordance with Ohio Revised Code Section 3345.05. Quasi-endowments may include operating funds available for long-term investment and added to the Fund, subject to the 25% reserve requirement delineated in the Operating and Agency Funds Investment Policy.

Term Endowment Funds are funds for which there is a stipulation that the principal may be expended after a stated period or upon the occurrence of a certain event.

IV. FIDUCIARY STANDARDS

The Board of Trustees, Investment Committee members, staff, investment managers, consultants and custodians are fiduciaries. Accordingly, these individuals are required to:

- Act solely in the interest of the University, for the purpose of providing income and maintaining the real purchasing power of the principal.
- Act with the care, skill, prudence, and diligence under the circumstances then prevailing that a prudent person acting in a like capacity and familiar with such matters would use in the conduct of an enterprise of a like character and with like aims.
- Diversify the investments of the Fund in order to minimize overall risk, and to provide investment returns to achieve the Fund's stated goals.

V. DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

- A. Board of Trustees. The University Board of Trustees has overall responsibility for Fund policy and approval of Investment Committee members. The Board of Trustees vote on items brought forth by the Investment Committee.
- B. Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. The Investment Committee has strategic oversight responsibility for the investment program and operations of the Fund. The Committee shall work with the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance and the Chief Investment Officer to ensure the Fund is well managed, in accordance with this policy. The Investment Committee shall meet at least quarterly.
- C. Senior Vice President for Business and Finance. The Senior Vice President for Business and Finance has oversight responsibility for the Fund's investment operations and reporting. The Senior Vice President for Business and Finance shall review operations and reporting within the Office of Investments to ensure compliance with established policies and procedures.
- D. Chief Investment Officer. The Chief Investment Officer is responsible for managing the Fund's investment operations. The Chief Investment Officer shall review and recommend policies and procedures that are consistent with the investment objectives of the Fund. The Chief Investment Officer shall report to the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance and the Investment Committee, at least quarterly.
- E. Investment Managers. The University utilizes external investment managers approved by the Chief Investment Officer and Senior Vice President for Business and Finance to provide portfolio management services. The investment managers may be given discretion, consistent with specified objectives and guidelines, to manage Fund assets. Investment managers operate under a formal contract with the University that delineates responsibilities, risk parameters and performance expectations, administration requirements and compensation. The contract may be terminated by the Chief Investment Officer and/or the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance.
- F. Consultants. The University may utilize the services of one or more investment consultants to assist the Chief Investment Officer in the areas of: policy development, asset allocation, investment structure analysis, investment manager selection, performance review and other specialized investment topics. Consultants operate under a formal contract with the University that delineates responsibilities, risk parameters and performance expectations, administration requirements and compensation. The contract may be terminated by the Chief Investment Officer and/or the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance.
- G. Custodians. The University retains one or more custodian banks or trust institutions to custody and report on the assets of the Fund.

VI. DISTRIBUTION POLICY

Distributions will be made at the beginning of each fiscal year according to a formula approved by the Trustees as follows:

1. The distribution amount is calculated on a seven-year moving average of the market value of the portfolio.
2. The distribution rate is 4.25%.

3. For fiscal year 2010 there will be a temporary one-year floor limiting the total distribution decline to 3%.

In order to maintain an orderly distribution of income under the distribution policy, an income reserve shall be maintained to accrue amounts to be distributed to the endowment funds.

Distributions are made to a fund's income account which is part of the University's Operating Fund. Distributions may be reinvested into principal; however, any reinvested distribution cannot be redistributed or withdrawn at another time.

VII. ASSET ALLOCATION AND GUIDELINES

- A. Time Horizon. The Fund's investment horizon is perpetual; therefore interim performance fluctuations should be viewed with this perspective. Similarly, the underlying capital market assumptions of the University's asset allocation plan are based on this long-term perspective.
- B. Risk Tolerance. The Board of Trustees, the Investment Committee, and staff recognize the challenge of achieving the Fund's investment objectives in light of the uncertainties and complexities of investment markets. They also recognize that prudent levels of investment risk are necessary to achieve long-term investment objectives.
- C. Asset Allocation and Rebalancing. Asset allocation is thought to be the largest contributor to overall Fund return performance and risk characteristics. The Investment Committee and the Board of Trustees will periodically evaluate asset class strategies and opportunities, and establish a long term asset allocation plan. After a thorough study of the available asset class opportunities, return objectives and risk tolerance, the Board of Trustees and Investment Committee approved the following asset classes and allocations:

Asset Class	Range	Benchmark
Market Exposure	10-50%	50% (Russell 3000) + 50% (EAFE)
Risk Reducers	25-50%	90 Day T-Bills + 4%
Return Enhancers	10-25%	120% (80% Russell 3000 + 20% EM Index)
Inflation Hedges	10-25%	75% (CPI+4%) +25% (NACREIF Real Estate Index)

Futures, options, forward contracts, and swap agreements may be utilized in a manner that is consistent with the policies and objectives contained within the Long-Term Pool Investment Policy. Such instruments should be used to hedge risk in the portfolio or to implement investment strategies more efficiently and at a lower cost than would be possible in the cash market. Such instruments should not be used for purely speculative purposes.

- D. Investment Manager Guidelines. The investment guidelines incorporated into each manager's contract documents the performance expectations and risk parameters of the manager's investment approach. The guidelines also specify the typical portfolio characteristics of the portfolio. These characteristics are used to monitor a manager's investment style adherence to insure that the manager is continuously fulfilling its investment role in the Fund.

VIII. INVESTMENT MONITORING PROCESS

The Fund's investment managers and consultants will be monitored for consistency of investment philosophy, return relative to objectives, and investment risk. The Office of Investments will monitor the overall fund results and investment portfolios, but results will be evaluated on a long term basis. The following manager issues will be considered by the Chief Investment Officer: (1) failure to comply with the applicable investment style, guidelines, performance objectives, and fees, (2) a material change in ownership or personnel, or (3) a violation or potential violation of the terms of the investment manager agreement or other applicable laws and regulations.

IX ACCOUNT VALUATION

All funds are invested in the pool and are unitized. At the end of each month investments are evaluated and a unit value calculated based on the number of shares assigned to each fund. The unit value calculation also takes into account earnings, investment expenses and fees. New funds and additions/withdrawals from established funds are processed at the end of each month. Additions will purchase shares only with cash. Non-marketable gifts will be liquidated first, with cash proceeds then used to purchase shares. Withdrawals may be made only from invadible funds upon the written request of the Dean or Vice President.

X. EXERCISE OF SHAREHOLDER RIGHTS

The University recognizes that publicly traded securities and other assets of the Fund may include certain ancillary rights, such as the right to vote on shareholder resolutions at companies' shareholders' meetings, and the right to assert claims in securities class action lawsuits or other litigation. The University requires of itself and its external managers the prudent management of these assets of the Fund for the exclusive purpose of enhancing the value of the Fund. The Chief Investment Officer has the authority to delegate proxy voting to external managers to maximize fund value, reserving the right to direct the voting on specific issues as needed.

XI. REVIEW AND MODIFICATION OF INVESTMENT POLICY STATEMENT

All policies of the Fund are in effect until modified by the Board of Trustees. While material changes are expected infrequently, the Chief Investment Officer will review the Investment Policy at least annually for continued appropriateness and recommend any changes to the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance, the Investment Committee, and the Board of Trustees.

XII. EXCEPTIONS

Modifications and exceptions to this Policy shall be authorized by resolution of the Board of Trustees or as provided herein. The terms and conditions of this Policy as to the endowment fund may be waived to accept and administer donated funds or property with donor restrictions and approved by the Board of Trustees.

In order to meet its fiduciary responsibility to its academic programs and its donors, The Ohio State University seeks to maximize its investment returns within appropriate levels of risk under guidelines established by the Board of Trustees as granted by the Ohio Revised Code. As a public institution, OSU also recognizes a duty to support larger societal objectives as well.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Divestment for non-economic reasons should be recommended through the governance process, i.e. student government, University Senate or an appropriate committee. The recommendation would go to the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance. The Senior Vice President for Business and Finance should ask the Chief Investment Officer to review the potential impact on the investment portfolio of any divestment. If the cumulative impact to the Fund of divestment for non-economic reasons is less than $5,000,000 over a two year period, the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance may then bring the recommendation forward to the President's Executive Committee for final approval. If the cumulative impact to the Fund is greater than $5,000,000, the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance may then bring the recommendation forward to the President's Executive Committee for approval, but if approved, a policy change must be brought forward for a vote by the Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. As of the date of this policy, the University has mandated the divestment of all investments in the nation of Sudan.

XIII. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

It is critical that there be no conflicts of interest or perceptions of conflicts of interest when making investment decisions related to the management of the Fund. Therefore, if a member of the Board of Trustees, Investment Committee, or the OSU Foundation Board is connected to an investment firm, the Office of Investments will not invest in any funds managed by that firm. In addition, no member of the Office of Investments will invest his/her personal monies with managers with whom the Fund is invested.

I. Actions Requested at this Meeting

- A. Approval of resident undergraduate tuition and general fees
- B. Approval of all other student tuition and user fees
- C. Approval of University Health System charges increase of 2.18%
- D. Approval of an interim budget for FY 2010.

II. Instructional and General Fees

A. Instructional and general fees for resident undergraduate students

1. The instructional and general fees will remain frozen for FY 2010 as proposed in the FY 2010-2011 Biennial Budget for the State of Ohio as passed by the House.
2. This will be the first time in more than 50 years (1955) that resident undergraduate tuition has stayed at 0% growth for more than 2 years.
3. OSU fees are still $433 below the state average for selective admission universities:

University	Estimated Fall 2009 Full-time Resident Undergraduate Tuition & Fees (New Students)	Difference with OSU Tuition (per student)
Miami	$9,900	$1,194
Cincinnati	$9,399	$693
Average	$9,139	$433
Bowling Green	$9,060	$354
Ohio University	$8,907	$201
Ohio State*	$8,706
Kent State	$8,430	-$276

$433 X 36,600 FTE = $15.9 million

Source: Based on rates listed in Ohio Board of Regents, Fall Survey of Student Charges For Academic Year 2008 - 2009. With the exception of Ohio State, assumes $0 increase in tuition and fees in FY 2010 per FY 2010/2011 Budget Bill.

OSU figure includes the COTA Fee, Mandatory Recreation Fee, and Student Union Facility Fee (rates which are above the state tuition freeze).*

4. OSU will have the lowest increase in undergraduate tuition when compared to our benchmark institutions and when compared to the other Big Ten institutions, where increases are averaging more than 8%. See the following tables:

(1) AY 2008-2009 data are from AAUDE Data Exchange except for Michigan which was provided by the institutional campus representative.

(2) AY 2009-2010 data are from institutional campus representatives/websites/newspaper articles.

(3) An estimate is unavailable at this time. The University of Michigan is hoping to set tuition/fees in June. However, Michigan's budget cycle begins in October, later than many states.

(4) The percent increase figure shown was approved by the Board of Regents. However, there are a dozen tuition-related bills currently moving through the Texas state house that affect higher education, including tuition setting authority. These tuition bills are up for a vote by the Texas Legislature at the end of May.

(5) The Governor's and House versions of Ohio Substitute Budget bill have proposed a tuition freeze for FY10. If this scenario holds, fees for Ohio State are expected to increase just slightly from last year, due to a new facility fee, which would be considered outside the tuition freeze. However, this figure could change with the Senate version of the bill, which is still being determined.

(6) Education and registration fees have been approved by the Board of Regents. Other miscellaneous fees are expected to remain unchanged at this point. However, one referendum fee recently approved by students still needs the approval from the Board.

(7) Although this figure has received Board approval, there is a remote possibility that an additional surcharge may be proposed.

(8) Average excludes Ohio State.

(3) Estimates are unavailable at this time. The University of Michigan is hoping to set tuition/fees in mid-June. However, Michigan's budget cycle begins in October, later than many states. Indiana and Purdue can't set fees until an appropriation has been set by the Indiana Legislature, which is expected sometime from mid- to late June.

(4) Michigan State 2009-10 planning anticipates tuition increases in the range of the Higher Education Price Index, between 4 and 5 percent. However, Michigan's budget cycle begins in October, later than many states.

(5) The Governor's and House versions of Ohio Substitute Budget bill have proposed a tuition freeze for FY10. B. Fees for Other Students Effective Fall Quarter 09

1. Resident graduate instructional fees for the Columbus Campus are recommended to increase 2.5% for a full-time student. Annual Columbus Campus graduate resident fees will be $10,708. With the opening of the Ohio Union in Spring Quarter 2010, a new fee of $25 will be assessed, resulting in an overall increase of 2.6%.
2. Non-resident graduate and undergraduate fees for the Columbus Campus are recommended to increase 2.5% for a full-time student. Columbus Campus non-resident students will pay, in addition to resident fees:
 - Undergraduates: $13,572
 - Graduate students: $15,240

III. Designated User Fees

A. Existing Fees

Fees and Charges

(All figures are for an academic year of three quarters)

Mandatory for All Students	Current Amount	Dollar Increase	Percent Increase
Health Insurance ²	$1,545	$0	0.0%
COTA Bus Pass	$27	$0	0.0%
Non-Mandatory
Room & Board ³	$8,037	$372	4.6%

Football Tickets ⁵	$124.00	$0	0.0%
Basketball Tickets ⁶	$130.00	$0	0.0%

B. Pending Student Union Fee

1. When the Union replacement project was finally approved in 2004, it was agreed the only way it could proceed was if the construction would be funded by a mandatory, dedicated fee. This was agreed to at the time by all the stakeholders, including the administration, Board of Trustees and all three respective student governments.
2. This fee is to be used for the new student union facility only. It will be implemented Spring Quarter, as the facility is scheduled to open in March 2010. The Student Union Facility Fee will be a mandatory fee prorated by credit hour enrollment, and will be phased in gradually.
3. Proposed fee for FY 2010 (starting Spring Quarter):

Undergraduate students: $27 per quarter for full-time, $2.25 per credit hour for part-time

Graduate students: $25 per quarter for full-time, $2.50 per credit hour for part-time
4. The budgeted amount of the fee through FY 2014 is as follows:
 - Fee set at $25/quarter in Spring and Summer 2010, with the fee rising to $50 in Autumn 2010.
 - Each year thereafter, for the next four years, the fee would increase by $3. Therefore the fee will be $53 in

² Based on "Single Student Comprehensive Rate".

³ Weighted average room rates and base board plan. Individual rates may vary.

⁴ Rate is for West Campus.

⁶ Student basketball package is 10 games.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Autumn 2011, $56 in Autumn 2012, $59 in Autumn 2013, and $62 in Autumn 2014.

- The fee would be fully phased in at that point, with increases needed only to keep up with renewal and replacement funding (probably about $1/year).
5. These numbers assume that the Student Union Facility receives $8M in Exclusive Beverage Contract funds in FY 2010, $1M in FY 2011, and $1M in FY 2012, and assumes that all of these dollars remain in an interest earning account throughout the phase-in period.

C. Proposed New Fees

- At the July Board of Trustees meeting, we intend to submit for approval a new fee for Student Legal Services. This will not be a mandatory fee. We are continuing to develop the proposal for implementation during FY 2010.
- A recommendation regarding the increased Student Activity Fee proposed by the Student Governments will also be presented at the July meeting.

June 5, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

IV. Health System Charges

- A. The FY 10 weighted price increase for the Health Systems is 2.18%.

- B. The Health System budget will be presented in its entirety at the July Board Meeting.

V. Differential and Supplemental Instructional Fees

Differential instructional fee increases for other students will range from 2.5% to 9.2%, effective Fall Quarter 2009

Fisher College of Business is offering a new program for FY 2010, the Specialized Masters in Business (SMB). The proposed instructional fee for this program is $7,324 per quarter.

This version has been modified to specify that the Assistant Vice President of Financial Services and/or Senior Vice President for Business and Finance has the authority to also engage in and sign agreements for underwriting, brokerage, leasing and equipment financing. It also clarifies that the Assistant Vice President of Financial Services and Senior Vice President for Business and Finance has the authority to perform electronic transfer of funds on behalf of the University.

- B. Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. The Investment Committee has strategic oversight responsibility for the investment program and operations of the Funds. - G. Custodians. The University retains one or more custodian banks or trust institutions to custody and report on the assets of the Fund.

V. OPERATING FUND ASSET ALLOCATION AND GUIDELINES

- A. Time Horizon. The University's Short-Term Operating Fund is divided into two pools: Short- Term Pool, which represents at least 30 days of total University expenditures, and has an investment horizon of less than one year. The Intermediate-Term Pool is the remainder and is invested with an investment horizon of one to five years.
- B. Risk Tolerance. The Board of Trustees, the Investment Committee, and staff recognize the challenge of achieving the Fund's investment objectives in light of the uncertainties and complexities of investment markets. They also recognize that prudent levels of investment risk are necessary to achieve investment objectives.

- C. Asset Allocation and Rebalancing. Asset allocation is the largest contributor to overall Fund return performance and risk characteristics. The Short-Term Pool serves as the working cash balance to provide necessary liquidity for the University's operations. The Board of Trustees and Investment Committee will periodically evaluate the allocation to the Short-Term Operating Fund and Long-Term Investment Pool for appropriateness. The University's Short-Term Operating Fund has the following classes and benchmarks:

Asset Class	Benchmark Index
Short -Term Pool	90 Day T-Bill
Intermediate-Term Pool	Merrill Lynch 1-3 year Bond Index

Market fluctuations, cash flows and liquidity issues will cause the actual asset allocation to fluctuate. The Assistant Vice President of Financial Services will rebalance the portfolio to policy as follows:

Short and Intermediate Term Pools

The Short-Term Pool shall cover at least thirty days of University cash flow. At least 25% of the combined operating portfolio should be short-term, as a reserve, in accordance with Article VII. The amount of the combined Short and Intermediate Pools must be enough to cover at least sixty days cash flow. The amount of the combined Short and Intermediate Pools must be greater than or equal to 110% of all variable rate debt including commercial paper.

Long-Term

After the amount of the Short and Intermediate Pools are determined monies may be transferred to the Long-Term Investment Pool. Operating Funds available for transfer to the Long-Term Investment Pool should be net of bond construction funds. To assure units who have cash invested in these funds that they will receive full value of their investment, a stabilization reserve will be maintained. This reserve will be maintained equal to 5% of the value of the Long-Term Operating Fund and will be invested with the Short-Term Operating Fund.

General

The allocation amounts will be reviewed periodically but at least semi-annually. The number used to calculate days of university cash flow will be based on the Board of Trustees approved University Budget.

Other Funds

Funds other than the Short-Term Operating Fund will be managed according to this policy with asset allocations approved by the Assistant Vice President of Financial Services.

D. Investment Manager Guidelines. The investment guidelines incorporated into each manager's contract documents the performance expectations and risk parameters of the manager's investment approach. The guidelines also specify the typical portfolio characteristics of the portfolio. These characteristics are used to monitor a manager's investment style adherence to insure that the manager is continuously fulfilling its investment role in the Fund.

VI. INVESTMENT MONITORING PROCESS

The Fund's investment managers will be monitored for consistency of investment philosophy, return relative to objectives, and investment risk, at least quarterly. The Assistant Vice President of Financial Services and the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance will monitor the overall fund results and investment portfolios, but results will be evaluated on a long term basis. The following manager issues will be considered by the Assistant Vice President of Financial Services (1) failure to comply with the applicable investment style, guidelines, performance objectives, and fees, (2) a material change in ownership or personnel, or (3) a violation or potential violation of the terms of the investment manager agreement or other applicable laws and regulations. Details of the Funds shall be reported in the University's Annual Report.

VII. OPERATING FUND LIMITATIONS

Pursuant to Ohio Revised Code Section 3345.05, at least twenty-five per cent of the average amount of the Operating Fund portfolio over the course of the previous fiscal year shall be invested in securities of the United States government or of its agencies or instrumentalities, the treasurer of state's pooled investment program, obligations of this state or any political subdivision of this state, certificates of deposit of any national bank located in this state, written repurchase agreements with any eligible Ohio financial institution that is a member of the federal reserve system or federal home loan bank, money market funds, or bankers acceptances maturing in two hundred seventy days or less which are eligible for purchase by the federal reserve system, as a reserve.

The University requires of itself and its external managers the prudent management of these assets of the Fund for the exclusive purpose of enhancing the value of the Fund. The Assistant Vice President of Financial Services has the authority to vote proxies in accordance with the Proxy Policy.

JOINT USE AGREEMENT
BETWEEN THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY AND THE NATIONWIDE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

BACKGROUND

The Research Institute at Nationwide Children's Hospital (Nationwide) is recognized as one of the nation's ten largest free-standing pediatric research centers and is a subsidiary of Nationwide Children's Hospital. The Nationwide Children's Hospital is a non-profit corporation located in Columbus, Ohio, dedicated to improving the health of children and their families in central Ohio and beyond.

CURRENT APPROPRIATION/PROPOSED JUA

In 2008 the Ohio General Assembly appropriated state capital funds in the amount of $2.5 million to OSU for Nationwide's purchase of capital equipment. This appropriation will result in the purchase of capital equipment to be utilized solely by principal investigators of the Nationwide Children's Center who also hold faculty appointments at the University. The research conducted will improve the lives of Central Ohio children and their families. Furthermore, this capital purchase will promote the University's mission to address issues and problems of global dimension that are affecting the quality of the human condition. Research conducted with the aid of this capital equipment purchase will advance University efforts to address issues such as health and disease and in turn will provide an immeasurable value to all of humanity.

Before the state capital appropriation of $2.5 million can be released to Nationwide Children's Hospital, the Ohio Board of Regents requires that a Joint Use Agreement (JUA) between OSU and Nationwide be signed to document the value of the appropriation to OSU and to assure the benefits to the University will continue for a minimum period of fifteen years. In summary, the proposed JUA for this appropriation includes the following provisions:

1. Nationwide commits to the University that the monies for the project shall be used to purchase capital equipment for the purpose of conducting research.
2. Nationwide commits to providing research space and opportunities to faculty of The Ohio State University College of Medicine also identified as principal investigators at Nationwide Children's Hospital.
3. The term of this JUA shall commence as of the date of its approval by the Ohio Board of Regents and shall expire twenty (20) years thereafter. In the event that the JUA is terminated prior to the end of the term, Nationwide is obligated to reimburse the State of Ohio the proportionate amount of the appropriation representing the years of use remaining under this JUA.
4. Except for the funds used to cover the University's reasonable administrative costs related to the project ($37,500), the funds provided under this JUA shall be used by Nationwide only for capital improvements or purchases and shall not be used for operating expenses.

OSU Board of Trustees approval is required before the JUA can be completed and sent to the Ohio Board of Regents and the Ohio Controlling Board for approval and release of funds.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

John Glenn

John Glenn is a former U.S. Senator and one of the nation's first astronauts.

A native of New Concord, Sen. Glenn graduated from New Concord High School and enrolled in Muskingum College. While a junior in college, he took flying lessons at the New Philadelphia airport, earning his pilot's license in 1941. Just after the attack on Pearl Harbor in December of that year, he left college to enter military flight training and was commissioned in the Marine Corps in 1943. He was awarded a bachelor of science in engineering from Muskingum in 1962.

As a Marine fighter pilot, he flew combat missions in World War II and the Korean conflict. After Korea, he became a test pilot and, in 1957, set a transcontinental speed record, traveling from Los Angeles to New York in 3 hours and 23 minutes. In 1959, he was selected as one of seven NASA Mercury astronauts. Three years later, on February 20, 1962, he piloted the "Friendship 7" spacecraft, making history as the first American to orbit the earth. He completed a successful three-orbit mission and returned to a hero's welcome.

Sen. Glenn retired from the Marine Corps as a colonel in 1965 and became a business executive with Royal Crown International. He became active in Democratic politics and early environmental protection efforts in Ohio. In 1974, he was elected to the U.S. Senate, carrying all 88 counties in Ohio. He was reelected in 1980 with the largest margin of votes in Ohio history. Ohioans returned him to the Senate for the third time in 1986, and, in 1992, he again made history by being the first popularly elected senator from Ohio to win four consecutive terms. He retired from the Senate in 1999.

Sen. Glenn returned to space in 1998 as a member of NASA's Space Shuttle Discovery mission STS-95 during which the crew supported a variety of research payloads and investigations on space flight and aging.

Prior to his retirement from the Senate, in October 1997, Sen. Glenn donated his papers and memorabilia to The Ohio State University. In September 1998, Ohio State announced the establishment of the John Glenn Institute for Public Service and Public Policy, now the John Glenn School of Public Affairs, housed in Page Hall.

Sen. Glenn is the recipient of hundreds of honors. He holds the Air Medal with 18 Clusters for his combat service and has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross on six occasions. He is also the recipient of the Congressional Space Medal of Honor.

RECIPIENTS OF HONORS

DOCTOR OF PUBLIC SERVICE

Annie Glenn has had a lifelong interest in community service, particularly programs for children, the elderly, and the handicapped.

Born in Columbus, she grew up in New Concord, Ohio, where she became a childhood playmate of John H. Glenn Jr. They became high school and college sweethearts, both attending Muskingum College, where she earned her bachelor of arts degree in music and secretarial science in 1942. The couple married in 1943.

Afflicted with a severe stuttering problem since childhood, Mrs. Glenn completed an intensive program at the Communications Research Institute at Hollins College in Roanoke, Virginia, in 1973. Although she does not consider herself "cured," she speaks freely and gives speeches at public events.

In 1983, she received the first national award of the American Speech and Hearing Association for "providing an inspiring model for people with communicative disorders." The National Association for Hearing and Speech Action honored her in 1987 by asking her to present the first annual Annie Glenn Award for achieving distinction despite a communicative disorder. She is a member of the advisory panel of the Central Ohio Speech and Hearing Association and has served on the National Deafness and Other Communications Disorders Advisory Council of the National Institutes of Health.

She is a member of the advisory boards for the National Center for Survivors of Childhood Abuse and the National First Ladies' Library and is a member of the board of directors of the International Longevity Center - USA in New York. With her husband, she serves on the Muskingum College board of trustees and the advisory board of The Ohio State University John Glenn School of Public Affairs. In addition, she is an adjunct assistant professor in Ohio State's Department of Speech and Hearing Science.

Among her many honors are membership in the Ohio Women's Hall of Fame and induction into the Hall of Excellence of the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges. She also had the honor of christening the U.S.S. Ohio, the first in its class of Trident nuclear ballistic missile submarines.

Ernest L. Mazzaferri Sr.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

Ernest Mazzaferri is emeritus professor and former chair of The Ohio State University Department of Internal Medicine.

The Cleveland native earned his bachelor of science degree from John Carroll University in 1958 and his medical degree from The Ohio State University in 1962. After completing his internship, residency, and postdoctoral studies at Ohio State, he joined the university's faculty in 1968, becoming associate professor and director of the division of endocrinology and metabolism in 1973. In 1977, he joined the University of Nevada School of Medicine as professor and chair of medicine. He returned to Ohio State in 1984 as professor and chair of internal medicine and professor of physiology until his 1999 retirement. In 2001, he became adjunct professor of medicine in the Division of Endocrinology at the University of Florida and was named Courtesy Professor of Medicine in 2007.

During his years on Ohio State's medical faculty, Dr. Mazzaferri focused his clinical and laboratory research activities on the diagnosis and treatment of thyroid cancer, authoring more than 200 peer-reviewed publications, two major textbooks, and a number of other clinical books on endocrinology. He was instrumental in the development of clinical practice guidelines, bringing Ohio State national recognition as a leader in developing this model of patient care.

As chair of the Department of Internal Medicine, he saw the department grow from approximately 60 to 160 members and oversaw the funding for a new subspecialty clinic, the Stoneridge Medical Center, which eventually became one of the busiest multispecialty clinics in Columbus. Under his leadership, the department also formed a well-respected Thyroid Cancer Clinic.

During his Ohio State tenure, Dr. Mazzaferri became a Master of the American College of Physicians, an award given to approximately 300 people nationally. He was a member of the board of directors of the American Board of Internal Medicine, serving as chair of the board's Subspecialty Board of Endocrinology and Diabetes from 1999 to 2003.

His honors include the prestigious Paul Starr Award for clinical investigators from the American Thyroid Association, the Endocrine Society's Distinguished Educator Award, the Clinician of the Year Award from the American Diabetes Association Ohio Affiliate, and the American College of Endocrinology Distinguished Clinician Award.

She has returned frequently to her alma mater to share her media expertise with the Moritz College of Law and the university as a whole, dedicating numerous volunteer hours through continuing legal education programs, media relations workshops, promotional videos, and student mentoring. She emceed the 2000 celebration of the completion of the university's successful "Affirm Thy Friendship" fund-raising campaign and, in 2003, moderated the nationally televised live gubernatorial debate sponsored by the John Glenn School of Public Affairs. In 2004, she served as the university's spring commencement speaker. She serves on the New York Region Major Gifts Committee and has long helped raise funds for student recruitment and scholarships in that area.

Ms. Moriarty has received numerous honors, including nine national Emmy Awards, a 2001 Overseas Press Club Award, and two Association of Women in Radio and Television Gracie Allen Awards for a weekly radio talk show she co-hosted in Philadelphia. PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Gee:

Thank you very much. Welcome everyone. We are so delighted to have you here today, and I assume you have all seen the front page story, this is a momentous day for the institution.

I want you all to know that every Friday Google puts out a story about the seven most intriguing job openings, and they put it out this morning, I thought you would like to know that the number one most intriguing job is being a sheep herder. The wage is $750 per month, and this job is located in Vernal, Utah, my hometown. This is what it says "Vernal, Utah, population 7,714, is the birthplace of academic Gordon Gee whose presidencies of five U.S. universities is the most of any American." I want you to know that I am famous today. When I first read that I thought they were asking me to be a sheep herder, and I did not know what that was about.

It has been three months since I last had a chance to report to our Board. I will tell you that a university president can find himself in some unusual circumstances in 90 days' time, far below the earth's surface in NASA Glenn's space propulsion testing facility which is absolutely wonderful and even more frightening, behind the wheel of a semi-tractor truck at Mattingly Foods in Zanesville - the Big Green. I will ask the officers of the court who are present here today, our judges to please overlook the fact that I am not qualified to drive that thing, but boy I had a good time, I did some wheelies.

Truly, I spent a great deal of time in planes, trains and automobiles, spreading the University's gospel to Germany, Poland, England, India, and 49 counties throughout the State of Ohio.

I even turned a few of the vice presidents into road warriors, and I am not sure that some of them have yet recovered. We visited county fairs, family farms, high schools and businesses small and large. And, no, as you know last year my goal was to milk a cow in every county, I only made it to one county and one cow before I stopped that. That was a messy lesson and one not to be forgotten. So now we are planting a buckeye tree in every county this time around. It is much safer, I can assure you.

Moving right along, move-in week is upon us, indeed it is. Dr. Adams-Gaston will tell you that the logistical challenges of checking 10,000 students into the residence halls are sizeable, but they cannot compare to last year at this time when much of the University was without power, as you can remember.

Here is where I do get to do some bragging. This year's freshman class has the highest ACT and SAT scores ever, and they are also the largest group we have welcomed in a decade, some 500 more freshman than last year. That last fact is important to me and here is why. I feel very strongly that in these challenging times, this land-grant University is duty-bound to open wider the door of opportunity. While other state-supported universities around the country have reduced the size of their entering classes, we have done exactly the opposite. Now, in my view, is not the moment to limit dreams or to put futures on hold. We are able to take the opposite course because of the state's strong leadership in protecting core funding for higher education, for which I am grateful. A bipartisan effort indeed, for that I think that this University can be most proud.

Helping to assure that the University continues to attract the best prepared students is Dolan Evanovich, our new Vice President for Strategic Enrollment Planning. He joins us from the University of Connecticut where he held a very similar position.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

This month we are also welcoming more than 125 talented new faculty members, and we are very fortunate to have a gifted group of senior faculty leaders, some with new positions.

With us today is one of my favorite people in the whole world, can I just say that I love him dearly, Tim Gerber from the School of Music. Tim leads our Faculty Council. Are you an oboe player by the way?

Dr. Gerber:

I am.

President Gee:

That's what I thought. That is the reason I love you.

Dr. Rathman from Chemical Engineering is not able to be with us today, but he heads the University Senate Steering Committee.

Also here is Amy Ehrlich. Amy is the new chair of the University Staff Advisory Committee. She is a program manager in our Center for Continuing Medical Education. Amy welcome, and by the way, that was a great start of school you did the other day. I appreciate all the partnerships and leadership. We really do have such a wonderful partnership with our faculty and our staff, and it makes this a terrific place to be part of, and I appreciate that.

We are moving at a good clip. With summer comes college rankings, and the news is very good. In July, the Medical Center was named to U.S. News & World Report's prestigious "Honor Roll," out of the nearly 4,900 hospitals considered for the rankings, ours is in the top 21. That is quite remarkable.

Last month U.S. News released its annual best college rankings. Ohio State continues to move up, I do not believe in these rankings, but as we continue to do better, I am becoming more of a convert I will note.

The problem in these rankings is that the numeric calculations reveal little about the range of opportunities on campus or the sum of the collegiate experiences. A few weeks ago, Newsweek magazine, to compete with U.S. News & World Report, came out with a new assessment which addresses that very issue. The magazine listed 25 colleges and universities according to what types of incoming students would thrive on those campuses. These they said were the top 25 institutions. Ohio State is listed as the "Best Place for Bold Applicants Ready to Try Everything." I just love that. I think that is us. I think that should be us. It suits us perfectly, and it describes our students to a T.

Students here as you know tackle double-majors in English and microbiology, Spanish and mechanical engineering. They collaborate in solving global issues. This summer for example, Ohio State's student team won first place in the first of three years of the EcoCAR Challenge. EcoCAR is an international competition to design and market new hybrid vehicles. It is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy, General Motors, and several other companies. Our team includes students majoring in various engineering fields, as well as business, communications and biology.

Just think about what these bold students willing to try everything are doing. They are participating in hands-on industrial design work. They are helping to re-cast America's auto industry. They are working to solve crises in both energy and climate change, and they are in my view the best and brightest in the world. Our EcoCAR students work with guidance from the University's Center for Automotive Research. With growing partnerships and programs, the center has quickly become a locus of innovation in hybrid-electric R&D.

Affirmation of the work of our students and faculty extends across campus of course. Last month U.S. Department of Education awarded $1 million to a partnership led by the Department of History. The grant will improve the teaching of American history through seminars and other work with Ohio social studies teachers at the middle school level. We had 30 English teachers in Ohio in Stratford on Avon, in our new Royal Shakespeare Company partnership - wonderful moment for those teachers and for this University.

As I close my report, I want to make special note of the tremendous success of Pelotonia. Let me just say that it was a remarkable event. We had hoped to get maybe 500 people. We set an audacious goal of 2,200 people, and in the end there were 2,264 or something like that, and in that event they raised $4.5 million for immediate use by our researchers and physicians in finding a cure for cancer.

We owe a debt of gratitude to many, to the thousands of participants and volunteers of which there were, Tom Lennox for his leadership, I am going to introduce Tom here in a second, NetJets for its generous sponsorship, and Lance Armstrong for his participation. He got on his bike, and we never saw him again. We do not know where he is.

Tom, you are here, would you stand, introduce your team, and I want everyone to give these guys a big round of applause.

Mr. Lennox:

With me today is our Director of Administration, Andy Hutter, and Jessica Kinmad, who is an Ohio State University graduate. Jessica heads up our publicity communications. She was my first hire. And my very good friend of 15 years, and director of operations, and former partner of the Jones Day Law firm, Kelly Griesmer.

President Gee:

Tom, I just want to say to you, I know because of your own health challenges that this was a labor of love, not something you did as a job, and so to all of you, thank you. I by the way, Mr. Chairman, think this will not only become a great University event, it is a great event for Ohio, and it is one that will be a real signature to us. Congratulations to all of you.

As you can tell our fall is off to an inspiring start as my tenure's two-year mark approaches, I am 14 days shy of that. I am more thankful, and I told this to the Board this morning, than ever to be leading this truly remarkable University in this extraordinary state, at this most uncommon moment in its history.

The force and scale of our opportunities, I can assure you, are enormous. We have much to celebrate at the beginning of a great year.

PRESENTATION OF MEDICAL CENTER EMERITUS BOARD APPOINTMENTS

President Gee:

It is now my pleasure to ask the Chairman to join me in recognizing the appointment of two inaugural members of our Medical Center Emeritus Board.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Libby Ross is among the University's most devoted alumni and friends, and that is true. Her support and guidance have enriched many programs across the campus. Along with her late husband, Richard, she helped to transform cardiac health care in this community, and certainly at this University. She was an exemplary honorary member of the Ross Heart Hospital Board.

Libby, on behalf of this University, please accept both our gratitude and this award in recognition of your appointment to the Medical Center Emeritus Board.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Ross:

I have a heart full of gratitude to all of you for giving me this very distinguished award. I am really quite speechless, thank you, and I hope it leads to lots of other good things.

President Gee:

We are now honored that Dick Solove is also joining the Medical Center Board Emeritus. Some of you might know, Dick, you and I first met in 1990 when you tried to sell me one of those Rolls Royces, I did not buy it, did I? Never try to do that, Dick always gives, he does not ask. As some of you might know, Dick's association with our Medical Center began only a few years after he graduated from Ohio State. His father was being treated for cancer by Dr. James, as I remember. The friendship and partnership that began with this University in the early 1950s has grown into a lifetime of service. He served as a member of The Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital and the Richard J. Solove Research Institute Board. We do not need to imagine why that happened.

His strategic vision and generosity helped to establish the University as a leader in cancer genetics research, literally a leader in this world.

Dick, on behalf of this University, please accept our gratitude and this award in recognition of your appointment to the Medical Center Board Emeritus, Dick Solove, ladies and gentleman.

Mr. Richard J. Solove:

Thank you very much. I can raise hell for ten dollars but giving millions of dollars to the James Cancer Hospital has been one of the most pleasurable things I have ever done in my life. It is a wonderful hospital, and I would like to express my deepest and most gracious gratitude to all of you, for what you did to help them and make the reality of a new hospital. Thank you very much.

Mr. Wexner:

Richard, Libby, thank you again for all that you have done and continue to do that benefits the University. Certainly what you have done in the past has helped get us here, and now we have to get from here to there, which I am sure we will talk about soon.

Let me change subjects and ask Alex Swain to present the Student Recognition Awards please.

STUDENT RECOGNITION AWARDS

Ms. Swain:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. It is my honor to present Barbara Reichert and Dustin Gardner.

Barbara Reichert is a fourth year pre-medicine student, pursuing a bachelor of science degree in nutrition from the College of Education and Human Ecology. Barbara is from Dayton, Ohio and was the valedictorian at Kettering Fairmont High School. She chose Ohio State for its abundant resources and opportunities to pursue her passions of medicine and nutrition. Upon entering Ohio State, she was awarded the Nancy Reger Broughton Endowed Scholarship, the OSU Honors Scholarship, and the Frank and Violet Koken Scholarship.

In June of 2008, Barbara began volunteering as a research assistant studying nutrigenomics, an emerging field which investigates how nutrients regulate genes in health and disease. Her lab focuses on how micronutrients, such as Vitamin A, can change genetic programs leading to obesity and type 2 diabetes. Barbara's principal investigator, Dr. Ouliana Ziouzenkova, says that she has demonstrated astonishing learning abilities and her attention to detail is far beyond those of a typical student internship. She mastered many laboratory techniques including Western blotting, protein determination, and necropsy. Dr. Ziouzenkova further notes, "She is also a great teacher of the techniques to fellow members in lab and has become an indispensable person in the laboratory." Barbara is the leading author on an ongoing publication, which will be submitted to Nature Medicine. She presented her work at the annual Ohio State University Comprehensive Cancer Center meeting in February 2009 as well as the Denman Undergraduate Research forum last May. Barbara has received two competitive fellowships to support her research, including an Honors Thesis Fellowship which she will investigate the role of estrogen and vitamin A metabolizing enzymes on female abdominal obesity. Additionally, she has been invited to present her research at the University of Cincinnati Jensen Symposium next month.

Her focus on research has not limited her engagement in leadership and service while at OSU. She is a National Member of Alpha Epsilon Delta, and also the Academic Excellence Chair for her sorority, Kappa Delta, as well as a Panhellenic delegate. Barbara is a great role model for academic excellence, as she has maintained a 4.0 GPA throughout her entire academic career. She also volunteers her time at the OSU Medical Center and as a site leader for Community Commitment, the nation's largest single day service project on a college campus. In March, she participated in the Alternative Breaks program, spending her spring break in New Orleans with Habitat for Humanity building homes in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina.

Barbara is currently applying to medical schools and hopes to become a family practice physician, especially helping those with weight-related issues.

She is joined today by her parents and Senior Associate Dean of the College of Education and Human Ecology, Sandra Stroot.

Our second student is Dustin Gardner who is a third-year student in the College of Optometry. Originally from Youngstown, Ohio, Dustin did his pre-optometry studies at Ohio State. In August 2007, he was admitted to optometry school after only three years of undergraduate course work. As an undergraduate, Dustin served as an officer in the Pre-Optometry Club and was active with Undergraduate Student Government Diversity Committee. He also worked in the Office for Disability Services as an exam facilitator, assisting students who required a reader or a scribe for their exams.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

During his time in the College of Optometry, Dustin has demonstrated leadership and service to the College and his fellow students. He currently serves as president of the Optometry Student Council and also as the vice-president of the class of 2011. Additionally, Dustin serves as the student representative on the College Curriculum Committee, Special Events Committee, and the OSU Optometry Alumni Association. In these capacities, he has provided valuable input and feedback on a broad range of topics and has effectively communicated the student viewpoint. Dustin also is a member of the Optometry Ambassadors, a college student organization, which does weekly tours on interview days and coordinates special hosting events for prospective students.

Upon admission to the College of Optometry, Dustin was awarded the Optometry Merit Scholarship and worked in the dean's office as an office assistant. Assistant Dean of Clinical Affairs Greg Good noted that Dustin "relates well to patients, has been very respectful and understanding with older patients and those with language barriers." Furthermore, Dustin "has an excellent attitude and takes full responsibility for the care of the patient."

Dean Melvin Shipp added, "Dustin has demonstrated exceptional leadership and professionalism during his time in our College, and I am confident that he will become an exceptional clinician and professional colleague upon graduation." After receiving his degree, Dustin hopes to join an optometry practice in the Columbus area.

He is joined today by his parents and the Dean of the College of Optometry, Melvin Shipp.

As Barbara and Dustin come forward to give their remarks, please join me in congratulating these two outstanding students.

Ms. Reichert:

Thank you Alex. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all of you on the Board of Trustees, for the honor of being selected for this award.

Ohio State with its endless opportunities has provided for me a wonderful environment to grow as a person, and to push myself beyond my limits, to serve something larger than myself. As you all know, the Buckeye spirit that runs through the veins of everyone here at Ohio State is very exhilarating. Each of us, from students to staff to professors, all strive to bring pride to the scarlet and gray the best way that we personally can.

I would like to thank my research advisor and my very dear mentor, Dr. Ouliana Ziouzenkova, to whom I really do owe this award. She has taught me to strive for my best, through her personal example and her confidence in me. I would also like to thank my parents. It is because of their perpetual love and support that I have the ability and will to pursue all these wonderful opportunities.

Thank you again, Board of Trustees, I am grateful for your support, and I look forward to serving Ohio State in the best ways that I can.

Mr. Gardner:

Well I have been participating in a week long intensive clinical science course at the College of Optometry this week, and in fact I have a final in a couple hours, so I have not been able to come up with any formal comments, but I wanted to thank you for honoring me with this award. To come to Ohio State and be a member of the student body the size that it is, and to think that you would single me out and recognize me for my efforts is quite ambitious.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

I am very honored to be recognized with this award. I would like to thank Dean Shipp and Sally Halton, the director of our student affairs, for nominating me. Of course I would like to thank my parents, not only for being here with me, but for all they have done for me. This award directly reflects them as much as it does me.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Mr. Wexner:

We can now move to committee reports. We will start with Trusteeship, and then move on to Agricultural, Audit, Medical Affairs, Development, Academic Affairs and Student Life, and then Fiscal Affairs. So, Alex Shumate, chairman of the Committee on Trusteeship, first please.

Mr. Shumate:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. In our Trusteeship Committee meeting yesterday, we discussed five topics; orientation, faculty membership on the Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee, as well as Charter Trustees, a letter we received from the Ohio Board of Regents, and also the evaluation of our Board meetings.

We are very pleased to report and we want to thank our Board Secretary, David Frantz and his staff for conducting an excellent orientation of our two new Trustee members. We are constantly looking as our chairman has charged us to continuously improve as Board members and focus on the issues of governance and trusteeship. Part of that is the on-boarding process, and based upon the feedback from both Janet Reid as well as Jerry Jurgensen, their two days of orientation, not only to the University but an important addition is the orientation to the role as a Board of Trustee member, was excellent. As a follow-up and again in our efforts to continuously improve, we will be appointing mentors for our two newest Trustee members. We have asked our vice chair, also the vice chair of the Trusteeship Committee, Jo Ann Davidson to serve as a mentor to Janet Reid, and as chair of the Trusteeship Committee, Mr. Chairman, I will be serving as a mentor to Jerry Jurgensen. We look forward to working with them and continuing their on boarding process.

Secondly, we discussed the issue of faculty membership on the Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee. The process is moving forward. We have formalized the protocol that will be used for the selection of the faculty member to join that very important committee of the Board. The Faculty Council will be presenting three to five names to the Board of Trustees. The Trusteeship Committee in consultation with the chair of the Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee will make a recommendation to this Board and we will consider not only the leadership involvement of the faculty member at the University on faculty issues, but also overall activities involving the University as a whole. At this point, I should mention that the Trusteeship Committee will hold a special meeting prior to the October meeting so that we can advance this issue to the Board and move this appointment forward.

The third item that we discussed as the Trusteeship Committee was the issue of Charter Trustees. As the members of the Board know we have made the decision as a Board to add potentially three national or international members to the Board of Trustees, as Charter Trustees. Again through a very excellent report that was provided by Ambassador Ong, as well as Mrs. Davidson, we looked at their recommendation for a process of recommendation to this Board as well as final selection by the Board. We are looking to expand and supplement the expertise and experiences that we have on the Board through the appointment of these Charter

Trustees. We note that Ambassador Ong and Mrs. Davidson have engaged in extensive consultation not only with members of the University but also the Alumni Association as well as the Foundation Board and they will be making a report to us at our special meeting that will be held before the October meeting. That process is moving forward very well and we look forward to bringing a recommendation to the full Board.

The fourth item tabbed under Trusteeship in our notebooks is a letter from the Chancellor, where the Chancellor is requesting, Mr. Chairman, that we appoint members to working groups the Chancellor is forming in order to move forward with their goal of establishing the University System of Ohio. There are four committees that they would like us to appoint representatives to: 1) communication, 2) education and training, 3) governance and 4) resources. They requested that the first appointment be to the communication working group and we have asked for you, Mr. Chairman, if you would, to follow up with the Chancellor to find out specifically what they are looking for in terms of persons that they would like us to recommend based upon their charter and their goals.

Finally in our notebooks is a document that we would like the Board members to fill out. It is an evaluation document that we would like, after each Board meeting, to have individual evaluations from Trustees about the Board meeting itself. Again in the spirit of our goal of continuous improvement and in working with Dr. Chait, it is a very simple form to request from Board members their perspectives on our meetings, their perspectives on whether we are properly focused on the strategic issues and key issues that are most important to the advancement of the University, as well as additional topics which Board members would like to discuss.

That completes my report Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Wexner:

Janet since you are the beneficiary of the on boarding process, any feedback or report back to us as how we are doing with helping you on board?

Dr. Reid:

The program is excellent, and what Jerry and I had the pleasure of doing is, over two days, meeting a broad cross section of University leaders as well as just getting a physical orientation to the campus, which was fabulous. The additional part of on boarding that worked so well, is that we were able to follow up with all those that we met for further questions and further information. I really appreciate the process, and further we will continue our on boarding through doing deeper dives into certain parts of the University. I think Jerry and I both will agree that by the time our nine years are up, we will have actually seen every college, it will take about that long.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Any questions or comments? I just would like to amplify publicly the seriousness that the Board takes upon itself for doing the work of the Board, and the quality of the work. So clearly us setting goals of achievement for the year as others do in the University, evaluating on a periodic basis the quality of meetings, work that was completed, re-evaluating the processes and improving processes like an on boarding, selection of Trustees, publicly everyone should note that the Trustees remind everybody that all of us are appointed by the Governor. The Governor has his own free will to select Trustees that will benefit the University. We try collectively to influence the Governor in those decisions to provide us with Trustees who are capable, have skills that we need, and also who will do the work. Again the notion of us taking ourselves seriously, I would like to say that quite publicly. The notion of Charter Trustees, looking for people with broader experiences to balance out our skills, to bring necessary skill, work and effort to the Board is important, and the internal process of describing those skills, finding candidates who can help us make the University a better place, is serious work. That was begun earnestly by Dr. Cloyd, in terms of an initiative for the Board. Alex chairs this Committee, and it is very important to the University.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Jack can we hear the Agricultural Affairs report?

Mr. Fisher:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Agricultural Affairs met early this morning in the spirit of the work that we do. First we talked about the budget situation relative to the College of Food, Agriculture and Environmental Sciences, in particularly the two line items for cooperative extension and OARDC. Overall, dealing with the economic times, the two line items faired okay, but that does not mean we did not experience cuts, because we did. Under Dr. Moser's leadership, we are doing some realigning and readjusting to meet those budget needs.

I want to remind everybody that the budget situation relative to those two line items is a little more complex, in that funding comes from the federal level, from the state level and from local government. When all of your main funders are under duress, it does add a challenge to our overall effort. We are moving forward, we are preparing, and also anticipating future budget challenges, and keeping that in mind as we go forward with our work.

On the positive side, the college enrollment is up 25% for this fall, which we are very pleased about. A very good effort relative to recruitment. We are a changing industry in that we do not need as many farmers today, but certainly the career opportunities in the industry is growing each and every year.

A little bit of the output from the college, and what is happening. We're very happy to report that 93% of our 2008 graduates had a job as they received their diploma. We are very pleased about that, and we are also very pleased at the fact that 77% of those same graduates stayed in the State of Ohio. It looks like we are getting the job done there.

Over the last couple of years we have talked about the Hawks Nest Golf Course at ATI. I want to report to you that financially, things are in good shape, as we reviewed that over time. The bigger report here is the fact that our number of students in turf grass management has increased over 75% because of the addition of this laboratory, and the fact that we can combine this laboratory with our ATI curriculum has been a very strong advancement for ATI. We are very appreciative of that.

We reviewed the Centers of Innovation, and as we have talked about our campus footprint, infrastructure and a lot of things that we do, I am happy to report that the college is very active in four of our centers of innovation and we are talking about terminology; ecosystem, food innovation, integrating energy and environment, and the last one is international poverty solutions. Our commitment to be the land grant to the world. All of these centers of innovation seem to be thriving and doing very well on interdisciplinary cooperation.

This month the bids are going out for the PAAR facility at OARDC, that is Plant and Animal Agrosecurity Research facility. We have a unique opportunity here where we have a very strong faculty in place. A very strong program in place, and this facility will be a great addition to serving both of those entities.

We heard a report about an opportunity to collaborate with the Schmack BioEnergy proposal. This company is a leader in bioenergy research. We talked about the collaboration with Wayne County, with the research park, part of the city of Wooster, all those things that we need to do in outreach in putting this facility together have been conducted and this will come back to the Board in October for approval of a lease arrangement at OARDC.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Lastly we talked about the opportunity to revamp and upgrade the charge for the Agricultural Affairs Committee, relative to all that we are doing, strategic planning, the campus footprint and the future of our industry in integration here on campus, looking at both adding some extra outside committee members to the Agricultural Affairs Committee and redoing the charge. We will be working with you, Alex, and the Committee on Trusteeship to carry that forward.

Lastly on a sad note, I would recognize the passing of Norman Borlaug, a plant scientist, Nobel Peace Prize winner, and when you talk about making your contribution to the world, think about the very fact that every day, over half of the world's population owes something to Norman because of their opportunity to eat.

President Gee:

Mr. Chairman if I could just make a comment. First of all Dr. Borlaug did die this week, and that was sad. He was the father of the so called Green Revolution, which made available food for billions of people, particularly in China and India, and was a great friend of Ohio State by the way. In fact Dr. Rattan Lal is one of his great friends and he was his mentor, and who now takes up the flag for Borlaug. Dr. Lal just received the M.S. Swaminathan Award, recognizing which Borlaug received last year, as one of the foremost food scientists in the world, and we should note that. The thing that I wanted to do Mr. Chairman, is say that agriculture is also related very much to veterinary medicine. He is not here today so I did not recognize him in my notes, but we do have a new Dean of Veterinary Medicine, one of our own, Dr. Lonnie King, who as many of you know has joined us from the CDC, where he was the head of zoonotics, which is the passage of disease from animals to humans. Probably this nation's foremost authority on H1N1, and we are delighted that he has now joined with us at a time in which his own work will become immensely important to the health of this nation. We acknowledge Dr. King, and we will have an opportunity to introduce him later on to the public.

Mr. Wexner:

Questions, comments? Thank you Jack.

Audit and Compliance, Bob Schottenstein.

Mr. Schottenstein:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Audit and Compliance Committee met yesterday at 12:30 pm and the agenda primarily consisted of three compliance reports. One from Dr. Adams-Gaston on student life compliance; one from Ms. Kathy Starkoff, the chief technology officer of the University on technology compliance, primarily related to data protection; and a report from Dr. David Lindstedt on enterprise continuity. The reports were brief. The Committee was very satisfied with the compliance efforts that we are undertaking in each of these areas. In particular, noting the daunting challenge that Kathy Starkoff has in a very highly decentralized environment where there are, I think, in excess of 500 servers, and I am now going to show my technology ignorance, I think over 100 different email systems. It is a daunting task and I think it is worth noting that the efforts being made in this area are very appropriate. All three reports were really well done.

We also spent some time talking about, and I will just be very brief with this, the ways in which our Committee is attempting to, for lack of a better word, reorganizing ourselves. Just to put this in context, I think that for my perspective, Ohio State was somewhat ahead of the curve a number of years ago when it was one of the first public universities to actually launch an institute, an audit committee, taking a page out of the Sarbanes Oxley corporate America book, and I think that we have been fortunate to have a very good functioning Audit Committee here, but what we are trying to do is to find ways to re-examine what we do and how we do it to become a little bit more high performance, to make certain we are really focusing on those areas that require our focus. Our Committee structure here at the University with both the Fiscal Affairs Committee, which does some of the work that in corporate America an Audit Committee might otherwise do. We have a Medical Affairs Committee which also engages in and appropriately so, much of the work that again if this were a for profit enterprise, the Audit Committee might be focused on. We want to make certain that nothing slips between the gaps, and that at the same time devote our time to those macro-issues that require our greatest attention. I really appreciate the support of the Committee members in our efforts to examine our charter and to evaluate our agenda. We have had tremendous support from Bill Shkurti and Chris Culley and the other members of the University who, including the internal audit department at the University assist us.

Lastly, other than the work that we did in Executive Session, we received an update from Mr. Todd Guttman in response to a request we had made that was based upon a story many of you may have seen a number of months ago, where at the University of Louisville, the monies that were used from a research grant, and I believe their department of education, were not used in accordance with the purpose for which the grant was made. We asked Mr. Guttman to update our Committee on what safeguards we have in place here at Ohio State to assure us that what happened there, which has been very embarrassing for that university, and unfortunate, could not happen here. His report was outstanding. That concludes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Questions, comments? You lucked out Bob.

The long awaited Medical Affairs Committee Report, Alan Brass.

Mr. Brass:

Thank you Mr. Chairman, and good morning everyone. The Medical Affairs Committee had a very busy meeting yesterday, and I am going to go through a number of issues and then we will get to ProjectONE, which of course has taken and consumed an awful lot of time of everyone, but I think we are at the point that I think you will really appreciate the final outcome.

Yesterday we started off with finances, and I am happy to tell you that as we reviewed last year's financial situation of our Medical Center, we close on our academic year with, patient admissions up 2.4% from the year before, surgeries were up 6.4%, outpatient visits 6%, emergency room visits 10.5%, operating revenue was 8%, operating gain from operations 10.8%. The reason I went through that is again, even though we are in a very difficult economic time, our Medical Center finances are holding very strong.

For the first two months of this year we continue to see that same trend. We have a big issue called healthcare reform, whatever that might mean. In our forecast, which we will talk about a little later with ProjectONE, it is very important to understand as Trustees that we have taken a conservative approach to that. That is something that we have to be cognizant of, but we do not know what that means to us yet. The finances are looking very good at our Medical Center along with a great academic year, and a start of another academic year.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

We spent some time on the long range financial forecast. I am going to talk about that under ProjectONE.

We had two sets of bylaws that we are recommending on the consent agenda today, Mr. Chairman. Those bylaws are minor in nature, they are clarification bylaws, basically correcting terminology at two of our hospitals. They have been approved by the medical board, and those things will be coming forward as well. We have a long-term lease with a new ambulatory center in Gahanna that is coming forward on the consent agenda as well today.

Another very large item that has been worked on for quite some time is on the consent agenda today, and that is the ratification of appointments for the new Medical Center. If you recall as a Board, in April 2009, we approved the reorganization of The Ohio State University Medical Center by putting a Medical Center governance body in play and have the five respective hospital boards report up to the Medical Center. Today with the ratification of names and terms, basically what has happened is all terms have started anew. New members have joined the boards, they are all staggered terms and I am happy to announce upon our ratification that Dr. Jeff Wadsworth, president and chief executive officer of Battelle will become the new chair of the Ohio State University Medical Center Board of Trustees. We had a governance summit this past Tuesday in which 60 individuals were there to begin our orientation process, reviewing goals, reviewing how we are going to work together. The other thing that is very important to note is that as part of this restructure the chairman of The Ohio State University Medical Center will serve on the Medical Affairs Committee of our Board, and the chairman of the Medical Affairs Committee will serve on the Ohio State University Medical Center Board. That way we can assure ourselves of good continuity, good communication, and great cooperation. I think the Board should be aware of that, and that is on the consent agenda as well today.

I would like to recognize Dr. Souba for the great work that he is doing as it relates to dean of our Medical School. Chip gave a great report in the Medical Affairs Committee meeting, and in just the recent period of time, he and his colleagues are responsible for bringing 18 very great doctors to our Medical Center. As part of that job also, is the retention, and we had 8 of our great doctors that in fact were being looked at to be pulled out of here, and that was a full scale program to make sure that they stay at our great Medical Center. We were very successful. There are 689 new residents and fellows this year coming into our program, 220 medical students with an average GPA of 3.5+. We have a great student body coming in.

At this time I would like to turn our attention to ProjectONE. I would like to ask Dr. Steve Gabbe to come on up and join us. I am going to start with some introductory comments, then I am going to turn it over to Steve to give us a review of ProjectONE. First of all I would like to say that we, by design, intentionally did a 90 day pause, but it has turned out to be about a 100 day pause. I want to thank all of our fellow Trustees and all of the members of the Medical Center and medical school for all of their cooperation. This was an enormous undertaking, they did a great job, and let me tell you the pause ended up in a much better project that is coming forward for adoption today. There were four basic chapters as you all know that we really took time reviewing. First was the financial chapter. We had the forecast reviewed by Deloitte twice, and then we sent it out for a third review by Ken Kauffman with Kauffman and Associates just to make sure that in fact our numbers were reasonable. The second chapter was to make sure that this project is very much coordinated with our One University and our master campus plan. As Ron Ratner brings that plan up as the Trustee in charge, we wanted to make sure that we were fully synchronized with that plan, the best we could possibly be. The third was the re-look, one more time, at the design of our new tower, the platform and the area upon which we are building this, and that has been done. Then the last piece is to take all of those changes and to make sure that the strategic plan for the Medical Center has been updated so the strategic plan is fully matrixed and in sync with the program plan and the thrust areas that are in this new project, and that has been done. So those are the four chapters which we really concentrated on over the last 90 days. This is a $1 billion project, $925 million of bonds, $75 million of philanthropy. To date we have spent $121.8 million, those are projects that have been done up to the 90 day pause including the 60 additional beds at our heart hospital, the new MRI, a new faculty office tower, allocation of monies for the biomedical research complex, to finish off the three floors and $10 million of a contribution to the University as part of the master chiller program that this Medical Center needs and will be benefiting from. You will see that this project, I believe is now ready to go, and today I am going to read after Dr. Gabbe presents, an overview of the project authorization for ProjectONE to be considered after the consent agenda. Dr. Gabbe, thank you for all of your hard work and I will turn it over to you at this point.

PROJECTONE [POWERPOINT PRESENTATION]

Dr. Gabbe:

Thanks so much Alan. Good morning to everybody. Let me begin by recognizing Mr. Brass and Judge Marbley for their leadership during this period of review and our University partners, Jeff Kaplan and Bill Shkurti who led our ESG group. I want to identify for their efforts, Jay Kasey our project manager, and Gail Marsh who leads our strategic planning, and someone who I think was here earlier when we honored Mr. Solove, but who has left, is Dave Schuller. Dave has really lived and breathed this project for many, many years, and deserves a great deal of credit for bringing it to the point we have today.

We have built great hospitals in the past - The Ross Heart Hospital, the original James Cancer Hospital and Solove Research Institute. It is hard to believe that hospital is now nearly 20 years old, but we hope that we are about to build another great hospital on the campus of a great University. This was a very important concept as we recognize that this structure, the largest the University has ever constructed will be on a University campus, unlike other hospital buildings which may be separated by quite a distance from a university affiliation. We also felt very strongly that this was a structure that was about people. It was about the people who would work there, caring for the sickest patients we see every day, and about the people who come for a cure, for a hope to return to health. So we did our very best to make this a site that would be uplifting for all those who work in it or come to it for care.

These buildings are a part of our mission, vision and value, to improve people's lives through innovation, unique aspects of research education and patient care. I have mentioned earlier that there are 100 cancer therapies that are only available at the James, nowhere else in the country. It is consistent with our vision to work as a team as we did in the review of this project to create, disseminate and apply new knowledge, and our mission to personalized healthcare to meet the needs of each individual. There are no more better evidence of this than in the care that our cancer patients receive and the care that our critical care patients receive. Our values across our institution are integrity, teamwork, innovation, excellence and leadership, and we try to live these each day so that we can improve people's lives through personalized healthcare.

Our strategic goals are to become a top 20 academic medical center. Near the time this project is completed and we feel the project has a great role in this, in its ability to, as you noted Mr. Brass, and as Dean Souba told us yesterday, recruit and retain the very best. To become a top ten National Cancer Institute funded cancer program, advancing research, education and patient care. We are very close to that latter goal, and with the addition of 120,000 square feet of new research space, both in the BioMedical Research Tower and in the hospitals themselves, the new cancer hospital and critical care tower, we feel we can reach that goal in the very near future. We must be a high performance organization to succeed and we must be a workplace of choice if we are going to not only attract but retain the best people. There was a question yesterday from Dr. Reid about nurses, and we believe we have an environment that can attract and retain the very best nurses as evidenced by our magnet status. Finally, generate an investment fund. As Mr. Brass said "this is critical to us funding not only this new construction project but also our other programs in research and education."

Here is a summary of the value of ProjectONE to our strategic plan. It will, as you can see in the mission development at the top, create a personalized healthcare environment. Every room in the new hospitals will be a private room, allowing each individual and his or her family the space and the environment they need. As I mentioned, it certainly will help us toward our strategic goals, it will grow our revenues by 63%, from $1.7 billion to $2.6 billion from today through FY17. We expect to see an increase in admissions by 10,000 and in outpatient visits by 300,000. We believe this environment will enhance patient satisfaction and allow us to reach the top 10% across the nation which is our goal. Because of the rooms, the unique aspects of these rooms, we believe that we will reduce our infection rates by about 40%. Today, infectious complications are among the most common our patients face and we are trying to prevent. We have mentioned recruitment and retention and we have talked about the environment for superior care.

Let me summarize for the Trustees the components of ProjectONE. As I have said it's the largest building project in our history. It has a unique feature and that is the teaching and research space is integrated into the patient care space. They all take place in the same environment. The components; we have built a new MRI facility, we have expanded the Ross Heart Hospital by two floors, we have built a faculty office tower and a digestive disease center. ProjectONE includes as well the new cancer hospital and critical care facility, the plan includes the build out of three shelled floors in the BioMedical Research Tower. All private rooms as I have noted and ten operating rooms that will be open when the hospital opens with four additional shelled operating rooms. We should note that we would hope to start the construction early in 2010 and complete it in the second quarter of 2014. The building also includes an ambulatory and diagnostic core in its base. It is a very green building, it will be a LEED Silver building with many unique aspects for sustainability and it will have state of the art technology.

In our planning we tried very hard to address what we hear from our patients. We receive our patient feedback every month and review it carefully and here are some of the issues we addressed in ProjectONE; ease of entry and exit to the Medical Center Campus, there will be a large green space, larger than a football field in front of the hospital that will allow patients and their families to find their way easily and reach the front door of the hospital, so that they can navigate the Medical Center campus. There will be an addition to the large lawn that I have mentioned, a green roof over the critical care tower, and a green roof that our patients receiving chemotherapy will look out onto. That will enhance healing as will the fact that every patient will have an external view, whether it be south to the green lawn, or north to the playing fields behind the hospital. We have also increased parking for staff with the construction of a new garage on 9th Avenue and patients and families will have a garage, the south Cannon Garage, which will give them direct access to the new hospital.

Here are some of the highlights of what happened during this redesign period. We decided that we needed to accelerate the demolition of Cramblett Hall, an important site for our ambulatory care, and do that by the end of 2011. To be able to move the hospital a little further to the south, creating ample room behind the hospital for emergency vehicle traffic. We have redesigned the inpatient units to be accommodated in a single tower. Now we have not changed the patient care units themselves, our physicians, nurses, families and patients played a great role in designing those units but how they will be sited on each floor has been changed to fit the single tower design. We have changed the exterior finishes so that they will blend with our other hospitals on the medical district and with other campus buildings on the University campus. We have talked a great deal and begun planning to relocate Cannon Drive. This is obviously going to be an important University initiative as well as one where we will need to cooperate with the city and the state so that we can address the flood plain, and by moving Cannon Drive to the west, and create approximately 12 acres of land for new development. As noted, we have revised the parking plans so we will continue to use south Cannon garage that has 602 spaces for our patients and their families and we will not build the 10th Avenue garage that had been planned, saving us $23 million. We have also included in the ProjectONE budget as I have noted, $25 million for the build out of the floors in the BioMedical Research Tower and then $10 million toward the University's South Campus chiller plant. In this map we can see where the new hospital will be. Let me give you some reference. This is Rhodes Hall and Doan Hall behind it, here is the James Cancer Hospital and Solove Research Institute today, here is Meiling and Graves Hall, here is the Ross Heart Hospital and the parking garage, here is the green in front of Rhodes Hall, and as I have noted the traffic flow is ideal for our patients with parking very accessible. The new hospital, and you can see it here, aligns well with Rhodes Hall. That was another change that was made during these plans. Cramblett Hall will be removed. Here is the south Cannon garage so that patients and their families will be able to walk directly into the hospital and here is the green space with the easy flow of traffic around. We will also be developing 10th Avenue so it can give more direct access to this hospital site as well.

ProjectONE will add 480 new beds to our hospital system, there will be 276 cancer beds, 36 beds on each of seven floors, and all of those beds are planned to be built, and an additional 24 beds for a bone marrow transplantation program. There will be 144 beds for critical care and half of those beds, 72, will be built out and 72 will be shelled and there are the 60 beds that have already been built as part of ProjectONE in the Ross Heart Hospital for a total of 480 new beds. All will be open when this hospital is completed with the exception of the 72 shelled critical care beds. Here is our recommended option. We considered several designs, but concluded that the single tower you see here is recommended. I should also note that we had five town hall meetings across the Medical Center campus at our Morehouse ambulatory site, at University Hospital East, we also met in the library on University campus and more than 80% of those attending voted using an audience response system for the single tower.

Let me orient you again, here is where Cramblett Hall was, this is the podium moved a little further south, here is the Ross Heart Hospital by the way, here is the south Cannon garage, so this is the five story podium which will have ambulatory cancer care, it will have our new operating room and diagnostic units, there will be mechanical space here, and then the three critical care floors which extend south and north. This will be a green patio on top of the critical care floors, which will be a great view for patients looking south out of the new cancer hospital which sits right here, seven floors. The elevators have been centralized as I will note, to make it easy to get to rooms on either side of the hospital.

The features of the single tower design that we thought were most important were that every patient room has an exterior view. The siding of the hospital with a podium here improves connectivity to Rhodes Hall. The critical care units in Rhodes Hall and the critical care units in the new hospital line up beautifully as do the operating rooms. The building has less exterior surface so it will lower the cost of construction and increase efficiency for heating and cooling. We will have a single central elevated core and have reduced the number of elevators from 22 to 16. Each elevator is $1 million, so that is a savings of $6 million. As I have noted we have shifted the podium south to improve traffic flow for emergency vehicles on the north side of the hospital and we have reduced, because of the central elevator core, horizontal travel distances for our patients and their families.

Here is a rendering of the single tower hospital in the evening. You can see the podium with the four story glass enclosed atrium, the mechanical floors, critical care floors, front and back and the new cancer hospital. The central elevator core is here. We believe that this really will be a beacon of hope for our patients and their families. This will easily be seen traveling north or south on 315. This hospital project will have a dramatic and positive impact on our city, on the region and on the state. There will be more than 5,000 construction jobs to build this hospital. There will be an additional 10,000 jobs in our city and state. Right now, at University Hospital we have nearly 12,000 employees, and that will grow by 6,000, that is nurses, staff, researchers, technicians, and physicians. There will be an increase of approximately 4,000 jobs indirectly that is in restaurants, retail outlets, rental car places and hotels, so the total job impact right here is 10,000 new jobs after the completion of this project. The economic impact is quite impressive as well. Right now the Medical Center contributes $2.4 billion to the local economy which will increase to $4.1 billion, about $1 billion of direct expenditures from the Medical Center and another $700 million indirectly. This is where we are today, and I will end with this image of someone that I am sure Tom Lennox and his team know very well on the right, Lance Armstrong who was here just a few weeks ago to ride with us in Pelotonia. Here he is on the podium in Paris at the end of the Tour de France. He has won seven, but he did not win this year, and he is looking at the trophy that Contador is holding and you can see in his eyes and the determination in his face that he will be back next year and he will win his eighth, and that is where we are. We are looking forward to taking on this challenge and we are determined to make it a great success for the University and for the Medical Center, and most importantly for our patients and their families. Thank you.

Mr. Brass:

Dr. Gabbe, thank you very much and a job well done. Just a couple of closing comments before I open it up for some questions and additional comments.

When ProjectONE is done we will officially have 1,527 beds built and they will be operating and staffed. We will have 72 beds shelled in the critical care area, so eventually we will be at 1,599 beds in our Medical Center. Sometimes the numbers move around on us, but that is the official number. The plan also is laid out from a master planning standpoint, areas for future research, areas for future hospital buildings to be plugged in. Steve mentioned the podium or the base of the tower which ties directly into the base of Rhodes and Doan, and that is by design, so if in fact we need to tie into the diagnostics for additional beds or additional programs, it can be tied into the base very efficiently. That was part of this redesign also.

I think it is very important for the Board to know that 80%+ of our associates that participated in these town halls are in agreement of this program. That is important. It is important to go out and ask, to explain the program, and get some feedback. It is also important to know that we have a consensus here.

I would be remiss if I did not thank this young man, Judge Marbley, who is the vice chair over the Medical Affairs Committee for all his hard work, staying right there with me all the way through this process, and working with all of our fine professionals.

I would like to stop here before I go into the authorization we will have added to the consent agenda and open it up for some questions and comments about where we are with ProjectONE and any questions you may have, I know we have spent a lot of time on this, but I think, Mr. Chairman, we should stop and just see if there are any other questions or comments anyone would like to make.

Mr. Wexner:

Ron, I am curious how you feel about the plan from a master planning point of view; how it integrates strengths and weaknesses.

Mr. Ratner:

It is one of the things I think we really were able to do during this pause is to achieve a real integration. The whole master planning, framework process proceeded quite a bit from the time this original work had been done on ProjectONE and so we had a lot more to offer from that side. We understand the campus better; I think we understand traffic planning and organization a lot better than we did, and then during this pause period we were able to really integrate that. I am very satisfied that we have tremendous framework now in the Medical Center. Some of the other things we are doing, you get underneath as you look at some of the detail, going back to a grid system for roads and accesses is critical. It allows major moves. We have had a concept we have brought forward which we are not ready to propose formally yet, but of moving Cannon, a significant move eventually allowing a tremendous increase in usable space. That has been thought through so that nothing that we are doing in ProjectONE for instance would impede that going forward. Again critical things that we need to pay attention to is that, as the Medical saw, do no harm, and part of this is that we need to do no harm. I think we have really achieved that, we have got tremendous framework, we have looked at it, we have looked at how much additional space we could add. While we are only talking about ProjectONE, if you look over the last 30 years and if you think forward to the next 30 years, the guess is that you are going to have some increase in overall facilities. We wanted to be sure that nothing we are doing in ProjectONE would impede that, that it in fact would promote some of the things we need to do in the future. I think that process of integrating the master plan and the ProjectONE plan has really gone very well. I am very confident that we are at a point where we will not look back at this in ten years and say, wow, that building just is in the wrong place. Believe it or not, I would argue that as we have studied the Medical Center and other parts of the campus, there is more than one building that I would love to see removed and placed differently. I think we have really achieved that milestone and that is critical. I am very confident.

Mr. Brass:

I will share one additional thing; we are adding 100,000 square feet in the Biomedical Research Tower building as part of this project. That will finish the research tower, plus we are adding about another 20,000 square feet of research space in ProjectONE building itself, but the next question is, where is the next research building going because we are still 300,000 – 400,000 square feet short in order for us to get to where we want to be as one of the best medical academic centers in this country.

Mr. Ratner:

In that regard, probably what we needed to do, and I think we have now done, at this stage in the same way that we look at additional hospital beds, we do not know exactly at this point what those beds would need to be and what relationship you would need to have with some of the existing facilities. Same thing with research, we are not exactly sure at this point but we know we need more research space and what its specific program would be. So what we were able to do is in working with the Medical Center team and the University's overall master planning team was to come up with a series of alternatives, and test those alternatives. If this is the sort of hospital facility you would need, where could it go? Are there a number of possible options? If in fact research is directly related to certain other activities and needs proximity, could it work? If it needs to be in a larger floor plate building, where would we put it. If it is a smaller floor plate taller building because of the nature of what is going on, where would it go? So we tested a number of different alternatives and I think that is why that part of it really is a master planning process where you say, how can you accommodate a number of future alternatives, not knowing today exactly what those needs would be. I think Alan would concur that we really are very comfortable that we have the bones there to allow for a significant number of alternatives.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Brass:

One of the other flexibilities we have to be cognizant of is the Medical Center is research in its programs, have to interface with a lot of other departments, schools and colleges throughout the University. We want to make sure that this master plan allows for that flexibility, and that is just as critical, because as we get into building more research, we need to in fact make sure that we are looking at every partnership we can possibly look at regardless of whether it is medical center or agriculture or whatever it might be. That also was part of our thinking process when we did this. Other comments or questions?

Mr. Marion:

One of the strengths of this project from the previous ones that I noticed, you talk about ProjectONE increasing green space, but this particular project seems even more. As we talk about usable space, the connections that we can obtain by maintaining green space, so when you bring folks in from other campuses and they come to Ohio State, it is that green space, sometime that land that we do not necessarily use for structural space, but we use for green space that actually adds a lot of benefit and one of the real strengths of the pause is, there are things we are doing now with the green space that were not being done before. Kudos to the group for listening and being observant and cognizant of that.

Mr. Brass:

Jason, I think that was a sensitivity of everybody, but mostly for our patients. That was really critical, especially for our cancer patients, our critical care patients, and that is part of the healing process. We came to grips with that real early on.

Mr. Shumate:

Again, Alan, I am sure I speak for all the Board. We know this was a very strong team effort, but we want to commend you on your leadership and the very careful and thoughtful analysis. It might be helpful, I have heard you refer to stress testing as a part of this process, and just to review what that means and some of the steps you took to make sure that this plan was truly tested.

Mr. Brass:

Very good question Alex. We actually put together what we call a critical function list, and there were 101 items on it. Basically, we wanted to make sure we had checked off at the end of this project. One for example, an easy one, though for everyone to understand, was the long range forecast. That is why we sent it out three different times for review, to make sure that we had a comfort level, that the forecast was accurate. I will tell you the thought process on that alone was, our University is about to borrow $925 million of its capability on one project, if we get this wrong, we in fact go in harmful way to help other parts of our University, and we do not want that to happen. Now the good news is the financial trend lines look good. The good news is that we have taken a conservative forecasting approach as it relates to healthcare reform. The good news is that Dr. Gabbe and Dr. Souba are recruiting the best of the best. The good news is that we are retaining the best of the best. Those are all check offs, or stress testers, because if we find a weak link there, we could have some problems. I am happy to tell you that we worked our way through those stress tests and it took us 90 days, it was the best 90 days we could have put forth. The outcome is far better than where we were 90 days ago, and I think everybody inside our Medical Center and I think our Medical Affairs Committee and I hope our Board feels that strongly. I really think those stress tests paid off.

Dr. Reid:

I want to commend you as well. I would like to dig a little bit more deeply into the economic assumptions that were made around ProjectONE, and if you could help illuminate, no one has the crystal ball to see where the insurance debates will go and so forth, but what are the assumptions that are being made around Medicaid, Medicare, charitable care and so forth. You mentioned that you were very conservative in all of the economic estimations, so I would like to know a little bit more about those critical parts.

Mr. Brass:

Very good question. First start with the volumes. Our volumes have been on a very steady incline, so we have a very good track record, our inhibitor has been beds, so our demand has outnumbered our supply. Once we bring the beds onboard, we have made a conscious decision not to move any of the old beds or to take them offline until we get through this project and then we can re-evaluate the demand side of our equation. As it relates to the economic forecast, we have put a zero percent increase in for Medicaid over this period. For Medicaid, hoping that the state knows that medical inflation is going up far more than zero, but for us to be very conservative, that is what we have put into the forecast. On Medicare we put 1%, not knowing what healthcare might bring forward. The good news, if there is good news, might be that the charity care, the uninsured might find some form of health insurance, all or part, either one of those add to our forecast because we built nothing in for that. So, we left charity care and uninsured care at the same level as we are now, which is at a very high unemployment cycle. I do think we have been very cautious, by design, who knows what else could go wrong, but that is where we are. Great question.

Mr. O'Dell:

I think this is a fantastic project and I appreciate everyone's work. You mentioned the borrowing, and I have been thinking about that a little bit. It seems like we are financing this whole thing either with contributions or borrowing, and I am wondering what the chances are that we could fund more of it with internally generated funds, which in turn would reduce the risk and burden on the University.

Mr. Brass:

That is a great question Wally. Two thoughts. Thought number one is, we are in a very deliberate mode of building our days cash on hand inside our Medical Center, which was not very strong. At a medical center like ours we should have between 80 and 100 days cash on hand as we go through this model, and we are right now in the 50's, so the model takes us up to in the mid 80's to 90 days cash on hand, which is a very solid, prudent financial position. If in fact we do that, then the equity that we can contribute cannot be done. Either you do one or the other, and I think it is very prudent right now for us to build that days cash on hand because in fact if we get some rough weather, we do not have to go back to the University and put other programs in harm's way as it relates to our academic mission of our University. So we are being very careful there.

Another spin on the other side is this: we are going to the bond market. We have always been able to get an extremely favorable rate from the bond market. We are very strong financially. If we can maintain that double A program, we should be able to get a bond rate that is very favorable to our Medical Center and to our University, if that is true, then we are better off using the master plan that we have in play. Therefore, we can invest our money with the days cash on hand correctly and we can use the bond proceeds to manage the debt. The one down side that we as Trustees need to watch, and that is you do not know until you know what the market is at the day you place, so when we hit the market, we have to see what the state's rating is, we have to see where we hit the market at, at what rate that is, and right now we have built in a very reasonable bond rate into the master forecast. If by chance for some reason things go really crazy, I think we have to regroup again and rerun those numbers, but we have the right as Trustees at that magic point to pull back. That is the one cautionary note I am still watching like a hawk, is until we place, we don't know, and we should be in the position of placing very soon. The market is getting better and our finance numbers, that is why at the beginning of our discussion here I said we are coming off very strong financial numbers. That will play well when we hit the market. That is very important. Our storybook looks great. Good question Wally.

Mr. Jurgensen:

You know Alan, maybe another way to think about Wally's question is, and it goes back to something you said in the beginning relative to what this means for future flexibility of the total University. If the internally generated cash flow is going to be directed toward building up days cash on hand, which makes some sense, then the other variable in this is really development, because I think we are going into something in today's commercial real estate environment, if you were going to underwrite this on a standalone basis, highly unlikely you could borrow $925 million against $75 million in equity in today's commercial real estate market. As a matter of fact, I pause, it impossible, so the reason we are able to do it is obviously because we are putting forth a full faith in credit, if you will, of the University. There is a linkage there as you suggested between the state's rating and the University's rating that in many respects, totally outside our control. To me it is not so much an issue of what a change in rating means on interest cost that actually to me is the smaller of the two risks. The larger risk is access, whether you can get the principal at all is very much going to be driven by that rating. So we used to think you go from double A to single A, it is just a matter of how many more bases points is that going to cost you. In today's environment going from double A to single A may very well mean you cannot borrow anything. So I think it is really critical that we do, and I know this is in all of our thinking, but just for everyone else in the room, it is really incumbent that at the end of the day we do better than $75 million of raised equity in this.

Mr. Brass:

I think there are three thoughts. I happen to agree with everything you just said. I think there are three thoughts that go through my mind. Thought number one is to build days cash on hand as fast as we can and get that put away. Second is, in the forecast we are funding depreciation in this model. We are putting it in, it is in the cost, it is in the profit and loss and so on. The third is that if in fact we are successful philanthropically, the more we are, the better we are. There is no doubt about it. Every number in the forecast is built around a strong double A model, every number. Debt to cap rates, EBIDA, every number to a double A, because we are a part of the University. We do not want to pull the University down, we want to add to, not detract from. This forecast is built, this model is built on adding to the University, not detracting from, but philanthropy can help, it will not hurt. Anything we can do to beat that will really help this model.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Gee:

Get to work Peter, why are you sitting here?

Mr. Wexner:

Are there any other questions or comments? I have a comment about the pause. And I think you framed it right about doing no harm. In addition to doing no harm, we should do good, and as I have reviewed the plan and the work that has been done, not only does the plan not put the whole University in extremes, it puts us in a better place. I think the thinking that went into reserves and caution and the sensitivities and checking and checking and checking again was just superb. I think the comments that were made about the quality of the campus and the medical campus and the whole campus is that it would be easy in a campus as large as this to expand any part of the campus for that building or that segment to be good, but the whole will be damaged. In this case I think the whole quality of the campus is improved, whether it is green space, traffic, the quality of student and patient and faculty life has improved, the green space and energy is well considered. Again the size and complexity of an urban campus like ours, traffic begins as a problem and hopefully additions that we make help to alleviate that problem, not compound the problem to make it worse for the whole campus. I think the thinking about flexibility and options, because you have projected numbers and academic plans and spaces and needs, is it critical care, is it cancer research, is it all the things that are part of a large and thriving medical center, but we do not know exactly two years, five years or twenty years from now what we will need and so the thinking in terms of options and the flexibility that this gives us is quite important.

Secondly, I think the Board should be proud of what it has done, because I think as all members of the University family we tend to want to cheerlead, but I think the notion of being diligent and questioning and sometimes saying no or to hit the pause button, or let us check this again is a very strong and important function in the governance of the University. It begins when we are kids and our parents say no, if we do not like it, probably those are some of the best lessons. The Medical Center and the University in my view have earned the right to go forward with the project. There are a lot of things I want to do personally that I do not think I have earned the right to do, and a lot of things happen in my business that people want to do, and I always ask myself, have you really earned the right. So when you talk about the growth in the faculty, the growth in the quality of students, the growth in the financial controls and the growth in days of cash quality of our performance, is by a re-measure of our performance. By a re-measure I think we should all feel good that this is a major part of the University and it has earned the right.

Last but not least, thanks to you, Monte, Ron, Gordon and everyone on the Board for their support. But most importantly the medical leadership of the University, because they started it, they paused it, they started it, they paused it, they rethought it, and they collaborated to get us from where we were to where we are. It is just a great model of true collegial thinking where one and one and one could be four, seven, or ten, and it is quite good, so I congratulate Dr. Gabbe, Dr. Souba, Dr. Caligiuri and of course Dr. Schuller. This is well done because you got us from where we were to here, and I am very happy that we are here. Thank you, thank everyone.

Mr. Brass:

I could not have asked for a better lead in. Mr. Chairman I would like to have the Board consider a motion of appreciation, which I would like to read.

EXPRESSION OF APPRECIATION

I would like to move that The Ohio State University Board of Trustees extends its most sincere appreciation to the faculty, staff and leadership of The Ohio State University Medical Center for the hard work, cooperation and assistance they provided over the 90 day period of our intense review and the exceptional work they have done to position our Ohio State University Medical Center for this very significant step.

Upon motion of Mr. Brass, seconded by Judge Marbley, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing motion by unanimous voice vote.

Mr. Brass:

Mr. Chairman, I would like to add to the end of our consent agenda, the authorization for ProjectONE, with your permission. Just very quickly, the motion that you will see, basically authorizes ProjectONE to go forward. It is a $1 billion project; it is made up of six big component parts, one of which is the completion part. It basically includes everything that Steve talked about with the removal of Cramblett and so on. It also has in it additions and deletions in the event that we need to be prudent about deleting something or adding something, depending where the macroeconomics end up here. Those are predetermined as part of this process we have gone through. The motion will authorize immediately the release of $20 million to go into design and design development. It will also basically ask that the Medical Center come back every six months for additional sums of money that they need to keep the project going until completion. The reason six months was chosen, it will be right at that point that we will have all the design, design drawings back, the costing, and we will be in a position to move the project forward. As Steve Gabbe mentioned, it is our intent to be putting the shovel on the ground for the new project during the first part of 2010. So Mr. Chair, with your permission I would like to add to the consent agenda today, the resolution – Authorization for ProjectONE.

Dr. Frantz:

It will come right after the consent agenda.

Mr. Brass:

The last comment I will make is this. This is a milestone day for our University and our Medical Center. I said this at the Medical Affairs Committee there are a number of great academic centers right now, as well as medical centers, that do not have the ability to go forward. This will put us in a great position to take us into that top 20 of the 120+ medical centers, the 5,000 hospitals or the 569 integrated delivery systems. This is a great day for our University. So I want to thank everybody that helped, and this was a huge team effort, so Mr. Chair, that concludes the Medical Affairs Committee report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much. I feel like I need to take a deep breath. Maybe hum or do something. Next we have the report of the Development and Investment Committee, Wally.

Mr. O'Dell:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Development and Investment Committee met yesterday afternoon. First Mr. Jonathan Hook reported on the very dynamic changes in the investment markets over the past year and a half. Our investment return was -23% in fiscal year 2009. This was pretty much in line with results of many other institutions given the troubled financial markets. On the brighter side, from March 1 through August 31, our investment portfolio increased by approximately 21% as the markets improved. Our portfolio is well balanced, per the approved guidelines. The long-term investment portfolio is approximately $1.8 billion; that is $1.2 billion in the endowment fund and $600 million in long-term operational funds. Additionally Mr. Hook reported that many operational improvements have taken place during this past year, reducing overall costs and providing more accurate and timely information. He has also recently completed putting his operational team together.

Then Mr. Peter Weiler gave the development report. Total gifts, grants and commitments were $319 million in fiscal year 2009 which is up 6% compared to the prior year in a very, very difficult environment. Peter also commented that planning is continuing and progressing on our major campaign. The fiscal 2010 fund raising goal is set at $300 million; this goal reflects inputs from each college and unit, the new accounting guidelines and the challenging economy that we all face. Mr. Weiler also reported on the $100 million Students First Campaign, $29 million has already been raised and he is ahead of plan in this area.

We approved the establishment of 38 new funds and 13 revisions, totaling $5.1 million. The development report was approved and it is item number nine on the consent agenda. Mr. Chairman, that concludes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Questions, comments?

President Gee reports good news, it is good news.

Next, Academic Affairs and Student Life, Ambassador Ong.

Ambassador Ong:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. Our committee met yesterday and we received presentations on two discussion items from Vice Provost for Academic Programs, Randy Smith and from the Executive Vice President and Provost Joe Alutto.

Vice Provost Smith discussed the ongoing preparations for moving from our traditional quarter system to a semester calendar beginning in the 2012-2013 academic year. To date the University Senate of course has approved the semester calendar. There has been an executive coordinating committee established between the administration and the faculty. We have had initiation of interactions with a number of partner institutions that will be effected by this change in schedule. We have developed a coming calendar conversion website which people can refer to and the committee is in the process of setting up meetings with the curriculum committees of each college and below that each department in the University. The semester conversion process is being led by Vice Provost Smith and by two faculty fellows, one to co-chair the coordinating committee with Mr. Smith, the other to help facilitate curricular change. Assistant Provost Jay Johnson is serving as the project manager for the entire effort.

There has been established now the initial calendar for the 2012-2013 academic year. It will consist of two 70 day semesters, the first from late August until early December and the second from early January until late April. There will then be a short 19 day May session at which special courses of one kind or another, possibly some credit, some not for credit will be offered as curricular additions for students who are interested in taking such short courses. Finally there will be a summer term of 34 days, but with class frequency being increased, students will be able to take courses which in credit hours will be equivalent to what they could achieve in one of the two semesters.

A number of groups are being formed to advise the coordinating committee. These include students, faculty, representatives from the regional campuses and their co-located institutions, member of the key academic support offices and the administration and the like. The committee was favorably impressed by the effort that is underway and the obvious in depth organization of that effort. It is understood by everybody that this is a tremendously complicated project and it is being carried out in probably the least possible time for implementation by August of 2012. We agreed that the provost and the vice provost would return to the Committee at least once a year over the next two years to assure us that progress is being made so that everybody crosses the line to the semester system in time for August 2012.

Provost Alutto then discussed reductions to the Ohio College Opportunity Grant (OCOG) program and the implications for Ohio State. This program was approved just a few years ago in 2006 by the Ohio Board of Regents. It provides for direct grants to the neediest of categories of students for assistance with their tuition and other expenses. It has been available to students at Ohio State both at the Columbus campus and on our four regional campuses, and the amounts have been about $2,500 a year. Because of the difficulties in achieving a budget settlement between the governor and the general assembly some months ago, this program received some fairly severe cuts in funding. As a result of that, it was announced that immediately, this was during the summer quarter, all grants would be cut to just over $1,000 for students on the Columbus campus, and students on the regional campuses would receive no grants whatsoever. When this was announced with very short timing, the administration decided that in the spirit of putting students first, it was necessary to give the students who had been relying upon these grants for several years enough time to find a way to secure other kinds of funding to replace the funding that they had either lost entirely in the case of the regional campuses or which had been more than cut in half for those on the Columbus campus. As a result, the University stepped up and for the summer quarter and for the current fall quarter, has made up the difference between the grants available, including zero grants available at the regional campuses and the preexisting grant levels.

This has been done at a cost of about $2.4 million for the Columbus campus and about $1.6 million for the regional campuses for a total of $4 million. Beginning winter quarter 2010 and beyond, students will be informed that they will receive OCOG funding at the new reduced level which for the regional campuses will of course be zero. To minimize the impact of this reduction, the Office of Student Financial Aid is working with each one of these recipients to try and find other ways to fill that gap in funding, which they will experience at that point. The University is studying a number of strategies to replace that funding, these include reviewing federal funding, targeting institutional loans and so on. That work is still in progress.

The Committee commended the administration, they felt the action they had taken because of the very short notice the University had about this change was very much in line as I have said. Our policy of putting students first had encouraged them to proceed with all possible vigor to try to find alternative funding beginning for the winter quarter. Those were our two discussion items for the meeting. We also were asked to approve four items for the consent agenda. The naming of the learning laboratory, the naming of the cartoon library and museum and the naming of certain internal spaces within the William Oxley Thompson Memorial Library which of course has been recently renovated, and finally a number of personnel actions.

Those were all approved and you will find them on the consent agenda. That completes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Marion:

Ambassador regarding the OCOG funds, how are other institutions handling that situation? It is a very bad situation for those that have been affected, and I think our institution has engaged in some very noble actions, but I am really concerned about those regional campuses and students. I do not know what the best strategy is, and I am fearful that we may lose some of those students just on the account of their finances not really because of their know-how.

President Gee:

Well first of all our whole student first strategy is to try and make certain that every student admitted to the University is able to afford to come to the institution. When we have shifts in funding we are moving very quickly to fill up those gaps as much as we can. This was a late date issue for us. I would note though that I think we have been more successful than most in doing that. By the way, let me remind you also that this is the third year this institution has not raised tuition so under any circumstance, affordability is clearly a major priority for this institution, and as I say to almost everyone, this is one of the great education bargains in America. A world class university at a very low cost. Few if any have that opportunity and so that is the reason I think that as you see from our numbers, our numbers are reflecting that quite the contrary is happening. Our numbers are going up rather dramatically.

Mr. Wexner:

Any other questions?

Ms. Swain:

I also wanted to add to make sure the Board knew, this was not the only scholarship like this that was cut or reduced for students. Another one, the Ohio Academic Scholarship that I receive was cut, and I do not think will come around anymore. Students are very grateful that the Provost's Office secured more funding to help provide that scholarship in the upcoming years, so I wanted to echo Jason's comments that we need to make sure students are getting that funding to come here.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you, any other questions or comments? Hearing none, the long awaited Fiscal Affairs Committee report, Jo Ann.

Ms. Davidson:

I think you put me last on purpose Mr. Chairman. We had our typically scheduled fourth quarter financial update, which opened the meeting of our Fiscal Affairs Committee late yesterday afternoon. The report on the fiscal year 2009 final report is that we did finish the year in a very stable financial situation that permitted us to obviously move ahead with an additional year of the tuition freeze. Looking at fiscal year 2010, which we are just about to complete the first quarter of that year, many of our income areas continue to be stable, research, auxiliaries, our general fund operations and our reserve fund, obviously there will continue to be concerns throughout this year. The health centers system right now is very solid and doing very well. There are unknown factors which have already been discussed and clearly on the enrollment issues in which we have already talked about some of the impact that might be there, particularly on regional campuses because of the laws of the OCOG grant situation. And we will continue with moderate risk, obviously in the investment field and in our private giving with some of our affiliated entities.

We are very pleased because of the strong support we received from the governor and the legislature that our state support share of instruction is scheduled to increase by about $16 million, but we have already talked about some of the areas in which we have lost state funding from line item appropriations from some of the scholarship programs, and certainly the impact that Jack has mentioned at OARDC. But as we look ahead for fiscal year 2011 and fiscal year 2012, obviously there is such high degrees of uncertainty that we are going to just monitor the situation on a quarter-by-quarter basis as we go through this fiscal year.

You all received a copy of the current funds book. I want to thank Bill Shkurti's staff for putting that together. It really can be the bible for you as far as answers to your questions about the finances of Ohio State. Those of you that might be in the audience that are interested, you can look at that information online in our move to be strong on economic issues here, we did not print a whole lot of copies of that book, but it is available for you online if you want to take a look at it.

Our next report really is again our ongoing report on capital recommendations. Generally that full report comes to the Fiscal Affairs Committee in September. This year we did receive a partial report and I want to mention what will be coming back in October. We always take a six year look at our capital recommendations and Mr. Shkurti reported that there are about $2.5 billion in requests for capital construction; $1 billion is obviously ProjectONE. Typically we put about $260 million in per year on capital, so you can easily do the math and calculate the gap that is there. Clearly our four priorities are the north academic core, ProjectONE, student housing and our infrastructure and our continuous improvement of infrastructure on campus. We will return, I think there is a great deal of work being done between Jeff Kaplan and Bill Shkurti, they will come back in October with a more full report of our capital recommendations and our capital needs. Understanding the gap that we have in revenue, they are also going to look at and identify other funding sources that might be used for some of these capital needs, rather than always relying on the bond of debt that we have already discussed at this particular meeting.

We also had a very quick report, an update on an issue that the Board is familiar with and that was our need to address very quickly some of the concerns about safety issues regarding the bridges that go over Cannon and also connect to Morrill and Lincoln Towers. We have found a solution that does not require Board approval; it is under the $5 million mark. It will actually answer all the safety questions, many of those bridges will be taken down, several will be replaced, but we are keeping full flexibility because of the discussion on the relocation of Cannon Drive, and not wanting to invest huge sums of money at this particular point, but needing to address obviously the safety issues that we have with those bridges.

We also discussed the ProjectONE resolution in a little different way perhaps than was discussed in the Medical Affairs Committee. Looking at it from the fiscal impact which we have already reviewed and in which I will not go through again, but this resolution that is coming to you, that has been added to the agenda is a very different resolution than what you usually look at. It has much more specificity to it and there is a reason for that, so that everyone understands what we are agreeing to move ahead on. In trying to keep full flexibility on a project, which sometimes gets delayed because of ever certain steps having to come back to the Board for approval, we are overwriting that in the resolution, but we are requiring that no funds be expended unless they are released by this Board. So that $20 million has a release of some funding to continue to do the design work that needs to be done now, but anytime those funds are exhausted, they need to come back to the Board for approval and so we keep our own fiscal responsibility on oversight on that particular project.

We have for the Board approval the budget for fiscal year 2010, which the Fiscal Affairs Committee was given the authority to give interim approval to that, which we did in July. The total current funds budget is $4.4 billion. When you think about that in relationship to the state budget which is just a few billion above 20, you understand the enormous budget that we are operating with and we are authorizing. So that is back for full Board approval. There was a student activity fee increase that was presented to the Fiscal Affairs Committee yesterday by representatives of the undergraduate and the graduate student body. This is a $15 fee that was first enacted in 2003, and I thought it was interesting that today when you recognized Barbara Reichert, one of our students today, many of the things that you refer to that she had participated in on campus are funded through this student activity fee. They have asked us to increase that fee to $25 with the agreement that there would not be any further fee increase until at least fiscal year 2015. They gave a great report of the various programs and the student organizations that are funded on campus with the student activity fee, so we are recommending that we approve that.

You have your authority to enter into contracts, I only want to mention, I think in that group, one contract, and that really deals with the student housing issue. The south high-rise apartments which are student housing which we have agreed to go back to the design phase because there are some new recommendations based upon the master planning of how we better utilize those facilities in which we can increase by about 460 beds by putting a connector between four of those buildings, two and two, which make them easier to operate, improve the entry into those and give us a student activity improvement and student study rooms and still use the same base elevators and not have to replicate any of that expense, so we are going back to the drawing board to actually redo that design. We will give you a better estimate on what that cost differential will be in doing that.

There are four leases for your approval. One that Alan Brass talked about for an ambulatory center in Gahanna. The three other leases are 1) OSU Mansfield campus for a piece of ground in which they will build a not for profit nursing facility, which actually is used also by the students at our regional campus in Mansfield, 2) in Ashtabula County for some land that we use to study the growing of grapes and changing the footprint of that land a little bit 3) office space that is leased for the Medical Center on Ackerman Road. That completes our report and we recommend all the items that are assigned to us in our consent agenda for your approval.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you Jo Ann. We now go to the consent agenda.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 2010-10

Synopsis: Approval of Resolutions in Memoriam is proposed.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees approves the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey copies to the families of the deceased.

Richard O. Dagefoerde

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 25, 2009, of Richard O. Dagefoerde, D.D.S., Assistant Professor Emeritus in the College of Dentistry (Operative Dentistry).

Dr. Dagefoerde held a Bachelor of Science degree from Capital University and received his Doctor of Dental Surgery degree from The Ohio State University in 1958. He was granted a postgraduate certificate in basic sciences from Ohio State's College of Dentistry in 1959, then completed an internship at the Ohio Tuberculosis Hospital and a residency at the Toledo (Ohio) Dental Dispensary. After teaching as a clinical instructor at OSU's College of Dentistry, Dr. Dagefoerde joined the faculty as an assistant professor in 1963.

"Dag" Dagefoerde served as public health dentist for the City of Columbus from 1975-81, and was a professional review consultant for the Delta Dental Corporation during the latter part of his career. He was a researcher in the College of Dentistry, participating in studies in dental materials and treatment. Among his published works were "Nystatin Pastille in Oral Candidiasis," "Pulpal Response to Bonding Agents," and "Clinical Fabrication of Powdered Gold Restorations," as well as "Review of Dental Hospital Services of the Ohio Tuberculosis Hospital."

Richard Dagefoerde was very involved professionally. His affiliations included the Columbus Dental Society Board of Trustees, the Ohio Dental Association Council on Publications and House of Delegates, the American Dental Association, the American Association of Dental Schools, and numerous academic and research associations.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Dagefoerde was recognized for teaching excellence with honors, including from Omicron Kappa Upsilon Honorary Fraternity, The J. David Brilliant Award, Instructor of The Year - 1986, and Outstanding Clinical Instructor for 1987. He had a wide range of hobbies and interests, and was an accomplished woodworker and home renovator, as well as a fine cook and baker.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Assistant Professor Emeritus Richard O. Dagefoerde its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Ruth M. Kessler

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 29, 2009, of Ruth M. Kessler, Professor Emeritus and former director of the Law Library in The Michael E. Moritz College of Law.

Professor Kessler earned her undergraduate and law degrees at The Ohio State University. Prior to joining the University, Professor Kessler worked in law firms, the contract division at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, and the Upper Arlington Public Library. Professor Kessler joined The Ohio State University College of Law Library as a cataloger in 1968. In 1973, she was promoted to assistant director of the Law Library. She was named director of the Law Library and professor of law in 1984, and served in that capacity until her retirement in 1987. Upon her retirement, Professor Kessler was given emeritus status by the Board of Trustees. In 1988, in recognition of her service to the University, she was awarded the Distinguished Service Award.

Professor Kessler was a talented and energetic leader of the Law Library. During her years with the library, she received numerous accolades from faculty, students, attorneys, and other librarians for the high quality of service she and her staff provided. Her career overlapped with the introduction of electronic systems and digital resources into law libraries. Professor Kessler was a vigorous advocate for the use of these technologies.

Professor Kessler was long active in her community and profession. She served as acting director of the Upper Arlington Public Library when it was established in 1967, and she was a life-time member of the Friends of the Upper Arlington Public Library. She was a member of the Association of Faculty and Professional Women, and was a life member of the American Association of Law Libraries.

Professor Kessler was a vibrant member of the College and University community, serving on numerous committees, and advocating always for the highest standards of library service.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus Ruth M. Kessler its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

James H. Limbird

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on August 16, 2009, of James H. Limbird, Professor Emeritus in the Ohio State University Extension.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Limbird was born in 1922 in Norwalk, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree in 1946 and his Master of Science degree in 1966 in agricultural economics, both from The Ohio State University.

Jim began his Extension career in Ohio in 1948 as the associate county extension agent in Ashtabula County. In 1950, he became the county agricultural agent in Geauga County. Although he left Extension in 1951, he returned in 1965 as the county extension agent – agriculture in Lorain County and in 1969 became the area supervisor for the Defiance area. He held this appointment until his retirement in June of 1982, at which time he was awarded emeritus status.

Professor Limbird's contributions in providing Extension educational programs and serving as an Extension administrator during his career proved that he was truly dedicated to Extension. He promoted educational TV programs that reached approximately 10,000 agricultural production and marketing producers and promoted grain marketing for more than 450 producers in the nine county area for the Defiance area. He also was on the cutting edge of increasing the use of computers in the Defiance area for the agricultural agents. He served on many committees and boards both in the Defiance area as well as with Extension administration in Columbus during his career.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus James H. Limbird its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

The description was revised September 18, 2009.

The purpose of this endowment is to support in perpetuity the study of Ottoman and modern Turkish history, a field taught and studied at The Ohio State University since the 1930s, and to enhance the national and international competitiveness and distinction of the University in this field.

The donor intends more specifically to establish an endowment of $1,000,000, in keeping with the currently established 2006 endowment levels, to create the named professorship in Ottoman and modern Turkish history. The donor reserves the right to rename and/or revise the fund during his lifetime or by his will.

The annual distribution shall be used to support a named professorship position in Ottoman and Turkish studies. Appointees to this position shall be distinguished scholar-teachers known for their positive interest in Turkish history and culture, their high standing in the international community of scholars in the field, their expertise in the history of the Turkish republic as well as of the Ottoman Empire, their broad linguistic command of the Ottoman and modern Turkish language of different periods, and the originality and impact of their historical scholarship. Holders of the professorship shall be appointed after a rigorous international search and on the recommendation of the chairperson of the Department of History.

In keeping with the stated purpose of this endowed fund, if the fund grows or if the principal can be increased sufficiently over time, the form in which the fund supports the field may be revised, up to and including the creation of an endowed chair at the 2006 endowment funding levels, and during the donor's lifetime any such change shall be made at his initiative or with his consent.

Alternatively, if the fund never reaches the $1,000,000 level, the distribution shall continue to be used first to provide research support funding for graduate students in the same field; if that cannot be done, the distribution from the fund shall be used to purchase books or other research materials in the same field for the library.

If in any year the income of the fund is not fully used to support the stated purpose of the endowment, any such unused income will be reinvested to principal.

The investment and management of and expenditures from all endowment funds shall be in accordance with University policies and procedures as approved by the Board of Trustees. As authorized by the Board of Trustees, a fee may be assessed against the endowment portfolio for the University's costs of development and fund management.

It is the desire of the donor that this fund should benefit the University in perpetuity.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

The need for the fund shall not be deemed to have ceased to exist until it becomes impossible to use the distribution of the fund to support Ottoman and Turkish studies in any way whatsoever at this University.

If in future the income of the fund so diminishes that it is impossible to use the income from the fund to support Ottoman and Turkish studies at this University in any way whatsoever, then another use shall be designated by the Board of Trustees and Foundation Board as recommended by the dean of the College of Humanities in consultation with the chairperson of the Department of History. In making any alternate distributions or alternative designations, the Boards shall seek advice from the donor, if she is living, and from the dean of The Ohio State University Michael E. Moritz College of Law. If the donor is not living, the Boards shall seek advice from Sphinx Senior Council and the Ohio Stater's, Inc. President Gee:

As we come to the end our meeting, I asked our chairman if I could make a couple of comments. First of all this is the beginning of the school year and we all recognize that this is a very important time for the University. This is also the beginning of an equally important time for this University. I said last evening to the Board and I will reiterate that in my 30 years as a university president, which is almost unbelievable, that this may be as singularly important day as I have witnessed. The reason is the fact that by what we have done today, we have set the agenda for this University for a significant period of time, but also we have laid the groundwork for its greatness for the next fifty years. I really do believe that. Not simply in terms of what we have done with ProjectONE, but also what we are doing in terms of the quality of our undergraduate student life with our commitment to our research and teaching agenda. And also, I want to note that today, even though we have passed by it rather lightly, we approved appointment and reappointments of a significant group of intellectual leaders, not only for this University but nationally. So I think it is important for us to pause as we have done for 90 days, but to just pause for just one moment and reflect on the fact that this is a noble institution with a great calling and that you are doing great work to make that possible. So I really do appreciate it.

Mr. Wexner:

Last my appreciation again to everybody that made ProjectONE happen, with the stopping and starting and pausing and reviewing it because I think with a full heart the Board not only understands but improves and endorses and is confident in it being a success and that is not unimportant to all the members of the Board. On a personal note, I was thinking as the meeting was going on, is that this begins the academic year, but it also begins our year of work. I really appreciate the leadership, the time, the effort, and the thought that the Board puts into the work of this Board. This may not be a record, but it damn near is, three days of us talking and working and doing together. I sincerely appreciate it. Thank you all.

The meeting is adjourned.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Thereupon the Board adjourned to meet Thursday, October 29, 2009, at The Ohio State University, William Oxley Thompson Library, Columbus, OH.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Thomas J. Moyer

Thomas J. Moyer has served as chief justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio since 1987.

The Ohio native holds a bachelor of arts degree in political science and a juris doctor degree from The Ohio State University. Prior to his election as chief justice, he served for eight years as a judge of the Tenth District Court of Appeals in Franklin County, as executive assistant to Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes for four years, and as a private practice lawyer for eight years.

Chief Justice Moyer has become a leader in providing citizens with improved access to the courts through alternative dispute resolution and computer technology. He seeks to ensure equal access to the courts through the development of a certification process for interpreters for non-English speakers and the hearing-impaired.

He is working with leaders of the judiciary and the General Assembly to develop family courts as a comprehensive approach to resolving criminal and civil issues confronting families, and he oversaw revisions to Ohio felony, misdemeanor, traffic, and juvenile sentencing laws that have been adopted by the General Assembly.

Chief Justice Moyer continues to work with lawyers and judges in other countries as they develop independent judiciaries. After Ukraine gained its independence, he led efforts to introduce that country to the importance of the rule of law and continues to host Ukrainian delegations on a regular basis. He has also counseled judicial leaders from China, Korea, Argentina, and Chile.

He currently serves as vice chair of the Advanced Science and Technology Adjudication Resource Center, a national consortium to prepare judges for managing the resolution of disputes on complex science issues. DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

John M. Shepherd is the former president and CEO of The Shepherd Chemical Company and The Shepherd Color Company in Cincinnati and continues to serve as secretary to both companies. He served on the Cincinnati Financial Corporation's board of directors from 2001 to 2007.

A two-time graduate of The Ohio State University with a 1958 bachelor's degree in ceramic engineering and a 1959 master's in business administration, Mr. Shepherd has remained close to his alma mater over the past half century. His contributions to the university are wide-ranging, thoughtful, and generous. He is the longest-serving member of the Fisher College's Dean's Advisory Council, where his participation and counsel continue to be valued. He co-chaired the college's John K. Pfahl Hall campaign adding his own support to the building project.

His Shepherd Engineering Scholarship has enabled a number of Cincinnati public high school graduates to study engineering at Ohio State. He facilitated a collaboration between Ohio State's College of Engineering and Walnut Hills High School in Cincinnati, which resulted in the creation of an "Introduction to Engineering" course at Walnut Hills, modeled after Ohio State's introductory course required of incoming engineering students. As a result, many Walnut Hills graduates have chosen to continue their engineering education at Ohio State. In addition, the John M. Shepherd Athletic Scholarship Fund supplements grants-in-aid for undergraduates on the men's varsity basketball team.

He has served on The Ohio State University Foundation Board and is a former member of the National Campaign Executive Committee and the Orton Chair Committee for the College of Engineering. Currently he is co-chair of the National Major Gift Committee for the Cincinnati area.

In recognition of his service to Ohio State, Mr. Shepherd received a Meritorious Service Award in 1992 from the College of Engineering and, in 2000, the university's John B. Gerlach Sr. Development Volunteer Award.

John L. Warner and Christine Warner Powell
DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

Through their generosity and vision, Christine Warner Powell and her late husband John L. Warner have enhanced The Ohio State University at Newark by creating a nurturing environment that enriches the lives of students, faculty, staff, and community members.

John Warner was an active member of the Newark Campus Development Fund, created to support Ohio State's Newark campus and the Central Ohio Technical College. In this capacity, he was instrumental in developing a master plan that helped guide campus growth from a single building 50 years ago to a beautiful campus with nine buildings today. At his death, his wife assumed his role on the board, continuing his legacy of dedicated service.

The couple's lead gift sparked the plans for the John L. and Christine Warner Library and Student Center, now the dynamic hub of the Newark campus. The Warner Center has had a profound impact on student life, with areas for studying and socializing and providing a home away from home for the campus's commuter students.

In addition to the Warners' initial support of the new building, Christine ensured, following her husband's death, that a series of trusts would allow the building to be completed and maintained into the future.

A graduate of Denison University and a veteran of the U.S. Navy, John Warner was retired from the Dawson-Coleman-Wallace Insurance Agency and was a past president of the Licking County Independent Insurance Agents. His community service included membership on the boards of Park National Bank, The Park National Corporation, Par Excellence School, Welsh Hills School, and Shepherd Hill Hospital. Both he and Christine served on the governing committee of the Licking County Foundation.

Christine Warner Powell also attended Denison University. She currently serves as a trustee for the Newark Campus Development Fund and is president of the Warner Lindorf Family Foundation. As a longtime member of P.E.O. International, Philanthropic Educational Organization, she continues to promote educational opportunities for women.

Christine Warner Powell and her late husband's vision of a welcoming place where Newark area students could find a quiet place to study and become involved in campus life has become a physical reality that will long enhance the state-wide educational mission of The Ohio State University.

Chapter 3335-43

3335-43-04 Membership.

(A) and (B) no changes.

(C) Terms of appointment. Initial appointment to the medical staff shall be for a period not to exceed twenty-four months. ~~Reappointment to the medical staff shall be done on a regular basis for a period not to exceed twenty-four months.~~ Initial appointment, except appointment to the physician scholar medical or limited staff categories, shall be provisional for six months regardless of the date of the appointment. During the period of the provisional appointment all applicants shall be subject to continuous review and reconsideration pursuant to these bylaws. Full appointment requires the evaluation of the chief of the clinical department. If, after the six-month period, the chief of the clinical department does not recommend the provisional appointee for full appointment, the chief of the clinical department may recommend to the medical staff administrative committee to:- 1. extend the provisional period, which is not considered an adverse action, for an additional six months not to exceed a total of twelve months for purposes of further monitoring and evaluation; or 2. terminate the provisional appointee's medical staff membership and clinical privileges. In the event that the medical staff administrative committee recommends that an adverse action be taken against a provisional appointee, the provisional appointee shall be entitled to the provisions of due process as outlined in these bylaws.

(D) no changes.

(E) Procedure for appointment.

(1) through (7) no changes.

(8) At any time the medical staff administrative committee first recommends non-appointment of an initial applicant for medical staff membership or recommends denial of any clinical privileges requested by the applicant, the medical staff administrative committee shall require the medical director to notify the applicant by certified return receipt mail that the applicant may request an evidentiary hearing as provided in paragraph (D) of rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code. The applicant shall be notified of the requirement to request a hearing as provided by paragraph (B) of rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code. If a hearing is properly requested, the applicant shall be subject to the rights and responsibilities of rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code. If an applicant fails to properly request a hearing, the medical staff administrative committee shall accept, reject, or modify the application for appointment to membership and clinical privileges.

The final recommendation of the medical staff administrative committee shall be directly communicated to the university hospitals board by the medical director, who shall make a separate recommendation to the university hospitals board.

When the Ohio state university hospitals board has acted, the chairperson of the board shall instruct the medical director to transmit the final decision to the chief of the clinical department and applicant and, if appropriate, to the director of the applicable clinical division. The chairperson of the board shall also notify the dean of the college of medicine and the ~~executive director~~ chief executive officer of the Ohio state university hospitals of the decision of the board.

(F) Procedure for reappointment.

- (1) At least ninety days prior to the end of the medical staff member's appointment period, the chief of the clinical department shall provide each medical staff member with an application for reappointment to the medical staff on forms prescribed by the medical staff administrative committee. The reappointment application shall include all information necessary to update and evaluate the qualifications of the medical staff member. The chief of the clinical department shall review the information available on each medical staff member, and the chief of the clinical department shall make recommendations regarding reappointment to the medical staff and for granting clinical privileges for the ensuing appointment period. The chief of the clinical department's recommendation shall be transmitted in writing along with the signed and completed reappointment forms to the medical director at least forty-five days prior to the end of the medical staff member's appointment period. The terms of paragraphs (A), (B), (C), (D), (E)(1), and (E)(2) of this rule shall apply to all applicants for reappointment. Balance unchanged.

3335-43-05 Peer review and corrective action.

(A) Informal peer review.

All medical staff members agree to cooperate in informal peer review activities that are solely intended to improve the quality of medical care provided to patients at the Ohio state university hospitals. Information indicating a need for informal review, including patient complaints, disagreements, questions of clinical competence, inappropriate conduct and variations in clinical practice identified by the clinical departments or divisions and medical staff committees shall be referred to the applicable clinical department chief, who shall consult the medical director. The chief of the clinical department and the medical director shall evaluate the matter to determine the appropriate course of action. They may, as they deem necessary, consult with the affected medical staff member or obtain information or opinions from knowledgeable persons within the medical center as well as outside consultants. At the conclusion of their evaluation, the chief of the clinical department and the medical director shall make an initial written determination on whether:

- (1) and (2) no change.

- (3) ~~Peer~~ Formal peer review under paragraph (B) of this rule is warranted.

In cases where the chief of the clinical department and medical director cannot agree on the need for formal peer review, the matter shall be submitted for formal peer review and determined as set forth in paragraph (B) of this rule.

If the chief of the clinical department and the medical director determine that informal resolution is appropriate, they may consult with the medical staff member, make recommendations for educational actions of additional training, sharing of comparative data or monitoring, issue informal letters of warning or provide other forms of guidance to the medical staff member to assist him or her in improving the quality of patient care. Such actions are not regarded as adverse, do not require reporting to any governmental or other agency, and do not invoke a right to any hearing. The chief of the clinical department and the medical director shall determine whether it is appropriate to include documentation of such actions in the medical staff member's file. If documentation is included in the member's file, the affected member shall have an opportunity to review it and may make a written response which shall also be placed in the file. Informal review under this paragraph is not a procedural prerequisite to the initiation of formal peer review under paragraph (B) of this rule.

- (B) ~~Peer~~ Formal peer review.

- (1) ~~Peer~~ Formal peer review may be initiated when a member of the medical staff of the Ohio state university hospitals:

- (a) through (f) no change.

~~Peer~~ Formal peer review may be initiated by a chief of a clinical department, the medical director, any member of the medical staff, the ~~executive director~~ chief executive officer of the Ohio state university hospitals, the dean of the college of medicine, any member of the board of the Ohio state university hospitals, or the vice president for health services. All requests for formal peer review shall be in writing, shall be submitted to the medical director, and shall specifically state the conduct or activities which constitute grounds for the requested action.

- (2) The medical director shall promptly deliver a written copy of the request for formal peer review to the affected member of the medical staff, in a confidential manner. The medical director shall then conduct a preliminary review to verify the facts related to the request for formal peer review, and within thirty days, make a written determination. If the medical director decides that no further action is warranted, the medical director shall notify the person(s) who filed the request for formal peer review and the member accused, in writing, that no further action will be taken.
- (3) Whenever the medical director determines that formal peer review is warranted, he or she shall refer the request for formal peer review to the formal peer review committee. The affected member of the medical staff shall be notified of the referral to the formal peer review committee, and be informed that these medical staff bylaws shall govern all further proceedings.

(4) no changes.

- (5) The formal peer review committee shall investigate every request and shall deliver written findings and recommendations for action to the chief of the clinical department within thirty days. The formal peer review committee may recommend a reduction, suspension or revocation of the medical staff member's clinical privileges or other action as it deems appropriate. In making its recommendation the formal peer review committee may consider, relevant literature and clinical practice guidelines, the opinions and views expressed throughout the review process, information or explanations provided by the member under review, and other relevant information. Prior to making its report, the committee shall afford the medical staff member against whom the action has been requested an opportunity for an interview. At such interview, the medical staff member shall be informed of the specific actions or omissions alleged to constitute grounds for formal peer review and shall be given copies of any statements, reports, opinions or other information compiled at prior stages of the proceedings. The medical staff member may furnish written or oral information to the formal peer review committee at this time and shall be given an opportunity to discuss, explain, or refute the allegations and to respond to any statements, reports or opinions previously compiled in the proceedings. However, such interview shall not constitute a hearing, but shall be investigative in nature. The medical staff member shall not be represented by an attorney at this interview.
- (6) Upon receipt of the written report and recommendation from the formal peer review committee, the chief of the clinical department shall, within seven days, make his or her own written recommendation for corrective action and forward that recommendation along with the findings and recommendations of the formal peer review committee to the medical director.
- (7) The medical director shall have ten days to decide whether to accept, reject or modify the recommendation of the chief of the clinical department. If the medical director decides the grounds are not substantiated, the medical director will notify the formal peer review committee, the chief of the clinical department, the person(s) who filed the complaint and the affected medical staff member, in writing, that no further action will be taken.

If the medical director finds the grounds for the requested corrective action are substantiated, the medical director shall promptly notify the affected medical staff member of that decision and the corrective action that will be taken. This notice shall advise the affected medical staff member of his or her right to request a hearing before the medical staff administrative committee pursuant to rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code and shall also include a statement that failure to request a hearing in the timeframe prescribed in this rule shall constitute a waiver of rights to a hearing and to an appeal on the matter and the affected medical staff member shall also be given a copy of the rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code. This notification and an opportunity to exhaust the administrative hearing and appeal process shall occur prior to the imposition of the proposed corrective action unless the emergency provisions outlined in paragraph (D) of this rule apply. This written notice by the medical director shall be sent certified return receipt mail to the affected medical staff member's last known address as determined by university records.

(8) and (9) no changes.

(C) Composition of formal peer review committee.

(1) When the determination that formal peer review is warranted is made, the chief of the clinical department shall select three members of the medical staff to serve on a formal peer review committee.

(2) Whenever the questions raised concern the clinical competence of the member under review, the chief of the clinical department shall select members of the medical staff to serve on the formal peer review committee who shall have similar levels of training and qualifications as the member who is subject to formal peer review.

(3) An outside review consultant may serve as a member of the formal peer review whenever:

(a) through (c) no change.

If an outside reviewer is recommended, the chief of the clinical department shall make a written recommendation to the medical director for selection of an outside reviewer. The medical director shall make the final selection of an outside reviewer.

(D) no changes.

(E) Automatic suspension.

(1) Notwithstanding the provisions of this rule, a temporary suspension in the form of withdrawal of a medical staff member's admitting privileges, effective until medical records are completed, may be imposed automatically by the medical director after a warning, in writing, of delinquency for failure to complete medical records as defined by the rules and regulations of the medical staff. The medical director shall notify the ~~executive director~~ chief executive officer of the Ohio state university hospitals of the action taken.

Balance unchanged.

3335-43-06 Hearing and appeal process.

(A) and (B) no changes.

(C) Notice of hearing.

(1) After receipt of a timely request for hearing by the medical director from a medical staff member entitled to such hearing, the medical staff administrative committee shall be notified of the request for hearing by the medical director and shall at the next scheduled meeting take the following action:

(a) Instruct the medical director and chief of staff to jointly appoint within seven days a hearing committee, consisting of five members of the medical staff who are not members of the medical staff administrative committee, are not direct competitors, do not have a conflict of interest, and who have not previously participated in the formal peer review of the matter under consideration.

(b) no changes.

(2) no changes.

(D) no changes.

(E) Appeal process.

(1) through (6) unchanged.

(7) Any final decision by the university hospitals board shall be communicated by the medical director and by certified return receipt mail to the affected medical staff member at that member's last known address as determined by university records. The medical director shall also notify in writing the senior vice president for health sciences, the dean of the college of medicine, the ~~executive director~~ chief executive officer of the Ohio state university hospitals and the vice president for health services, chief of staff, the chief of the clinical department, and the person(s) who initiated the request for formal peer review. The medical director shall take immediate steps to implement the final decision.

3335-43-07 Categories of the medical staff.

(A) no changes.

(B) Attending medical staff.

(1) no changes.

(2) Prerogatives:

An attending medical staff member may:

(a) Admit patients consistent with their clinical privileges and the balanced teaching and patient care responsibilities of the Ohio state university hospitals. When, in the judgment of the chief of the clinical department, a balanced teaching program is jeopardized, following consultation with the dean of the college of medicine and the Ohio state university hospitals' ~~executive director~~ chief executive officer, and with the concurrence of a majority of the medical staff administrative committee, the chief of the clinical department may restrict an attending medical staff member's ability to admit patients. Imposition of such restrictions shall not entitle the attending medical staff member to a hearing or appeal pursuant to rule 3335-43-06 of the Administrative Code.

(b) through (d) no changes.

(3) no changes.

September 18, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

The licensed health care professional's clinical privileges are contingent upon the sponsoring medical staff member's privileges. In the event that the sponsoring medical staff member loses privileges or resigns, the licensed health care professionals whom he or she has sponsored shall be placed on administrative hold until another sponsoring medical staff member is assigned. The new sponsoring medical staff member must be assigned in less than thirty days.

(f) through (j) no changes.

(k) Appeal process.

SUMMARY:

Included are the following:

- A summary of the Current Funds Budget (Attachment 1)
- A description of what is included in the Current Funds Budget Document (now available on line) (Attachment 2)
- FY 2010 Budget Priorities (Attachment 3)
- What Happens Next (Attachment 4)

CONSIDERATIONS:

- Are the strategic drivers of the budget identified?

REQUESTED OF THE FISCAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE:

Approval of the FY 2010 current funds budget.

FY 2010 Current Funds Budget
Summary

- This budget provides for an overall spending level of $4.4 billion for all campuses, all funds. This is a 3.7% increase over FY 2009.
- This budget provides for an overall increase of 4.2% in spending for Columbus Campus General Funds. The largest increases will go to the colleges to support additional enrollments and for undergraduate student financial aid.
- The tuition freeze will remain in place through the end of Spring Quarter, saving students and their families $14 million, compared to the increase permitted under state law.
- The reduction in benefit charges as a result of savings in health care costs will save General Fund units $4.6M in FY 2010, and all funds nearly $15M.
- Major areas of programmatic emphasis include:

Targeted Investments in Excellence	$10.0M
Master Planning Review	$ 4.0M
Semester Conversion	$ 3.5M
Development Support	$ 3.5M
- State SSI appropriations for the Columbus Campus will increase $16 million or 4.3% over FY 2009 levels; however, total state support will decrease $39 million or 7%.
- State SSI appropriations for the Regional Campuses will remain flat in FY 2010. Line items will be reduced $2.0 million or 5%.
- Preliminary projections show the University will be able to meet its academic goals for FY 2010 and FY 2011 under the parameters established in the state biennial budget bill, if appropriations are released as planned.

AMENDMENT TO LONG-TERM LAND LEASE

OARDC KINGSVILLE TOWNSHIP,
ASHTABULA COUNTY, OHIO

Location and Description

OARDC has maintained a research facility in Ashtabula County, Ohio under a long-term land lease with the Board of County Commissioners of Ashtabula County, Ohio. The research facility engages in grape and viticulture research. The funding for the research facility comes from both OARDC and the Ohio grape and wine industry.

The original lease with Ashtabula County was entered into in 1986 for a leasehold area of 25.3 acres for a 40-year term. In 2008, OARDC was approached by Kingsville Township and Ashtabula County with a request for a partial release of land from the leasehold to allow relocation of a road adjacent to the leased property across the leasehold estate. The relocation of the road is necessary to improve visibility and safety at the intersection of Green Road and State Route 84. OARDC approved the release of the land in exchange for additional acreage and extension of the lease term. The additional acreage will provide a buffer zone for the grape growing operation. The extended lease term will allow for continuity of the research at the facility.

Terms of Lease

The acreage leased from Ashtabula County has been increased to 26.285 acres. The new lease term will be for 40 years from July 1, 2009, to June 30, 2049. The rent will remain at $1.00 annually.

LONG-TERM LEASE

OSU MEDICAL CENTER GAHANNA AMBULATORY CARE CENTER
920 NORTH HAMILTON ROAD GAHANNA, OHIO 43230

The Ambulatory Care Strategy is a key component of the OSU Medical Center (OSUMC) Strategic Plan and is incorporated in the Health System's integrated financial plan. The plan was co-developed by the OSU Health System and OSU Physicians, Inc. (OSUP), and it emphasizes strategic growth of the Signature Programs and related/referring programs. While the Health System and OSUP currently have more than 40 ambulatory sites, the opportunity to improve market presence and economies of scale necessitates a collaborative strategy. The ambulatory plan's primary objectives are:

- Improve access and quality for our patients
- Lower cost of providing care
- Become geographically preferable to payers
- Optimize use of space on campus
- Target growth in outpatient business with focus on Signature Programs
- Ensure financially self-sufficient entities
- Provide appropriate teaching and research sites

The ambulatory planning process began in 2003 which included extensive study of the local market including demographic analysis, current OSUMC locations including market share, and competitor locations and planning efforts. In addition, ambulatory strategies of top academic medical centers across the country and regionally were studied. OSUMC practice sites were analyzed to determine possible inclusion in any new locations in order to increase critical mass, increase efficiencies, and improve clinical services to the community - the closing and relocation of several primary care practice locations is an example of this effort.

The top four priorities of the ambulatory strategic plan are the Route 23 North Ambulatory Care Center (approved and under construction), the Eye and Ear Institute (approved and open), the JamesCare Women's Ambulatory Oncology Center (approved and in design) and the Gahanna Ambulatory Care Center. All sites were selected through an informative and competitive process using a core set of weighted criteria including: cost per square foot, access and visibility of location, timing/speed to market, developer's experience with comparable projects, and site growth potential. Coupled with our existing 40 plus sites, the four new sites create an efficient, friendly network that maximizes patient access and referral patterns to the Medical Center.

Location and Description

The property will be located at the intersection of Hamilton and Johnstown Roads. The proposal provides for 35,523 SF of medical office space for multiple clinical specialty use per the plan's specifications including Family Practice, Sports Medicine, Orthopedics, Physical Rehabilitation, and Imaging. The site offers adequate parking and good visibility. This facility will be leased to OSU for a period of five (5) years with five 5-year renewal options. All costs including lease payments and operating costs will be paid for by the operating revenue generated at the location.

Terms of Lease

The initial lease term shall be for a period of five (5) years with five 5-year renewal options. The proposed Base Rate will not exceed $71,500 per month during the first 5 years or $858,000 annually ($24.15/SF). This includes tenant improvements but does not include operating expenses or amortized replacement and repair capital for the leased premises. The total commitment of this lease, including operating expenses over the 5-year term, will not exceed $6 million. Lease terms and conditions currently proposed by the landlord will be further reviewed and negotiated until a final lease is acceptable to the parties. The terms and conditions of the lease will be negotiated in the best interest of the OSU Medical Center and the University.

Terms of Lease

The lease term shall be for a period of five to seven (5-7) years. Subject to negotiation, the total rent and operating costs over the seven (7) year term is estimated to be $3.3 million. The effective date of the lease renewal will be February 1, 2010. Rent will be negotiated in the best interest of the CHRR and the University.

Description/Scope:

This study will complete conditions assessments of approximately 79 emergency generators and their automatic transfer switches in various buildings throughout the campus. The buildings to be included are academic/administrative buildings. The emergency generators range in age from 51 years to less than a year old.

The initial work of the study will involve working with Operations to verify the current age of the generators, what the emergency generation is needed for and what additional capacity is available. Assessments will prioritize and recommend replacement or upgrade of the generators and automatic transfer switches. In addition, the assessment will address the need to increase capacity to support research growth.

TOPIC

South High Rises Renovation and Addition
Approval to Enter Into/Increase Professional Services Contracts

CONTEXT

The Board of Trustees previously authorized the University to enter into contracts for design and professional services for the South High Rise residence hall renovations based on the following total project budgets:

- South High Rises Phase I –$46.2 million
- South High Rises Phase II –$65.0 million

Project estimates assumed a basic renovation to add air-conditioning, convert community bathrooms into clusters of private bathrooms, and improve public areas, entries, and student rooms. The total $111.2 million for both phases would have netted 1,900 renovated beds, an 89-bed loss from the current configuration due to the additional space required for the bathroom conversion. This included a $6.3 million budget for professional services through the completion of design.

Based on feedback from the Board of Trustees and the One Framework master planning study, the South High Rise renovation project has been re-conceptualized within a broader University Housing One Community project that significantly advances student residential environments to meet rising capacity demands and learning objectives (see Attachment A).

PROPOSED

Increase the scope of professional services through design from $6.3 million to $9.9 million, an increase of $3.6 million. Proceed with a re-conceptualized South High Rise Renovation and Addition project at a not-to-exceed total project budget of $171.6 million. This is based on 2,000 renovated beds and 380 new beds, a net bed increase of 460 over the previous design, and includes multiple design improvements in support of master plan and learning objectives.

The first phase of this project, resulting in 850 renovated beds and 190 new beds, can be completed on an accelerated schedule to open autumn 2012 in tandem with the academic calendar change to semesters.

The second phase, resulting in 1150 renovated beds and 190 new beds, can be completed by autumn 2013.

The Office of Student Life has identified the South High Rise project as a critical priority, and is re-prioritizing other projects within its proposed capital plan.

ISSUES

In light of the expanded scope and estimated $3.6 million increase for professional services through design, University senior management has determined that a re-bidding process for professional services should occur. The re-bid process must commence in September to meet the accelerated schedule and open the first phase in tandem with the semester conversion. Design work completed to date can be incorporated into the re-conceptualized plan.

Description/Scope:

This project will renovate five student housing facilities in the south campus area and construct two additions in support of the south area housing masterplan. The project will renovate Park, Smith, Steeb, Siebert and Stradley Halls, and construct connector additions between Stradley and Park and between Smith and Steeb. The additions will be 11 stories each and provide a total of approximately 380 new beds and new social space. Renovations to the existing 2000 beds and public space include providing air conditioning, converting community bathrooms to private bathroom clusters, improving aesthetics in student rooms, and significantly reconfiguring public spaces in support of learning and programmatic objectives.

These improvements and additions support the University conversion to semesters by increasing the percentage of air-conditioned facilities, provide increased bed capacity, and make progress toward the initiative for increased student living space for sophomores. The project is consistent with the vision for the south residential area and the University's Framework planning.

Student Life will be pursuing LEED Silver certification for this project.

This project was originally presented as two separate projects. In order to gain efficiencies in design and construction management the projects have been combined into one project and will be constructed in two phases.

JOINT USE AGREEMENT
BETWEEN THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY AND THE FLYING HORSE PEDIATRIC FARM

BACKGROUND

Flying Horse Pediatric Farms (Flying Horse) offers camps for children with serious illnesses. The camps are designed to inspire children to reach beyond their conditions through safe adventures, at no charge to the campers' families. Flying Horse will use the appropriated funds to construct a custom designed camping facility on nearly 200 acres the group owns in Mt. Gilead, Ohio. The project is scheduled for completion in 2010.

CURRENT APPROPRIATION/PROPOSED JUA

In 2008 the Ohio General Assembly appropriated state capital funds in the amount of $250,000 to OSU for capital improvements to Flying Horse's facility. This appropriation will support construction of stable facilities for horses used as part of the camping experience. This capital appropriation will promote the University's mission to address issues and problems of global dimension that are affecting the quality of the human condition. Programs conducted with the aid of these capital funds will advance University efforts to address issues such as health and disease and in turn will provide an immeasurable value to campers and their families.

Before the state capital appropriation of $250,000 may be released to Flying Horse Pediatric Farm, the Ohio Board of Regents requires that a Joint Use Agreement (JUA) between OSU and Flying Horse be signed to document the value of the appropriation to OSU and to ensure the benefits to the University will continue for a minimum period of twenty years. In summary, the proposed JUA for this appropriation includes the following provisions:

1. Flying Horse commits to the University that the monies for the project shall be used for capital improvements to the Flying Horse facility located in Mt. Gilead, Ohio.
2. Flying Horse commits to providing educational opportunities to students of The Ohio State University College of Medicine providing them with first-hand experience in treating both the physical and emotional needs of seriously ill children and their families.
3. The term of this JUA shall commence as of the date of its approval by the Ohio Board of Regents and shall expire twenty (20) years thereafter. In the event that the JUA is terminated prior to the end of the term, Flying Horse is obligated to reimburse the State of Ohio the proportionate amount of the appropriation representing the years of use remaining under this JUA.
4. Except for the funds used to cover the University's reasonable administrative costs related to the project ($3,750), the funds provided under this JUA shall be used by Flying Horse only for capital improvements or purchases and shall not be used for operating expenses.

OSU Board of Trustees approval is required before the JUA may be completed and sent to the Ohio Board of Regents and the Ohio Controlling Board for approval and release of funds.

STUDENT RECOGNITION AWARDS

Ms. Swain:

It is my honor again to present two outstanding students to the Board. First is Ravi Gupta, a fourth year student, pursuing a bachelor of science in molecular genetics from the College of Biological Sciences, as well as a bachelor of arts in political science and a minor in economics. Ravi is from Dayton, Ohio and is a graduate of Centerville High School. Upon entering Ohio State, he was named a National Merit Scholar and a member of OSU's Honors Collegium.

Since 2007, Ravi has served as a research assistant to Dr. Antonio Chioocca in the neurological surgery department, where he investigates the role of microRNA in migration, proliferation, and invasion of glioblastoma cells. He presented his research at both the 2008 Biological Sciences Research Colloquium and the 2008 Denman Undergraduate Research Forum. Ravi is working on a separate research project for his senior honors thesis through the Department of Political Science. This past summer, Ravi traveled to India where he conducted over 100 interviews with health workers, government officials, and doctors to analyze the role of health education to improve the country's public health system. He spreads his passion for global health on campus as the founder of the Global Health Initiative, an organization which presents to high school students in Columbus to increase awareness of global health issues.

In addition to his journey to India this summer, he spent the summer of 2008 in Switzerland as a research fellow studying new technologies to map the genome of tuberculosis. He has also backpacked through Spain, Austria, the Czech Republic, and Germany to learn more about their cultures. He was selected as one of 17 students to attend the Acumen Fund workshop in New York City, developing his knowledge of social enterprise development. Ravi was also chosen as OSU's delegate to the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference in Annapolis, Maryland in April 2009, where he presented his original paper on the role of non-governmental organizations in reducing global poverty.

When Ravi is not traveling or conducting research, he is very busy with various leadership and service organizations on campus. He has served as the president of Business Builders Club, Executive Team Member of the SERV Team, Planner of the Women's Health Symposium 2009, and a site leader for the Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service. He is also a student facilitator for Blueprint College Access and a member of the 2009 Homecoming Court.

Ravi's nominator writes, "[Ravi] is an outstanding candidate for this recognition in light of his exceptional intellect, motivation, and desire to do good in the world through his interests in global health and its disparities. He is a shining example of how Ohio State can prepare students for careers that will be measured by their global impact." Ravi hopes to gain additional experience abroad after graduation and is applying for a Fulbright Fellowship. He hopes to eventually join an MBA/MPA dual degree program and ultimately sees himself as a social entrepreneur launching organizations and working with governments to tackle poverty around the world.

He is joined today by Dr. Nooruddin from Political Sciences, Dr. Simcox from molecular genetics, Amy Barnes with first year experience and Dean Platz. Let's give him a round of applause.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Our second student is Ashley Shumaker. Ashley is a second year student in the Doctor of Pharmacy program. She is a first generation college graduate from Barnesville, Ohio. Ashley did her undergraduate work at Ohio University, graduating summa cum laude with a bachelor of science in biological sciences. She is a recipient of OSU's Pharmacy Merit Scholarship and the Plough Pharmacy Scholarship.

This past summer, Ashley worked full-time as a student researcher involved in studies on drug delivery with associate dean of pharmacy Sylvan Frank, and she continues to work 10-15 hours per week in his research lab during the academic year. Additionally, she serves as a teaching assistant to Dr. Frank's graduate-level class on Drug Delivery Systems this quarter. Ashley completed her community pharmacy rotation at Kroger Pharmacy and her hospital pharmacy rotation with the cardiology team at the OSU Medical Center's Ross Heart Hospital. She has also served as a pharmacy technician at the Barnesville Hospital since November 2006.

Ashley is involved in many professional organizations and is a member of the American Pharmacists Association Academy of Student Pharmacists and was co-chair of its annual chili cook-off this year. She is also a member of the Academy of Managed Care Pharmacists, Ohio Pharmacists Association, and Student Society of Health-System Pharmacists.

She serves as student ambassador for the College of Pharmacy and assists students in the recruitment process and admissions interview visits. One of her favorite memories of her time at OSU is volunteering for Operation Diabetes at the Solidarity Conference in the spring of 2009. Ashley said, "The attendees reminded me of how rewarding pharmacy can be. They were so excited about being proactive about their health." Along with her research and leadership accomplishments, she carries an impressive 4.0 GPA and has been selected a Women's Pharmacy Club Scholar.

Ashley says that she chose a career in pharmacy because it, "is the combination of what I desire in a career: it is constantly evolving and improving, it requires lifelong learning, and it allows you to help people and enhance their quality of life." Ashley plans on working in the field of veterinary pharmacy for both domestic and exotic animals. She is joined today by her mother, Kim Shumaker, and associate dean of pharmacy Sylvan Frank and Heather Deeters from the pharmacy student affairs department. Let's give her a round of applause.

Now they each have an opportunity to address the Board.

Mr. Gupta:

Good afternoon everyone. Alex, thanks for that very lengthy introduction. I appreciate it. I will keep my remarks pretty short. What I have learned, I think, through my past three years at Ohio State, is that because of the vastness of Ohio State, students really have to seek out their opportunities and to take advantage of everything that there is to offer at Ohio State, they need mentors and advisors. I have been very fortunate to have encountered several individuals here at Ohio State who have helped me, three of whom I have invited here. Dr. Nooruddin, Dr. Simcox and Dr. Barnes, and, it is because of them and other professors and advisors that I have met at Ohio State that I have been able to accomplish what I have. So I would just like to thank them and I would like to thank the University for giving me the opportunity to be here. Thank you.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Ms. Shumaker:

I would like to start off by thanking Dean Brueggemeier for his nomination. It is really an honor to be recognized today by the Board of Trustees. I would like to acknowledge my parents because they have given me more support, I would argue, than any other child in the world. When I decided to come to Ohio State, I knew that I would be attending one of the best pharmacy colleges in the whole country, but I did not realize the caliber of faculty and staff that they have over there in Parks Hall. Each and every day they have more dedication and drive than the day before, and they expect every student to do the same. They really inspire us to take a lead and make a difference. I just want to thank President Gee and the Board for all the hard work that they do.

Mr. Wexner:

Congratulations. Thank you.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

President Gee:

Well, we are overwhelmed by the Men's Glee Club, wasn't that wonderful. I thought those were angelic voices, I had no idea they were coming, our Chairman is exceeding himself. By the way, this is a wonderful setting. It just is glorious.

To start, some earth-shattering news: Ohio State has received yet another tribute. This one from GQ magazine, I want you to know. The magazine has included the University among its list of the nation's Top 20 "Most Obnoxious Colleges." Now that might not sound like something I would shout from the rooftops, but listen to the reasons we made the list: irrepressible school spirit, students wearing scarlet and gray, and strong pride in our marching band and our football team. Obnoxious? I will take that, absolutely!

For the record, I will tell you that we beat the University of Texas on that list, vindication, however late, is always sweet. It really is.

Even though we are only a month into fall quarter, our students have been exceptionally busy, and I will also note, remarkably successful. A few weeks ago at the Salt Flats in Utah, now this is remarkable, I just want you to vision this, here are students in a totally student built car called the Buckeye Bullet and it exceeded its own international speed record. We own the world's speed record. Think about that. The hydrogen fuel-cell vehicle was clocked at well over 300 miles per hour. By my estimate, that is about as fast as Tom DeLay's time on "Dancing with the Stars!"

Last week, our students' Solar Decathlon team earned 10th place in the international competition to design and build a house that is net-zero in its carbon impact. This was an international competition, 20 houses on the mall and ours is one of them. Those are of course two fabulous showings by our students, demonstrating that they are not only academically gifted but they are wonderfully obnoxious, and we are grateful for that. I congratulate them on their success.

Two weeks ago, Dr. Adams-Gaston and her student life team produced a great Parents and Family Weekend. Thousands of mothers, fathers, grandparents, aunts, siblings and a few family pets, and I will say that either our students are academic award contenders, or they were genuinely happy to have their families here. That groundswell of family engagement was yet another demonstration of the reach and power of this University.

Our faculty stars are shining as bright as ever. Ann Hamilton, of our art department, who last year as you know, won the Heinz Award, and Tina Henkin of the microbiology department were recently inducted into the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. That of course is a single honor, as you likely know, and they join several other Universities and others that I know as members of that rank.

A few quick research updates. First, as of this week, Ohio State faculty have been awarded $76 million in Federal Recovery Act funding. Those funds are supporting 166 different research projects across health sciences and engineering. The projects underscore the transformative power of this University's faculty and students tackling and solving real-world problems. Recovery Act funding is supporting work to develop potential new treatments for Lou Gehrig's disease, discover how climate change affects the earth's crust and ocean levels, understand genetic causes of everything from childhood eyesight problems to diabetes and heart disease. Those are obviously just three examples out of 166 life-changing projects.

My thanks go to Caroline Whitacre for her great work in coordinating the University's massive proposal effort. Another recent piece of news gives some indication of how we stack up nationally in research. The National Science Foundation issued its annual rankings of universities according to research funding and Ohio State again ranks in the top 10 nationally, ahead of, I will just name a few, I could name a number of institutions ahead, Stanford, Cornell, MIT and some other not-so-shabby institutions. That is an important benchmark, and one key measure of the University's distinction. It is important to note, though, that our faculty received funding for a great deal of scholarship that is not limited to the sciences. One example, a few weeks ago, the College of Education and Human Ecology received a five-year, $13 million grant to partner with Columbus City Schools to meet the critical need of teachers in foreign languages, math, and science.

The partnership will include the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences, the Ohio Board of Regents, Battelle for Kids, and Nationwide Insurance, among other partners. It is precisely in my view the kind of innovative, collaborative work that will strengthen all of us.

I have one senior leadership announcement to mention. I believe this is the first meeting at which Blake Thompson has joined us. Dr. Thompson, known in Bricker as "Doogie Howser" is the new vice president we share with Battelle. He comes from the University of Tennessee and Oak Ridge National Laboratory where he served as director of university partnerships. Here he has already begun work to expand the collaborative arrangements that we undertake with Battelle. I will tell you the opportunities are enormous and his impact is already felt. Blake, will you stand, I want everyone to recognize you.

With the start of the academic year, I have largely been on campus, but my time away has been very productive. A few weeks ago I was pleased to speak at the inaugural dinner honoring Dr. Ronald Berkman, the new president of Cleveland State University. He is a strong leader for that institution, and I look forward to working closely with him.

In Athens, Georgia, the incomparable Joyce Beatty gave me an introduction like no other. That was before my keynote address at the National Outreach Scholarship Conference. No one listened to my address after she introduced me, they all wanted her to introduce them. I am proud to say that the group was created a decade ago by our own Bobby Moser in partnership with others.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Last week's College Board Forum in New York was a Buckeye Bonanza with several University leaders participating. Dolan Evanovich and several others from Ohio State gave presentations, and Mabel Freeman is a College Board Trustee. I was honored to deliver the Forum's presidential address. Standing before 1,000 educators, I was nearly speechless before I ever started. Former West Virginia Governor, and good friend, Gaston Caperton introduced me. He said the usual nice things that friends say about one another, and then he let loose the following bombshell: I do not know who calculated this, but he said that some 672,495 college students have endured my presidencies during the past 30 years. A staggering figure, and one that makes me feel as old as Methuselah, I want you to know.

Finally I want simply to note that this month marks the completion of my second year, of my second tenure, leading this University. I say this to all of you, my belief in the institution's tremendous significance, and even greater promise, grows each and every day. Ohio State, as I have said on a number of occasions, is a place of boundless enterprise and imagination, vast intellectual resources as we all know, but the passionate commitment to our communities is readily apparent and of course we have unmatched support from our alumni and friends. This complex, comprehensive institution is, at its core, a confederation of opportunity, for our students, our faculty, our staff, our alumni, our state, our nation and certainly the world. You heard yesterday from Dr. Brustein how we are literally going to take our message and have an enormous imprint on the world at large. To me, as I have said to you before, there is no greater calling than to be at Ohio State, certainly for me, I say that, and each day I am grateful to all of you for the profound honor that I have to serve this institution, so I thank you.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much, President Gee. This is the second anniversary of the first coming, or the second coming. Let me move to the committee reports, first let me ask, Jo Ann Davidson to report on the Committee on Trusteeship.

-0-

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Ms. Davidson:

Thank you Mr. Chairman, I am going to give a brief report on two meetings the Committee on Trusteeship has had since the Board was last together. We met yesterday and had a really in-depth discussion about the committee structure of the Board. We were pleased to have Dick Chait with us for that meeting and Chairman Wexner was also with us for that meeting, and we really talked through where we want to go with some modifications of the committee structure and I think Dick Chait gave us very excellent advice when he said, "really you need to look at that in relationship to what you really need to get done and what committees that you need to form that might not exist today in helping you to get that done." We will continue to consider that. We have talked about natural separation, perhaps of the Development and Investment Committee that I know Chairman O'Dell thinks is a good idea. We have talked about going in the direction of an academic strategy committee, which Ambassador Ong is in favor of, so there are a lot of issues on the table, there is good discussion, and we will continue that discussion in the future.

We also had a meeting in between Board meetings on Friday, October 23. I want to review that meeting for you because some of them are very relevant to today's meeting, and there will be one action that we need to take, if the Board approves as a result of that meeting.

We revised and approved the evaluation form. You received a draft of that which I think is the final revisions, and you will also receive a copy of that evaluation form with an envelope before you leave today with the hope that if you do not have time to complete it before you leave, that you will complete it soon. We understand that this will go through a number of revisions so we would appreciate your input, if you find it difficult to use, this is going to be very valuable information in making our committees more effective.

We reviewed a request from the Ohio Board of Regents that we nominate Trustees to serve on four working groups that they are organizing. We will let the Board of Regents know that Ohio State University Trustees do want to participate and have particular interest in the governance working group. Other working groups are communication, education and training, and resources, so we may be in touch with some of you about your interest in serving on one of those working groups.

There was a report on the faculty membership on the Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee, and we received five excellent nominations from the faculty leadership subcommittee of the Committee on Trusteeship, and will interview all five of the members of the faculty that have been nominated and make a recommendation back to the full committee and also to the chairman of the Board for an appointment.

We distributed a draft charter of the Academic Strategy Committee, which I mentioned a little earlier, asked for Committee members to review that, and we will have further discussion on that charter. Chairman Shumate reported on the fact that we are following through on a recommendation that we had to find a way to involve more fully, former Trustees of the Board. So there will be a spring event that will be planned for them on campus to let them get a tour and look at the changes that are happening on campus, but also to give them an update on the University to determine how we can continue to involve them and use their skill sets and their experience.

We recommended the appointment of our first Charter Trustee. You may remember that we authorized as a Board the ability to appoint up to three Charter Trustees for someone who had an association with the University, who was a non-Ohio resident, and that we particularly wanted to look at Charter Trustees that could fulfill a need that we have in a particular area on the Board. So we are bringing to you, and it is being passed out right now, a resolution to appoint Dr. Gil Cloyd, who as you know was former Board Chairman for two years, is now domiciled in Austin, Texas. Actually he has given invaluable service to this University, has a very strong background in research, and that is one of the areas in which you know is one of our major goals to expand what we are doing in research and Gil brings that talent. He has a long and very strong record of support for this University, so Mr. Chairman, I would ask at this time that the Committee on Trusteeship would like to seek approval of the full Board for this appointment and I think that Dr. Cloyd would be an excellent example of what we need in a Charter Trustee.

APPOINTMENT OF CHARTER TRUSTEE

Resolution Number: 2010-20

WHEREAS the Board of Trustees established the position of Charter Trustee at its meeting on February 6, 2009, acknowledging that the establishment of such a position had the potential of further strengthening the governance capacity of the Board, noting that

WHEREAS The Ohio State University is one of the premier public land-grant institutions in the country and, in execution of its mission, embraces education on a state, national, and global scale; and

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

WHEREAS the complex and multi-faceted nature of the University – in its mission, its character, its constituencies, and its financing calls for extraordinary leadership at the highest levels; and

WHEREAS the governance of the University would be well served by Charter Trustees whose attributes include but are not limited to diverse cultural, geographic, business, professional, public service and civic backgrounds; and

WHEREAS the Board added a number of guidelines, including the following:

Charter Trustees shall be non-Ohio residents and shall be chosen on the basis of the following attributes: Ohio State alumna/alumnus or friend of the University; success in his or her chosen field or profession; state, national, or international prominence; ability to advocate for higher education; expertise in areas deemed critical to the University; and willingness and ability to offer counsel; and

WHEREAS G. Gilbert Cloyd of Austin, Texas, through his extraordinary service in his three years on this Board of Trustees, including two years of service as Chairman of this Board; through a career of significant accomplishments at Procter & Gamble, most recently in the capacity as chief technology officer; through his profound knowledge of business on a global scale, including the centrality of research as a core function in that business; and through his unstinting support and efforts on behalf of the University, has proven to be an exemplary embodiment of all of those qualities noted as most desirable in a Charter Trustee;

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, hereby proposes the appointment of G. Gilbert Cloyd as the first Charter Trustee of The Ohio State University to serve a three-year term commencing October 29, 2009.

Upon motion of Ms. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Borrer the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing motion by unanimous voice vote.

Mr. Wexner:

It is unanimous Gil, you are back to work. Welcome.

I like to think that, as I am thinking about the student recognition award, it always strikes me that from universities, one should never graduate. There should always be a commencement, and I think when Gil retired as chair, I think I told him it was the commencement, so we are commencing again, and we are delighted to have you with us.

Dr. Cloyd:

Mr. Chairman, thank you. It is a delight to be with this Board, and any affiliation with this University is always a labor of love, so I am very pleased to be back.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much.

Wally, do you want to give us the Development and Investment Committee report?

Mr. O'Dell:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. Yesterday the Development and Investment Committee met, and we had two excellent reports.

First Mr. Weiler reported on FY2010 fundraising outcomes. Fundraising activity for the first quarter was about $55 million, which is a little more than 18% of the goal with 25% of the year elapsed. That activity is on track with past years' results. Mr. Weiler also shared a new cash flow report and pledge fulfillment figures. Pledge fulfillment rates are 92% for major gifts and 70-75% for annual giving. FY2010 cash flow on pledge expectations from prior year pledges is approximately $20 million.

Also through September 30, $29.4 million has been raised for the Students First, Students Now campaign. It is right on track with the goal which runs through June 30, 2011.

The major campaign planning continues to progress. Development is refining the University's case statement and preparing to work with the deans to update unit goals and craft case statements for each unit. All work should be completed by the end of this fiscal year. In the short term, an annual report for FY09 is going to more than 3,000 endowment donors. It will include a personalized financial report for each recipient's endowed funds, including details such as names of scholarship recipients.

The Board of The Ohio State University Foundation last week elected Jay Gerlach as chair, and elected Joel Harmon, Keith Monda, and Robert Wright as new members.

Finally the Committee approved the establishment of 16 new funds, one revision, and one termination, totaling just over $1 million.

Next Mr. Hook delivered the Investment report. Mr. Hook began his report by commenting on the fiscal first quarter of 2010. Returns have been strong through the first quarter and generally throughout 2009, so far. The Long-Term Investment Portfolio totals have crossed back above $1.8 billion as of September 30. Returns for the first quarter were a positive 10.2% and for the calendar year we are up about 15%. It was stressed to the Committee that the goal of the investment office was to earn strong returns while working to reduce overall portfolio risk and volatility.

Over the past year there have been several changes in the portfolio. The process is slowing down now and the fruits of that effort are beginning to take place. Our equity, fixed income and hedge fund portfolios have performed well and are ahead of their relative benchmarks. The portfolio continues to remain comfortably within its allocation targets. Equity exposures have risen as we have taken advantage of market opportunities as well as participated in the general uptrend through the spring and summer. Fixed income exposures have declined commensurately as the opportunity set has diminished. It is anticipated that this phenomenon will begin to revert back during calendar 2010. We are also looking at ways we can add exposures in the portfolio that help protect against further depreciation in the US dollar.

Lastly we discussed our liquidity metrics and that we currently hold sufficient levels of portfolio liquidity. Mr. Chairman, that concludes my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you. Any questions?

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Let me then move on to Judge Marbley who is going to report in the absence of our sick ally and comrade, Mr. Brass.

Judge Marbley:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Medical Affairs Committee met yesterday. We had a number of reports, and I will try to move through them with some dispatch. First the ProjectONE scorecard, and this deals with the Medical Center as opposed to our new hospital. Overall the financial condition of the hospital system is good. The report card was all green, except for two areas, and those were development and occupancy. Those were not red, but yellow. The development metric was yellow at our last meeting; the reason was that we are just launching our campaign. We have already raised $13 million, and we have $56.25 million total to raise as a quarterly report, and there has just not been that much activity in the past month, that is the reason Mr. Chairman that we have a yellow report card on that metric as opposed to green, but it is certainly no cause for alarm.

The key financials are all up including the EBIDA margin, the days cash on hand and debt service. It is noteworthy also that patient satisfaction quality and safety indicators are all up. As I mentioned previously, the occupancy numbers remain strong. We have had strong numbers in surgery but most of our surgeries have been outpatient surgeries as opposed to inpatient. There has been a decrease in length of stay of approximately a half a day below budget, and that is because of our efficiency. So we have in effect, Mr. Chairman, been a victim of our own success.

With respect to ProjectONE, the new hospital, at the suspension of activities during the summer in which we took a look back and we all agreed that it was very beneficial and made some very key revisions, we are back on schedule. We have four initiatives that are underway: the cancer critical care tower, the infrastructure and roadways, the RDJ mechanical, electrical, plumbing, and demolition, all of these are on schedule and within budget. With respect to the new hospital, there are two major positions that we are in the process of filling. One is the executive director of the project. We are looking for qualified individuals for that. We have interviewed some, and there are others to be interviewed. We anticipate that position will be filled by the first of the year. We also have a posting for a business manager, and we believe that position will likely be filled internally, but it is not being limited, of course, to internal candidates. We are optimistic that the position will be filled prior to the beginning of the year, but certainly not later than the beginning of the year.

We are very pleased as we always are to announce some very significant promotions, beginning with Dr. Carlo Croce who has been given The Ernst W. Bertner Memorial Award conferred from The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center for science and cancer research. Our own Dr. Caligiuri who usually sits with us, but is out for this meeting, was elected president of the Association of American Cancer Institute, and Beth NeCamp has been promoted to chief of communications and marketing. So I think that Dr. Gabbe has once again brought together some outstanding talent and University Hospitals has been accordingly recognized for the talent that we have and that we continue to develop.

With respect to H1N1, about which everyone appropriately should be concerned, we have vaccinated 2,600 people with the H1N1 vaccine. We have approximately 2,200 doses available in addition to 1,600 nasal doses which will be available for ages 2-49. We can now vaccinate all pregnant women in the University. The President looked at me, as if to say how do you know how many pregnant women there are in the University. I know that was your question. We will venture to guess that there are not over 3,800 pregnant women in the University.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

We have 15 H1N1 cases in the hospital, eight are in the intensive care unit, and they are on either ventilators or life support. The cases in the emergency department now number approximately 40 per day, and at the beginning of the month, we were as low as 13 a day. In addition to the H1N1 vaccines, we have 2,500 seasonal flu doses.

The Medical School continues to ascend. We are currently ranked 27th in the US News and World Report ranking. We have jumped 17 slots since 2003, and that is the largest jump in the nation. We have Dr. and Dean Chip Souba to thank in large part for our rapid ascend.

We also received a report on personalized healthcare from Dr. Marsh. We tabled for the next Board meeting, the OSUP integration, and then we have two items on the consent agenda, one is the appointment of Robert Massie to the James Board, the other is the appointment of Daphne Bell to the Ross Hospital Board.

Mr. Chairman that ends my report.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much Monte. Any questions for Judge Marbley.

Ambassador Ong will you give us your report please.

Ambassador Ong:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Academic Affairs and Student Life Committee met yesterday afternoon. We heard a number of presentations relating to student life, and academic affairs; each one of which ended with a discussion between the presenters and members of the Committee.

First, vice president for strategic enrollment, Dolan Evanovich, told the Committee that this autumn's enrollment brings a number of record highs, including total University enrollment, as well as enrollment on the Columbus campus and the four regional campuses. Our total undergraduate enrollment is also at an all time high, as is enrollment of out of state students at every level. Our student body grew more diverse this year, and our freshman class once again is better prepared than ever with new records set for high ACT and SAT scores, and for grade point average standing in their high schools. This was noted, as a continuing record setting that has gone up every year since selective admission began in the 1990's.

Vice President Evanovich then turned to a discussion of enrollment and diversity. Following the decision relating to the University of Michigan and the Supreme Court, some years ago, Ohio State experienced a drop in both applications and enrollments among minority students. The responses of the University have included committing additional funds to minority recruitment, staging radio advertisements and calling campaigns, and initiating a holistic full file review, which has become a national model for promoting diversity in higher education. Despite the very limited pool of qualified minority students, these efforts have paid off. Today, first year retention among minority students is essentially the same as for the overall population, there is no significant difference. The six year graduation rate among minority students continues to lag that of the general population, but that gap continues to close each year. Vice President Evanovich noted that our overall student body seems to be coming more affluent. He said that economic access would be a cornerstone of the enrollment strategic plan to be developed in the coming year.

Then, vice president for student affairs, Javaune Adams-Gaston discussed some of the ways Ohio State supports a diverse student body. She detailed several studies that her office is spearheading to inform future efforts in that area. The vice provost for minority affairs, Dr. Mac Stewart, described a number of particularly successful diversity initiatives, among them a highly regarded young scholars program and the Bell Resource Center. The two vice presidents and the vice provost concluded by telling the Committee about the next steps in broadening student diversity at Ohio State. Recruitment programs will be expanded and financial aid packaging will be once again reviewed.

Vice President William Brustein then turned the Committee's attention to strategies for globalizing the University, which is his area of responsibility. One of the most important of these strategies will be the establishment of global gateways which will serve as bases for faculty research and teaching, portals for study abroad by students, and sites to encourage partnerships with international institutions and Ohio based companies interested in exports. The first gateways will be located, one in China, one in India, and one in Brazil. They will be funded by the University, donors, gateway program fees and partnerships. As they prove successful, there are plans to open several other such portals in other parts of the world.

Another curtail strategy in globalizing the University is expanding the international content of the curriculum. Vice Provost Brustein said that each major will come to include more international options for students. Pilot programs for internationalizing the curriculum are being planned within the arts and sciences, the health sciences and the graduate and professional schools.

Dr. Adams-Gaston then returned to discuss a proposal which was not up for approval yesterday, but simply a status report, a proposal to provide limited legal services for students. The proposed services would include legal advice and representation, provision of sample legal documents and other such materials, as well as an education and outreach program to assist students with legal problems that they may encounter.

The Committee next discussed topics that, this was a brief discussion, it thought about including meetings for the year 2010. There was some discussion of those, importantly, the provost took note of our thoughts and he and I will be discussing arranging agendas for the year 2010 over the next few weeks.

Finally the Committee heard resolutions for revising the University's classified civil service rules, the renaming of Murray Hall to the Institute for Behavioral Medicine Research, the establishment of a Masters of Arts Degree Program in Latin American Studies, the establishment of a Specialized Masters in Business Degree Program and the establishment of an Educational Specialist Degree Program as well as certain personnel actions, all of which were recommended by the Committee for approval by the Board as part of the consent agenda.

That is my report Mr. Chair.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you, questions?

Dr. Cloyd:

Ambassador Ong, regarding the efforts to enhance the diversity, does the plan include any process related milestones or metrics so we will know how the activities that we want to do to enhance are being done or will we simply have to wait and see what the enrollments are in the future?

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Ambassador Ong:

This is in terms of enrollment?

Dr. Cloyd:

Yes, as we try this outreach that you reference that's going to be done to see if we can enhance the diversity of our pool of students, I was just wondering, do we have a process plan where we would be looking at process kind of metrics to see if that is being done the way we wanted it.

Ambassador Ong:

That is very much the case. The three individuals who made presentations in that area, each of their organizations has programs underway, aimed at both enhancing the number of applications from minority students and then providing, what I will call support opportunities, or support programs so that the retention rate at the end of the freshman year continues to improve and more particularly so that the six year degree rate, which still as I mention significantly lags that of the overall student population. So that it is slowly improving, but the gap needs to close on a faster trajectory. So yes, there is a lot of work going on I think, the Committee is convinced in that area.

President Gee:

The answer is yes, but also I think that the opportunity with changing leadership and new leadership with opportunities that exist in our communities, that this is a time for us to carefully take a look about how we can really enhance it. It is just not simply enhancing it, it is also thinking fresh and anew. The provost and I have been talking about that and others and we are actually talking to several folks outside the University who have a strong leadership role in this to help us think this thing through. First we have several members of our own Board, starting with Dr. Reid who has spent a good deal of time on those very issues and so in some ways, we are very blessed with the right set of circumstances.

Janet you might want to add something to that.

Dr. Reid:

I will just enhance some of your comments a bit. As with everything that is important to the University, there has to be a lot of thought behind it and careful planning and so forth. So you are very right on in asking about this because it is time to look anew at what the strategy is and how we will measure that effectiveness and then what it is we will put in place in order to ensure that effectiveness. I think at this point looking at it in a very comprehensive manner is going to be very important, so certainly looking at some of the traditional categories that we have looked at in the past, students of color, etc., will never go away. That is critical. Adding other elements as well will be important, so as Ambassador Ong said, getting people in is one thing, getting them graduated is another thing, but looking at the experience that they have between getting in and getting out is going to be critical as well. You know how many of us sit at the table here and get commended, how many will go out later and make a big impact in the state or in our community. So you are right on, and I think we are right at the very beginning of looking at that.

Mr. Jurgensen:

I think one of the most frightening things we were told yesterday, relative to this issue has to do with our development of the potential incoming pool, and the statistic that was shared with us is that the estimated senior class in Columbus is 16,800.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Within that 16,800, it is estimated only 445 students out of 16,800 will score a 25 or higher on their ACTs, and I think our incoming statistic was like, 27.5 here at Ohio State. Hearing about the investment that President Gee referenced that we are making in the Columbus Public Schools is critically important, but this University has an enormous responsibility to do what it can do to increase the number of kids who have Ohio State as an option.

President Gee:

Absolutely, and I just might note that new grant that we talked about is going to be really critical in that effort and it is a very significant effort on our part, joining with our communities and precisely that programmatic thrust.

Mr. Marion:

Sometimes diversity goes beyond just color and with regards to socioeconomic diversity, the institution went from about 30% of its students being in high need or very high need to 17% within ten years, so we are either doing a much better job of maintaining affordability, which I think we are doing, but also as we increase our academic standards to improve the reputation of the institution we do run the greater risk of those students who come from school districts that may not be able to prepare those students as well, so it is quite a conundrum because we are educating the educators who then educate our incoming students. It is just something that we have to be sensitive to and make sure our academic strategy does not challenge our values.

President Gee:

Well you know our programs on inclusion take into account all those issues, but just remind the Board, this institution has a singularly important record of educating first generation college students beyond almost every other university in this country. If you take a look at that population today, when I was here in the early 1990's it was nearly half of our students, it is about 20-25% now given everything. Which is really quite extraordinary, and I think that is a signature that we want to continue to celebrate and focus on.

Ambassador Ong:

I think another thing that I would add is that while this question of enrollment obviously touches on student life, it actually is central to the academic affairs of the University, because the numbers and the quality of our incoming students is going to in large part help us to establish the higher levels of excellence that we want to see in every part of the University. The Committee has already a number of subjects in the academic affairs category that we are reviewing on an annual basis with those involved in the faculty and administration, and we have added enrollment to that list of annual reviews because it is something the Board ought to really look at and be informed about on an annual basis.

Mr. Wexner:

Any other questions or comments. Good discussion.

Bob Schottenstein had a conflict, so I am going to ask Bill Shkurti to report for the Audit and Compliance Committee please.

Mr. Shkurti:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. The Audit and Compliance Committee met yesterday afternoon and discussed five issues. I will go over each of them briefly.

First of all we had a briefing from Mr. Dolan Evanovich, the vice president for Student Enrollment, and he was a busy man yesterday. His presentation at the Audit and Compliance Committee involved Student Financial Aid Compliance. He let the Committee know that 85% of our students receive some form of financial aid, if student loans are included, and that the total amount of financial aid distributed by the University from a variety of sources in the fiscal year that just ended is $742 million. So it is quite an important program. He pointed out that OSU had a very good reputation and record regarding compliance. He also introduced the new director of financial aid, Diane Stemper, who is conducting a top to bottom review of how financial aid, although the office works very well, it can be improved.

Then I presented a report on reporting investment returns and expenses, and what that involved was aligning all the various parts of the University that report investment returns, to make sure the reports were consistent. We had a problem with that a couple of years ago, and I was able to report that through the cooperation of a lot of the different offices involved, that we have a consistent method of reporting the returns of the long-term investment pool. Also a common definition and a common definition of expenses and that is reflective in all University documents, and will be our process going forward.

Then Tom Ewing, who is associate controller and Ann Moffitt who is the director of sponsored programs for the Office of Research, reported on what the University was doing regarding federal stimulus reporting and our first official report to the federal government went in just a couple of days ago for the period ending September 30. It reported that we have actually spent $1.8 million in stimulus money so far, that is not very much, but there is quite a bit in the pipeline. We have awards of $55 million that have been awarded but not spent yet, and another $20 million that has been committed. The estimate is that we will be spending probably $130 million over the next two years in federal stimulus money throughout the University. Mr. Ewing and Ms. Moffitt also reported on a process we have for tracking this money because the federal requirements are very strict, in addition the state auditor has established requirements as well and we are having good cooperation from the various units in the University in making sure we comply with those requirements.

Finally I reported on the financial management scorecard. This is the second annual report on how each of our 38 units, whether college or vice presidential units do regarding its internal controls in five different areas that range from procurement and payroll to sub-certification and a variety of other areas. Even though the standards have been raised in the second report, which was a request of the Committee last year, we have higher compliance among all our units. All the items that were red last year have been cleaned up and we have marked this as a candidate and have actually had progress on continuous improvement.

We then had a report on the audited financials. The audited financials are almost complete and there will need to be a separate meeting of the Audit and Compliance Committee set up between now and the February Board meeting to go over those in detail.

Finally there was one action item on the agenda regarding the establishment of a new Campus Partners Affiliate. That was withdrawn at the request of the sponsoring unit, so we have no items for action at this point.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much. Questions, comments for Bill?

Jo Ann Davidson, would you like to give us the long awaited Fiscal Affairs Committee Report.

Ms. Davidson:

I would be happy to Mr. Chairman. We had several of our typical reviews in the Fiscal Affairs Committee meeting yesterday, starting out with the Capital Recommendations, which has been an ongoing discussion before Fiscal Affairs. Actually the Capital Recommendations are divided into three tiers, maybe recommendation is the wrong word for that, but there are three tiers of capital requests. Tier one, which includes the north academic core, ProjectONE, the student housing, the south high rise renovations, and the associated infrastructure projects that go along with that, which are major dollars and chillers, that type of thing. In that tier one, funding sources have already been identified and those projects have already been approved and primarily with bond money, but some state capital dollars are involved in that, and some dollars that would be raised from the private sector or come from the various colleges that are involved.

Tier two projects, there are not many funding sources identified for the tier two projects, but they are important. They are the residence hall expansion, the Campus Partners capital support, campus safety and emergency communications facility, additional infrastructure needs and then safety and access and way finding which is of course the signage of how you move around this huge campus. That total just a little bit under $200 million, and again, funding sources for the tier two projects have not been identified.

The tier three projects are sort of those things that are on the much needed and wish list there, but at this point in time I will not cover those because we are actually working through the tier one and then into the tier two. We discussed what this would involve as far as debt issues. Obviously we are already planning for additional bond to debt issue next year, probably not to exceed $400 million. What the bonding needs would be in 2012, in 2014 because we need to consider that as we are moving forward. We talked about what we do in risk assessment mitigation. The University fortunately is in a very sound financial position, and most likely will be able to issue that $400 million next year without any impact upon our bond rating. The biggest challenge really remains in the economic uncertainties that are out there. The best strategy would be to continue to advance academically while remaining financially prudent, would be to prioritize the capital projects, which we are doing, and move forward on a very selective process. To use circuit breakers when they are called for in determining perhaps when you have to reevaluate, and you would need to use a circuit breaker to build our balance sheet and debt capacity between now and 2012, and to improve our financial forecasting capability.

We also had a report on our first quarter financials, and it is good to know that our health system is doing very well and meeting their goals and financial performance, and that our summer and fall enrollments are good and that our liquidity position continues to be good. The areas of concern clearly are the state general funds budget and also the national economic picture of things that we still need to follow very carefully. One good thing on our financials is that the cost recoveries for our research projects are running much higher than what we anticipated. A lot of that is coming from some of the stimulus research projects and it is up 34% compared to the first quarter of fiscal year 2009. I would encourage the Board members that are not on Fiscal Affairs to take a look at the financial update, because it is very comprehensive.

We had our quarterly report on the status of our projects on campus. Those major four projects actually include the Ohio Union, which is due to open in the spring of next year. The student academic services building, which is due to open in February of next year, Lane Avenue garage, hopefully by mid-December of this year and Kunz Hall renovation which just started? All of those projects are on time and on budget, and obviously we are meeting today in this wonderful library, which actually was one of those projects that was on the list through the way, on time, on budget, so I think that is a very good record.

We have a number of items on the consent agenda today. The first being a resolution to allow our senior vice president for business and finance and our assistant vice president for financial services to refinance outstanding bonds, and or fix the rates of variable interest bonds, if the market makes it feasible to do that. I would stress that this would not be authorizing any new debt service, and it would not extend the payment on the existing debt that we have by this refinancing for any additional length of time. We need to make some required IRS changes to our 403B annuity plan, and that must be done by December 31. Those changes are on the consent agenda today.

We need to have ability for the President to have the power to administer an interim paid disaster leave benefit, in the event that it is needed. Knowing that we are not going to be meeting again, by the schedule at least for a full Board meeting, until February, we want to give President Gee the ability to have that interim power. A full proposal will come back to the Board at the February meeting. There is an item to authorize an increase professional service contracts for our chemical and biomolecular engineering and chemistry building, for the Hopkins Hall mechanical systems improvement and for Mason Hall, for first and second floor renovations and to enter into construction on two of those projects, which would be Hopkins and Mason. There is a resolution to give interim authorization to the chairman of the Fiscal Affairs Committee, in consultation with the chairman of the Board to authorize design, construction management and or construction contracts and improve other related actions for tier one and tier two capital projects, and in discussions with Chairman Wexner, he is comfortable with that arrangement, knowing that discussing it with him, we could determine whether it needs to be taken to a special Board meeting to make that, so we do not take action on significant projects without involving everyone around the table.

There is a request for a long-term facilities lease, and an amended development agreement with SciTech to lease land to SciTech upon which SciTech would build a 4,580 square foot building on land south of the University property, at 1320 Kinnear Road for a term of 40 years. This is a very important project for our electroscience lab expansion and it has been in the works for a couple of years. In another item on the agenda, we would enter into a 20 year lease for the bulk of that square footage with SciTech for expansion of the electroscience lab. Also the College of Engineering will sublease that property for that particular purpose, and will cover all of the operating expenses. There will be some additional square footage in that expansion that will not be used actually by electro service lab, but it will give them space that they can lease out to other private corporations that are interested in having some space related and co-locating with the electroscience lab. The last item on the agenda is the authorization of a five year lease with a renewal option with Schmack Bioenergy for a biodigester facility located on OARDC and ATI campuses, and Dr. Moser was very much in support of that. It will have a lot of advantages to us on that particular campus. Mr. Chairman, those are all of the items that come to you from the Fiscal Affairs Committee.

Mr. Wexner:

Thank you very much. Questions or comments?

I am going to ask Jo Ann to make a report in Alex Shumate's absence. That report reflects on President Gee's performance review, his annual review. I thought it was good practice for a working group to manage that process outside of the chair. So in addition to Alex, Jo Ann Davidson, Janet Reid and Gil Cloyd, were the members of that working group and again in Alex's absence, if Jo Ann would report for the group.

PRESIDENT'S EVALUATION

Ms. Davidson:

Thank you Mr. Chairman. I would be happy to do that and I also want to acknowledge Gil's and Janet's involvement in helping through that particular process and certainly Chairman Shumate's leadership of that process.

There can be no question that at the times of challenge and uncertainty in the world at large and in our own back yards. Though we hear statistics and commentary that assure us the economy has begun to climb out of its downturn, we still bear witness every day to the turmoil that is still out there: double-digit unemployment and poverty rates, global environmental threats and a health crisis that includes but certainly is not limited to healthcare coverage debate.

As a land grant-University the largest and arguably the best land-grant University this nation has ever seen, with unmatched breadth of our academic programs, strength of our faculty, staff and students and reach that extends beyond our own neighborhood and across the planet, The Ohio State University is in a singular position to show the way through these times.

But this can happen only with effective leadership capable of steering this complex institution. We, as the Board of Trustees, feel particularly confident that we have exactly the right president in place to lead the University as the University in turn fulfills its promise. Charismatic, intelligent and bold, Gordon Gee brings the level of leadership necessary for Ohio State to achieve its full potential, to indeed move us "from excellence to eminence."

The Board has voiced and acted upon its desire to have a compensation program and philosophy that recognizes our unique complex challenges, benchmarks appropriately on a national scale for higher education, values experience and loyalty, and perhaps most importantly, rewards demonstrated performance.

Toward that end, Chairman Wexner convened a Compensation and Talent Development Working Group, and as he has mentioned today, Gil Cloyd, Janet Reid, Alex Shumate and I served on that working group with the expressed purpose of conducting President Gee's annual review. Mr. Shumate could not be here today, as the chairman mentioned, so I am pleased to deliver the report on behalf of the working group.

The review consisted of two parts: Trustee comments regarding the performance, collected by the working group through individual interviews with each Board member and a report on his achievements against the commitments in the Fiscal Year 2009 strategic roadmap.

The members of the Board had an opportunity yesterday in executive session, as we were discussing personnel issues, to review these comments, but I do want to report for the full group today, and for our guests who are with us.

The comments from Board members are without exception strongly positive regarding President Gee's performance. Even when asked specifically about deficiencies, and I must say here that there were no significant deficiencies noted, members' concerns generally were couched in aspirational terms.

In their overall assessments, members gave President Gee high marks for recruiting an outstanding leadership team, for his continued engagement with faculty, staff and students as well as with the Board, for building support with the external community and stakeholders, for results with the One University initiative, and for his work to get Project ONE plans finished and approved.

Members used terms such as "inspirational," "highly effective," and "a rare breed." We described him as "hard working, decisive leader," noted that he is "trusted and held in high regard by those who work for him" and called him a "great ambassador who is on top of every issue." More than once the working group heard "we are lucky to have him."

From the day he returned to campus for his second term as President, Gordon Gee has worked steadfastly for these visionary priorities: Forge One Ohio State University, Put Students First, Focus on Faculty Success, Recast our Research Agenda, Commit to our Communities, and Simplify University Systems and Processes.

Since that time he has expanded on those to form a strategic roadmap to success, setting down specific goals with the guidance and support of the Board and defining the tangible action needed to attain them. Let me discuss some specific areas of achievement for each of these goals.

The "One University" strategies including strategic planning, master planning, optimal organizational structure and trans-institutional strategies, are highlighted by the completion of a clearinghouse for university policies, the establishment of an integrated goal setting process across all members of the University's senior leadership, establishing and funding two collaborative centers for innovation and three innovation groups and realigning governance of the Medical Center.

The president is to be commended for the reassessment and successful launch of ProjectONE, which brought it in line with the overall strategic plan of the University. He also has brought forward the alignment of the arts and sciences colleges, a process that is well under way, in an effort that strengthens the very core of our academic programs. The reconfigured William Oxley Thompson Library has opened, as I mentioned before, on time and on budget and serves as a centerpiece of our academic mission.

"Students First with Academic Excellence and Access" experienced across the board improvements in several national rankings and to the quality of the student experience, which remains very high as indicated by retention rate and survey data. Work still needs to be done to find solutions to short and long-term financial aid plans and to improve achievement on some of the diversity targets that we just discussed a few minutes ago.

With President Gee's leadership and guidance, the University Senate has approved a plan for the conversion of the academic year from quarters to semesters, which will be a boom to students across the state. Thanks to sound fiscal leadership in the generous support of our statewide leaders, there has been no increase in tuition rates for three years running. Ohio State continues to recruit stronger and stronger freshman classes and that is one of the numerous factors that have helped bring steady improvements in many national academic rankings.

"Faculty and Staff Talent and Culture" remains a strength of the University. A faculty talent workgroup has been appointed and recommendations made, and new methods and metrics for measuring the competitiveness of faculty compensation have been created. There is a plan in place to modernize our Classified Civil Service Rules, and the set of these changes has been implemented. Important steps also have begun to improve the systemic approach to compliance issues without destroying efficiency.

The focus on talent begins at the very top. President Gee has recruited and on-boarded a strong senior leadership team, including some of the nation's top minds in student life, communications, planning, development, outreach and engagement, the arts and sciences, business and health care, among others. The transformation to a high performance culture continues to move forward within the University.

The University remains strong in terms of "Research Prominence," as funding has increased from FY08 levels. OSU researchers submitted nearly 450 proposals and have been awarded more than $76 million from federal stimulus funds. Total research expenditures at Ohio State have reached $703 million, ranking us at 7th among public universities, and 10th among all public and private universities. The University also is developing stronger relationships with the Department of Energy and the Department of Defense. As a matter of fact, just this week a $5 million grant was received from the U.S. Department of Energy for advanced energy research. Strong work has been completed to fund the Innovations Center and Groups, and the University has identified and submitted five OSU Centers of Excellence as a part of the University System of Ohio.

Much work is being carried out to develop research pipelines and partnerships, including the establishment of the Industry Liaison Office, master planning for SciTech and expanded partnership with Battelle – a partnership typified by the recruitment of Battelle's CEO, Jeff Wadsworth, to head the realigned Medical Center Board.

In terms of "Outreach and Collaboration," accolades were given to the new partnership with the State of Ohio and the University System of Ohio, including redefining Ohio State's role within them. Other areas within this strategy need further work, are still in process or are slated to begin in FY10. The conversion to a semester based academic calendar was an essential step in our continued role as the flagship University in the University System of Ohio.

President Gee certainly takes outreach to heart. He visited all 88 counties during his first summer on the job, and went back to 44 of those counties over the past year. He attends hundreds of events locally, regionally and nationally involving current or potential students, alumni and other dignitaries in which he serves as the best ambassador we could hope for – charismatic, energetic and intelligent while humble. He has laid the groundwork, including the recruitment of another prominent hire, Dr. William Brustein, for the expansion of the University's Global Strategy in meaningful ways with a small number of gateway countries, which have been outlined in the report today.

Finally, "Operating and Financial Soundness and Simplicity" has been a consistently strong area. Operating margins, days of cash on hand and other metrics have stayed at our better than target ranges. The University reported $94 million in savings from improved operating efficiencies last year and has maintained its double A2 credit rating, and fundraising has been consistent. Numerous offices have implemented simplification procedures in advance of University wide implementation.

With President Gee taking on his aggressive schedule of small targeted meetings with key alumni and friends, we are all making substantial progress on our fundraising, even in the turbulent economic times. And the inaugural Pelotonia event was a rousing success, and congratulations to those of you who participated, putting more than $4 million directly into the hands of the researchers at The James.

In light of the interviews with the Trustees, we find that President Gee's performance over the past year certainly merits an increase in salary. He has, however, already waived any right to such an increase. We recommend using the one-year cash equivalent of those funds that would have gone to salary increase be used by the University for student support. The faculty and staff of the University received an aggregate salary increase of 2.5%, we recommend that the same 2.5% be decided for the President, an equivalent of $20,053 on his current salary of $802,125. We further recommend that those funds be deposited into the Students First Students Now Scholarship Fund.

The bonus arrangement established for the President last year provides for a 35% bonus for achieving target-level performance, up to a maximum of 40% for exceeding target performance and up to an additional 10% for achievement of important multi-year goals.

It should be noted that the target bonus levels for senior leadership, as decided by the President, were adjusted downward 10% this year in recognition of the economic downturn. While the senior leadership group has waived its right to receive the bonuses, the performance process continued uninterrupted. The bonus amounts have been decided and those funds have been accumulated and will be donated to Students First, Students Now scholarship support. It is our recommendation that the same bonus adjustment methodology should be applied to the President. Further, we consider the President achieved target-level performance, meaning he has fully met all of our robust expectations for leading the University and achievement of goals. Accordingly, a bonus of 25% is recommended, which would be the 35% target bonus adjusted downward to 25% due to the recession.

His current base salary as I mentioned before is $802,125, and the applied bonus would yield $200,531.

We are all aware that President Gee has a $1 million personal commitment to the E. Gordon Gee Ohio State Scholarship Fund. We would like to acknowledge his decision to donate any bonus he would receive this year to that fund. He will receive his bonus in his payroll, donate the bonus in its entirety to his commitment and pay the taxes out of his own pocket.

I am very pleased to bring these recommendations forward on behalf of our working group, Mr. Chairman, and I invite your discussion. When we have reached a decision, a motion will be required for our approval of the President's compensation plan and if you would like to facilitate that discussion, Mr. Chairman, I would move that we accept these recommendations today.

Mr. Hicks:

First of all, thanks to Jo Ann, Gil, Alex and Janet for leading a very thorough and transparent process. I know that Alex spent a lot of time on the phone with me seeking feedback, and I am sure that everybody spent time with our colleagues on that, so thank you for doing it.

I could not agree more strongly in the conclusion, the very positive conclusion, and very, very much support the recommendation on pay and bonus. Thank you for making that recommendation.

I thought that each of the specifics that you mentioned was really, really noteworthy, and I am glad you took the time and called those all out. I also thought it was really interesting what former Governor Caperton said, 600,000 students have endured your presidency. That is really something! Of course we care a lot about the 61,000 that are here right now, and so we appreciate your leadership.

I thought of one of the things that as you went through those achievements, one by one, was interesting, was the overall sense of momentum that this place has right now. Each of the individual achievements I think is really noteworthy, but there is clearly a sense of momentum, there is a pace of progress that I think we have not seen in a long, long time. I think the impact that we are having on those 61,000 lives, and the impact that we are going to have and we are having every day on the Ohio economy really cannot be overstated, because we are making a difference and I think the difference that the University is making is greater today because you are here than it has been in the past. I really appreciate that.

The last comment I would say is, I thought it was interesting, a term that our chairman used in another setting earlier this week, which was the term of getting back your mojo. I think that clearly the University has a lot of mojo right now, and so thank you for leading our mojo, President Gee.

Judge Marbley:

Mr. Chairman, I wanted to echo the comments of Mr. Hicks, particularly thanking Ms. Davidson and Mr. Shumate's committee, it is almost like a job. I want to add a couple of comments. President Gee as we all know is true to the face of The Ohio State University, and a happy face I might add. We brought him in to address certain discrete issues that we felt needed to be addressed, and he did that with demonstrated excellence, that is characterized by his career. But that only tells half of the story, the real reason that we brought Gordon Gee back to Ohio State was so he could provide his own brand of leadership and vision. That was the overarching consideration. We were not rudderless, but we needed his leadership and thanks to many of the people on this Board, we went out and got him. The reason I wanted to comment was that while your litany of his accomplishments summarize what he has done, it cannot really capture the leadership that he has provided to all of us. We are just a much better University because of him, and because of the way he interacts with the Board, the way he interacts with faculty and staff and most importantly the way he interacts with and feels about his students.

I think it should be noted that the bonus, whatever we give him would not be enough because of what he does for this University, and he works tirelessly, but at the same time it is an indication of a job well done. It is a high watermark for the University and for Gordon. He has exceeded our expectations, and our expectations were high. So I think that it is important to note that he exceeded target, this is a generous bonus, but a well-deserved one. I just wanted to note that for the record. Thank you.

Mr. Jurgensen:

Gordon, in the spirit of Senn Delaney, which I know you are now an expert in, most of what you heard so far is what we appreciate, but there is also a lot of discussion about how you could be even more effective if... and I think, what I took out of the conversation we had about that, is just a couple of things. Number one, the bigger and more far flung and immense this place becomes, the harder it is for you to get yourself and the team to focus on those things that matter the most. It is just very easy to go down the road of a thousand great ideas, in particularly when one's brain works at the speed at which yours does. So I think encouraging you to really have the discipline of focus is something that would be of great use not only to yourself and the University, but also your management team and the faculty.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Also, when I got the calendar of your travels and events and how many places you showed up and how many things you did, and having spent some time in a CEO kind of job, I was blown away. It made me worry about, as a matter of fact, whether or not you run at too high of an rpm sometimes. While a lot of great things have been accomplished, there is, as you continually tell us, there is a lot more to do. Not only do you need to focus a little bit, but you need a little pace management I think in your life. I would encourage you to think about that.

Dr. Cloyd:

I would like to underline some aspect of process approach, Gordon, which I think is noteworthy. Speaker Davidson referenced the difficult external environment that we face right now. One of the things it is certainly getting a lot of notoriety, appropriately today, is the absence of accountability of leadership in various institutions. Over the last two years, since you have been here, you have been a proactive leader and supporter of having this institution's leadership be accountable, be performance driven, move to deliverables not just activities and what people will be held accountable for, and it is not just with your leadership team, but you have embraced it for yourself and you have told this Board "grade me on it, judge me on it, hold me accountable." While we are still in the evolution of what that full process is going to be, I think that aspect of the leadership change that you have brought, is one very appropriate. It is the kind of leadership approach that you want to have in a great academic institution like this, and I know it is going to pay The Ohio State University great benefits going forward. So I really applaud the leadership you have brought to this, and the public accountability that you have asked to be brought to you on important deliverables not just around activities.

President Gee:

Could I just say something? First of all the casket will be open and the showing will be at Schoedinger's, between six and nine tonight. I feel like I have been through my funeral here. Jo Ann, thank you for your kind words, and to the committee, I really do appreciate that. It was a very thoughtful process which our chairman put together, and I appreciate that. What I said earlier I really do say to all of you, when I came, I said it was like coming home now. I feel like it is truly my home in which I have a huge investment but it is an investment not only in terms of the University, but it is an investment in terms of friendship, opportunity, quality of life, the difference people have made in my life. You know my daughter and I were talking the other day about the fact that we know of no other place in which we could have been living when she had her accident and lost her husband, rather than here. Just the outreach and the love and support we received, so I want to acknowledge that. I want to acknowledge a great Board, I really do. I really appreciate the opportunity that I have to work with all of you, we have been on a huge learning curve together, and I think that we can, as we talk about the momentum of the University, it is heralded by the fact that our Board has taken this work seriously and are serious about being partners in this effort, and so I want to acknowledge you. I also want to acknowledge the personal relationship and friendship I have with all of you.

I want to just say this to my friends out here, this report that you just heard, although flattering to me is really a report of every one of us. I could go right down the line and talk about our provost, all of our senior vice presidents, about Martha Garland, way back in the back, I see you back there Martha, and so I hope that the report that the president received today, i.e. me, is really one in which you all take great pleasure in. I feel that it is a pleasure to work with such wonderful people, so I thank you for that report.

Upon motion of Ms. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Borrer, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing motion by unanimous roll call vote, cast by Trustees Leslie H. Wexner,

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Chairman, Jo Ann Davidson, John D. Ong, Douglas G. Borrer, Brian K. Hicks, Algenon L. Marbley, William G. Jurgensen, and Janet B. Reid.

Mr. Wexner:

Gordon, Thank you.

Before I ask Gordon to read the consent agenda, following up on what he said, I really appreciate not only Gordon and his contribution before Gordon One and now Gordon Two, but I really appreciate the work of the Board. Privately and publicly to also acknowledge how just the Board works, and working at working being more productive and so much is done in doing and thinking between meetings and it is just such a positive change over the last few years, and so I am likewise appreciative of the partnership with all of you and President Gee.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 2010-33

Synopsis: Approval of Resolutions in Memoriam is proposed.

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Board of Trustees approves the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey copies to the families of the deceased.

David Y. Chen

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 28, 2009, of David Y. Chen, Associate Professor Emeritus in the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures.

He is remembered with great fondness by the staff, faculty, and former students of the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University. He was one of the founding members of the Department and was regarded by all as an inspirational teacher, a fine colleague, and a good friend.

Professor Chen received his B.A. degree from National Taiwan University, his M.A. degree from Southern Illinois University, and his Ph.D. degree from Indiana University. He came to OSU in 1967 after teaching at Stanford and Yale. He was one of the first teachers nationally in a department of Asian languages and literature to have a degree in comparative literature. All can speak to his vast knowledge of Chinese literature and especially Chinese drama and theater, but he was equally cultured in his knowledge of western literature and drama. He established the strong tradition the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures has in the promotion of Asian performing arts.

Professor Chen's research interests were wide-ranging. He was a pioneer in introducing Lu Xun's poetry to an English-speaking public. But he seems to have been equally at home in classical literature and modern literature. He taught courses on Chinese opera and other theatrical forms, and he was responsible for collecting the Chinese opera costumes and musical instruments OSU possesses and which continue to be utilized by Professor Marjorie Chan, who offers a course in Chinese opera.

Dr. Chen was a dedicated and inspiring teacher. Undergraduates routinely praised his deep knowledge of his subject, how much they learned from him, and his availability to help when needed. His courses for undergraduates were among the most popular offered by the Department of East Asian Languages and Literatures. Professor Chen devoted a great deal of time and effort to teaching and guiding his graduate students to successful careers.

Professor Chen retired in 1994. In departmental matters, he was never petty or jealous. One must recognize him as one of the few who planted the seeds of and nurtured East Asian Studies at Ohio State.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Associate Professor Emeritus David Y. Chen its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

John E. Craine

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on August 29, 2009, of John E. Craine, Professor Emeritus in the Ohio State University Extension.

Professor Craine was born in 1924 in Continental, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree in 1950 and his Master of Science (agricultural education) degree in 1963, both from The Ohio State University.

John began his Extension career in Ohio in July of 1956 as the associate county extension agent in Darke County. In 1960 he became the county agricultural agent in Greene County, and held this appointment until he retired in early 1984 with the title of Professor Emeritus.

Professor Craine's contributions in providing Extension educational programs during his career proved that he was truly dedicated to Extension. He had a strong belief in the committee system that resulted in cattlemen establishing a commercial beef carcass contest, a sheep in-store lamb promotion program, the development of an agronomy demonstration program, and corn and soybean production clubs.

John also gave leadership to the development of a 33-mile bicycle trail in the Greene/Clark County area. His leadership in educational programs in rural zoning resulted in all Greene County townships adopting zoning by 1969. He received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents as well as the Excellence in Extension Award from Ohio.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus John E. Craine its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Suzanne Kidd Damarin

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on June 17, 2009, of Suzanne Kidd Damarin, Professor in the School of Educational Policy and Leadership.

Professor Damarin graduated cum laude from Wilson College with an A.B. degree in mathematics. She received an M.A. degree and did doctoral coursework in mathematics at Bryn Mawr College.

She received her Ph.D. degree in mathematics education from Ohio State in 1976. After serving as director of the Technology and Basic Skills Laboratory here, she joined the College of Education faculty in 1981 and rose to full professor in 1992. She was director of academic technology for the College from 2001-04 and interim associate dean for faculty from 2004-06. Between 1995 and 1997 she was an Ameritech scholar. She received a number of grants during her career including $1.2 million from the U.S. Department of Education for a "Technology Enhanced Teaching and Learning" implementation grant.

Dr. Damarin was an active member of the University community and served on numerous school, college and university committees. She was an impassioned proponent of equitable hiring practices at the University and in 1995 won the Distinguished Affirmative Action Award. She also won the Founders Award for Outstanding Faculty, the Success Story Award for Multicultural Teaching, the MaryAnn

Williams Leadership Award, and the Creative Programming Award demonstrating the range of her talents.

In an autobiography, Suzanne said throughout her career, her “teaching, research, and scholarship have been at the intersections of issues related to social diversity with issues in the fields of mathematics and technology.” Recent projects looked at how women who leave “the pipeline” get back in; the unintended consequences of information and communications technologies on academic practice; and the radical intra-actions of gender, mathematics, and technology.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Suzanne Kidd Damarin its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board’s heartfelt sympathy.

E. Leonard Jossem

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on August 29, 2009, of E. Leonard Jossem, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Physics.

Professor Jossem was associated with the OSU Physics Department for 53 years, serving as chairman from 1967-80. He received his B.S. degree from the City College of New York and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell University. During World War II he served as a staff scientist at Los Alamos National Lab and worked on the Manhattan Project.

His lifelong devotion to the teaching of physics ran the gamut from his frequent hands-on demonstration “The Physics of Toys” for elementary and high school students, to his 40 years of leading U.S. and international movements that molded today’s physics education and physics education research.

Among his numerous national leadership positions was service with the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council; membership on the U.S. National Advisory Committee on Education, making recommendations to the president and U.S. Congress; 24 years of service with the American Institute of Physics, serving on four committees and its governing board; as fellow and life member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and 61 years of leadership with the 11,000 member American Association of Physics Teachers (AAPT), serving as president from 1973-74.

Professor Jossem was a fellow of the American Physical Society; life fellow of the Royal London Royal Society of Arts, fellow of the London Institute of Physics, and member of The New York Academy of Sciences, the Indian Association of Physics Teachers, the American Society of Engineering Education, the American Educational Research Association, Sigma Pi Sigma, Groupe International de Recherche sur l’Enseignement de la Physique, Sigma Xi, and Phi Kappa Phi.

His other global efforts included service as U.S. Liaison with the International Union of Pure and Applied Physics (IUPAP), chair of the IUPAP International Commission of Physics Education, member of the Teaching of Science committee for the International Council of Scientific Unions, on UNESCO’s Physics Action Council, and the National Science Teachers Association International Relations Committee.

His numerous awards and honors include the IUPAP International Commission on Physics Education Medal of Excellence, the AAPT’s prestigious Melba Newell Phillips

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Award (given only 11 times), as well as AAPT's Distinguished Service Citation and its Orsted Medal, plus The Ohio State University's 2001 Distinguished Service Award.

From the early 1980s Len Jossem began building physics education collaborations with Chinese universities and was an honorary professor at Southeast University, Beijing Teachers College, and Beijing Normal University. Just six weeks prior to his death, he hosted a luncheon and dinner for visiting Chinese physics colleagues and their undergraduate students.

Professor Jossem was a gentleman whose wisdom inspired many. If there was a disagreement among colleagues, his suggestions were so well stated that participants felt good about changing their minds. His advice was always connected to reality and his demeanor crossed cultures.

Professor Jossem made generous financial contributions to The Ohio State University Physics Department through the years. The E. Leonard Jossem Physics Education Advancement Fund has been created for memorials in his honor, and it will provide support for OSU physics students working in physics education research.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus E. Leonard Jossem its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Jack R. Parrish

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on July 27, 2009, of Jack R. Parrish, Associate Professor Emeritus in the College of Dentistry.

Jack R. Parrish served his country in World War II as a member of the U.S. Navy. After graduating from The Ohio State University with a B.A. degree in 1949, he pursued a career in dentistry, receiving his D.D.S. degree from OSU's College of Dentistry in 1952. He maintained a dental practice in Bexley, Ohio, for 40 years. He was an excellent practitioner who was loved by his patients.

Dr. Parrish was very involved in his profession. He served as president of the Columbus Dental Society as well as secretary-treasurer of the Ohio Dental Association. He was employed by Ohio State's College of Dentistry from 1959 until 1983, when he retired with emeritus status.

Dr. Parrish was a dedicated and compassionate teacher. He was well liked by students, staff, and faculty. He enjoyed sharing his experience and knowledge of dentistry with the students and welcomed their questions. He always had a smile on his face and a pat on the back for students and coworkers.

His compassionate nature was evidenced by his mentoring for the Big Brothers Big Sisters organization. Through his efforts, the quality of life for several young men was improved. Dr. Parrish also was a generous benefactor, donating to many groups and charitable organizations. He never refused a request for financial assistance from a worthwhile group.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Associate Professor Emeritus Jack R. Parrish its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Ralph A. Porterfield

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on June 18, 2009, of Ralph A. Porterfield, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Animal Sciences.

Professor Porterfield spent his life in service; service to his country, to the dairymen of Maryland and Ohio, to students, 4-H participants and the public.

Following graduation from OSU, Porterfield was inducted into the United States Army and served three years during WWII. After his discharge, he became extension dairyman at the University of Maryland. While at Maryland he developed all of the dairy 4-H literature. He worked with the Purebred Cattle Association in developing statewide educational programs. Professor Porterfield trained the 4-H judging teams that won four national contests and took the 1947 winning team to York, England, placing second in that international contest. He coached the high individual in the contest.

Dr. Porterfield came to Ohio in 1951. He updated all of the 4-H Dairy literature and developed 10 4-H project books. He was responsible for Ohio Dairy Production Records program for six years. He had the responsibility for Extension dairy planning for the southeast quarter of Ohio and state responsibility for dairy herd management. He taught courses at OSU in selection and herd management. He made an important contribution as editor of the Ohio Herd Improvement Observer, and interpreted manuscripts of others and made them more readable while preserving their message and style.

Professor Porterfield was a nationally respected dairy judge. He judged state shows in six different states and two national shows. He coached the OSU Dairy Cattle Judging Team to second place in the National Contest in 1980. Nationally he had leadership roles in the American Dairy Science Association and National 4-H Dairy Conference.

A summary of his publications shows over 200 Ohio Herd Improvement Observer articles, five Extension and Research Bulletins, nine Extension circulars, 10 dairy guide leaflets and 18 Hoards Dairyman and Breed publication articles, not to mention the 11 books of inspirational poems he wrote in retirement. He had contributed to new knowledge by conducting and reporting several national and state research type surveys.

His personal traits made him effective with people. In farm consultations, he asked the probing questions that allowed him to diagnose problems and help the dairyman to more thoroughly understand his business. When teaching, he was always prepared and handled all questions in a way that made the questioner feel that he had made a contribution. He was completely dedicated to youth and, when judging projects in the show ring, always gave the participant a sense of accomplishment. He was cooperative and pleasant with co-workers, and was a family man who contributed to his church and community.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Professor Emeritus Ralph A. Porterfield its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to his family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

Phyllis Baker Rolfe

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on September 12, 2009, of Phyllis Baker Rolfe, Assistant Professor Emeritus in the School of Teaching and Learning.

She received her B.S.Ed. degree from Wittenberg University and M.A. degree from The Ohio State University. Her 1962 thesis, 'The significance of school entrance age on reading success,' can still be found at the University's Book Depository. She was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, Pi Lambda Theta, and Phi Delta Kappa honoraries.

An educator for over 39 years, Professor Rolfe taught in the Grandview school system for 25 years before coming to OSU in 1963. She taught the third/fourth grade rotation in the University School, an experimental K-12 program within the College of Education, located in Ramseyer Hall. She was an Ohio State faculty member for 14 years.

The K-12 Experimental Research part of the University School linked teaching, research, and service at a time when very little research was interwoven with the actual practice of teaching. The University School students were recruited and selected to reflect the same demographic data in the Columbus Public Schools. Thus, experimental teaching and learning strategies were explored, data gathered, and recommendations synthesized from the data. Students had a phase-in program during their kindergarten years. All groups stayed together through the entire K-12 program.

Each teacher established a grade specific parent/teacher working network. Parents were actively exploring with Professor Rolfe to maximize the wide variety of skills needed to exceed in our evolving society. After the University School closed in 1968, she became an assistant professor in the College of Education and taught children's literature and math methods courses. She also served as the coordinator of the student teaching program for several years.

She retired from Ohio State in 1977, and spent her retirement living in Sarasota, Florida, and traveling in the U.S. and Europe.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Assistant Professor Emeritus Phyllis Baker Rolfe its deepest sympathy and sense of understanding of their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to her family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

The determination of whether and what principal amounts and maturities, if any, of such obligations are to be refunded with the proceeds of the Series 2009 A Bonds, and whether any such refunding shall be a current refunding or a refunding in advance of the respective maturities of the Refunded Obligations, shall be made by the Treasurer in the exercise of his reasonable discretion, and the Treasurer is hereby directed and authorized to make such determination in the Certificate of Award. Upon such determination by the Treasurer, the Refunded Obligations shall consist of such Obligations of the University as are actually refunded, whether by a current refunding or advance refunding. The determination of the Treasurer set forth in the Certificate of Award and the written direction of the Treasurer to the Trustee as to deposit of proceeds of the Series 2009 A Bonds shall be conclusive evidence that the determination of the Treasurer with respect to which Obligations are to constitute Refunded Obligations is authorized.

(b) Form and Numbering. The Series 2009 A Bonds shall be issued only as fully registered bonds. (e) Delivery and Execution. The Treasurer is hereby authorized to make the necessary arrangements with the Original Purchaser to establish the date, location, procedures and conditions for the delivery of the Series 2009 A Bonds to the Original Purchaser and to take all steps as necessary to effect due execution, authentication, sale and delivery of the Series 2009 A Bonds to the Original Purchaser under the terms of this Resolution. The Series 2009 A Bonds shall be signed by an Authorized Officer (provided any such signature may be a facsimile) and may bear the corporate seal of the University or a facsimile thereof.

(f) Interest and Maturities.

(i) The Series 2009 A Bonds shall bear interest on the unpaid principal amount thereof from the most recent date to which interest has been paid or duly provided for or, if no interest has been paid or provided for, from their date, with interest payable at their maturity at the percentage rate or rates per annum and calculated on the basis set forth in the Certificate of Award. Such rate or rates shall in no event produce an interest rate for the Series 2009 A Bonds in excess of eight percent (8.00%) per annum.

(ii) The Series 2009 A Bonds shall mature not later than the latest date of the Refunded Obligations as provided for in the Certificate of Award.

(iii) The Series 2009 A Bonds, if so provided for in the Certificate of Award, shall be subject to optional redemption at the option of the University prior to stated maturity, in whole or in part, but if in part, in installments of $5,000 principal amount of such Series 2009 A Bond or integral multiples thereof, in accordance with the terms, conditions, redemption prices and on the dates set forth in the Certificate of Award. Notice of call for and other terms and provisions governing redemption of the Series 2009 A Bonds shall be given in the manner provided in the Indenture. At no time shall the redemption price on any Series 2009 A Bonds, exclusive of accrued interest, exceed one hundred two percent (102%) of the principal amount of such Bond to be redeemed, plus accrued interest to the date of redemption.

(g) Security. As provided in the Restated Trust Indenture as supplemented by the Series 2009 A Supplement, there is hereby pledged to the security of the Series 2009 A Bonds and for the payment of the Debt Service Charges on the Series 2009 A Bonds, (i) the gross amount of General Receipts of the University (subject to the provisions for the partial release of a pledge of General Receipts contained in Section 4.10 of the Original Indenture), and (ii) the monies contained in the Special Funds, but excluding any Bond Reserve Account. Anything else to the contrary in the Indenture or this Resolution notwithstanding, the Series 2009 A Bonds shall not have access to, any claim upon or be secured by the Bond Reserve Account or the Note Program Account.

The pledge of General Receipts in the immediately preceding paragraph shall be on a parity with expenses, claims and payments relating to other obligations issued under the Original Indenture or Indenture which are not otherwise subordinate and in priority to all other expenses, claims and payments of the University. In accordance with the Act, all General Receipts or portions thereof are immediately subject to the lien of the pledge upon receipt thereof by the University. Furthermore, the Pledge contained herein and the Restated Trust Indenture is not in derogation of the pledge contained in the Original

Indenture, any supplement thereto, any related Series Resolution or any Bond proceedings with respect to any Obligations currently outstanding, it being the intention of the University that all such Obligations outstanding upon the execution and delivery of the Series 2009 A Supplement shall be on a parity basis within the meaning of the Restated Trust Indenture, equally and ratably secured by the pledge of General Receipts of the University herein and therein contained.

For the further security of the Series 2009 A Bonds, and any other Obligations, the University hereby covenants with the Holders and the Trustee that so long as any Series 2009 A Bonds or any other Obligations are outstanding, the University shall fix, make, adjust and collect fees, rates, rentals, charges, and other items of General Receipts, as will produce at all times General Receipts sufficient (i) to pay Debt Service Charges when due, (ii) together with other monies lawfully available therefor, to pay all costs and expenses required to be paid under the Bond proceedings, and (iii) together with other monies lawfully available therefor, to pay all other costs and expenses necessary for the proper maintenance and successful and continuous operation of the University.

- (h) Payment and Places of Payment. The principal of and any redemption premium on any Series 2009 A Bond when due shall be payable to the registered holder as provided in the Indenture.
- (i) Book Entry. The Series 2009 A Bonds may be issued to a Depository for holding in a Book Entry System and may be withdrawn from the Depository, all as further provided in the Series 2009 A Supplement.
- (j) Remarketing of Variable Rate Bonds in Lieu of Refunding. In lieu of refunding one or more of the Variable Rate Bonds or any portion thereof, such Variable Rate Bonds or portions thereof may be converted to a fixed rate mode and remarketed in accordance with their terms as may be amended hereby. Notwithstanding any provision in any resolution of this Board to the contrary, (a) the Variable Rate Bonds, the Variable Rate Bond Remarketing Agreements and the Variable Rate Bond Supplements may be amended to provide that, from and after the date on which the requisite Bondholder consents pursuant to the Indenture are obtained, the Remarketed Bonds may be remarketed at a premium, rather than at par, (b) the Variable Rate Bonds may be remarketed in either serial or term maturities, and (c) the excess proceeds resulting from such remarketing shall be applied, first, to the payment of costs associated with the remarketing of the Remarketed Bonds until such costs are paid in full, and second, to such other purposes permitted by the Act.

The determinations of whether and what principal amounts, if any, of the Variable Rate Bonds shall be Remarketed Bonds, whether such remarketing shall be made at a premium, whether and to what extent amendments to the Variable Rate Bonds, the Variable Rate Bond Remarketing Agreements, and the Variable Rate Bond Supplements are required, the use of excess proceeds resulting from such remarketing and not needed to pay costs associated with such remarketing, and whether any of the foregoing shall be advantageous to the University, shall be made by the Treasurer in the exercise of his reasonable discretion, and the Treasurer is hereby directed and authorized to make such determinations in the Series 2009 A Supplement. Upon such determinations by the Treasurer, the Remarketed Bonds shall consist of such Variable Rate Bonds as are actually remarketed in a fixed rate mode. Any of the foregoing determinations of the Treasurer set forth in the Series 2009 A Supplement shall be conclusive evidence that such determinations are authorized.

The use and distribution of an Official Statement relating to the Series 2009 A Bonds by the Original Purchasers is hereby approved, authorized and ratified. Each Authorized Officer is authorized by written certificate to deem such Official Statement final on behalf of the University for purposes of Securities Exchange Commission Rule 15c2-12, except for such omissions therefrom as may be permitted by such Rule. The final Official Statement, substantially in the form of the preliminary Official Statement, shall be executed by an Authorized Officer on behalf of the University with any modifications, changes and supplements necessary or desirable for the purposes thereof which the Authorized Officer shall approve. The University further covenants that it will take all actions required to maintain the exclusion from gross income for purposes of federal income taxation of interest on the Series 2009 A Bonds, and will not take, nor permit to be taken, any actions which would adversely affect such exclusion under the provisions of the Code that apply to the Series 2009 A Bonds; and an Authorized Officer and other appropriate officers are hereby authorized to take such actions and give such certifications as may be appropriate to assure such exclusion from gross income of interest on the Series 2009 A Bonds.

Section 7. Call for Redemption of Refunded Obligations.

The University hereby determines that the Refunded Obligations shall be called for optional redemption at the earliest date on which each of them may be redeemed pursuant to the Original Indenture or the Indenture, as applicable, and that the execution and delivery by the University of the Series 2009 A Supplement shall constitute the irrevocable direction to the Trustee to send such notices as are required by such indenture to effect such call for redemption. Classified Civil Service (CCS)
And the Rules Changes Process
The Ohio State University

Classified Civil Service Staff at Ohio State

According to OHR's Employee Statistical Summary for autumn 2008, Ohio State had 39, 987 employees; 5,493 were in the classified civil service. All CCS positions are listed on the Office of Human Resources Job Classifications web site at <http://hr.osu.edu/statistics/titledck/index.aspx>.

CCS employees who are certified in their positions (successfully completed probationary period) are entitled to certain job-related property rights. These property rights require that appropriate due process measures are in place, with an adequate appeals process, before an employee can be demoted, subjected to job abolishment or layoff, placed on leave for disciplinary purposes, suspended for a number of days, or discharged for appropriate cause.

Classified Civil Service Rules

CCS Rules provide the framework for classified civil service employment at Ohio State; further detail is provided through Office of Human Resources policies. Rules are subject to adoption by the Board of Trustees and become a part of the Ohio Administrative Code (section 3335).

CCS Rules Amendment Process

In December 2006, the Ohio General Assembly passed Substitute House Bill 187, an effort to reform Ohio's laws governing civil service employment. This Act gives our Board of Trustees the authority to amend provisions of CCS rules governing Ohio State employees. All CCS Rules are promulgated in accordance with section 111.15 of the Ohio Revised Code.

The Office of Human Resources (OHR) has a strong commitment to an inclusive and transparent rules change process. The amendment process for CCS rule changes takes at least 90 days to develop and refine; after the rules are finalized, university policies and practice documents must be updated to reflect the changes in the rules. The process OHR is following for these rules amendments is as follows:

1. Solicit input and advice from CCS staff through the CCS Modernization Advisory Group, and from all CCS staff through e-mail updates.
2. Solicit input and advice from the Human Resource Policy Committee, campus senior HR professionals, and content experts in the Office of Human Resources.
3. Draft rules with input and process goals in mind.
4. Solicit feedback and advice from CCS Modernization Advisory Group, Human Resource Policy Committee, and senior HR professionals.
5. Refine rules and review with Office of Legal Affairs.
6. Share rules with Communications Workers of America (required by contract 75 days in advance of public comment period).
7. Publish rules on OHR website for 30 days, soliciting feedback from CCS staff, managers of CCS staff, campus HR professionals, and the general campus community. Conduct four open forums during the 30 day period to review key changes and listen to feedback.
8. Refine the proposed rules as appropriate, based on input received during the public comment period. Solicit additional feedback and advice from various populations as needed.
9. Review final rules with the Office of Legal Affairs.

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

10. Submit to the Board of Trustees for approval; after approval, the Board Office submits to the Legislative Services Commission of Ohio.
11. Update policies and practices as appropriate.
12. Implement rules, policies, and practice changes on the effective date.
13. Provide training and education on new rules, policies, and practices.

Goals in CCS Rules Amendment Process

Our goals in the CCS Rules Amendment Process are to:

- Support Ohio State's move to a high performance culture
- Support Ohio State's six strategic goals, with special attention to goal of streamlining and efficiency.
- Ensure consistency with our institutional values
- Streamline CCS processes

 - (2) ~~Employees appointed from eligible lists who have not achieved certified status;~~
 - (3) ~~Employees who have achieved certified status.~~
- (D) ~~Within each primary appointment category and within each category with respect to the status of certification, employees shall be laid off in the inverse order of their retention points as determined by the application of rule 3335-81-06 of the Administrative Code.~~

3335-81-04 Order of layoff.

The order of any layoff shall be determined first by certification status, then by a combination of the following elements: skills and abilities applicable to the department's needs, documented performance, and length of OSU employment.

3335-81-05 Displacement procedures.

- (A) ~~An employee who was laid off or whose position was abolished shall fill a vacancy or displace the employee with the fewest retention points in the order of the following classifications, provided in all instances that the employee meets the qualifications of that position:~~
- (1) ~~Within the employee's classification;~~
 - (2) ~~Within the next lower classification and each successively lower classification in the employee's classification series;~~
 - (3) ~~Within a classification that has the same or similar duties as the classification from which the employee was laid off;~~
 - (4) ~~Within the classification the employee held immediately prior to holding the classification from which the employee was laid off, provided:~~
 - (a) ~~That the previous classification is of a lower or equivalent classification;~~
 - (b) ~~The employee had achieved certified status in the former classification;~~
 - (c) ~~The employee held the classification not more than five years prior to the date on which the employee was laid off; and~~

- ~~(d) That in the event the employee's former position no longer exists in the classification held by the employee immediately prior to the present classification, or in the event that the laid off employee is prevented from displacing into the previously held classification because of a failure to meet the minimum qualifications of the previously held classification, then such employee may displace the employee with the fewest retention points in the next previously held classification, and in successive previously held classifications, provided that the requirements set forth in paragraphs (A)(4)(a) to (A)(4)(d) of this rule are met.~~
- ~~(5) If, after paragraphs (A)(1) to (A)(4) of this rule have occurred and no vacancies are available or the employee is unable to displace due to having the fewest retention points in the classification or lack of qualifications, then the employee will be laid off.~~
- ~~(B) If, after exercising displacement, an employee is subject to further layoff action, displacement shall be in accordance with the original classification from which the employee was laid off.~~
- ~~(C) Employees who elect to use displacement shall displace only those employees with fewer retention points and who are in the same or lower priority of layoff as set forth by rule 3335-81-04 of the Administrative Code.~~
- ~~(D) Employees shall notify the office of human resources of their intention to exercise displacement within five days after receipt of notice of layoff.~~
- ~~(E) Any order of displacement as set forth by this rule notwithstanding, no employee shall displace another employee whose position or classification requires special minimum qualifications, as established by a position description, parenthetical sub title, classification specifications, or by bona fide occupation qualifications, unless the employee desiring to displace another employee possesses the requisite minimum qualifications for the position.~~
- ~~(F) If, as a result of layoff or displacement, an employee is serving in a new classification, such employee shall be paid according to the pay range assigned to the new classification that most nearly corresponds to the compensation received by that employee as of the date of layoff or displacement.~~

3335-81-05 Displacement procedures.

- ~~(A) An employee who was laid-off or whose position was abolished shall fill a vacancy or displace the employee with the fewest retention points provided in all instances that the employee meets the qualifications of that position, can perform the required duties, and has met expectations in the last three annual performance reviews. Employees who have not met performance expectations in the last three annual performance reviews and who have been given specific steps for improvement, or who are on major corrective action do not have displacement rights. Displacements will occur as follows:~~
 - ~~(1) Within the employee's classification.~~

- (2) Within the next lower classification and each successively lower classification in the employee's classification series.
 - (3) Within a classification that has the same or similar duties as the classification from which the employee was laid off.
 - (4) Within the classification the employee held immediately prior to holding the classification from which the employee was laid off, provided:
 - (a) That the previous classification is of a lower or equivalent classification;
 - (b) The employee had achieved certified status in the former classification;
 - (c) The employee can perform the minimum required functions of the position at the time of placement.
 - (5) If no vacancies are available or the employee is unable to displace due to having the fewest retention points in the classification series or lack of qualifications, then the employee will be laid off.
- (B) If, after exercising displacement, an employee is subject to further layoff action, displacement shall be in accordance with the current or most recent certified classification, at the discretion of the office of human resources.
 - (C) Employees who elect to exercise displacement shall displace only those employees with fewer retention points. If an employee exercises displacement rights, the office of human resources shall first determine if a vacancy exists. If a vacancy exists and the employee meets the qualifications of the position, can perform the required duties, and has met expectations in the last three annual performance reviews, the employee will be placed in the vacancy. If no vacancy exists, displacement will occur in accordance with 3335-81-05 of the Administrative Code.
 - (D) Employees shall notify the office of human resources of their intention to exercise displacement within ten days after receipt of notice of layoff.
 - (E) No employee shall displace another employee whose position requires special minimum qualifications, as established by a position description, classification specifications, or by bona fide occupation qualifications, unless the employee desiring to displace another employee possesses the requisite minimum qualifications for the position.
 - (F) If, as a result of layoff or displacement, an employee is serving in a new position or classification, such employee shall be paid according to the target hiring range assigned to the new position or classification.
 - (G) If an employee declines placement into a vacant position for any reason, their displacement rights cease immediately; this provision may be waived at the discretion of the office of human resources.
 - (H) If for any reason an employee declines to exercise their displacement rights into a position to which they are entitled, their displacement rights cease immediately.

3335-81-06 Retention points.

- (A) The university shall compute retention points for each employee in a classification that is the subject of a layoff or displacement.
- (B) Each employee shall be assigned retention points for length of continuous service by awarding one retention point for each five hundred twenty hours (excluding overtime hours) of continuous service.
- (C) In the event two or more employees have identical retention points as computed by this rule, the employee having the shortest period of continuous service shall be laid off or displaced first. If two or more employees have identical retention points and identical dates of continuous service from which no break in service has occurred, ~~the date on which application for employment was submitted will determine the priority of layoff, priority being awarded to the earliest date.~~ In the event a tie is still unresolved, the office of human resources shall determine the order of layoff by using a reasonable basis for such determination to include skills and abilities applicable to the department's needs and documented performance.
- (D) "Continuous service" is that service unbroken by a resignation or termination from the university ~~or other state of Ohio civil service employment.~~ Continuous service for the purposes of retention points includes:
 - (1) When an employee is reinstated after a resignation or termination to the same position within twelve months, full credit for continuous service will be given for the periods of actual employment;
 - (2) ~~A transfer from one state department or agency to another or to or from the university does not constitute a break in continuous service for purposes of computing continuous service retention points;~~
 - ~~(3)~~ An authorized leave of absence does not constitute a break in service, and continuous service retention points shall continue to accumulate during the term of a leave of absence provided the employee returns to ~~state or~~ the university ~~service~~ following the leave;
 - ~~(4)~~(3) When a laid off employee is reinstated or re-employed within one year from the date of layoff, the employee shall accrue continuous service retention points during the time spent on layoff and continuous service shall remain unbroken; and
 - ~~(5)~~(4) A disability separation does not constitute a break in service. However, continuous service retention points shall not accumulate during the period of separation.
- (E) Service as a student-employee, graduate associate or temporary employee shall not be credited as service for purposes of determining continuous service retention points.

3335-81-07 Jurisdiction.

- (A) ~~For purposes of implementing layoff, displacement, reinstatement, and re-employment procedures, the Ohio state university main campus, each extended~~

~~campus and the Ohio agricultural research and development center are each separate jurisdictions.~~

- ~~(B) Notwithstanding paragraph (A) of this rule, employees who are laid off for a temporary period of up to one hundred ten consecutive days and employees who have specialized skills, knowledge or training necessary for the performance of the duties of their position, shall, in the event of layoff, constitute subjurisdictions of the main campus jurisdiction consisting of all employees who are laid off for a period of up to one hundred ten consecutive days or who have the same specialized skills, knowledge or training necessary for the performance of the duties of their positions, whichever subjurisdiction is applicable. Such employees shall be limited in the exercise of the layoff, displacement and reinstatement procedures to their subjurisdiction.~~
- ~~(C) Employees who are not within either of the subjurisdictions established by paragraph (B) of this rule cannot use the displacement or reinstatement procedures with respect to positions determined to be in either of such subjurisdictions.~~
- ~~(D) In addition to the notification requirements of rule 3335-81-09 of the Administrative Code, the notice provided to employees who are in the subjurisdictions established in paragraph (B) of this rule shall also set forth the limits of the subjurisdiction within which the employee may exercise displacement or reinstatement procedures.~~

3335-81-07 Jurisdiction.

- (A) The order of layoff and displacement shall apply within layoff jurisdictions. Each of the layoff jurisdictions, as defined in this section, is autonomous, and layoff, displacement, reinstatement, and reemployment procedures shall apply only within the jurisdiction affected by the layoff.
- (B) Layoff jurisdictions at the Ohio state university are as follows:
- (1) Columbus campus, excluding the medical center;
 - (2) Columbus campus – medical center;
 - (3) Lima campus;
 - (4) OARDC and ATI;

 - (6) Mansfield campus;

 - (9) Units located outside of Ohio are each their own jurisdictions.
- (C) The layoff jurisdictions described in paragraph (B) of this rule do not apply to employees who are laid off for a temporary period of up to one hundred and ten consecutive days.

3335-81-08 Notice of layoff and displacement.

- (A) The university shall give advance written notice of layoff or displacement to each employee subject to such layoff or displacement. Such written notification shall be issued by the office of human resources and hand delivered to the employee by the employee's supervisor and the unit's human resource representative or human resource designee at work or mailed by certified mail to the last address on file with the college/department. If the notification is hand delivered, it shall be given at least fourteen calendar days before layoff and the day of hand delivery shall be the first day of the fourteen-day period. If the notification is mailed, it shall be mailed at least seventeen calendar days before layoff and the day of mailing shall be the first day of the seventeen-day period.
- (B) Each notice of layoff or displacement shall contain the following information:
- (1) The reason for layoff or displacement;
 - (2) The effective date of layoff or displacement ~~becomes effective; as follows:~~
 - (a) If the employee chooses displacement and a vacancy exists, the effective date is within a reasonable period of time to allow for a move to the position, not to exceed thirty days;
 - (b) If the employee chooses displacement and no vacancy exists, the effective date of the displacement or layoff will not exceed sixty days;

 - (7) Any additional information with respect to the limits of the applicable layoff jurisdiction of the employee ~~if required as specified~~ by rule 3335-81-07 of the Administrative Code;
 - (8) ~~A statement that, upon request by the employee, the office of human resources will make available a copy of the displacement and/or reinstatement procedures and/or office of human resources web site address with this information.~~

3335-81-00 Recall lists; reinstatement.

- (A) ~~The office of human resources shall prepare a recall list for each classification in which employees are laid off. The names of all laid-off or displaced certified status employees shall appear on such lists in descending order of retention points, and the names of all provisional laid off or displaced employees shall appear on a second list in descending order of retention points. Except as provided in paragraph (C) of this rule, laid off employees shall be placed on recall lists for each classification within the employee's classification series that is equal to or lower than the classification in which the employee was employed at the time of layoff.~~
- (B) ~~An employee's name shall remain on the appropriate recall list or lists for a period of one year beginning from the date the employee was first laid off or displaced from the original classification. During this period, colleges/departments may not hire, promote or transfer into any classification for which a recall list exists until all persons on the recall list applicable to that classification are reinstated or decline the offered position.~~
- (C) ~~An employee who does not exercise the option to displace, as provided by rule 3335-81-05 of the Administrative Code, shall be listed on the recall list for the classification from which the employee was laid off or displaced but shall not be listed for reinstatement in other classifications in the employee's classification series that are equal to or lower than the classification from which the employee was laid off or displaced.~~
- (D) ~~Each employee recalled from layoff shall be notified by certified mail of the offer of reinstatement. The notification of reinstatement shall include a statement that refusal of reinstatement shall result in removal of the employee's name from the recall list. Each recalled employee shall have ten calendar days from the date of the notification in which to respond to the notice or return to work. In the absence of extenuating circumstances (e.g., illness, injury, absence from city or state or other good cause as determined by the office of human resources) that prevented the employee from responding or returning to work within the foregoing time limit, the university may grant a reasonable extension, not to exceed sixty days. In the absence of extenuating circumstances, an individual not accepting or declining reinstatement within ten days shall be deemed to have declined reinstatement for purposes of removal from the recall list.~~
- (E) ~~Notification of recall may be delivered to an employee by other than certified mail if circumstances created by temporary layoffs and/or emergency situations dictate otherwise. Regardless of the method of delivery of the recall notification, the period in which to return to work shall begin with the date of receipt of such notification.~~
- (F) ~~An employee who declines reinstatement to a classification lower in the classification series than the classification from which the employee was laid off or displaced shall be removed from the recall list applicable to the offered classification and any recall lists for classifications lower in the classification series. The employee shall thereafter be eligible only for reinstatement to a classification higher than the declined reinstatement classification, up to and including the classification from which the employee was laid off or displaced.~~

- (A) Certified employees who are laid off from the university can exercise their reinstatement rights within their jurisdiction by written notification to the office of human resources if a position is posted in the classification from which they were laid off. If more than one employee indicates reinstatement interest in a position, the employing unit shall consider skills and abilities applicable to the employing unit's needs and documented performance.
- (B) An employee may exercise reinstatement rights for twelve months beginning from the layoff effective date. During this period, jurisdictional units may not hire or promote into any classification for which a laid off employee has indicated an interest in reinstatement; this does not apply to reclassifications. Reinstatement is contingent upon successful pre-employment screening.
- (C) A laid off employee must notify the office of human resources of their reinstatement interest before the posting end date.
- (D) An affected employee's reinstatement rights will cease immediately upon the earliest of:
- (1) Securing another OSU position;

- (E) In the event that the university offers a severance benefit, and the employee accepts the benefit, reinstatement rights will cease.

- (G) Employees who have completed their probationary periods at the time of layoff are not required to serve probationary periods when they are reinstated to the same classification.
- (H) Employees who are certified in a classification and are serving a probationary period in a new classification at the time of layoff must serve a new probationary period upon reinstatement.

In

October 29, 2009 meeting, Board of Trustees

- ~~(B) An employee who is laid off during a leave of absence may accept or refuse an offer of reinstatement while the leave is still active. If the employee accepts the offer of reinstatement, the employee's leave shall be terminated. If the employee refuses the offer, the remainder of the one year reinstatement time limit is postponed until the regular termination of leave date.~~

AUTHORIZATION FOR THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY TO AMEND AND RESTATE THE SUPPLEMENTAL RETIREMENT 403(B) ANNUITY PLAN

SUMMARY

Background on the Plan:

The Ohio State University Supplemental Retirement 403(b) Annuity Plan is a voluntary plan designed to assist faculty and staff in supplementing their retirement savings. It allows employees to contribute a portion of their compensation to the Plan and exclude the contribution from taxable income for federal and state tax purposes. In addition, the University is permitted to make employer contributions to the Plan.

Each participant may choose to invest his or her account balances in one of a number of investment alternatives. Those investment alternatives currently are provided by 13 different vendors. Over 11,000 faculty and staff contribute to the Plan.

The Plan is subject to rules described in Section 403(b) of the Internal Revenue Code. In July 2007, the Internal Revenue Service issued final regulations for 403(b) plans. The final regulations are the first comprehensive revisions to the tax rules affecting 403(b) plans since 1964. The final regulations generally became effective January 1, 2009.

Under these regulations, the IRS requires that there be a written plan containing all material terms and conditions for eligibility, benefits, limitations, contracts available under the plan, time and form of distribution, and any optional provisions (such as loans and hardship distributions). The written plan document must be in place by December 31, 2009. Although the University has a written plan document, some modifications are necessary to comply with these final regulations. Therefore, the University is amending and restating its current Plan.

Purpose of the Resolution:

As was the case with previous Board authorization regarding the Plan, this resolution clarifies the authority of the Vice President for Human Resources, in consultation with the Office of Legal Affairs, to make the necessary or advisable changes to the Plan and authorizes the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance to sign the amended and restated Plan and any other documents needed to carry out the resolution. Outside counsel, the Office of Human Resources and the Office of Legal Affairs are working to complete the plan by the end of the calendar year. Because the Board does not meet again until February 2010, the resolution adds a provision for the Executive Vice President and Provost and the Chair of the Board's Fiscal Affairs Committee to review the revised Plan, before it is signed by the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance.

Paid Disaster Leave Benefit – Supplemental Information

The Ohio State University Office of Human Resources is preparing a Paid Disaster Leave Benefit Plan to be available when a pandemic or other major disaster has been declared and the Disaster Preparedness and University State of Emergency Policy has been activated.

Other large universities have experienced floods, hurricanes and other disasters, and the potential of a widespread pandemic is also present. The first priority is to retain essential personnel at work, and to determine all possible methods to maintain productivity of other faculty and staff (alternate locations, telecommuting, and different job responsibilities, as examples).

For those who cannot work after any and all assignable work is exhausted, and for a disaster that may last a period of a few weeks or longer, a program of maintaining some level of compensation and benefits support is preferable to widespread layoffs, loss of talent to other employers, and payment of unemployment benefits.

The program is intended to:

- Apply only to a true disaster; short term weather closings (e.g. snow emergencies) would not be included
- Be provided for regular staff and faculty who are prevented from any and all assignable work due to the declared university disaster; assigned work may be completely different than normal responsibilities
- Emphasize identifying other means to work as the top priority, through such means as telecommuting, alternate locations, etc.; compensation support is not an entitlement
- Include the utilization of the faculty or staff member's accrued leave balance in combination with university sponsored compensation;
- Provide financial support, which may be at a reduced level of compensation for those without assignable work

Faculty and regular staff who are unable to work due to reasons unrelated to the pandemic or disaster would not be eligible.

Next Steps: This resolution is to provide interim authority to the president of the University; a group is working to identify specific program parameters and will return to next meeting of the Board of Trustees with a proposal approved by University leadership.

Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering and Chemistry Building

Requesting Agency(s): CHEMISTRY

ASF/0 GSF Age:

Description/Scope:

This project will construct a highly efficient, functional and collaborative facility with appointments that support modern chemical and biomolecular sciences and will provide space for the Departments of Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering and Chemistry. The facility will be approximately 198,000 SF and include research laboratories, laboratory support spaces, classrooms, and offices.

The new facility will be located on the sites currently occupied by Boyd Laboratory, Haskett Hall, Johnston Laboratory and the Aviation Building. The condition and functionality assessments of these buildings, completed as part of the One Ohio State Framework Study, indicated suboptimal outcomes of repurposing and a low return on additional investments in these facilities. The selected site addresses $22M in deferred maintenance; reduces operating costs; creates better alignment with a science and engineering neighborhood; provides more optimal future adjacencies; and supports the "no net new academic space" principle. The relocation of building occupants, demolition and site preparation will be accomplished as a separately-funded project.

Approval is requested to enter into professional services contracts to begin the design for the project. Design is currently estimated at $18.1M with a conceptual total project budget estimated at $126.0M. The total project budget will be updated at the conclusion of design and when construction approval is requested.

Description/Scope:

This project will replace mechanical systems throughout Hopkins Hall, including HVAC, radiant piping, fire alarm, and HVAC controls. The oldest wing of Hopkins Hall does not have any HVAC systems and these will be added as part of this project. This project will address approximately $1.2M in deferred maintenance.

The building has several tenants and programs, primarily in the College of the Arts. Project work will be phased as some of these programs must remain in the building and are unable to relocate during construction and installation of the mechanical systems.

As a separate project, the building is having the window glazing system replaced. The professional services team for this project will need to coordinate with the window glazing project regarding the perimeter hot water radiation and ceiling systems.

LONG-TERM FACILITIES LEASE AND AMENDED DEVELOPMENT AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY AND SCITECH
COLUMBUS, OHIO

Description of Proposed Project

SciTech, a not for profit corporation, has a current Development Agreement with The Ohio State University to manage and develop research facilities on the University's campus and now desires to expand the land leased to SciTech from the University on which to design and construct a building adjacent to and supporting other functions presently located at 1320 Kinnear Road, in Columbus, Ohio. The proposed expansion is in line with the present development agreement.

In furtherance of SciTech's proposal, the University will enter into a Facilities Lease with SciTech detailing the terms for use of land and defining the relationship with the University.

In conjunction with this Facilities Lease, the Development Agreement between The Ohio State University and SciTech will also be amended to reflect the inclusion of this additional land for lease by SciTech.

Location and Description

The land is adjacent to and immediately south of the existing ElectroScience Laboratory Building at 1320 Kinnear Road. The land to be leased is approximately 2.5 acres, upon which a 40,580 square foot building will be constructed by SciTech.

Terms of Lease

The long-term facilities lease has not been finalized yet, however, the principal terms of the Lease call for a lease term of forty (40) years with renewal provisions, both consistent with the Development Agreement. Also consistent with the Development Agreement and all other SciTech leases with the University, the annual rent to be paid by SciTech to the University will be one dollar ($1.00).

THE STATE OF OHIO,
OARDC/ATI, AND SCHMACK BIOENERGY
WOOSTER, OHIO 44691

Description of Proposed Project

Schmack Bioenergy, an Ohio limited liability company, has an ongoing research relationship with OARDC and has approached the University with a proposal to construct, operate and maintain a commercial biodigester to convert waste to energy on the campus of OARDC at Wooster, Ohio. This project is an extension of the existing relationship with Schmack.

Schmack Bioenergy proposes to construct an EcoFarm System 550 biodigester at the Wooster campus. The biodigester will convert biomass, in the form of animal, plant and food waste, using the anaerobic biodigester process to make energy. Schmack Bioenergy will commercially operate the biodigester. OARDC and ATI will collaborate with Schmack Bioenergy to create new research opportunities, new educational programs and outreach demonstrations of the conversion of waste to energy. Schmack Bioenergy currently employs interns from ATI, is participating with ATI in the NSF invited proposal for a new alternative energy curriculum, funds laboratory support by OARDC's department of Food, Agricultural and Biological Engineering, and is currently collaborating on grant proposals to the Third Frontier and to the Air Force. In addition, the location of a biodigester at OARDC will provide infrastructure to support new research and provide a potential source for renewable energy in the form of electricity, gas, heat and compressed natural gas.

The University will enter into a land lease and collaborative agreement with Schmack Bioenergy detailing the terms for use of land and defining the relationship with the University.

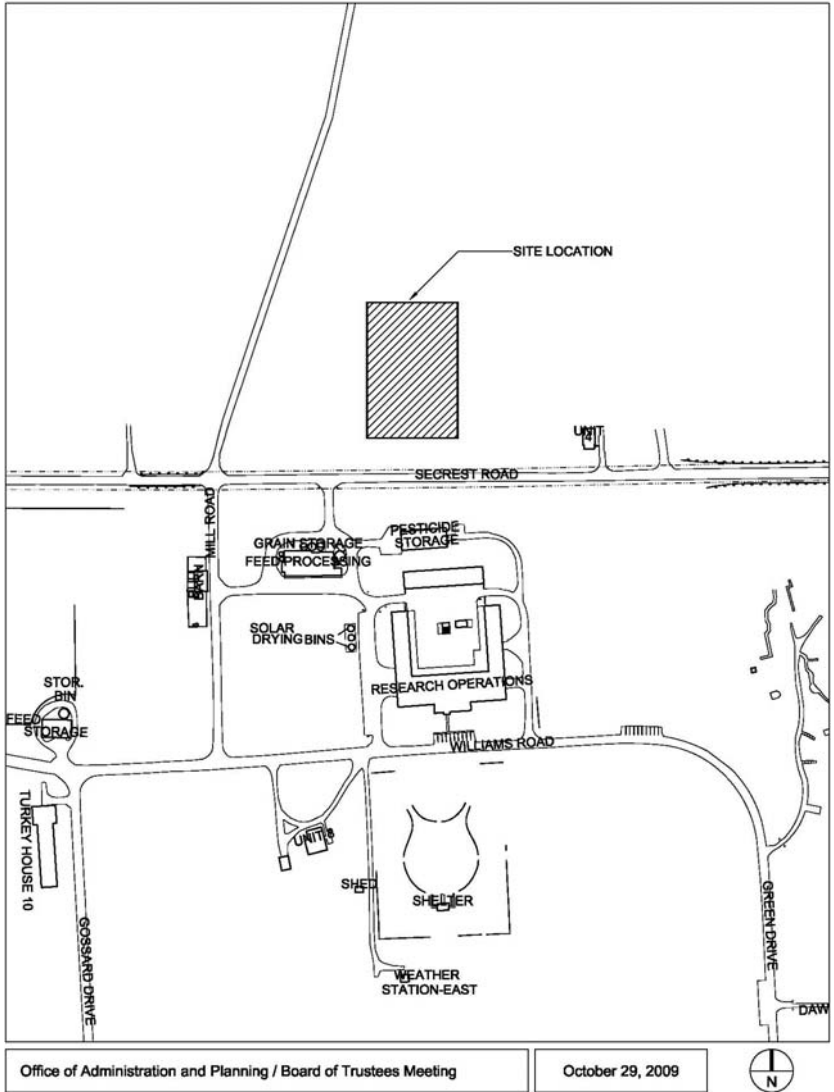

Terms of Lease

The lease terms have not been completely negotiated between the parties. A term of five years with a renewal provision for five years has been proposed. The rent to be paid by Schmack Bioenergy is to be one hundred dollars ($100) per year. The site for the biodigester has been finally determined; Schmack Bioenergy and OARDC have worked with University planners to resolve issues of siting and infrastructure. The lease will be a net lease with Schmack Bioenergy bearing all costs of utilities, maintenance and other costs associated with operation of the biodigester.

Schmack Bioenergy will bear all costs of construction, including site preparation, obtaining permits and construction of new roads, infrastructure and the biodigester. Bearing all costs of maintenance and operation of the biodigester, Schmack Bioenergy will maintain and operate daily operations of the biodigester, securing biomass, handling waste and effluent from the biodigester and the associated lease site. Schmack Bioenergy will assume all liability and risk from the operation of the biodigester and will be responsible for appropriate environmental safe guards.

The proposed expansion of premises will provide additional space for purposes deemed critical to the ElectroScience Laboratory mission.

Terms of Lease

The sublease terms have not been completely finalized, however, the principal terms call for the University to lease 36,580 square feet from SciTech for a 20 year term with potential renewal options. The rent and other costs to be paid by the University through the College of Engineering are to be $7.7 million dollars for the term of the Sublease. TOPIC: Debt Refinancing

CONTEXT:

The attached resolution allows the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance and Assistant Vice President for Financial Services to refinance outstanding bonds and/or fix the rates on outstanding variable rate bonds in order to take advantage of current market conditions.

This is not an authorization to issue new debt. It has been reviewed and approved by Bond Council (Pick Shaffer). A summary is attached.

REQUESTED OF FISCAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE:

Approval of attached resolution.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY
RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING SERIES 2009 A GENERAL RECEIPTS BONDS

The following resolution authorizes the issuance and sale of the University's Series 2009 A General Receipts Bonds in a principal amount sufficient to refund all or a portion of the outstanding Bonds of the University and paying related costs and expenses. This Resolution does not authorize any new money borrowing. The outstanding Bonds of the University and the documents that authorized them are described in the preambles to the Resolution. The purpose of the refunding is to take advantage of the current low interest rate environment to achieve interest rate savings where possible on the University's fixed rate bonds and to lower exposure to interest rate volatility on the University's variable rate bonds.

The specific terms of the Series 2009 A Bonds will be set in a certificate of award signed by the Senior Vice President for Business and Finance of the University, or the Assistant Vice President for Financial Services. The Certificate of Award must be consistent with the Series 2009 A Bond Resolution and not adverse to the interests of the University. Specifically, the Resolution limits the interest rate on the Series 2009 A Bonds to 8% per year and provides that the maturity of the Series 2009 A Bonds may not be later than the maturity of the Bonds being refunded. The University is not extending the maturity of its debt. Insurance or interest rate hedges are permitted in connection with the Bonds to assist in managing the interest rate paid, but the University does not intend to utilize those options.

In lieu of refunding the outstanding variable rate bonds of the University, the University may determine to remarket those bonds at a fixed rate to maturity. The Resolution authorizes amendments to the authorization documents for those variable rate bonds to allow them to be remarketed at a premium, to pay the costs of the remarketing, and to allow a mixture of serial and term maturities.

President Grímsson has brought the lessons of Iceland's clean energy achievements to many parts of the world—to the United States and countries in Asia, Africa, and Europe—strongly advocating the use of geothermal energy as a renewable, economically viable, and reliable resource. He has actively supported training and research on desertification control and carbon sequestration, creating joint projects by scientists from different countries. He was among the initiators of a Global Roundtable on Climate Change that brought together representatives of nearly 100 European and American corporations, as well as experts, scientists, and opinion leaders.

In addition to his leadership role in environmental issues, President Grímsson also has been a strong advocate for peace and conflict resolution. He served as chair of the organization committee for the Council of Europe conference, "North-South: Europe's Role 1982-1984," and as president of the international association of Parliamentarians for Global Action (PGA) from 1984 to 1990. Under his leadership, the group organized a Peace Initiative of Six Heads of State.

President Grímsson earned his BA in economics and political science at the University of Manchester, England, in 1965 where he also completed his PhD thesis in political science five years later. He subsequently became the first professor of political science at the University of Iceland. He first took a seat in Althingi, the legislative assembly, in 1978 and served as Iceland's Minister of Finance 1988-1991.

President Grímsson has for several years been a board member of the Special Olympics, and he played a major role in the international drug prevention campaign, Youth in Europe, which now enjoys the participation of 19 European cities. He also has been active in promoting cooperation between Icelandic and foreign universities and has lectured at prominent American academic institutions, including Harvard, Columbia, Brown, and The Ohio State University, where he presented a Distinguished International Lecture on Climate Change in 2007.

Among many international awards he has received is the Indra Gandhi Peace Prize, which he received on behalf of the PGA, and the Jawaharlal Nehru Award for International Understanding, which he will receive early next year.

RECIPIENTS OF HONORS

Mildred Lynn Chavous

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

Mildred Chavous served for more than three decades in The Ohio State University Graduate School's Office of Educational Administration. At the time of her 1996 retirement, she was director of graduation services and degrees. Graduate faculty and students remember her as the person who reviewed the format of dissertations and theses.

During her tenure at Ohio State, Mrs. Chavous served on numerous university-wide committees, advisory boards, and commissions, including the Ohio State Senate Select Committee on Minorities and Women, the search committees for the vice presidents for research and graduate studies and for development, the Council on Academic Excellence for Women, the Critical Difference for Women Campaign Steering Committee, Ohio State's 300th Commencement Celebration Committee, and the Faculty and Staff Health Care Benefits Committee.

Her work within the university has been recognized with a number of awards, including the Distinguished Staff Award, the Ohio State Citizenship Award, and a Certificate of Honor for her work with the Faculty and Staff Assistance Program Advisory Board.

Mrs. Chavous' impressive record of community service encompasses education, health, human services, and the cultural arts. She has served as a trustee of the Franklin County Board of Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, Ohio Humanities Council, Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation, Cultural Arts Center Advisory Council, Thurber House, and Players Theatre. She has been honored by the Columbus Chapter of the Coalition of 100 Black Women, the Office of the Mayor of Columbus, the Black Women of Courage, Carats, Inc., and the Columbus Cancer Clinic. She has received the United Negro College Fund Distinguished Leadership Award and three separate commendations from the Ohio House of Representatives and the Ohio Senate.

She was a founding member of the Twin Rivers Chapter of The Links, Inc., a national service organization of women with a threefold aim—civic, educational, and cultural. She is a charter member of the Columbus Chapter of Circle-Lets and served as national president from 1999-2001.

She was the first African American woman president of the Columbus Cancer Clinic, the first African American and woman to chair the United Way Campaign at Ohio State, and the first African American president of the Pro Musica Sustaining Board.

John W. Creighton Jr.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

John W. Creighton Jr. is strategic director of the Seattle-based venture capital company Madrona Venture Group. He was president and CEO of Weyerhaeuser Company from 1990 to 1998. Following the 9/11 terrorist attack, he served as interim chair and CEO of United Airlines, leading the airline through complex union negotiations. Subsequently, he became vice chair of Unocal Corporation. He currently serves on the board of Intrepid Learning Solutions and Saltchuk Resources in Seattle.

A two-time graduate of The Ohio State University, Mr. Creighton earned his BS in business administration in 1954 and his juris doctor in 1957. He also holds an MBA from the University of Miami, Florida, and is a certified public accountant.

He has remained close to his alma mater, serving on The Ohio State University Foundation Board and providing guidance to the university's development efforts in the northwestern United States. He was instrumental in planning the renovations to the Thompson Library, offering significant support to the Special Collections Reading Room and the office of the head of Rare Books and Manuscripts.

He has played a leading role in helping the Moritz College of Law rise to national prominence through the creation of the innovative Lawyers and Leadership program, which exposes law students to the values of leadership in their community and their professional and personal lives. In 2003, he received the Distinguished Alumnus Award from the Moritz College of Law and the Cullman Executive Award from the Fisher College of Business.

Mr. Creighton has been actively involved with a number of professional and civic organizations, including the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, where he is a director and past national president, and the Oregon Shakespeare Festival. He is a director and former chair of the Washington State University Foundation Board and a civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army for the state of Washington.

He is co-chair of the Seattle World Trade Center and a recipient of the Prime Minister's Trade Award from the government of Japan, which recognizes individuals who have made outstanding efforts to promote trade between Japan and the rest of the world.
