Dr. Patton was born February 11, 1900, in Hebron, Ohio. She earned her B.S. (1925), M.S. (1929), and Ph.D. (1949) at The Ohio State University. Dr. Patton worked as an elementary and high school teacher prior to beginning her work in the College of Home Economics at The Ohio State University. Dr. Patton served as an assistant for the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station from 1926-1929. She then was an instructor from 1929-1946. Dr. Patton became an Assistant Professor in 1946, Associate Professor in 1949, and Professor in 1953. She retired in 1960, and was named Professor Emeritus.

Dr. Patton was the author of many research reports, papers, and bulletins for a wide range of nutrition studies. Many of these studies centered on the food habits of pre-school and school age children. Other work by Dr. Patton included studies of the eating practices of young children and their families in relation to such factors as economic status, employment of the mother outside the home, number of siblings, and food marketing practices. Dr. Patton also did important work on mineral metabolism of college-age women. In 1959, Dr. Patton was recipient of the American Home Economics Association Borden Award.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses its sympathy and understanding to the family of Professor Patton. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Rodney F. Plimpton, Jr.

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 16, 1987, of Rodney F. Plimpton, Jr., Professor in the Department of Animal Science.

Rodney Plimpton was born May 16, 1937, in Poughkeepsie, New York. He received the B.S. degree in Animal Husbandry from Rutgers University and entered graduate school at The Ohio State University in 1959. He studied in the Department of Animal Science specializing in meat science and earned the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in 1961 and 1965, respectively. During this graduate study he served as an effective teaching and research assistant. This experience influenced him to accept an appointment as an instructor of meat science courses. In 1972 he was promoted to the rank of Professor.

Dr. Plimpton was an unusually exuberant, dynamic teacher of 11 different courses during his career and twice was the honored recipient of the University Alumni Distinguished Teaching Award. The American Meat Science Association Distinguished Teaching Award was bestowed upon him in 1978. The tremendous number of undergraduate students who sought him out as an academic advisor and counselor provides clear evidence of his extremely effective relationship with students. He was a productive researcher, major advisor to 26 graduate students, and highly respected on the national level as a speaker and prolific writer on meat science and teaching.

Rodney Plimpton served on the University Senate and vigorously contributed fresh ideas and wisdom to numerous committees and projects during his 28 loyal years of service to The Ohio State University. As additional contributions to The Ohio State University, he and his wife, "Peg," proudly observed two daughters complete Ph.D.s', a third complete an undergraduate accounting program, and a high school senior son set his sights on Ohio State.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

David M. Scott

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 21, 1987, of David M. Scott, Professor of Physics at the Mansfield Campus of The Ohio State University.

Dr. Scott was born on February 20, 1933, in Evanston, Illinois. He received his B.S. in Mechanical Engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1955 and spent eight years working for General Motors and Monsanto. He was awarded the Ph.D. in physics from The Ohio State University in 1969. He had taught at OSU-Mansfield since 1970, and became the first full-time teaching faculty member at a regional campus to earn the rank of full professor.

Dr. Scott was selected by his Mansfield faculty colleagues as the recipient of a special Faculty Leadership Award which acknowledged his extensive contributions to faculty governance, scholarship, and teaching. He served as the University Senator from Mansfield from 1983-86 and chaired the Senate Rules Committee in 1984-85. He was a member of the Ohio Board of Regents Chancellor's Academic Advisory Committee for Two-Year Campuses in 1983-84 and served on the Coordinating Committee for Review of the Agricultural Technical Institute in 1981-83. Dr. Scott chaired the committee that wrote the Mansfield Campus Faculty Assembly Constitution and served as faculty assembly president. He chaired all of the major Mansfield Campus committees at various times.

Dr. Scott was co-author of 17 scientific papers in high energy physics. His textbook, The Physics of Vibrations and Waves was published in 1986, for which he received the 1987 Mansfield Campus Scholarship Award.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses its sympathy and understanding to the family of Professor Scott. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Henry Peter "Bud" Sengelmann

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 30, 1987, of Henry Peter "Bud" Sengelmann M.D., Clinical Assistant Professor, Department of Pediatrics in the College of Medicine.

Dr. Sengelmann was born October 17, 1929. A native of New Jersey, he graduated from Colgate University in 1951 with his major areas of study being in Zoology and Pre-Med. His interests led him to the Albany Medical College where he was a research assistant in the Department of Physiology, and from there, he went on to pursue a medical degree at The Ohio State University College of Medicine, graduating in 1956.

Deciding on a career as a pediatrician, Dr. Sengelmann served his pediatric internship and residency at Columbus Children's Hospital and The Ohio State University from 1956-59. Upon completion of his training, he entered private practice here in Columbus, and subsequently was certified by the American Board of Pediatrics in 1962.

During his early years in Columbus as a member of the pediatric faculty, he took on the responsibility of the Newborn Nursery at Children's Hospital. During his 28 years in private practice, he taught medical students, graduate students, pediatric nurse practitioners and residents in his office, and was a member of the attending medical staffs of President Jennings made the following statement:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The budget being presented for your approval today reflects the adjustments required by lower than expected support for higher education in the final State budget. When I presented a provisional budget to this Board one month ago, we had hoped that the final budget would support the commitment to student accessibility that was reflected in the actions of the Senate and the House to keep tuition levels as low as possible.

We are grateful to the General Assembly for its actions in reducing the student share of college costs paid by tuition from the original Executive Budget recommendations. Nonetheless, the unfortunate result of this final State budget is that Ohio's progress of prior years has been reversed. The average student share of college costs, which had been brought down to 36 percent through legislative action, will now return to more than 40 percent, compared to a national average that is still approximately one third.

Ohio State has done its share on keeping tuition as low as possible. We emphasized our commitment to accessibility by imposing no tuition increase last year. However, we are this year faced with funding levels for the Instructional Subsidy that are far too low to continue to enhance academic excellence without a significant tuition increase. Indeed, the State budget that was passed last week assumes an increase in Ohio college and university tuition levels that would cost Ohio State students about $125 per quarter.

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

It is unfortunate to see the State of Ohio turn back the progress of the past biennium. But we cannot allow this University's outstanding achievements and opportunities for future progress to be reversed by this setback.

Broad access to higher education opportunities, supported by low tuition, is an invaluable asset for Ohio. We must continue to look to the Governor and the General Assembly for the adequate levels of support that are needed by its state-assisted colleges and universities to enable us to continue the pursuit of academic excellence while also ensuring broad accessibility for all qualified Ohioans.

Today, however, we must adopt a budget based on current levels of support from the State of Ohio. I am recommending that Ohio State's tuition increase be set at $62 per quarter for Ohio undergraduates, an amount that is less than half of the increase assumed in the State budget. I also am recommending that higher levels be imposed for out-of-state students.

While these recommendations are higher than we had hoped, I do want to point out Ohio State's fine record on keeping tuition as low as possible. Our two-year average increase is still well below increases at our sister universities around the State. Even at $630 per quarter, Ohio State's tuition is still among the lowest in Ohio. Our ranking of tenth among Ohio's thirteen state-assisted four-year institutions is, indeed, appropriate to our land-grant mission of maintaining broad accessibility to the State's major, comprehensive university.

This is a credit to the University-wide efforts of our staff and faculty members to minimize the on-going costs of current activities. Cost containment continues to assist our efforts to keep student tuition down while maintaining our capacity to respond to new opportunities for enhancing academic excellence.

I now want to call upon Vice President Ihrig to present the details of the budget being recommended for your approval today.

Mr. Ihrig:

Thank you. The Current Funds Budget for 1987-88 which we are presenting for your consideration totals $938,450,000 in revenues to support planned commitments of $934,180,000. This represents an increase of 4.7 percent over total revenues for the fiscal year just ended, 1986-87.

Included in this budget are General Funds totaling $417.6 million, or 44.5 percent of total resources. These funds are used to fund the basic instructional, administrative and related support activities of this University. Earnings Operations revenues total $308.3 million, or 32.8 percent of budgeted resources, which include everything from University Hospitals and student dormitories, to copying services and conferences in support of the academic mission of Ohio State. Earnings Operations not only earn the revenues they spend, they also pay their fair share of University overhead and facilities costs associated with their activities. Finally, restricted revenues which total $212.5 million, 22.6 percent of total revenues, are received and expended for specific purposes specified by external entities such as Federal and private sponsored research.

The largest components of General Fund revenues are State appropriations and student tuitions. Both of these revenue sources are directly impacted by student enrollments, which is why the long and short-term enrollment planning we do is so important for all the campuses. The budget is based upon the student enrollment targets for the Autumn Quarter, 1987, which have been reviewed previously with this Board and included in the budget materials. These targets show continued growth on the Regional Campuses, but bringing the Columbus Campus closer to the 40,000 FTE enrollment limit. Our projections indicated a Columbus Campus non-exempt FTE of 40,362 for the Autumn Quarter, 1987, which would reduce the over-enrollment by one-half from the 40,749 FTE of Autumn 1986.

The instructional subsidies from State appropriations on the Columbus Campus increase by only 4.1 percent over 1986-87, while those on the Regional Campuses increase by 17 percent. The basic reasons for this wide differential include emphasis by the State in funding the student enrollment increases which were not fully funded last biennium due to lack of funds and enhancements to the two-year subsidy models, which both benefited our Regional Campuses. While scheduled to receive these funds, assuming their enrollment increases are maintained, these campuses did have to support part of last year's enrollment increases without full State support.

The Columbus Campus share of the State instructional subsidy pool continues to decrease, a consistent trend over the past decade. For example, the current State budget has Ohio State Columbus receiving 22.1 percent of the total instructional subsidy versus 22.36 percent last year. And this share is scheduled to drop another tenth of a point next year.

The State support continues for the various excellence programs. Of special importance are the $2.47 million for Academic Challenge, and the $4.98 million for the Research Challenge for 1987-88, which is $2.5 million under last year's $7.48 million. The increases for Cooperative Extension and OARDC are only 2 percent for 1987-88, while no increased funding was provided for the Clinical Teaching subsidies in the hospitals as well as the Dental and Veterinary Medicine Clinics.

However, the State has provided $3.0 million in 1987-88 for the Ohio Supercomputer Center with another $4.5 million allocated for next year, 1988-89.

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

This budget reluctantly includes tuition recommendations which increase tuitions to $630 for Ohio students attending the Columbus Campus, to $604 for Ohio students attending a Regional Campus and to $1660 for the non-resident undergraduate students. With Ohio State's zero increase in tuitions last year, the rate of increase over the period 1985-86 to present remains the lowest of Ohio's colleges and universities. This will keep us as the 10th lowest in Ohio. Even so, this change in our demonstrated trend to bring students tuition costs down has been disrupted due to the level of State support for this year.

Even with these relatively high tuition increases, the market basket cost increases for Ohio State students totals 7.1 percent when considering the impact of price changes in dormitory, bookstore, parking and health insurance as well as athletic event tickets charges. The University-wide average rate increases total 4.3 percent, especially since University Hospitals will not increase their rates for 1987-88.

A significant component of this 1987-88 budget is the $12.0 million targeted from reduced costs of operations as a result of the new cost containment program begun in 1987. This program of achieving targeted cost reductions without reducing the quality of services and recognizing the faculty and staff through a bonus program is new in higher education. As in any new venture, a learning curve exists; however, the support and efforts to-date throughout the University have been excellent. While the final results won't be known until late in this calendar year, we are anticipating that the results of this cost containment program will exceed our expectations.

The budgeted expenditures in the 1987-88 Budget are in accordance with the budget planning guidelines presented to this Board by President Jennings at your May 1987 meeting.

We are presenting this balanced 1987-88 Current Funds Budget totaling $938,450,000 for your consideration and recommend its approval.

I would be happy to respond to any questions. Thank you.

Mr. Barone:

I think the important thing is that rather than having a percentage like most of the universities that start with 14, then go down to 12 percent, then to single digit. I know the University and the State are in a single digit tuition, but I think putting it in the dollar sense is very advantageous. It's $630, which is a lot less than most of the universities, especially those universities located in the northern part of Ohio. Any questions?

Mr. Redman:

I want to make a comment, if I may. I think two important things, one is the size of the budget -- it always scares me. You did mention $938 million, but I see by your statement it's $934 million. We will not argue about the $4 million.

Mr. Redman: (contd)

Mr. Ihrig:

The $938 million are the projected revenues.

Mr. Redman:

The other thing is that the budget is balanced between income and expense, so, assuming that your projection is correct, we come out even.

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes.

Mr. Redman:

That is all I had to say.

Mr. Barone:

Any other questions?

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET

Resolution No. 88-15

Synopsis: The budget for 1987-88 is being submitted for adoption.

WHEREAS the levels of State support have been established with the enactment of budget legislation for the 1987-89 biennium; and

WHEREAS appropriate planning and consultation within the University has been accomplished; and

WHEREAS this Board approved a provisional budget for 1987-88 at its June meeting; and

WHEREAS the President is now prepared to present the final 1987-88 budget:

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the University Current Funds Budget for Fiscal Year 1987-88, as described in the accompanying text and tables, be approved, with authorization for the President to make expenditures within the projected income levels; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That student fees be increased for all Ohio residents beginning Autumn Quarter 1987, as specified in the Schedule of Student Fees incorporated in this resolution effective Autumn Quarter 1987; and

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Secretary be instructed to incorporate all supporting documents into the minutes of this meeting, including faculty tenure approvals, salary rolls with promotions, and fees and charges for the Fiscal Year 1987-88, and to file these materials with the official records of this University.

Mr. Redman made the following statement:

The Personnel Committee of this Board met on July 9, 1987, and this report is a result of that meeting.

As in the past, the President's performance at this institution is evaluated throughout the year by many people, but it is formally evaluated once a year by the Board of Trustees. On this occasion it is noted that President Jennings will begin his seventh year with Ohio State on September 1, having developed a consistently constructive record over the past six years. We appreciate President Jennings's vision and leadership effort on behalf of the University. It should also be noted that the shared spirit of cooperation between this Board and the President is not only pleasant but it also is indeed essential to the continuing vitality of The Ohio State University.

With these things in mind, the Board has determined to raise President Jennings's salary to $129,000 for the 1987-88 academic year. This increase was calculated keeping in mind the context of salaries of presidents of other comparable educational institutions, in addition to the performance appraisal mentioned earlier. The Secretary of the Board is directed to develop the relevant documents to effectuate this change.

May I now have a motion to approve the President's budget report and recommendation, as well as the Board Personnel Committee's proposal relative to President Jennings's salary for the coming year.

Upon motion of Mr. Kessler, seconded by Ms. Casto, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

I. INTRODUCTION

In June 1987, this Board approved a Provisional Budget to enable the University to initiate operations for the 1987-88 Fiscal Year. The Provisional Budget was developed in accordance with the budget planning guidelines reviewed with the members of this Board at its May 1987 meeting. Now that the Ohio General Assembly has passed budget legislation for the 1987-89 Biennium and the Governor has signed this legislation, the University 1987-88 Current Funds Budget can now be recommended to the Board of Trustees.

Last fiscal year, Ohio State's budget included a zero increase in student tuition, which was made possible by State funding levels that reduced the state-wide student share for undergraduates from 40 to 36 percent over the 1985-87 Biennium. This year, however, that improvement has been reversed. The state-wide student share is now set to increase from its current 36 percent to 41 percent over the 1987-89 Biennium.

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY (contd)

While the level of State support for higher education is not adequate to maintain the positive initiatives begun during the past biennium, the actions of the Ohio General Assembly did do much to reduce the student tuition recommendations from the 31 percent increase included in the Executive Budget Proposal. But it is through internal cost savings that Ohio State has been able to provide the majority of the resources needed to bring the tuition increases for Ohio residents down to 10.9 percent. While a double-digit increase in tuition is extremely undesirable with the current economic situation, the final level of State instructional subsidies precluded Ohio State from achieving our previously stated goal of 7.9 percent.

As a part of its continuing efforts to reduce costs, the University initiated an internal cost containment program in 1987 with the target of reducing annual costs University-wide by $12 million. These monies were then to be targeted to support new programs and fund priority needs throughout the University. Now, however, these savings will be utilized to maintain tuition increases for Ohio residents at the 10.9 percent budget recommendation.

The faculty and staff members throughout the University work to enable Ohio State to maintain student accessibility by continuing to provide quality instruction, research and support services at lower costs. To recognize the efforts, the University's cost containment program incorporates direct cash incentives to each qualified regular faculty and staff member. The bonus amount will be determined by the success of their respective units and the University in achieving cost containment targets. In addition to reducing costs, Ohio State's faculty and staff are providing a margin of excellence to this University by contributing more than $12 million to the University's capital fund raising campaign. These actions by members of the faculty and staff clearly demonstrate their commitment to excellence and student accessibility.

II. SOURCES OF FUNDS

The Current Funds Budget proposed for 1987-88 totals $938,450,000 from several funding sources, as detailed in the Sources of Income schedule. This amount includes State support totaling $304,170,000 which represents 32.4 percent of the total resources budgeted. Of the total sources of funds, general funds represent 44.5 percent, earnings operations provide 32.9 percent, and restricted funds total 22.6 percent.

As a result of the level of State support and allowing for the University's efforts at reducing costs, student tuition at The Ohio State University is being increased by 10.9 percent for Ohio residents attending the Columbus campus and 9.6 percent for Ohio residents attending Lima, Mansfield, Marion, Newark, or the Agricultural Technical Institute campuses. This lower rate of increase at the regional campuses results from enhanced instructional subsidies provided for the lower division undergraduate and technical categories.

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY (contd)

The tuition charged non-resident students is typically three times that of residents. After a review of non-resident tuitions, it was determined that those amounts for undergraduate, graduate, and law students had fallen behind this ratio. Therefore, selective increases of up to 14 percent are being recommended for the non-resident surcharge.

The recommended tuition rates for residents and non-residents are shown in the Student Fee Schedule. The rate of tuition increases for 1987-88 reverses the trend of the past two years of keeping these increases below inflation, and sets back our progress in reducing the students' share of the cost of their education. While Ohio State continues to keep tuition below the Board of Regents projections, significant improvements in State support will be needed in future biennia if Ohio is to return the students' share of their cost of higher education to the 33 percent level.

A major funding source for the University continues to be revenues from the sales of the earnings units. Continuing efforts to control increases in all fees and charges of the University, the average University-wide increase in all University charges will be approximately 4.3 percent. University Hospitals continue to emphasize containment of health care costs by holding hospital rate increases to zero for 1987-88. The Residence and Dining Halls will do their part to assist student accessibility by keeping their average rate increases to only 5.0 percent.

The 1987-88 budget includes new State funding of $3.0 million that is being provided to support the Ohio Supercomputer Center which is now being placed into operation. In addition, Ohio State is committing direct support of $2.0 million and the Center will be working to add private funding to further support the supercomputer activity.

Of special note are the increases in State support for the regional campuses and the Agricultural Technical Institute. These increases, which average just under 12 percent, result from changes in the institutional subsidy model plus State resources added to fully fund actual and expected growth in enrollments.

The other income components of the 1987-88 Current Funds Budget are in line with expected growth from 1986-87 revenues. The projected revenues for 1987-88 show an increase of $42,550,000, which is some 4.7 percent above the estimated revenues for 1986-87. This is the result of normal expected increases in nearly all categories of revenue except State appropriations and student tuition.

III. USES OF FUNDS

As detailed in the Schedule of Budgeted Uses for Fiscal Year 1987-88, and the supporting documents, this University's recommended Current Funds expenditures total $934,180,000. These planned expenditures will support the following budget planning guidelines.

- * Increase faculty, administrative/professional, and classified staff salaries by two percent and provide three percent in salary funds for merit increases plus $3,000,000 for equity and excellence adjustments.

July 9 and 10, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

1987-88 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY (contd)

- * Fund salary increases for negotiated wage settlements.
- * Provide funding to maintain the purchasing power of University-funded student financial aid, plus $5,500,000 to address critical needs that include providing adequate instructional staffs, supporting continued efforts to enhance excellence and quality, and assisting implementation of program changes. In addition, the State has provided $2.47 million in Academic Challenge funds to be distributed to further enhance nationally recognized academic programs at Ohio State, and $4.98 million in Research Challenge resources.
- * Provide resources to meet mandatory General Fund cost increases, such as utilities and employee benefits.

One-time funds totaling $4.5 million will be provided for equipment, facilities renovation, and the acquisition of library materials to continue to improve the quality of these fundamental support resources.

This balanced budget for 1987-88 is being presented for Board of Trustees approval.

Commencement Speaker

Marilyn Robinson Waldman

Marilyn Robinson Waldman is a professor of history and director of the Center for Comparative Studies in the Humanities. A nationally known expert in Islamic and Middle East history, she earned her bachelor's degree in 1963 from Radcliffe, where she was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. She received both her graduate degrees in Islamic history from the University of Chicago: a master's degree with honors in 1966 and a doctoral degree with distinction in 1974.

She began her career at Ohio State in 1971 as an instructor in history. In 1974 she was promoted to assistant professor and in 1978 to associate professor. Her tenure at Ohio State also includes three years as director of the Near and Middle East Studies Program and three years as chairperson of the Division of Comparative Studies in the Humanities.

Her contributions to Ohio State and to her field of study have been immense. Within the University she has served on more than 40 committees, including the Phi Beta Kappa standards committee, the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences Personalized Study Program Review Committee, and the University-Industry Relations Committee. She was also instrumental in the design and establishment of the Religious Studies Program, which she has headed since its inception in January 1983. Also in 1983, she co-chaired the Third Annual Symposium in the Humanities, which dealt with religion in the modern world.

Among her 45 published works are four books and 24 scholarly articles, and she has produced several translations and textbooks. Since arriving at Ohio State, she has made more than 250 public presentations in eight states to a variety of organizations. She is on the executive board of the American Society for the Study of Religion and is the recipient of numerous honors and awards, including election to the American Society for the Study of Religion and awards that funded her post-doctoral study in Iran.

Distinguished Service Awards

John F. Havens

After graduating from Ohio State with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1949, John F. Havens went on to build an enviable career as a banker, real estate developer, and broker. His rise in financial circles culminated in his being named chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Banc One Corporation, a position he held from 1980 to 1986. Numerous civic citations complement several professional awards, and he serves on the boards of a variety of institutions, among them the W.W. Williams Company, Advanced Drainage Systems Inc., and Cardinal Distributions Inc., all of the Columbus area.

Havens' involvement with Ohio State did not end with his commencement in 1949; since that time, he has continued to support the University and provide leadership in many arenas. He recently completed a nine-year term on Ohio State's Board of Trustees, serving as chairman during 1985-86; is a past chairman of the Board of Directors of the Development Fund; and is currently a member of the National Campaign Committee of The Ohio State University Campaign.

He was instrumental in Bank One of Columbus' decision to commit $1 million for the Bank One Chair of Excellence at Ohio State. Recently, Havens made a substantial gift of real estate that will benefit the College of Agriculture. Ohio State is proud to present him with the Distinguished Service Award as an expression of the University's sincere appreciation.

William Poland

At the time of his death in March 1987, William Poland was professor emeritus of music and had served for many years as associate dean of the Graduate School. He came to Ohio State in 1949 as an instructor and was, subsequently, the first student to earn a doctoral degree in music from the University and one of the founders of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra.

As a scholar in music theory, he made significant contributions in the areas of musical behavior and analysis, and two of his books have become classics in the field. Keenly interested in experimental activities in the arts, he founded what was called the Center for Experimental Research in the Arts from 1965 to 1986. Current scholars consider him a pioneer in integrating musical theory into today's high-technology computer era. He was honored in 1971 with Ohio State's prestigious Alumni Award for Distinguished Teaching.

In 1975, when he took on additional responsibilities as associate dean, he created a program review system for the University that has become a national model for other institutions. His lasting contributions to the University also include his acquisition of the Cazden Collection—an archive of papers, compositions and other materials of Norman Cazden, an important music theorist, composer, and performer.

Distinguished Service Awards

Maybelle L. Ruppert

For nearly a quarter of a century, Maybelle Ruppert has served as executive secretary to the president of The Ohio State University. Former President Novice G. Fawcett recruited her to the University in 1964 from her position as executive secretary to the governor of West Virginia; since then, her career at Ohio State has spanned the tenure of three presidents.

She is known throughout the university for her uncommon competence and for her loyalty to and love of Ohio State. Her 23 years of service have crossed over both good and bad times in higher education, but, as noted by the three presidents whom she has served, her commitment has been unwavering.

Her position has been one of low visibility in a high-visibility office. While she herself has not been in the spotlight, her talent has contributed a great deal to the overall strength of the Office of the President.

She has earned the respect of the faculty, the administration, and the sector of the business community with which the University deals. She has adeptly handled the public relations component of her position. As the president's secretary, she dealt with individuals at all levels, and was unfailingly courteous to all guests, ranging from students to foreign dignitaries. The University proudly confers this award to her for her long-standing devotion and superior service.

Seward D. Schooler

Seward Schooler is a former director of Banc One Corporation and serves as chairman of the executive committee and honorary director of Banc One of Coshocton. Throughout his banking career he also has served as director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, as president of the Ohio Bankers Association, and as president of the National Bank Division of the American Bankers Association. He is also a trustee of several educational institutions and president of the Coshocton County Industrial Development Corporation.

For more than 20 years, he has been a generous supporter of Ohio State. Among his major contributions is his co-sponsorship of the Schooler-Reese Lecture Series, through which two former presidents of the United States and other distinguished world leaders have visited the University to give public lectures and meet informally with students and faculty.

He has promoted the University's academic excellence by supporting the National Merit Scholar Program, the Reese Chair in Banking, and several projects in the College of Medicine. A member of The Presidents Club and The Presidents Council, he served on the Executive Committee of The Presidents Club for six years and is at present a member of the National Campaign Committee for The Ohio State University Campaign. The University is proud to recognize him with this award.

Distinguished Service Awards

Faye S. Smith

Since graduating in 1939 with a bachelor's degree in business education from Ohio State, Faye S. Smith has pursued excellence in education in many arenas. A high school teacher for 14 years, she returned to the University for her master's degree. In 1953 she accepted a position as assistant professor at Otterbein College. She returned to Ohio State again in 1960—this time in an administrative role as assistant to the secretary of the Board of Trustees, a position from which she retired in 1984.

For 24 years, she was the key administrative official in the Office of the Board of Trustees. She coordinated and prepared agenda materials for board meetings, recorded official proceedings of those meetings, updated and published appropriate bylaws and rules, and conducted other day-to-day activities for the board.

During her tenure at Ohio State, Smith served three board secretaries under the administration of three University presidents. She had a thorough knowledge of Ohio State's history and could lend important perspective to a variety of problems. Her involvement with the University did not stop at the office door: as a member of The Presidents Club and the Alumni Association, she was and continues to be involved personally as well. The University is pleased to present her with this award for her professional and personal contributions.

Marion L. Smith

Marion L. Smith, former associate dean of the College of Engineering, has participated in an unusually broad range of activities throughout his 37 years at The Ohio State University. He began his teaching career at the University in 1947 as a graduate student. For 11 years he was a leading faculty member in the mechanical engineering department. During this period in his career, he compiled an impressive record in teaching and in scholarship.

He subsequently spent 26 years as associate dean. Among his greatest contributions has been his achievement in developing solid relationships between students and faculty and in enhancing morale throughout the college. A by-product of this relationship has been the firm ties between the college and its alumni long after commencement day. His special abilities have also been recognized by other universities: he has received invitations to candidacy for chairmanships and deanships from a dozen recognized universities. He has, however, chosen to stay at Ohio State out of love for and loyalty to his alma mater.

As associate dean, he has assumed a leadership role in promoting the college—as well as the University—in academic circles nationwide. The link between the College of Engineering and industry has also been strengthened as a result of his efforts. He was instrumental in establishing the Society of Women Engineers as a support organization at a time when few females ventured into the engineering curriculum. His lengthy list of professional awards indicate the scope of his achievement and are a testament to his talent as a scholar, professor, and administrator. Ohio State welcomes the opportunity to honor him for his distinguished and productive career.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-THIRD MEETING
OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Columbus, Ohio, September 3 and 4, 1987

The Board of Trustees met at its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, September 3, and Friday, September 4, 1987, at The Ohio State University Fawcett Center for Tomorrow, Columbus, Ohio, pursuant to adjournment.

Minutes of the last meeting were approved.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Vice Chairman, Mr. Immke, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on September 3, 1987, at 6:30 p.m. He requested the Secretary to call the roll. The meeting recessed into Executive Session for the purpose of considering legal issues and personnel-related matters.

Present: Leonard J. Immke, Vice Chairman, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, Deborah E. Casto, John W. Kessler, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Immke reconvened the meeting on September 4, 1987, at 9:35 a.m.

Present: Leonard J. Immke, Vice Chairman, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, Deborah E. Casto, John W. Kessler, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Immke:

We will go immediately to Mr. Frey, Vice President and General Manager of WTVN Radio, Perry --

Mr. Perry Frey:

My name is Perry Frey, and as Mr. Immke said, I am Vice President and General Manager of WTVN Radio. I have been with Taft in Columbus for fourteen years and eight of those years with WTVN. Dr. Jennings, I would like to thank you for permitting us to come before the Board today; Madison Scott, I would like to thank you for helping us arrange this.

With me today is Carl Wagner. Carl is President of Taft Radio and Cable Group; Carl is from our corporate offices in Cincinnati. Also present is John Potter -- John is our Sales Manager at WTVN Radio, he is our past Program Director and he has been Director and Producer of Ohio State football and basketball for fourteen years. Today we are also represented by counsel, Dave Johnson. Dave is with the law firm of Taft, Stettinius & Hollister.

I trust you have all received the documents we prepared for you. Enclosed in your packages is my letter to each of you outlining the points we want to make today, along with copies of the two competing bid packages, also, our letter to President Jennings dated May 8, 1987, which outlines errors in the implementation of the bid process, and a letter dated July 21, 1987, from Gordon Young, former Executive Vice President of Proctor and Gamble, now an independent media consultant and advertising expert.

That brings us to why we're here today. Nine months ago we were excited to learn that the University was going to award radio broadcast rights to Buckeye football and basketball games for the next five seasons on the basis of competitive bidding. That meant to us the highest and best bidder would be awarded the rights. We at WTVN Radio worked diligently to prepare the best bid package we could. A package which addressed all ten selection criteria, as set forth in the University's bid specifications. A package which was financially attractive to the University, a package which responded directly to all the written detailed bid specifications, a package which responded directly to the instructions that we received at a pre-bid meeting called by the University, and a package that was supported by facts, including an independent market study which clearly established our superior position in this market.

As it turned out, we submitted the only bid that met the bid specifications addressing the University's intent to establish its own network. And, we were the only vendor that submitted alternate proposals as requested on page 1 of the Radio Broadcast Proposal Specifications. As it turned out, we submitted the highest bid -- that is, the bid promising the most total compensation to the University, the most important of the ten selection criteria specifications. And here is where it gets interesting. John, will you show the exhibit.

I was told by Rick Bay, our bid was higher. I will show you an exhibit that clearly demonstrates that someone in this University or its Athletic Department grossly distorted the compensation portion of our bid and presented what you see on top of this exhibit to the Evaluation Committee. Just ignore the bottom for a moment, please. Somehow what got before the Evaluation Committee was that WTVN's bid was $341,000, WBNS's was $951,000. I don't know how that happened. The actual compensation is what you see on the bottom. Can everyone see that? Our figure of $1.8 million is a very conservative figure. We have deducted $250,000 from that figure for satellite fees. WBNS's is $1.1 million, an 86% difference. Our $1.8 million is a very conservative figure. There is cash of $976,000 in that, there are affiliate fees of $287,000 in that, and that is also included in WBNS's, there is in-kind compensation of $887,000 -- that would really total $2,150,000. We deducted the $250,000 in satellite fees and rounded it down to have a very conservative figure -- it came in at $1,863,100.

As you can see from the bottom of the exhibit the real value comparison on the two bids is quite different, but the Evaluation Committee did not see that. That is quite a difference. Why would the University ever walk away from this. I can't understand -- but let me go on, it gets more interesting.

For the second highest rated evaluation criteria we submitted the only bid that included plans to promote the University as an institution in all its academic and sports programs and not merely our own broadcasts. I won't take time to mention every one of them, but every one of WTVN's promises in this section promoted the University. Our competitor's bid offers not a single plan to promote the University, not one. It merely speaks of stadium novelty items and advertising and promotional materials aimed at promoting its own broadcasts, not this institution. Yet, the Evaluation Committee members rated our bids equal in this area. That is unbelievable nonsense, but let's go on.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Frey (contd):

We submitted the only bid that provides the University dynamic reach, not just football Saturdays, but all week. We have another exhibit. During the week we have an audience of 266,000 people, compared to WBNS's 79,000. If you were to leave here and go triple the size of your stadium, we fill that every day of the week, Monday through Friday; WBNS can hardly fill it one time. And, of course, this translates into advertising dollars. When the University, or we, sell time -- but make it specific to the University, when the University sells network sponsors advertising time, the University will generate higher revenues with WTVN as its flagship station. This is what takes place every day on the streets of Columbus. We have an average rate of $90.00, against an average rate of $25.00. Furthermore, we submitted the only bid that offered this University close association with a dominant station in this market and a sports network of unbeatable reach that included WKRC in Cincinnati, a dominant-rated station, the second largest radio market in this State and advertisers pay for that.

In conclusion, we submitted the highest and best bid and we lost. That's why we are here, to tell you about it and to see if it doesn't trouble someone other than us. That the University set ground rules for competitive bidding, rules designed to maximize revenues and opportunities for the University, then, unfairly and without notice, with a hidden agenda at which we can only guess, the University or its Athletic Department decided to change, ignore, or work around their own rules in order to select the losing bidder -- WBNS. This decision utterly fails to maximize revenues and opportunities for the University. It makes no economic or marketing sense whatsoever.

What should this Board do? This Board should do what's right, and that is, require that the University honor its own competitive bidding process and award the contract rights to the highest and best bidder -- that is clearly WTVN Radio. This will insure that a valuable public asset, the broadcast rights to the University's two major sports programs, is sold and marketed prudently and properly in a business-like fashion, in a way that most benefits the University today and for years to come.

You may be sitting there imagining the practical, and perhaps the political problems of taking this action. Therefore, you might want to consider for the upcoming season only, that WTVN be permitted to carry the football and basketball games along with WBNS. To insure that no loss of revenue occurs to the University, WTVN will pay its fair share of compensation to the University for these nonexclusive rights. Following this football and basketball season there are many solutions to this problem, and we will be happy to work with you on them. You are our last resort in the University. We admit that what we are asking you might be a hard thing for you to do, but as Trustees of this University, it is the right thing to do.

Again, I want to thank you, on behalf of all of us, for your time and cooperation in coming before this meeting. If anyone has questions, I'd be glad to try and answer them.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Immke:

Anyone have any questions? Thank you, Mr. Frey.

Mr. Frey:

Thank you, Mr. Immke, thank you, President Jennings.

Mr. Immke:

Call on Dr. Jennings --

President Jennings:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Thank you, Perry. As you know, the concerns that you have expressed today were brought to our attention by you and your counsel last May. And due to the nature of those allegations that were made, the University retained the services of Mr. Roderick Daane of Ann Arbor, Michigan, as an independent consultant to thoroughly investigate the process by which radio broadcasting rights to The Ohio State University football and basketball games were awarded.

After reviewing the documents, discussing the matter with members of the Selection Committee, Mr. Daane concluded that the process for the award of radio broadcasting rights was appropriate. The decision was made in a careful and deliberate manner. And I should also point out that the University established a competitive process for the purpose of achieving a fair decision, despite the fact that we were not required by law to bid this contract. Mr. Chairman, in my view, there is no reason to revise this decision or to further consider any other proposals.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, Mr. Frey.

Mr. Frey:

Thank you. Can we make one comment please?

Mr. Immke:

Sure.

Mr. Frey:

Dave Johnson, please --

Mr. Johnson:

Excuse me, Mr. Chairman, will the Board be considering an appropriate action -- we have heard from Mr. Frey, and President Jennings has made his statement. Is the Board going to consider this in some sort of Executive Session, or when will the decision on any action or nonaction be made?

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

We wouldn't be allowed to consider it an Executive Session.

Mr. Immke:

We wouldn't be able to do that. We have all received all the documentation on all of the reports and I believe you have had your reply.

Mr. Johnson:

President Jennings's reply is the reply of the Board of Trustees?

President Jennings:

It is my recommendation to the Board.

Mr. Johnson:

Your recommendation to the Board. Our question simply is when will the Board act on your recommendation?

President Jennings:

I think they acted by not overturning my recommendation.

Mr. Johnson:

So, the administrative action of this Board of Trustees has now been completed on our request?

President Jennings:

I would think so.

Mr. Johnson:

Thank you.

Mr. Frey:

Are we free to go?

President Jennings:

Yes, you're free to go.

Mr. Immke:

Mrs. Bowser, I would like to call on you to give your report.

Mrs. Bowser:

As you know, I am one of the two members of the Board of Trustees on the University Hospitals Board. Mr. Immke is my co-member and since he is serving in capacity as Chairman today, I would like to report on The Ohio State University Hospitals Board.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

I am going to talk about three issues, one is the Strategic Planning Process. You may remember when Charles Lazarus was Chairman of the Hospitals Board and Jack Havens was our Chairman, there was some discussion about a need for a strategic plan that would include the College of Medicine, the Medical Staff and the University Hospitals. That had sort of a slow start, but it has picked up steam and I'd like to report on that particular process.

The Hospitals Board is also going through a self-evaluation process right now. The Chairman of the Board, Mr. Vorys, had appointed Pete Klisares as Chairman, and I serve on that committee, too, and I want to give you a preliminary report on the self-evaluation. And finally, I will have some comments to make on the Financial Summary ending June 30, 1987.

Strategic Planning Process

The strategic planning consulting firm of Hamilton/Kurt Salmon and Associates is presently conducting five strategic issues discussion sessions with faculty members of The Ohio State University College of Medicine in order to solicit feedback from our medical faculty on potential future directions for the medical center relative to these four issues: 1) educational mission; 2) organization and role; 3) competitive position; and 4) modes of delivery.

During the month of September and early October, University Hospitals Administration and the University Hospitals Board will also be given the opportunity to participate in a similar process of providing their respective insights into future options.

Following the completion of this phase in the planning process, the Strategic Planning Task Force, appointed by President Jennings last year, will reconvene to begin indepth evaluation of the final draft of the plan. And that will be presented to the University Hospitals Board and finally, to the University Board of Trustees for consideration and support later this fall.

Up to this point in time, the Hospitals' consultants have conducted extensive environmental analyses of the Central Ohio marketplace and indepth internal assessments of both the College of Medicine and University Hospitals in terms of historical operations and the strengths and weaknesses of each component of the medical center. The level of analysis lead to the development of a set of major strategic issues facing the organization demanding future resolution. Two strategic planning retreats have been held to begin discussion around these issues and options for the future. In attendance have been University Hospitals Board members, College of Medicine Clinical Chairpersons and Division Chiefs, University Hospitals Administration, basic sciences faculty directors, and College of Medicine Administration. Current or upcoming meetings are intended to delve into greater depth and discussion around future alternatives for the medical center.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser: (contd)

Just as a thought in passing, there have been some very good discussions and some good things have come out. Nothing is finalized at this point, but I think this is a plan that once it is developed, it will certainly be one that we can use and plan from.

Board Self-Evaluation

Over the past four months the Hospitals Board has undertaken a major review of its own performance in the last year. It further established a task force to recommend changes in the Hospitals' committee structure as well as format and kinds of information to be reviewed at future meetings.

The intent of such changes will be to help the Board focus not only on the day-to-day issues, but on strategic planning issues revolving around the Hospitals' teaching and research mission. It is anticipated that the task force recommendations will be considered by the full Board in September for initial implementation beginning October of this year, pending review by the President and the Board of Trustees. It will be brought to you sometime this fall.

Financial Summary Ending June 30, 1987

University Hospitals ended the year with admissions equal to budget (28,664 admissions) and patient days exceeding budget by 1.4%. The average daily census for the year was 653 patients versus 643 patients for the prior year. For the year Clinic visits exceeded budget by 6.9% and emergency visits exceeded budget by 4.6%. The Hospitals' net income was $1,338,000 versus $1,643,000 for the prior year.

Days in patient accounts receivable at June 30, 1987, were 100 days versus 105 days the prior year (the majority was due to delays in payment by Medicare and the State Medicaid program). Accounts receivable have decreased approximately 5 million dollars the last three months resulting in a cash balance of $8,898,000 at June 30, 1987.

The Board has recently had the opportunity to review the first draft of financial projections for the Cancer Hospital and Research Institute and a three year financial projection for all the Hospitals. Additional review will be given to these items in the months ahead by the Finance Committee of the Hospitals Board.

This Board is a really hard working Board, lots of meetings and lots of time has been spent, this year particularly I think, with the Cancer Hospital coming on board in the near future. If there are any questions, either Mr. Immke or Mr. Covert, who is in the audience, or I would be happy to answer them if we can.

Mr. Immke:

Any questions? Any questions of Mr. Covert?

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

Was it the intention that we submit this report?

Mr. Scott:

Yes, Shirley, that will be in the minutes.

President Jennings:

That is an outstanding report, Mrs. Bowser. I am particularly pleased with the planning that has gone on by the Board, by Mike's staff. As we all know, operations of hospitals, particularly university hospitals, are changing dramatically and this hospital, adding on top of that, is increasing its research activity in the magnitude of 20% a year. This is a hospital that is becoming a very different institution than it has been in times gone by. The planning that is going on now, I think, is extraordinarily important. The planning is being done well, because it is being done so flexibly. Recognizing that none of us can predict the future in any of this and recognizing that the changes that we have seen in the last several years probably are going to be small compared to the changes that we will see in the next several years -- not just with reimbursement, but the characteristics of care, the outpatient activity, and the very high-level tertiary care that is being delivered at that hospital. I think now with 19 heart transplants, we have one of the, if not the, best record in the nation in terms of survival rate. The bone marrow transplant, the MRI activity, and with the new heads in Surgery and OB-GYN, and Internal Medicine, those very large departments are transforming the characteristics of this hospital. I would urge all of to look at this very carefully, because it is a serious issue and these planning activities are going to be done very professionally and very well.

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, I think that once the strategic plan is formulated every member of the Board of Trustees will receive a copy of that, won't they Mike? I think it would be well worth your time to look through it. It's been painful and it's taken some time to really confront these issues and talk about them and do the best, as the President has said, to do the best we can to solve them for the future.

President Jennings:

One of the things that I think I like best and recognize best is that whenever we get talking about the Hospitals, the Hospitals Board is the first to remind us that this is first and foremost an academic institution and that our academic objectives have to be paramount on our minds. And that does make it very different and the fundamental recognition of that is extraordinarily important, because we are changing faster than other hospitals are because of the academic mission.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Kessler:

I think the Hospitals is certainly a big asset for the University, and for Columbus, and the region around us. I don't have any idea how to relate how it is doing comparably. Do we have a peer group? When we talk about things, we do have peer groups, we compare ourselves with colleges in the Big 10. I think it would be helpful, for me anyway, to see how we would compare to "our peer group in University Hospitals" in different areas.

Mrs. Bowser:

That is interesting, because the Hospitals Board has been talking about similar kinds of comparisons. It is hard, because you can't compare yourself to a Riverside, or Mount Carmel or Saint Anthony, because it is not the same mission. I am sure that we are going to be getting into that a little bit more don't you think, Mike, as we go along?

Mr. Covert:

Shirley, there is a group of hospitals and data that we have been using, at least administratively, over the last 2 - 2 1/2 years since I've been here, which is a peer group of what I'll refer to as comparable kinds of institutions, but they may not be exact. Included in that would be a number of the other Big 10 hospitals, Duke University Hospital, University of North Carolina, Vanderbilt, Barnes Hospital in St. Louis associated with Washington University, Stanford. There is a group of those that we can compare to in terms of not just financial kinds of data, but other kinds of data and we have been approaching them. As a matter of fact, even in the last week we have been meeting with both people from the University of Cincinnati and Cleveland Clinic as ways for us to compare that data so that it is useful for us, particularly in Ohio to give us a reference point.

President Jennings:

I think it is instructive when Mike goes through that and yes some of the Big 10, but in many ways our hospital is more comparable to a hospital facility at a private university, because so many of the Big 10 institutions are anywhere from 40% - 70% funded by their state. Whereas our hospital has, other than facilities, no state funding associated with it at all. The hospital where I came from, the University of Iowa, roughly 70% of their costs were picked up by the State of Iowa.

Mrs. Bowser:

And it's the one tertiary care center for the whole state and that isn't true here. So the competition, the whole --

Mr. Kessler:

Well, I think a peer group is one that you aspire to be --

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings:

But it is more inclined towards the private school and I mention that because I sometimes am accused of railing against the private schools, but in this context we are typically more similar to a Vanderbilt or a Stanford or a Northwestern --

Mr. Kessler:

Well, I think it would be helpful.

President Jennings:

Good, that is an important part.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, Shirley, for your outstanding report. Thank you, Michael, for being here and available. You have one more comment, Shirley?

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, as Chairman of the Standing Committee on Agricultural Affairs, I would like to ballyhoo the Farm Science Review, which will occur before we have another meeting. That's the fourth week in September, I think it is the 22, 23, and 24. Vice President Hutchinson is in Vienna, serving on a different committee, so he is not here to tell you about it, but it is the 25th Anniversary of the Farm Science Review. And because of the downturn in economic factors in the agricultural world, there was some thought that maybe they wouldn't have as many exhibitors this year, but they have as many, if not more than they ever had. So they are expecting a really fine Farm Science Review. I think we haven't had any rain south of Interstate 70 and it will probably rain every day that week, but barring the weather -- and that won't bother the farmers, they'll just put on their boots. It might bother the rest of you.

President Jennings:

Are we going to do some combining of beans?

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, we are going do some combining of beans there.

Mr. Kessler:

Why did you look at Mr. Berry, when you said that?

Mrs. Bowser:

He is a farmer, he's coming.

Mr. Berry:

I'm a farmer.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

He's the other farmer.

Mrs. Bowser:

Sure, and we're going to show some combining of beans, as the President said. But anyway, if you are available that day, I am sure you will be contacted and invited personally, and it is a very nice opportunity to see agriculture, a real showcase of agriculture. I just wanted to make that comment.

Mr. Teaford:

And as a total city boy, I would like to indicate that I have been there a couple of times, and it is well worth the visit. It is very interesting and a lot of fun.

Mrs. Bowser:

And agriculture is Ohio's number one industry.

Mr. Barone:

And if I may add, according to the Today program this morning, they talked about the agriculture industry this year. I think it was second in the number of billions that agriculture brings into this country in export. They ended up by saying, "who can say that agriculture is a small business and that the prices are not exorbitant." I thought you --

Mrs. Bowser:

Thank you, John, I appreciate all these good comments.

President Jennings:

In all seriousness, Fred will say that agriculture and food production is 22% of the gross state product of the State of Ohio. Food production, as well, and food distribution, but food as an industry in Ohio is 22% of our gross state product, which is --

Mrs. Bowser:

No mean thing.

Mr. Immke:

We have a lot of big users! Thank you, Shirley. Dr. Jennings, will you present your agenda.

CHANGE "THE DR. MARS G. FONTANA ENDOWMENT FUND" TO "THE DR. MARS G. FONTANA PROFESSORSHIP IN METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING"

Resolution No. 88-17

Synopsis: Changing "The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Endowment Fund" to "The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Professorship in Metallurgical Engineering" is proposed.

WHEREAS in accordance with the guidelines previously established by this Board, "The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Endowment Fund" was established on May 1, 1981; and

WHEREAS all gifts are to be invested in the University's Permanent Endowment Fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates; and

WHEREAS at the time of the establishment of the endowed fund it was agreed that the fund be redesignated The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Professorship in Metallurgical Engineering when the level of funding reaches $250,000; and

WHEREAS the level of funding has now reached the level required through unexpended earnings on the original investment:

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Endowment Fund be changed to The Dr. Mars G. Fontana Professorship in Metallurgical Engineering. In keeping with the provisions of the original endowed fund, 80% of the income is to be used for the professorship; the recipient shall at no time be a department chairperson, dean or person in a comparable administrative position, past or present; the remaining 20% of the annual income is to be added to the endowment fund principal; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That should the need for this fund cease to exist or so diminish as to provide insufficient funds to continue the endowed professorship, then the income is to be used as determined by the Board of Trustees to provide scholarships primarily for qualified and needy students in the Department of Metallurgical Engineering. Recipients are to be determined by the appropriate administrative official directly responsible for the College of Engineering and the Department of Metallurgical Engineering.

Upon motion of Mr. Barone, seconded by Mr. Teaford, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 88-19

Synopsis: Resolutions honoring the service of seven of the University's faculty members who have recently died are being proposed.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Luther M. Keith, Jr.

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on June 19, 1987, of Luther M. Keith, Jr., Professor in the Department of Surgery.

Dr. Keith was born November 3, 1919, in Ralls, Texas. He graduated from Texas Technical College in Lubbock, and received his M.D. degree from the University of Tennessee. He served in the United States Navy from 1945-46 and 1950-52.

Dr. Keith was appointed Instructor in the Department of Surgery in 1950 and remained on the faculty until his death. He was Vice Chairperson of the Department of Surgery from 1972 until 1987 and Acting Chairperson in 1974-75.

In addition to his role in the Department of Surgery, he was Team Physician in the Department of Athletics.

Throughout his career, Dr. Keith was a dedicated teacher and role model for students and residents. His calm demeanor and expectation of excellence were important attributes in guiding his students.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Gertrude C. Kuehefuhs

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on July 21, 1987, of Gertrude C. Kuehefuhs, Professor Emeritus and former Chairman of the Division of Music Theory and Composition in the School of Music.

Professor Kuehefuhs was born September 17, 1916, in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. As a child she demonstrated an exceptional talent for music and had the good fortune to study with leading Philadelphia teachers, including Leopold Sayre and Vincent Jones. She attended Temple University, receiving a B.S. in Education in 1938 and an Ed.M. in Music in 1939. Subsequently, she studied at the Pius X School of Liturgical Music in New York and attended summer sessions of the Eastman School of Music, Tanglewood.

Following four years of teaching music in the Philadelphia Public Schools, Professor Kuehefuhs joined the faculty of The Ohio State University in 1943. Her forty-three years of service to the School of Music profoundly influenced the development of the curriculum. From 1962 to 1968, she served as a division chairman, and in 1964 she was promoted to the rank of Professor of Music. Professor Kuehefuhs was the first woman in the history of the School of Music to achieve either of these distinctions. Upon her retirement in 1985, she was named Professor Emeritus.

September 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Gertrude C. Kuehefuhs (contd)

Professor Kuehefuhs was a member of a number of professional societies and served as president of the Ohio Theory-Composition Teachers Association and of The Ohio State University Chapter of the Pi Kappa Lambda Music Honorary Society.

Throughout her tenure, Professor Kuehefuhs enlivened her teaching by maintaining an active performing career. She was harpist for the Columbus Philharmonic Orchestra from 1943 until its demise in 1945 and principal keyboard specialist for the Columbus Symphony Orchestra from its inception in 1951 until her retirement. As a respected chamber musician and accompanist, she participated in over 300 major recitals. Also active as a church musician, she was organist in many Columbus Catholic Churches and director of the Newman Center Choir for several decades.

In recent years she extended her contribution to the community as reader for the Central Ohio Radio Reading Service.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Hollie W. Shupe

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on July 20, 1987, of Hollie W. Shupe, University Architect Emeritus in the Office of the University Architect.

Hollie Shupe was born on October 9, 1915, in Columbia Center, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Architecture degree from The Ohio State University in 1936. A member of Phi Eta Sigma, Tau Beta Pi, and Alpha Rho Chi, he was awarded the American Institute of Architects' School Medal for outstanding academic achievement in his senior year.

Professor Shupe was a registered architect and a registered professional engineer in the State of Ohio. His early professional experience included research in early American architecture. During the Second World War, he served in the Americal Division, U. S. Army, in the Asiatic-Pacific theater and attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He received a Bronze Star, an Air Medal, Presidential Unit Citation, Distinguished Unit Citation, and several battle stars.

In 1939, he joined the faculty of the College of Engineering and in 1948 was named Professor of Engineering Drawing. Professor Shupe's academic accomplishments included co-authoring four text books and work books on engineering graphics. He was named University Architect in 1965, having previously worked in the Office of the University Architect on such buildings as Canfield Hall, Vivian Hall, and the north wing of the University Hospital. As University Architect, he administered the design and construction of nearly $200,000,000 in new buildings, including essentially the entire development of all regional campuses, the West Campus, and numerous other buildings on the Columbus Campus. Following his retirement in 1973, Professor Shupe assisted the City of Marietta in the restoration of that city's business center.

On behalf of the University Community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Hollie W. Shupe its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

George R. Staten

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on August 10, 1987, of George R. Staten, Professor Emeritus in the School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and long time director of football ticket sales.

Born in 1901, George Staten attended high school in Portsmouth, Ohio. He served as Assistant Football Coach at The Ohio State University in 1933-34 after leaving a position at Ohio Wesleyan University where he was Assistant Director of Athletics from 1924-33. He served as Director of Athletics at the John Burroughs School in St. Louis, Missouri, from 1934-50. While there his coaching in baseball, basketball, and football brought many league championships to the school. In 1950, he returned to Ohio State as freshman baseball and basketball coach as well as assistant football coach. In 1953, he was appointed as Director of Ticket Sales. Under his leadership Ohio State ranked first in total attendance at home games for sixteen out of seventeen, between 1953 and 1969. He was granted tenure in 1954. He retired from his position in 1970 and was named Professor Emeritus.

The strong leadership and managerial excellence displayed by George Staten contributed to bringing the Ohio State football program into the national prominence it holds today.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Mrs. Tucker graduated from the Columbus School for Girls in 1929; from Wellesley College in 1933 with a B.A.; and from The Ohio State University in 1939 with a M.A. in English. Her 16-year career at Ohio State began in 1960 as an Assistant Instructor. She was promoted to Instructor in 1965. Mrs. Tucker taught primarily Technical Writing, American Literature, and Advanced Composition. She was also a research assistant for the Centennial Edition of Emerson's Essays. Upon her retirement in 1976, she was named Instructor Emeritus.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Mrs. Tucker its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as a sincere expression of the Board's realization of the loss that the family, the University and her many friends and associates have sustained.

Morris Emmet Wilson

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 23, 1987, of M. Emmet Wilson, Professor Emeritus in the School of Music.

Dr. Wilson was born June 10, 1894, in Oshkosh, Wisconsin. His early musical training included study with distinguished teachers, such as Arne Oldberg and Leo Sowerby. His academic training was broadly based. He earned a B.A. in Philosophy at the University of Minnesota (1921); an A.M. in Education at the University of Chicago (1927); and a Ph.D. in Psychology at The Ohio State University (1930). In addition, he earned the degree Associate of the Guild of American Organists (1925).

Prior to coming to Ohio State, Dr. Wilson enjoyed a varied musical career in Chicago. Notable posts were Organist and Choirmaster at the Episcopal Cathedral and at the Grace Church, Organist at the Adams Theater, and Director of the University of Chicago Band (1922-27), during the time when the University was still affiliated with the Big Ten Conference.

In 1927, Dr. Wilson was appointed Associate Professor of Instrumental Music at The Ohio State University and in 1935 he was promoted to the rank of Professor of Music. During his distinguished tenure he had the honor of serving as Visiting Professor at the Carnegie Institute of Technology (1937) and as Exchange Professor to the University of London (1952-53). Upon his retirement in 1960, he was named Professor Emeritus.

Dr. Wilson was a member of many professional societies, including the College Music Society, the Music Educators National Conference, and the American Society of Aesthetics. He served as Dean of the Central Ohio Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. His books, Music History at a Glance and How to Play by Ear, were widely read, and his music history broadcasts on WOSU radio (1942-59) gained a devoted listening audience.

The death of M. Emmet Wilson marks a milestone in the history of the School of Music; he was the last of the original five member of the music faculty.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tenured to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

International Business and Foreign Language Study

The Huntington National Bank Fellows in International Business and Foreign Language Study was established September 4, 1987, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with gift(s) to The Ohio State University Development Fund from The Huntington National Bank of Columbus, Ohio.

All gifts are to be invested in the University's Permanent Endowment Fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates.

The annual income shall be used to permit students majoring in the humanities with interest and supporting work in international business and trade to spend an academic year abroad to strengthen their fluency in a foreign language, knowledge of a foreign culture, and understanding of the workings and environment of international commerce.

At the time of application, students must: 1) be sophomores or juniors at The Ohio State University; 2) have completed a minimum of the first two years (six quarters or four semesters) of OSU foreign language study or its equivalent; and 3) have been admitted to, and be participants in good standing in the OSU "Capstone" program.

International Business and Foreign Language Study (contd)

The program will be coordinated through the OSU Foreign Language Center. Working with the home department, the appropriate foreign language department, the OSU Office of International Programs, and advisers from the community and the OSU College of Business, the Foreign Language Center and student applicants will identify programs in the country of choice that will provide both linguistic and academic advancement as well as work or internship-type experiences in the formal commercial business environment.

The first Huntington National Bank Fellows in International Business and Foreign Language Study Award will be made during the second year of the endowment. Awards of up to $8,000 will be made every year thereafter. These awards will cover travel, tuition, and living costs, and will be made annually.

It is the desire of the donors that this fund should benefit the University in perpetuity. If the need for this fund should cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income, then another use shall be designated by the Board of Trustees in order to carry out the desire of the donors.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FOURTH MEETING
OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Columbus, Ohio, October 1 and 2, 1987

The Board of Trustees met at its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, October 1, and Friday, October 2, 1987, at The Ohio State University Fawcett Center for Tomorrow, Columbus, Ohio, pursuant to adjournment.

Minutes of the last meeting were approved.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Chairman, Mr. Redman, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on October 1, 1987, at 6:35 p.m. He requested the Secretary to call the roll. The meeting recessed into Executive Session for the purpose of considering legal issues and personnel-related matters.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, Leonard J. Immke, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Redman reconvened the meeting on October 2, 1987, at 10:20 a.m.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, John W. Kessler, and Milton A. Wolf.

--0--

Mr. Redman:

Mrs. Bowser, would you like to talk about the Hospitals Board Committee?

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, I think Mr. Immke has already reported here on that subject.

Mr. Redman:

I was going to ask, Mrs. Bowser, in light of this and since we just received the written report this morning, if you could give us a recap on the important items in it.

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, this is the first time I have seen it, too. However, I have participated in these major activities. I think it's self-explanatory. Mr. Covert is here, Dr. Tzagournis is here --

Mr. Scott:

Mike, would you like to comment on this?

Mr. Covert:

Sure, let me take a minute or two. We had anticipated Mr. Immke would be here to give a brief report. I'll highlight several of the key items for you, and then if you have questions, I'd be pleased to answer them or discuss them with you.

The Hospitals Board, as indicated, did meet on September 27, and all of its appropriate subcommittees met. There were a number of items reviewed: the medical staff appointments, as well as an amendment to the Bylaws of the Medical Staff that dealt with, what we will refer to as physician extenders, physician assistants, and how they are appropriately credentialled in the Hospital setting. We heard several reports of quality assurance related activities from both the Otolaryngology, as well as our Ophthalmology Departments; and a report from Dr. Joseph Drago, head of the Division of Urology, talking about some of the latest developments in using lasers to crush kidney stones. I believe I saw a report in the Dispatch this morning also outlining some of that activity.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

I would highlight three or four items for you. In the month of July the Hospitals exceeded their budgeted admissions by 3%, and clinic visits exceeded budget by 6%. We think this is a trend that will continue. Revenues exceeded expenses by approximately $168,000.

The four or five items that I would bring up to you, Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board, are items of discussion on our MedOhio facilities, a report of accreditation of our rehabilitation center, as well as a brief review of the Boards' Self-Evaluation Task Force recommendations, and a brief note on the Cancer committee activities.

We reviewed a financial statement, as well as information on the first 3 1/2 months of operation. It has been our intent to establish an estimate. There are two budgets on the MedOhio, the first through June 30, and then the budget year, tied to our fiscal year, of July 1 through June 30. During that particular period of time, our budgeted visits to those facilities on a per day basis were somewhat down. Those are directly related to our use of the Reynoldsburg facility, as we had several physicians who were practicing there who left the Reynoldsburg facility just prior to our taking that over. That's a result of some concerns on their part in working with Humana and they decided to go out into private practice. So our numbers were somewhat down; you can see that in the report. We are ahead of schedule, however, in terms of our budget financially during that period of time. Budgeted losses were, in an initial three-month period, some $56,000. After our initial takeover, our actual losses were only approximately $24,000. I would tell you that in the actual months of July and August they have begun to turn a specific profit of approximately $10,000-$15,000. Overall, we think that will continue and I will continue to report on that.

Mr. Redman:

This is an area that Mr. Kessler and I are both interested in. I'm happy to hear you report that our loss wasn't as great as our budgeted loss, although this is only through June 30. Is that correct?

Mr. Covert:

That is correct. We believe that if our admissions would have actually held to what we had anticipated, if we had not seen the change in the movement of those physicians in the Reynoldsburg facility, that we would have been profitable all those particular months. Now, I will tell you that those items have been corrected and we do have stable medical staff out there at this point. That is why you have begun to see the change in July and August. But there is no question that did have an impact on us for that period of time.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

Am I right that profit does not include capital costs?

Mr. Covert:

That's right.

Mr. Redman:

And it doesn't include interest on the investment?

Mr. Covert:

That is what we were referring to, as it is part of the endowment at this point. If that should transfer, obviously those activities would have to be accounted for and that is what we would use those surplus monies for.

Mr. Redman:

In that computation, Mr. Covert, you take no credit for any teaching service that may be rendered and we get the benefit from Humana, is that correct?

Mr. Covert:

We have not taken any teaching credits. We have not taken into account major changes and significant accounts receivable that we had also collected on Humana's behalf during that time, that is correct.

Mr. Redman:

Well, I think we should see both sides of the coin.

Mr. Covert:

I think, Mr. Chairman, we were just trying to take it in pure dollars and cents. You had a look at it from a pure viewpoint, but I will do that in the future.

If there are no other questions on that -- the other key item is that we did receive accreditation on our Rehabilitation Facility at Dodd Hall through the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities. C.A.R.F. is similar to the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, and they only look at rehab hospitals. We received a full three-year accreditation with no significant deviations. I think we are really proud of that and what the staff has been able to achieve. It makes us one of several major accredited centers in the United States at this point, and we are really pleased with that.

A couple of other items that I bring to you are that the Self-Evaluation Task Force, that was chaired by Mr. Klisares, brought a presentation together on potential reorganization of a number of the Board committees and how information is presented to them. There was an active and lively discussion in that regard as to how we might wish to do that in the future. It is not only a requirement from the part of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals that we do that, but I think it was a very good exercise on our behalf as we take a look on how we operate and how we continue to function on behalf of the Board of Trustees. I think it was also an extensive discussion on the expectations of staff and myself, in terms of information being presented. I believe that there will be more discussion on that and we'll defer that piece to Mrs. Bowser as I complete the activity discussion here.

The Ad Hoc Cancer Committee of the Hospitals Board has met three times over the last month to begin to review and gear up, if you will, for the official operation of the Cancer Hospital. At that time, Dr. Tzagournis and Dr. James had an opportunity to review continuing activities in the search for the director, ongoing construction activities, financing of the operation, and analysis of support requirements. For those who are not familiar with the Committee, it is made up of Messrs. Immke, Havens, Lazarus, Duncan, and Vorys, and they will continue to meet to review all of our gearing up for operation.

Mr. Redman:

Where are we on the selection of a head for the cancer hospital?

Mr. Covert:

I believe there are ongoing discussions in that regard with one or two candidates. I don't believe that they have been finalized at this point, and I would defer to Dr. Tzagournis.

Mr. Redman:

Have you narrowed it down to one or two?

Dr. Tzagournis:

Yes.

Mr. Redman:

When will that determination be made known?

Dr. Tzagournis:

We hope this month, at the end of October.

Mr. Redman:

Really, we can't get off the ground until we get that fellow, can we? Is that a correct statement, or not? We're just brick and mortar now.

Dr. Tzagournis:

Well, we have -- Dr. James is the Medical Director, he is really performing those functions, he is trying to get the equipment ready.

Dr. Tzagournis: (contd)

Mr. Covert:

In some of the operational areas, as you have also directed and the Hospitals Board has directed, we have been meeting to gear up operation in support of the facilities specifically. And those activities are activities that need to go on either way at this point so that we are ready to open up on day one.

The last item that was brought to the attention of the Hospitals Board was an issue on accounts receivable and some significant late payments on the part of Medicaid service in the State. We were in arrears some $3.3 million that had been owed to us for over a year. We did ask for help from the Attorney General's Office to solicit and get the attention of the Medicaid Office to help us with that. At this point in time, less than $1 million of that $3.3 million is still owed to us and will be paid shortly. So, we've been pleased with that support and have received those funds.

Those are the major items of report that I would --

Mr. Redman:

Did you expand on the Humana possibility of collecting a portion of those receivables? Did you mention that?

Mr. Covert:

Yes.

Mr. Redman:

So that we expect to pick up a net of about $300,000, is that correct?

Mr. Covert:

Potentially, I think we were looking at probably a quarter of a million for the accounts receivables on their behalf. I think they are pleased that we were willing to do that, and we have been successful.

Mr. Redman:

So to convert that to Mr. Kessler's and my concern -- our cash price was $6.5 million?

Mr. Covert:

That is correct.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

If we applied that credit against that, we would end up with somewhere around $6.2 million.

Mr. Covert:

That is correct. With the forgiving of loans that they have made previously to physician groups involved with that as they first got started, in terms of the actual costs to the institution and to the potential costs and to our related groups, we would be looking in the neighborhood of that purchase being $6 million.

Mr. Redman:

Their asking price in the beginning was $8.5 million.

Mr. Covert:

Initially, $8.5 million, and as you recall from the discussions with Mt. Carmel and -- I think that was public knowledge -- they were looking at Mt. Carmel with $7,750,000.00.

Mr. Redman:

Are you through with the report?

Mr. Covert:

I would defer to any questions you may have.

Mr. Redman:

I would like to ask, I'm doing all the asking here, but where are we on the helicopter?

Mr. Covert:

On the helicopter consortium -- at this point they are operational in terms of their activities.

Mr. Redman:

Who is they?

Mr. Covert:

Mt. Carmel, ourselves, St. Anthony, and Mercy are the combined participants in that group. The helicopter has just been leased, the staff put together, and it will officially begin its operation, tentatively, the first of November. I would make a comment to you that we are still in active negotiations with Grant Hospital, I think I have indicated that publicly on several occasions. We will continue to negotiate to see if we can pull ourselves together so that there is only one active service in the community. There was an opportunity through the Coalition of Cost Effectiveness group for Board Members, as well as representatives of the Hospitals and the President was invited to participate, to continue that ongoing activity. I think we have publicly professed, and will continue to do so, that it is our desire to pull those efforts together. If we can do so, it would be our hope to be able to achieve that in the next 30-45 days at the latest.

Mr. Covert: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

So I understand then that you have finalized your contractual relations with Mt. Carmel and White Cross? No?

Mr. Covert:

St. Anthony. Yes, that has been ongoing. It is truly a consortium and if you are asking me whether or not they have come up with the cash and they have paid it, yes, they have.

Mr. Redman:

They have. Have you purchased a helicopter?

Mr. Covert:

This is not a purchase, this is a lease agreement that is from year-to-year and gives us options to continue to do that. However, the actual costs associated with that are fixed for a several-year period of time.

Mr. Redman:

But, that service would then begin, in your judgement, about November 1. Irrespective of Grant's participation or not?

Mr. Covert:

That is correct. Now, if there are opportunities for us to work together and to merge those after that, we will continue to do so.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, I wanted to raise one thing as a consumer of the Hospitals' services this past summer. During my stay I thought that the nursing care and doctors' care was superb and I couldn't even conceive of having any complaints about it, but the billing system still drives you up a tree. I can't even tell you how many bills that I have received because I went there. I don't know what they relate to and I don't know whether they get paid or not. We have simply got to come up with a system, so that if I go to that hospital, I get ONE bill. It is not fair to the person who is using the hospital to get the stuff you get. I have a secretary who works on trying to figure out whether I've paid, what I've paid, and so forth. She and I can't do it.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

The Hospitals Board has discussed this --

Mr. Redman:

I want to advise Mr. Covert that I didn't put you up to that. This was volunteered on your own.

Mr. Teaford:

No, no, nobody put me up to this. This is absolutely my own comment. But, I think we really have to move on that.

Mrs. Bowser:

We really have been working on this.

Dr. Tzagournis:

Mr. Redman just asked me to invite him to the next committee meeting on central billing which I plan to attend. We can attend it together. That committee is pretty much on schedule, you remember this Board gave them a phase-in time. They do have a consultant's report and we plan to bring this to the Hospitals Board's next meeting for a report. Then, I think, Mr. Redman will bring it to your Board next time. We'll give you a good progress report.

Mr. Redman:

It might not be amiss, Dr. Tzagournis, to send Mr. Teaford and the other members of the Board of Trustees the consultant's report so they will have the benefit of that before the next meeting.

Dr. Tzagournis:

I'd be happy to.

President Jennings:

It could represent a major breakthrough in hospital activity as it this is not unique to Ohio State. If we get this one solved, we've worked a minor miracle. I would also suggest perhaps we ought to include members of the Trustees in the University's PPO where there is no paperwork.

Mr. Teaford:

I'd love that.

Mr. Kessler:

Why is it so complicated?

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

How much time do you have?

President Jennings:

It's federal rules, state rules, Blue Cross rules --

Mr. Redman:

However, it needs a solution. I am satisfied from an accounting stand point that it can be solved, but I want to make this statement for the public record that we cannot be unfair with the doctors. If we don't have doctors on our staff, we wouldn't have any hospital. And they are there for a lot of reasons, one of which is to make money. We can't make the billing system so they can't get paid. That is one of the concerns that some of the doctors have mentioned to me directly. And I have solicited their comment, asking, "What are you afraid of?" We've got the consumer problem as Mr. Teaford has outlined, and I think we need to do something about it. But by the same token we need to assure the physicians on the staff that we are not going to make it so that they can't exist and get their money within a reasonable time -- that's all.

Mr. Teaford:

My sense is that the current billing system contributes to their getting their money slower. Because if I had had all of those on one bill, they would have simply been paid, but I had to check each one because I didn't know what they were. And there is no question that I paid those doctors slower than I would have paid had we had a uniformed billing system.

Mr. Redman:

When you get through with those, Mr. Teaford, I'll be getting a few and I'll send them down to your secretary.

Mr. Teaford:

Oh, please don't, she will kill me!

Mrs. Bowser:

I just want to reemphasize the point that Dr. Tzagournis and Mr. Covert have been working on this problem. It is not that it has been shelved, it has not. And I think Mr. Havens had a comment or two at the last meeting that he had a suggestion which Dr. Tzagournis is going to take under advisement. So, it is not something that has been put on the shelf, they are on the same time-frame that we gave these gentlemen.

Mr. Redman:

Well, we don't want to be slow like the seven-year itch. We don't want Mr. Teaford's wife to pass away before we can get his bill straightened out.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

Even worse, she doesn't want me to pass away before the bills are paid.

Mr. Redman:

Having had outside consultants now, and pragmatic review of the problem, I think we would all benefit by having that. Is there anything else? We'll have the Foundation Board report -- do you have anything to report?

Mr. Teaford:

Yes, I do, Mr. Chairman. First of all, Mr. Chairman, I have not said this publicly, and I want to make sure I do, that I think this is an important innovation that you have added this year to have these reports, and I am particularly pleased that you have done it.

You have already heard the principle things that the Foundation Board has done in Vice President Tobin's report at this morning's committee meeting. As you know, we are at some 64% of the goal already. I have a list of the members of the Foundation Board and I think it would be useful to pass it around so that we are aware of the persons who are devoting so much time to make this a reality.

As you know, the principle criteria for being on this Board is the ability to raise or, in fact, donate $1 million to the University; other than those who are on there because they are members of the Board of Trustees, lest anyone think I am capable of such generosity. But as important as the gifts -- and as you know, our Chairman of that Board, Les Wexner, has announced an increase in his gift from $10 million to $25 million -- there is a great deal of time and energy being spent by the members of the Board that are a great help to this institution. A few examples are -- and I am happy to point out that a number of those examples sit on this Board -- Len Immke has been involved in the Campaign on behalf of the Cancer Hospital and Research Institute and has served as a host for a number of local and regional development events; Jack Kessler, Bernie Gerlach, Dan Galbreath, and Mel Schottenstein have all been active in the Columbus Regional Campaign; and Richard Leet is active in the Chicago Regional Campaign. Also, David Sharrock, who is on the Board, has been involved in the Cincinnati Campaign. Jack, Bernie, and Mel, along with Alex Schoenbaum, have also worked to build the athletic portion of the Campaign. Fred Ruffner, who is on the Board, but is also the Chair of the National Campaign Steering Committee, has hosted numerous Development events. He maintains an ongoing open line of communication with the University and is a strong advocate on its behalf. Richard Denman serves as co-chair of the Medical Center portion of the Campaign and Ralph Kent is the Chair of the College of Business Campaign activities. I think it is important to note that not only are these persons sharing with us their resources, but indeed, perhaps even more valuable, their time and energy. And I think this Board should know that. I, personally, am very appreciative of the kinds of efforts that we are seeing. Thank you.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Teaford, for your report. This schedule of the terms of office doesn't indicate that Wexner is the Chairman, but you say that he is.

Mr. Teaford:

He is indeed.

Mr. Redman:

I think that is fine. He certainly has been generous to the University and we all appreciate it.

President Jennings:

I think, mentioning people -- and I will second that -- there is an enormous amount of time that is spent by all of those people that you mentioned. It is a major reason for the success of this Campaign, to date. I am sure you would also want to mention Jim Chaplan on the Cleveland Campaign, who I might add is recovering well from major surgery and will be back bugging the Cleveland people to get involved with Ohio State, very shortly.

Mr. Kessler:

I might mention, tagging on to Joel's comment, that the Columbus part of the Campaign has contributed, in the two years since the Campaign started, $110 million in 2 1/2 years, which is 80% of the Columbus goal. Columbus benefits a lot from what goes on at Ohio State, but it is amazing that this community has been that generous to this University. I think it is just incredible.

Mr. Redman:

Are there any other comments? I would like to have the report from Mr. Barone on the Research Foundation.

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Chairman, on The Ohio State University Research Foundation I wish to state, at this time, that I am also very happy that you have created these reports, because what I knew about the Foundation before serving on the Board was absolutely zero. It was all together different from what I surmised it was.

We had a meeting on June 19, and the officers were elected at that time: President - Dr. Hollander; Vice President - Roy Koenigsknecht; Secretary - Herb Toennisson; and Assistant Secretary - Mr. DeStazio. What with the election of officers and getting acquainted at the June meeting, we had an additional meeting on September 18, where we got into the functions of the University Research Foundation. Everything that the Foundation is awarded is approved by the Board of Trustees, and consequently, that is why I feel that this Board should have a more general knowledge of what the function of the Foundation is. I certainly did not have it.

The awards given to this University do not come easily. I am happy to report, for example, in 1978 the University received $31 million in awards. In June 1987, we have $82 million. Of course, with the 1987-88 awards given and the money coming in, it will easily reach $100 million. So there is $100 million worth of work being done in this University, which amazed me and I don't know if the rest of the Trustees knew about it or even that these functions are going on. One hundred million dollars in awards and $100 million being granted to this University, I think it is tremendous. I think Dr. Hollander is doing a tremendous job as the President of the Foundation.

For example, for the period 7/1/86 - 5/31/87 we have received almost $93 million in awards and the expense account on that is 3%. I think that is fantastic -- a $21,468 expense account, with an income of $93 million. Myles attended this meeting and of course, Myles knows this much better than I do. I've been leaning on him to find out the functions and how the Board operates. I'd like to read, for example, the report of Federal awards and then the percentages: National Aeronautical and Space Administration has given 36 awards; National Science Foundation has given 127 awards; Department of Defense has awarded us 61 grants; Department of Energy - 19 awards; Department of Education - 35 awards; Department of Health and Human Services, and I think Dr. Tzagournis is very active in that, they have given us 201 awards; and numerous other agencies have awarded us 57 grants.

Mr. Redman:

Who rides herd on these? Once we get the money, who gets the money --

Mr. Barone:

Well, different departments apply for these awards, and that is why I say that I was amazed that we were able to do this with very little lobbying. I think if more of the University knew about these awards and the amount of money involved, I feel -- and I told Dr. Hollander and Myles -- we are not assured we are going to get these awards when we present them. Most of them are Federal and if we could get a little lobbying in there, I think it would be very helpful.

Mr. Redman:

Who instigates the requests?

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Scott:

Myles?

Dr. Brand:

Let me speak to this for just a moment, Mr. Chairman. These are all peer group awards from the Federal Government. Resident scientists and researchers on Campus submit awards to peer groups and they are judged by panels and committees. They are not political process awards, but rather on the merits of the proposals.

Mr. Redman:

In other words, the Federal Government and those folks decide that they are going to give an award for something or other and then the universities all over the country bid on them.

Dr. Brand:

Then they are chosen on the basis of quality by a panel of experts.

Mr. Redman:

If we get the bid, if we are the successful bidder like a contractor, then we get the money.

Mrs. Bowser:

It's on quality, not on --

President Jennings:

It's not on dollars.

Dr. Brand:

It's is not on dollars. The dollar amount is set by the Federal Government and then they choose the university research team on the basis of the quality of the faculty involved.

Mr. Redman:

Having been granted that, we get the money, right?

Dr. Brand:

Yes, Sir.

Mr. Scott:

To do the work. As an example, today we received a major grant for AIDS research -- that is the kind of thing that Myles is describing. But the ideas are generated by our research faculty, research scientists, and then those are submitted to the various federal agencies to be peer reviewed. That is the difference between this and pork barreling.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Brand:

I might note, Mr. Chairman, that having passed the $100 million mark per year is a significant achievement for this University. I might note that, to follow up on Mr. Barone, the National Institute of Health grants, which are very competitive grants and a significant mark of achievement in the quality of our programs, is significantly up due to research at the Medical School.

Mr. Redman:

Very good.

President Jennings:

I think, as we noted, the very encouraging aspect of all of this is that these have been, over the last several of years, growing at an annual rate compounded at 12% a year, when much of the research activity has been flat. You mentioned the College of Medicine -- they have been growing at roughly 22% a year over the last several years, reflecting the enormous work and success of bringing in new, young faculty who are very competitive in these areas. This is a major measure of the quality of an institution. Around the country we ranked 23rd in the nation, and we expect that rank to improve substantially over time.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. President, I think we shouldn't lose sight of the fact that the biggest single reason that we have so many successful grants is that our faculty is active in seeking them. Because without the proposals from the faculty, that simply could not happen. I think later today we are going to hear from one of the stars in that regard, Dr. Twarog.

Mr. Barone:

We have increased our awards of the last three years by 49%. And that is because of the faculty and because of the excellent work the faculty has done in the past. So you can see from $31 million to $100 million is a tremendous increase, and we should be very proud of what the group is doing on that.

I'd also like to report to the Board of Trustees -- by coincidence on the Super Collider, one of the chief, or I should say the main person who is working on the Super Collider for the Government, is a brain-child from Toledo, Ohio, called Mike Weatheral. I play golf with his father quite a bit. So I've heard the basic report that he has given President Reagan. He feels that after the research he has made -- and his report will go to President Reagan -- that he would like to point it towards Ohio. However, President Reagan at the present time hasn't had as much publicity as a good actor should, and he feels that when the report is in, that Illinois, which has probably the best facility -- physical facility, the University, the airport and everything else, probably it should go that way. But it is his opinion, when it is all said and done, that President Reagan has the choice of where to put it and it will probably, as his last curtain call, will take it right into California. However, what happened yesterday in California may completely force him to change his ideas of placing it there with the earthquake. But there is a strong feeling in Congress, he tells me, that the Super Collider is a $6 billion expense that should be payment put on our national debt. And in all probability, if something is not done with our national debt area, the Super Collider will be put aside for the future and the money expended on the national debt. Now that is very, very unofficial, I'm just giving you what members of that committee are thinking.

Mr. President, I can see your facial expression, you may expound on that.

President Jennings:

Let me talk about the process very briefly. I think it is very important to recognize -- and we were talking about these research grants -- that the first action that will be taken will not have any political activity at all associated with it. Peers will select anywhere from 2-3, to 6-7 undetermined sites that are all acceptable, scientifically. And obviously Fermi Lab at the University of Illinois will be competitive with that because they already have a lab there. But they, like other proposals, have some major disadvantages associated with Fermi Lab that, I think, make our proposal competitive with theirs. Two major issues associated with Fermi Lab is their bedrock is much deeper than ours is and the cost would be higher. Then secondly, if the current facility at Fermi Lab is used as part of this new Super Collider, then the Fermi research would have to be shutdown during the construction phase, which would be up to three years, which would be a major setback for science. Because even with this new facility, the Fermi Lab will still be a major scientific instrument. And then third, if the Fermi Lab is used, the scientific community is worried that we will be using equipment that was developed in the '50's to put in with the more modern Super Collider. So, I think, that the assumption that the University of Illinois has a competitive edge is not totally appropriate. Obviously, they already have a facility there.

The other thing that I think we should recognize, too, in terms of President Reagan, is that in order for President Reagan to make a decision on this, this process is going to have to go much more rapidly than the scientific process would typically take. That January 20, 1989 date is upon us, and I think that the scientific community feels that it is most likely that the next President of the United States will make this decision, because of the time required to develop this project.

Mr. Redman:

We can have Bush do that. Are you through?

President Jennings:

Everett Dierkson did not have anything to do with Fermi Lab.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

I wanted to ask one question of general information. Is it true that all requests for research grants must go through the Board, the Research Board? Is that a correct statement, or not?

Mr. Barone:

Yes. I thought I said that. Everything that the Board of Directors does, or submits, or recommends must be submitted eventually to the Board of Trustees for approval.

Mr. Redman:

I didn't mean that, John -- I meant that let's assume that a member of the faculty wants to make an application for a grant, does he have to go through the Research Board?

Mr. Barone:

Yes.

Mrs. Bowser:

It would be nice to know who is on the Research Board like we know who is on the Foundation Board, maybe next time.

Mr. Scott:

We'll provide you with that.

Mr. Redman:

Any other questions? Thank you, Mr. Barone. We would like to have the report on the Development Fund from Mr. Kessler.

Mr. Kessler:

There have been no meetings of the Development Board since a lot of the activity of the fundraising has been picked up by the Foundation Board. The Development Board is still active and still in existence, but most of the major fundraising has been assumed by the Foundation.

Mr. Tobin:

Let me add a comment to that. Actually, the Development Fund Board will have its next meeting next week. We will send you a copy of the minutes of that meeting. The Foundation, as Jack indicates, is concentrating its activities on major gifts and so on and so forth as part of the Campaign. The Development Fund Board is concentrating on what we call "base building," working on the total number of donors contributing to the institution. They will be looking at a number of major recommendations from our staff next week and my thought was to send you a copy of the minutes of that session which will also include some new people who have been added to that Board.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Tobin, Mr. Kessler.

--0--

Mr. Redman called upon Dr. Brand to introduce Professor Twarog, Father Matejic, and Predrag Matejic, to give a presentation on the Hilandar Library.

Dr. Brand:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to take this opportunity to introduce you to Professor Leon Twarog, who is a Professor Emeritus. He came to Ohio State in 1960, as a full Professor to help fill the University's Slavic studies program. And, indeed, he was Chairperson of the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures from its beginning in 1962 until 1972, and then again served in that capacity from 1978 until 1984.

Amongst his achievements is having founded and directed the Center for Slavic and East European Studies from its creation in 1965, until his retirement. It's significant that this Center is a Title VI funded federal Center; one, I believe, of only 11 in the country. And it is an achievement to have done this over this long period of time. I could spend a very long time listing Professor Twarog's accomplishments, though let me name just one, and that is that he was instrumental in bringing about the individualized instruction program for foreign languages in which instruction is delivered through the telephone and includes written tests. These are for languages such as Czech, Polish and Russian, and they are taught in this way across the entire country.

Professor Twarog will introduce his colleagues and they will talk about the Hilandar Research Project and the Hilandar Research Library which relate to the Slavic language program. As you recall earlier, we discussed the new Master's program in this area. Professor Twarog --

Professor Twarog:

Thanks very much for a very gracious introduction. Members of the Board, today I just want to say that we are all very grateful that we have the opportunity to speak about one of the more exciting research projects that we have here on Campus, and this is the Hilandar Research Project. It is generally referred to by that name, but now it has been divided into two segments -- along functional lines, one is the Hilandar Research Library, which is directly under the jurisdiction of the Library, and the second is the Resource Center for Medieval Slavic Studies, which is housed in the College of Humanities.

The Resource Center for Medieval Slavic Studies is under the jurisdiction and direction of Professor Mateja Matejic, who is right here and he will be speaking next. The Hilandar Research Library is directed by a curator, Dr. Predrag Matejic, who is now an Assistant Professor in the Library and he will be managing the projector here in just a moment and speaking later on. So both of them will speak about their specific charges.

One thing I do want to emphasize is that this is a project that any university in this country, including the leading ivy league universities -- my own alma mater, Harvard -- would be happy to have at any time. It already comprises one of those peaks of excellence that President Jennings has been talking about constantly and many scholars abroad know about Ohio State only through this particular project.

Now, all of this has beginnings back in 1969, when Professor Matejic came to me and said that a childhood friend of his, who was then the librarian at Hilandar Monastery on Mt. Athos, Greece, had written and said that he was very much concerned about the safety of the library. All kinds of fires had been breaking out in monasteries. Why libraries -- nobody knows, but they did happen and so I suggested that we might see what we could do about microfilming. I happen to know that monastery, in particular, because of my previous work in Slavic studies and studying Serbian. I knew that library was equivalent to a university library, from a point of view of medieval times. And so we had a positive answer from the monks, and in the middle of winter -- I didn't have any pity for Father Matejic, I must say, two weeks after he left the hospital for a gallbladder operation in the middle of winter we sent him to Mt. Athos on an exploratory trip. He went there, came back with some samples and with an agreement with the monks. In the summer of 1970, he and Professor Walt Craig, from our Department of Photography and Cinema, went to Mt. Athos and they photographed 119 manuscripts. The following summer, Professor Matejic went with his son, Predrag, and they photographed the remaining 710 manuscripts. This photography was done working 12-14 hours a day, photographing in sunlight, with a standard 35mm camera and a 36-exposure cassette. This is the only way this thing could be done.

At first, all of these films were housed in a janitor's broomcloset in the Slavic Department and all we had was a portable microfilm reader. By 1981, we got a toehold in the Library and we were given a small room on the third floor, and this was the first Hilandar Room. We soon outgrew that space and by 1984, the Library, itself, suggested that we move to more spacious quarters. These quarters needed renovations, needed furniture, and I must say that the Office of Academic Affairs came through, here, and the Provost gave us something like $50,000 to furnish the room and to make sure that it was properly air conditioned and anything else that was needed.

Over the years, Professor Matejic and I have worked as a team. It was my job to get space, to find operating funds; it was his job to take care of acquisitions and the scholarly aspects of this particular program. And I know that I am prejudiced, but at the same time I think I am pretty close to the truth, if not completely true, when I say that this particular collection in the Hilandar Research Library is the most valuable collection in our Library of over 4 million volumes. The Professors Matejic will have more to say about that in just a moment. What we want to do now is present to you the last five minutes of an eleven minute slide show for which the commentary is now translated into 12 languages -- if you want to hear them all, but you will have to go to the Hilandar Research Library to hear that. I hope that you will find five minutes interesting enough so that you will want to see what you missed in the first six minutes. We would be honored to have all of you visit the Hilandar Research Library and get a much fuller explanation. And now we will turn to the slides.

Slide Presentation:

Of the twenty existing monasteries, three are historically related to the world of Slavs and are populated primarily with monks of Slavic descent. St. Panteleimon is Russian; Zograf is Bulgarian; and Hilandar is a Serbian monastery. Hilandar was built in 1198 by St. Simeon Stefan Nemanja, a former ruler of Serbia, and his two sons, St. Sava and Stefan, the First-Crowned. Although it is on Greek territory, Hilandar has played the decisive role in shaping the religious and national awareness of Serbs.

The monasteries together and each of them separately, have represented and still represent important monastic, religious, and cultural centers. Precious manuscripts were kept and written in various languages, primarily Greek. Notwithstanding the fact that a large number of manuscripts have been destroyed or taken away, it is believed that there are still some 17,000 codices there, not counting fragments, edicts, letters, and various other documents. Various objects of art needed for liturgical and religious practice were also produced there. Each monastery still owns numerous carved crosses, icons, frescoes, embroidered curtains, etc.

Manuscripts, as well as icons, curtains, and other objects of religious art used to be sent as presents from various countries. Such was the case with this curtain which was sent to Hilandar by the wife of Ivan the Terrible. She, herself, embroidered that curtain. Also treasured in Hilandar is the famous Diptych of Jefimija (14th-15th Century A.D.). On the back side of that two-panel icon is engraved the prayer of Jefimija, mentioning the death of her only son Ugljesha. The text of this poem is considered to be the first poem in Serbian literature written by a female author.

In Hilandar, as well as in other monasteries on the Holy Mount, a large number of rare and precious printed books are preserved in libraries. In view of the fact that the library of the Hilandar Monastery contains a large number of Slavic manuscripts which represent a heritage of cultural interest for the entire world, the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures at The Ohio State University considered it desirable and necessary to obtain permission to microfilm all of these manuscripts treasured in Hilandar. The Department hoped thereby to make this material accessible to scholars, students, and all individuals interested in it. At the same time, in case of some disaster on the Holy Mount, this invaluable material would be preserved on film, even if the originals were destroyed. With the permission of the Greek civil authorities, as well as the monastic government and the Brotherhood of the Hilandar Monastery, in the period 1970-1975, all Slavic codices in Hilandar, as well as numerous edicts, icons, frescoes, carved crosses, and many other objects of religious art at Hilandar were photographed. This task was accomplished by Professor Mateja Matejic, Professor Walt Craig, and Dr. Predrag Matejic.

Microfilms of Slavic manuscripts from the Hilandar Monastery are available in the Hilandar Room in the Main Library of The Ohio State University. This collection also contains microfilms of some 117 Greek codices from the Hilandar Monastery as well as microfilms of a number of Slavic codices from other monasteries and European libraries which have granted their permission to photograph the material they have. All these microfilms are available to anyone interested in looking at them or studying them. The Serb National Federation in the U.S.A. and individuals of Serbian descent in the U.S.A. and Canada contributed the financial means needed to purchase furniture and microfilm readers for the Hilandar room. Photography of the manuscripts was financed by The Ohio State University, the National Endowment for the Humanities, and the American Council of Learned Societies.

Even today, monks of the Holy Mount continue the Orthodox monastic traditions instituted in the 4th century in Egypt and in the 6th century on the Holy Mount. Here in Columbus, in the Hilandar Room, fruits of that culture which has been in existence for over a millennium are stored on our microfilms. Thus, the Hilandar Room represents a bridge between the Holy Mount and the United States of America, a bridge between the past and the present. In essence, this is the importance of the Hilandar Room and the Hilandar Research Project.

Father Matejic:

With your permission, I would just like to outline the significance of the Hilandar Research Project, which is presently known as the Resource Center for Medieval Slavic Studies and, also, the Hilandar Research Library. I divided it into local and national under number 1 and international significance under number 2. We handed out this paper so you may later check some of the things.

Ours is the largest, in fact the only Resource Center for Medieval Slavic Studies and the largest repository of microforms of Medieval Slavic manuscripts in the Western Hemisphere. Microform holdings in the Hilandar Research Library represent invaluable and in some cases unique research material related to the Slavic culture in the Middle Ages. A large portion of this material is normally inaccessible to female scholars and/or students and their only opportunity to study it is in our Hilandar Research Library. Our research material is used for research by scholars and students locally, nationally, and internationally. Several Ph.D. dissertations, M.A. theses, monographs, and studies have been written and published on the basis of our material. Some students have enrolled at The Ohio State University in order to have access to this research material. Outside funding has been received from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the American Council of Learned Societies, the U.S. Information Agency, the Serb National Federation, and individuals of Serbian origin in the United States and Canada. Two International Hilandar Conferences have taken place, one at Ohio State, the other in Rila Monastery, Bulgaria. The third, which had been scheduled for Nijmegen, The Netherlands, has now been rescheduled for Belgrade, Yugoslavia, for the end of 1988. Interest of the general public in our Resource Center and Hilandar Research Library has been evidenced by hundreds of domestic and foreign visitors coming to see the Center and the Library.

Individual scholars and academic institutions often send us requests for information and assistance in their research. Just to mention a few, we received a photocopy of a Vatican Slavic Manuscript #8, written in a secret alphabet which they sent to us of all the places to decipher. And we did send them an alphabet, with instructions on how to read the rest of the manuscript. Another thing is that Professor Cornelia Gutz in Romania, worked about twenty years on a manuscript, not knowing that the missing first leaf was at another library and available through us. Bulgarians are very grateful to us because we discovered the exact date of the death of Paissy, one of their great heroes, comparable to George Washington. Just imagine someone in Bulgaria discovering the exact date of George Washington's birth or death, 200 years after it happened. A number of European Academies of Science and Arts, universities, national libraries, and other academic institutions have been sending us books and periodicals free of charge, which is a savings of thousands of dollars.

Both the Resource Center and Hilandar Research Library are well known and highly respected in the academic world of all European countries, both in Western and Eastern Europe. I regret to say that they value the Hilandar Research Project more than it is valued on our own campus.

We have frequent contacts and continuous academic cooperation with Academies of Sciences and Arts, universities, monastic and national libraries involving conferences, exchange of information, exchange of specialists, exchange or acquisition of microforms from the following countries: Canada, Greece, Cyprus, Italy, Sweden, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania, the Soviet Union, and Yugoslavia. Dr. Predrag Matejic and I have just returned this Monday from Yugoslavia, where we concluded a number of important discussions and agreements which will lead to extensive cooperation and provide exciting opportunities for the further development of our Center and the Hilandar Research Library. Thank you.

October 1 and 2, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Professor Predrag Matejic:

The Hilandar Research Library is one of six special collection libraries of The Ohio State University Libraries. To honor its initiative and concern, Hilandar Monastery's name -- that was the first place we went -- is preserved in the name of the Hilandar Research Library. It is the goal of this library to gather in microform or print as many Slavic manuscripts and related material as possible in one location here at The Ohio State University, and to make these materials accessible to all scholars. Through acquisition, exchange, or direct microfilming, we are constantly striving to increase our holdings. Through cataloging and description, information regarding this largely unresearched material becomes available. Through our own research, and the research support we give others, scholarly contributions are made worldwide.

We now have microforms of approximately 2,200 manuscripts, primarily Slavic. It is the second largest such collection in the world, and will likely be the largest within five years.

Composed of materials from 17 different countries and 38 private, monastic and public libraries, the Hilandar Research Library offers scholars a unique opportunity to investigate the thousand-year written cultural heritage of the Eastern Orthodox Slavs. The Hilandar Research Library is equipped with microfilm and microfiche readers, with the best available reader-printer, and with several computers. This equipment and the possibilities for comparative research have led scholars throughout the world to seek a means by which to come to Ohio State. As one scholar recently stated, "she was able to do in three months at Ohio State what she couldn't have done in three years anywhere else."

In the United States librarians and scholars have privately admitted that the Hilandar Research Library and Ohio State now hold the foremost place in medieval Slavic resources in the United States. Both of the major Slavic professional organizations in this country have now recommended to their members that all such privately held material in microform be sent to us to be copied and made available. Recently, The Ohio State University Libraries were the recipient of a $158,000 Title II-c Grant under the Higher Education Act to preserve the collection and to catalog it on OCLC and LCS. Thus, information regarding this material and its availability at Ohio State will now be available to over 10,000 libraries. Furthermore, we will have an opportunity to establish the standards by which such material is cataloged in this country.

Our future plans include not only the acquisition of additional materials on microform and the further development of what is already considered an excellent reference collection, but the application of new technology, especially computers, to the organization and study of medieval Slavic materials. These databases, both bibliographic and descriptive, will provide researchers worldwide with the best possible and easiest access to this material which is traditionally only available to them at great cost of time and expense.

Professor Matejic: (contd)

Many people and scholars in the world have only heard of The Ohio State University because the Hilandar Research Library exists and offers hope to them that we can gather on microform the scattered past of the Eastern Orthodox Slavs, 90% of whose manuscripts have been lost forever. They support our dream and goal to gather together as much of that which is remaining as is possible, for they know that once it is in our hands, it is also accessible to them.

Thank you for this opportunity to share with you information on one of the thirty-nine libraries and reading rooms at Ohio State. Thank you.

Dr. Brand:

As you can see, the University is involved in medical research, hi-tech research, and also preserving our past. It is important that the institution have a diversity of research efforts and we are part of the international community in this regard. We are proud to have the Hilandar Library as part of The Ohio State University.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 88-35

Synopsis: Resolutions honoring the service of two of the University's faculty members who have recently died are being proposed.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

Ralph Currier Davis

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 21, 1986, of Ralph Currier Davis, Professor Emeritus in the College of Business - Administration.

Professor Davis was born on December 24, 1894. He was a graduate of Cornell University with a degree in Mechanical Engineering. He received his Master of Arts from The Ohio State University and an honorary Doctor of Science from Wayne State University. He joined the faculty at Ohio State as an Assistant Professor in 1923. Upon his retirement in 1965, he was named Professor Emeritus.

Professor Davis earned a world-wide reputation for his pioneering work in the development of theories of organization and general administrative management. The teaching and practice of management for many years reflected the "R. C. Davis approach" to delineation of structures and concepts. Graduate students in management sought out Ohio State University for the privilege of taking work under him. Many of his students became outstanding contributors to the field of management in their own right.

His stature in his field was recognized through numerous awards and distinctions. In 1959, he was the recipient of the Taylor Key from the Society for the Advancement of Management, and he served as Distinguished Visiting Professor at New York University in 1960.

Professor Davis's teaching was best adapted for graduate students, because of his emphasis on theoretical concepts. Students emerged from his seminars with an integrated view of the entire management process. He excelled in the teaching of principles of top management to business executives in executive development programs.

Professor Davis was co-founder, Fellow and past President of the Academy of Management. He was a Director and Officer of the Society for the Advancement of Management, and served as a consultant and speaker in the field of management for many years. He was the author of many important books, articles and papers on the science and practice of management. His widely-recognized The Fundamentals of Top Management, the culmination of a life-long effort devoted to the development of a comprehensive management philosophy, was heralded by business, government and military leaders the world over as one of the outstanding contributions to the field of management thought.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Ralph Currier Davis its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

John William Hibbs

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on August 19, 1987, of John William Hibbs, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Dairy Science.

Dr. Hibbs was born in 1917 in Cleveland, son of Edwin G. and Stella Thompson Hibbs. Upon graduation from Greensburg High School, he enrolled at Kent State University. Later, he transferred to The Ohio State University where he was awarded the Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Husbandry in 1940. While completing his graduate studies, he served as a research assistant in dairy industry at the OARDC. The Doctorate was presented to him in 1947; he specialized in animal nutrition and physiology.

From that time on, he worked for OARDC and The Ohio State University, becoming Associate Chairman in 1971. Upon his retirement in 1983, after 43 years of service, he was named Professor Emeritus. From November 1969, until November 1971, he served in India as an adviser in animal nutrition and physiology under an OSU/U.S. Agency for International Development contract. Returning to India in 1975, he consulted for three months in the Department of Nutrition and Physiology at the National Dairy Research Center in Karnal.

Among his awards, most notable was the Borden Award in Dairy Production in 1952, followed by the American Feed Manufacturer's Award in 1962. During his career, he wrote or co-authored 441 publications and articles. He was a Fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of John William Hibbs its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees, and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Mr. Teaford, seconded by Mr. Barone, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

Scholarship Fund in Animal/Meat Science

The Rodney F. Plimpton, Jr., Memorial Scholarship Fund in Animal/Meat Science was established October 2, 1987, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with gifts to The Ohio State University Development Fund from the family and friends of the late Dr. Rodney F. Plimpton (M.S. Meat Science '61, Ph.D. Meat Science '65), who died on May 16, 1987, his fiftieth birthday. He spent his entire career at Ohio State, devoting his time and tremendous energy to enabling his students to become the best that they could be. Students responded to his enthusiasm by nominating him for the Alumni Distinguished Teaching Award every year. He was the first Ohio State professor to be named an Alumni Distinguished Teacher twice, in 1968 and 1976. He was also named Distinguished Meats Teacher by the American Meat Science Association in 1978. Dr. Plimpton developed and taught Animal Science 100, an introductory course, which served to whet the curiosity of freshman students and inspired many of those students to declare a major in Animal/Meat Science.

REPORT OF RESEARCH CONTRACTS, GRANTS, AND GIFTS (contd)

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY DEVELOPMENT FUND (contd)

Change in Description of Named Funds (contd)

Kappa Phi Kappa Fund

The Kappa Phi Kappa Fund was established September 11, 1969, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with gifts to The Ohio State University Development Fund from the Alpha Eta Association. The description was changed October 2, 1987.

All gifts are to be invested in the University's Permanent Endowment Fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates.

The annual income shall be placed in a Project Account and used to promote the effective education of teachers under the direction of the Dean of the College of Education. This is to be accomplished through Kappa Phi Kappa scholarships and providing operational funds to the Alpha Eta Association. Funds may be used for other activities in support of teacher education, if in the Dean's judgment the cause of teacher education would be better served by the diversion of funds from the scholarship program. Priority is to be given to projects in support of undergraduate teacher education.

Unless the Dean each year otherwise decides and instructs the University, the University shall at the end of each fiscal year of the University transfer to and incorporate into the Fund any excess in the Project Account over and above one times the share for the full fiscal year then ending.

Should the need for this fund cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income, this income may be used for any purpose whatsoever within the guidelines as contained in the June 10, 1987, Agreement between the Alpha Eta Association and the University, which supersedes the agreements of July 1, 1969, and June 11, 1985.

President Jennings made the following statement:

Mr. Chairman, there has been an awful lot of talk about the potential of The Ohio State University joining with the State of Ohio to construct a computer center on our property close to North Star Road. Could you let us know, Dick, where we stand on that particular issue?

Mr. Jackson:

Thank you, Mr. President and Members of the Board, I would be glad to make a few short comments about that project. The State came to us some time ago and talked about the possibility of building a State computer center with approximately 450,000 square feet of space in it. There has been a State budget provided for this in the area of about $50 million. We believe that it is a proper component to place in our Research Park and have suggested an area which is just south of Lane Avenue and to the east of North Star. But our recommendation is that we would have access to that facility off of Lane Avenue onto Carmack and then access from the east. We think that that is one of the major concerns expressed by the Upper Arlington community.

There was a meeting held on September 16, in which two representatives of the University attended, as well as Carol Olshovsky, who is the State Architect and who is responsible for this project, and responsible for the communication and inter-action for the State. Subsequent to that meeting, the City Manager of Upper Arlington had written to the University and has suggested that a group of five residents serve as a committee that would interact with the State of Ohio, as well as the University in discussing this project. We think that is a very reasonable, logical step to take, and we look forward to working with the State, as well as with the Upper Arlington residence in trying to communicate what this project is about and to answer the questions and address the issues which are presented. We think this is a logical way to go, and we are very optimistic about the resolution of the issues at hand. We will get back to the Board, hopefully before too long to talk about a negotiated lease.

President Jennings:

Talking about a negotiated lease of land, which would be the only direct Board action that would be necessary, am I right on that?

Mr. Jackson:

That is correct. We would certainly be involved in that lease regarding the requirements that we think are important in terms of architectural review -- the design of the building, the exterior maintenance, the things that are important to them, not only the University, but we think that are important to the community.

President Jennings:

Thank you.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIFTH MEETING
OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Columbus, Ohio, November 5 and 6, 1987

The Board of Trustees met at its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, November 5, and Friday, November 6, 1987, at The Ohio State University Fawcett Center for Tomorrow, Columbus, Ohio, pursuant to adjournment.

Minutes of the last meeting were approved.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Chairman, Mr. Redman, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on November 5, 1987, at 6:30 p.m. He requested the Secretary to call the roll. The meeting recessed into Executive Session for the purpose of considering legal issues and personnel-related matters.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, Deborah E. Casto, John W. Kessler, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Redman reconvened the meeting on November 6, 1987, at 10:25 a.m.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, Deborah E. Casto, John W. Kessler, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Redman:

I'd like to have the committee reports, beginning with the Development Fund Board of Directors. Mr. Kessler isn't here so we'll skip to the -- let's note that Mr. Barone was to report on the Research Foundation, but I understand that they have had no meetings, thus there would be no report even if he were here.

President Jennings:

Dr. Hollander is here, he could add something to the Research Foundation.

Mr. Redman:

Very good.

Dr. Hollander:

I think it is Tab 5 of your notebook that contains the list of grants and contracts from the Research Foundation for the month of September. In that list there are 95 awards which will provide a gross income to the University of $9.6 million. Let me just remark that for the first three months of this fiscal year, July 1 to September 30, we have had 348 awards with a gross income of $32.9 million. This can be compared with the first three months of last fiscal year in which we had 279 awards for a gross income of $19.1 million. In this period there is represented a 72% increase in funding for the three month period. Of course, while that income increase is welcome, much of it has to be discounted as being attributed to the timing of several large awards and to the slowness of processing awards by several agencies during the last fiscal year. So these two factors have artificially increased the apparent performance for the first part of this fiscal year and we don't expect that such a large percentage increase in funding will carry through the year, although we do hope to maintain the substantial increase this year, as last year.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

We see the difference in the academic approach as opposed to the fundraising approach. Our fundraiser plays up or tells us the reasons it went down and he tells us it's too high.

Dr. Hollander:

I would like to say our expectations for the entire year shows that there will be a 72% increase over last year -- as much as that would be welcome. A few highlights of the awards are: $1.8 million award from the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners to Professor Douglas Jones and his associates for the continuation of the National Regulatory Research Institute; a $582,000 award from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to Professor John Bossler of the Center of Mapping and his associates in a number of colleges, as a continuation grant for the NASA Center for the commercial development of space.

Mr. Redman:

Jack, if I could interrupt you a moment -- backing up one item. Could you explain, just a trifle, about what they would propose to do in this research of utility regulations?

Dr. Hollander:

The NRRI, National Regulatory Research Institute, conducts research on all aspects of utility issues -- the regulations, power generation, a whole spectrum of activities and it is a long standing institute with the University. It is a very respected group. In fact, the only institute of its kind in the country. They are very prolific in their publication of studies of problems of all kinds --

Mr. Redman:

Do they deal with rates?

Dr. Hollander:

They deal with rates, regulations, power wheeling and --

Mr. Redman:

Return on investments?

Dr. Hollander:

All those kinds of problems. They have both technical and economic sides to their activities.

Mr. Redman:

Do they still go into the question on utilities -- one of the things that brought on some of the utilities problems, as I recall, would be their stepping up of the rate base every time they would set up a new utility and they would sell it from corporation A to corporation B. Corporation A would buy it for $10 million and sell it to corporation B for $20 million and step up the rate base to $20 million, then they would charge the utility customers on that basis, and then they would move it up to $50 million and charge on that basis. They finally put a stop to that. Are they still into those kinds of problems?

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman: (contd)

Dr. Hollander:

I'm sure they are. I'm sure if you look through the activities of the Institute you'd find reports on that kind of problem, as well as many others.

Mr. Redman:

The reason I was interested in it is that I have been on the other end of some of those trying to step up the rate base and I want to know if they are still looking over my shoulder!

President Jennings:

They sure are.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Dr. Hollander, I will be aware of that.

Dr. Hollander:

Finally, let me just mention a --

President Jennings:

I might just add, Jack, this Research Institute is also funded with funds provided by each State Regulatory Commission in proportion to their size.

Mr. Redman:

Like our Public Utilities Commission.

President Jennings:

Our PUCO sponsors this, but every state sponsors this. This is essentially voluntary, it is not required that the PUCO sponsor this, but they all have chosen to and that is the result of the academic respect that Doug Jones has.

Dr. Hollander:

Just one other highlight -- a major $594,000 award from the Health Resources and Services Administration to Professors Lawrence Gabel and Michael Para of the College of Medicine to establish a center for the training of health professionals in dealing with the various aspects of the AIDS problem. It is a very important issue. We are one of a small number of institutions that they funded generously to participate in the training of professionals in this important area.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Well these are just a few of the large number of awards, but as you can see from your list there are a large number of smaller awards, each of which is a result of individual initiative by members of our faculty. Thank you.

Mr. Redman:

Is there anything else? Mrs. Bowser, the University Hospitals Board.

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, sir. As you may remember, the Executive Committee meets on alternate months, so the Executive Committee met on Thursday, October 29, with all the appropriate persons there. Mr. Covert presented, and we approved, a new Hospital policy addressing the use within the institution of Physician Extenders and/or Allied Health Professionals who may not be Hospital employees. The intent of this policy is to ensure that all such individuals are properly credentialed and supervised, and that the patient care they provide meets the University, Hospitals, medical staff, and legal standards.

The year-to-date Hospitals admissions are 1.5% above budget. Clinical visits, emergency visits, and outpatient surgical patients are all exceeding budget for this year. September's net income was $152,000; year-to-date net income is $449,000.

We have already discussed the helicopter and it is in service. We played a big part in getting that started and as a Board member from outside the City of Columbus, it is tremendously important to the surrounding counties and areas to have an alternative means of getting here.

The strategic planning is continuing. The consulting firm has submitted a progress report regarding the development of the Strategic Plan for the medical complex. Members of the Hospitals Board plan to meet at Mr. Vorys's office in mid-November for a day retreat to review the consultants' recommendations and feedback provided by the Hospital's medical and administrative staffs. With input from the Hospitals Board, the final draft of the Strategic Plan will be reviewed by the Strategic Planning Task Force, appointed last year by President Jennings, and will ultimately be brought to you for consideration and support.

We are anticipating, in November, an accreditation team from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, which is known as JCAH. They will be conducting a site survey. The last survey occurred in November of 1984, and at that time we received a full three-year accreditation. We are reviewing with staff how those surveys and interviews will be held and mock surveys are being done at the Hospitals at this time. That completes my report.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

I think it would be appropriate at this time, Mrs. Bowser, with your permission, to deal with several items at the Hospital which we have discussed from time to time. I would like to report to the Board, particularly with regard to the billing situation.

We discussed it at the last Board Meeting and you'll recall that Dr. Tzagournis invited me to attend the meeting of the committee dealing with the change in the billing systems, and I did that. I might add that in order to bring myself up-to-date prior to that meeting, I had a meeting that I called of people on the staff to advise me concerning their opinions, without regard to outside consultants or doctors who are involved, but for people that are going to do the billing -- that's the problem. We had that meeting and it was a good meeting. Dr. Senhauser attended that and he is the chairman of the committee on this subject. Then, I met with their committee, Dr. Senhauser, and the other doctors. During the course of that meeting we had a candid discussion of the concerns of the physicians, in which we must all be concerned. After all, without any physicians, we don't have any hospital. We want to be fair to them, as I explained -- I'm sure the Board feels the same way -- the Board has decided that this is the way to go, we adopted this resolution in June 1985, and that we didn't seem to be making much progress.

I made several suggestions: one, that I was dissatisfied with the report that the committee received from their outside consultants. And I won't bore you all with that, but I spent considerable time on that subject. I suggested that since it was an accounting problem, they should consult with a member or several, or all, of the Big 8 firms who have specialists in this area. I suggested that for a couple of reasons: one, it is a billing problem, it's not a medical problem. The consultants who advised the committee indicated that they wanted $60,000 to tell us what we should write in the specifications before we hired anybody or they did any work. I thought that was out of reason and so expressed myself. In any event, Dr. Senhauser said that after that meeting he had consulted with the Arthur Anderson Company, who had done the work for Vanderbilt University. Evidently Dr. Senhauser knew someone at Vanderbilt, and in talking with him they had Arthur Anderson install their system out of their Atlanta office with some experts in this field. They were well-pleased, he said. And I suggested then that they move forward, the committee, and get other Big 8 firms involved, and particularly the firms that are doing our audit. I am mindful of the costs that are associated with this changeover. There is no use for us to educate someone and pay them to find out what we are already doing. We have auditors that have been through this and are in it. I suggested that they be brought in and review, make recommendations, bid on it, and to put a time limit on it. If a Big 8 firm had a contract to install a system, they have the manpower -- instead of putting two people on it they could put twenty. If they had a time to meet, and time now seems to me to be the essence of the thing -- we could debate this from now until next year at this time and not get anything done. I tried to make it clear to the committee, in my view, that the time for that sort of thing is past.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

We have agreed on a tentative solution to some of their concerns. For example, what happens to those doctors who have spent a lot of money on billing systems in their own offices and that if we installed another system, this would override theirs and they would all be out this money. I'm saying that I think if a doctor is injured by our insistence upon this change and he can demonstrate that he was, in fact, injured, then the University should pick up the tab. Well, that seemed to satisfy those folks. But I'm saying, and I said it to Dr. Tzagournis, you are going to have to show that you are, in fact, injured. Because a lot of times on IBM equipment you can program it one way and take it out and program it another way and you haven't lost any money. But if they were injured, then I think we are obligated to pick up that tab. That is the sort of thing we went through. We've agreed and they have agreed that they would have an outside billing firm, similar to a Visa card or any of those, who would do the billing for the doctors, collect the money, and distribute it. That leaves us out of that hassle. The problem that the doctors had involved confidentiality. I think they were concerned that we would find out what they were making, at least their gross income, and I assured them that we had no interest in that at this point. That was now taken care of under the Practice Plan and it was working and we didn't want to disturb that. We weren't making any effort to refine that plan, to get anything more, to do them harm, we just want them to get the bills straightened out. I first thought we should have one bill. If you are a patient in the hospital, you should get one bill covering everything. After this discussion, I was convinced that two bills would do the job. I wouldn't have any difficulty in paying two bills if I were a patient. One would cover the physician and all of the doctors involved: pathologists, radiologists, the orthopedic surgeon, the whatever, that would go through the third party. The hospital bill and all the associated costs of that would come with another bill. So we would have two bills. Now we've agreed on that, between me and the committee, but Dr. Senhauser said, "I'm just the chairman of the committee, I still have to talk to my committee." And I said, "not only that, but I still have to talk to the Board of Trustees. I'm not at all sure that their going to agree with what Redman's saying, but I think they will." So I'm reporting that is our progress to date. I propose now -- Dr. Senhauser has been out of the country, I guess, or at least out of the city, and I had hoped to make some further report on progress at this meeting. But what I'm going to suggest is that I meet with Dr. Senhauser and the committee again and have a report to you at the next meeting on what is a reasonable time for them to implement this further. I don't mean install it, but I'm saying let's hire the people. And my suggestion is going to be ninety days that we give them in which to get other people in to review the problem, to make a proposal, and to move on. So, that is my report on the billing thing. If anybody has any questions--

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

I think you're to be commended for the amount of time and interest that you have shown in this; it is certainly your area of expertise.

Mr. Redman:

Well, I would like to have Mr. Teaford expound, just a bit, on this.

Mr. Teaford:

Well, I will begin by saying "Amen." I amused you all last night with three bills or three mailings that I got in one day. One check refunding some of the money I had paid; another one, a bill for $2.00 from the same people who were refunding the money; and still another bill for $25.00, for which they said I hadn't paid. I still believe if I pay it, I'll get a check for $25.00 back, eventually. But it all demonstrates that I think this system is for the benefit of the doctors, because everyone of those three things I got cost the doctors a lot of money and they didn't get any. I don't think anyone should think we are trying to shove something at the doctors which is injurious, I think quite the opposite. I think this is a program which the doctors will benefit from.

President Jennings:

Ed, I think you did extraordinarily well. It is, in medicine today, a general problem and it's wrapped up in anywhere from tradition to Medicaid rules and regulations. Ed, I think you did extraordinarily well, because it is appropriate to -- if there is a loss of investment in billing equipment associate with this, we should make that good. But we should make it good in the context of a fully depreciated item that is there. I think that is altogether appropriate and would be totally consistent with what we do. I think it is also appropriate to point out that this has absolutely nothing to do with the Practice Plan. We established a Practice Plan two years ago, as has been reported, that is up and working in terms of institutional knowledge of physician income. That Practice Plan provides that information to the chair of the department, to the dean, and to the president of the University. This has nothing to do with that. It is important to say that because the request for a central billing system came at the same time that we established a Practice Plan, and there was some thought that was the reason for it. But in fact, the reason is this is a generic problem across the United States and we need to try and deal with it. It is extraordinarily complex. I think we do need a Big 8 firm. For those members of the Board and in the audience, we are talking about the Big 8 accounting firms, not the universities out west. I think, also, that Mike Covert, Dr. Tzagournis, and Dr. Senhauser should be complimented on this. This is slower than we would all like, but it is complicated and I think it is going to get done. Joel's experience is all of ours. Although, I might add, that if you were to join the University's PPO, you would get--

Mrs. Bowser:

I don't think we can, but I'd be happy to.

Mr. Teaford:

I told you before, Mr. President, if you make that available to the Trustees, I'd be joining it.

President Jennings:

We might have to talk about cutting your salary associated with this Board if you join.

Mr. Teaford:

Well, I'll take it.

Mr. Redman:

Well, if we have completed that subject, I'd like to ask Mr. Ihrig to tell us about Humana or MedOhio, formerly Humana. And that we ask him to do what we asked when we made the deal, which is to give us a monthly report on how much money we've lost--

Mr. Kessler:

Or made.

Mr. Redman

Well, I think all of the projections, Mr. Kessler, show that at least in the first year we were going to lose money. So they didn't withhold that information from us, but my only question is how much.

Mr. Ihrig:

Mr. Chairman, we summarized each of the quarters and we provided a monthly review of this, the Hospitals is reviewing it on a monthly basis. Since the first of April, when that operation initiated, there was a projected budget of net revenues of just over $2 million, the net revenues have actually been at $1.7 million. Expenses were projected at just over $2.1 million, expenses have actually been at $1.8 million. So, while the revenues have been down under projections, so have the expenses appropriately. The net income was budgeted to be a loss during that period of just over $101,000, the actual loss in that period is $105,004. So, while the operations are close to budget, they still are on the negative side and that was during the start up period. I know, Mr. Covert and the Hospitals people are working to keep this more in line with budget, and hopefully do whatever possible to actually improve over budget. This is the budget that we had set up jointly with the review by the Price Waterhouse people, the consulting firm that we had in this. We are just about on target during the period.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

The only difference is the failure to include the costs of the interest which you have on your report here of $105,000, during this period.

Mr. Ihrig:

That's correct.

Mr. Redman:

If you took that into consideration, we would have lost $290,000 in three months?

Mr. Ihrig:

No, that would have been since April, seven months.

Mr. Redman:

I don't recall in the original discussion whether or not we put interest factor into that projection, but in any event, that is what it is.

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes, that is included in the total Hospitals operation.

Mr. Redman:

That is not an actual outlay, it is a computed figure.

Mr. Ihrig:

Correct.

Mr. Redman:

And because, as I understand it, we transferred money from the Hospitals reserve to make that $6 million deal.

Mr. Ihrig:

The Hospitals is covering the capitalization costs of this as part of their total operations, that is correct.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

So, we are not interdepartmentalized in charging interest against this operation from the Hospitals cost?

Mr. Ihrig:

No, that is correct.

Mr. Redman:

All right. Any questions, Mr. Kessler, you--

Mr. Kessler:

No, I was listening intently.

Mr. Redman:

I knew you had an interest in this. I suppose Mr. Covert would like to tell us what he has in mind to change the operation in order to cut down our loss.

Mr. Covert:

The second six months of our activity has been predicated on a reorganization of our physician contractual relationships. That is one item that there will be a difference financially. The other is a very specific, what I will refer to as marketing efforts in order to attract additional funds and activities in respect to that. I will be happy to come back to the Board with more specifics on how we will handle that over the next six months. I'd like to say we have been meeting on an every other week basis as it relates to the management of that activity.

There are a couple other activities we will look at -- the actual bids for support services, lab, and some of those services that will also reduce those activities as well, as we have an opportunity to expand with our in-house capability of doing this presently.

Mr. Redman:

So you really haven't swept it under the rug, you are paying some attention to it and hopefully reducing the loss?

Mr. Covert:

Mr. Chairman, I'm paying a great deal of attention to it.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you.

Mr. Teaford:

It sounds to me, too, Mr. Chairman, like this thing is doing quite well. As you know, I was one of the people who pushed hard on that score, but I am pleased with this report.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford: (contd)

President Jennings:

And lest we focus too much on the dollars associated with this, we should keep in mind that it is a location for medical students and residents to deal with primary care issues, that as a tertiary care hospital we are poorly equipped to deal with. While I am sure Mike will deal with this issue well financially, we have to keep in mind the fundamental reason we are in this activity is for educational purposes, so that our students and residents can experience a primary medical situation that we find difficult to provide at the hospital.

Mr. Redman:

If there is any other report from the Hospitals Board we would be glad to receive it, otherwise, we will move on to the Development Fund. Mr. Kessler --

Mr. Kessler:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to make a brief report on the Development Fund Board meeting held on October 9. The audit committee reported that the accounting firm of Touche Ross, which conducted the audits for 1985-86 and 1986-87, gave the Development Fund a clean bill of health.

Vice President Tobin updated the Board on the progress of the Capital Campaign; Vice President Ihrig gave an analysis of the cost effectiveness of the Campaign; and the Development Fund Board members also discussed suggestions for greater Board involvement with University Development staff. The next meeting of the Development Fund will be Friday, March 11, 1988, at the Fawcett Center.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Kessler. Are there any questions? We will move on then to Mr. Teaford for the University Foundation Board of Directors.

Mr. Teaford:

The Foundation Board, as you know, meets only twice a year. At our last meeting I did report on our meeting for the fall. The next meeting will be in April; basically, I will not have a report until then.

--0--

Mr. Redman:

I call on Mr. Ihrig to give us a report on the enrollment for Autumn Quarter.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Members of the Board, you have previously been sent copies of a summary report by the Registrar of the enrollment statistics. I have included handouts of those reports before you. What I would like to do is make general overall comments about the trends and directions and where we came out and those reports are separate -- they are outside the books.

Table I, in that document, shows that the overall enrollment for the University was 58,397 students, which is 441 students less than last year. The Regional Campuses were generally up, with Newark leading the pack. They were up 17%, to 1,317 students. Marion, Mansfield, and Lima are up from a range of 2 to 7.7% students, and the Agricultural Technical Institute at Wooster was down 16 students from autumn to autumn. On the Columbus Campus we had a total of 53,115 students, which represents a decline from the previous year of 765 students.

When we look at our enrollment limitation, as we talked before 40,000 FTE, our latest numbers are and we are ready to report this -- 598 students FTE's over the 40,000 limit this year. That will bring us down from 749 that we were over last year to 598. So, we are going again in the right direction on this and it is coming down.

The mix of students has changed and not quite as we projected it. Last year in December when we made our projections, we were looking at a total headcount of over 54,000, with the growth that had happened the last couple of years and we have actually come out at 53,115. This makes us almost comparable to Autumn Quarter 1985 in grand totals, but with an interesting switch. There is an increase in graduate students and a light decrease in undergraduate students when you look at that period of time -- just about 450 fewer undergraduate students overall, and an increase of about 450 graduate students.

That mix change has happened with larger numbers, new admissions, and applicants to the graduate programs. At the same time, we have gone into selective admissions, and we always use the freshmen class as the place where we make the adjustments to come into the 40,000 FTE. This year was a real uncertainty in terms of our traditional enrollment trends, because going from application to admission under selective admission for the first year throughout all the prior data about yields on the number of students -- so we came out with a total of 6,314 new first quarter freshmen. We had projected, initially, around 6,500, with a range of 6,300 to 6,500. It came out at the lower end of that range, because of yield rates dropping from admissions to acceptance of admissions. There seems to be around the nation -- this is a national phenomena, not just Ohio State -- an increase in multiple applications by entering freshmen. People are shopping more, the application rates are up, and there was an increase in applications throughout the universities in Ohio. So, we found that our traditional 3% loss dropped to 5%.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

We also found -- the other side we used some exception spaces for students who are outstanding scholars, who have outstanding performance capabilities in the arts, and also for athletic teams and nontraditional students. We didn't have to use as many of those nontraditional spaces this year as in the past. I think that is primarily due to the increased publicity regarding selective admissions, the increased awareness of students understanding that we are more in line with other universities admissions policies, rather than on a first come, first serve basis for the Autumn Quarter. All this tends to have worked to reduce the need for exception spaces and these students getting in under the normal process.

The dormitories, along the same line, are full again this year with about 9,600 undergraduates, 900 graduate students, and 400 in married student housing. The other interesting aspect that the housing people are very pleased with this year is the intensity and level of study in the dormitories and the lack of extraneous incidents. The study activity has really increased during the week in the dormitories and the extraneous incidents has really dropped off. It is a completely different environment in the dormitory system, and we think it is a direct impact of the selective admissions in those activities.

Overall we have had a decline in the part-time student and with the population in the Central Ohio area growing, I am hard pressed to understand that. There is a heavy decrease in the graduate level part-time, we have more full-time graduate students, but we've had a decline in the number of part-time graduate students. Now the Graduate School is extremely happy with this because of the full-time graduate students coming in. They see a significant increase -- from 6,832 to 6,934, a 1 1/2% increase. We think this decrease in part-time students is the result of a couple courses in the College of Education. There was a change in the State certification requirements that went into effect the first of July, that allowed college equivalent units for ongoing certification of teachers in addition to graduate credit. So the teachers in the State of Ohio have a broader degree of choices on how to keep their certification active than they have had in the past. The College of Education had lowered the number of off-campus courses they taught this year. So we have had some adjustment in the part-time, we think it is directly related to the change of certification within Ohio.

The application rate also among the graduate students, was up on the domestic students and down by 12% on foreign students applying to the Graduate School. Again, this goes back to University policies, as you remember, the toughening up and strengthening of the pretesting for graduate students having English as a second language, being able to be fluent in the classroom and being able to read English. We think the word has gotten out on this and those foreign students who aren't able to pass those tests and come in and be quality performers in the classrooms have gotten the word and have acted accordingly.

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

The professional school enrollments are down slightly and that is due to the ongoing adjustments in the entering classes of the professional schools. They had those peak years and they have been making slight downward adjustments to accommodate the appropriate levels that they consider for their colleges. When we look at the college shifts within, there is a heavy influx of more and more students selecting the arts and science colleges as their curriculum and enrollment emphasis. With enrollment management within the University, there is a continued decrease in engineering and that is a planned decrease. The real heavy increase has been in the arts and sciences and there seems to be fewer students in those colleges in an undecided mode.

Mr. Teaford:

There is a big increase in journalism, too, which is distressing.

Mrs. Bowser:

Now, Joel.

President Jennings:

Actually, there is a huge increase in journalism. Most of that increase is the advertising curriculum --

Mr. Teaford:

Good. That's OK.

Mrs. Bowser:

And public relations. We need public relations.

President Jennings:

The Journalism faculty is having a tough time adjusting to the great leaps, but that will level out.

Mr. Scott:

You might be interested in knowing, Mr. Teaford, that we have half of a journalism class here today.

Mr. Teaford:

I know that.

Mr. Ihrig:

The credit hour loads by the students remain essentially the same in most categories. The graduate student credit hour loads increased slightly and again that is part of the adjustment on the part-time to full-time students that we are experiencing.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

When we look at the sources of enrollments of the students basically there was very little change. The students from Ohio represent 86.8% of the total student body enrollment versus 87.4%, a 6/10 of a percent decline this year. That was made up of students from other U.S. states and territories which went up from 7.5% to 8.1%. The foreign students still remain at 4.7%, or 2,757 students, out of the entire student body.

The final bit of information I have on the enrollment relates to the minority students. The overall minorities did have a slight increase this year over the previous year, total minorities went up from 4,046 to 4,127. However, black enrollments totally went down, on the Columbus Campus, 2,313 down to 2,357; while at the same time the black students had an increase from 361 to 383 in the entering freshman class. That represents 6.1% of the entering freshman class on the Columbus Campus. Looking at some of the numbers, also, it was interesting to note that during the last academic year there were 400 black students who received their degrees from Ohio State from all areas. That was up from 379 black students who received their degree the previous year, and 320 the year before. So I think the good news is the increasing number of black students that are receiving their degrees, and at the same time we are bringing increasing numbers into the freshman class. I think that is the trend in the right direction which we are looking toward in the long-term on the action plan the Provost talked about previously.

Mr. Teaford:

Are those American black students?

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes, and we separate those out from the foreign. I would be glad to try to respond to any questions that you may have.

Mr. Redman:

Mr. Ihrig, two questions -- in your judgement, has the increase in the enrollment fee caused any problems, other than to the students, to Ohio State?

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes. That is an interesting phenomena, because a year ago we did not increase tuitions at all, the previous fiscal year, and the enrollment trends held up and then we had the increase this year. I'm not going to say that there would not be any impact, because there will be some students that might have to take an extra quarter off to work to have the money to go on. However, we did increase the financial aid activity enough to accommodate the students. The most important part of that, is that the two-year increase was below the State averages overall during that period. So the unfortunate part is that it was beneficial to those students in the year we didn't increase it, and then it hit harder in the second year. So, some of the students may have gotten caught on that.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

But we did that because of the uncertainty on the State budget, we didn't know what we were going to get.

President Jennings:

No, let's recognize that the original recommendation on the State budget was for all institutions of higher education in the State of Ohio to increase tuition by 33%. As that went through the various processes, the budget passed initially by the House was a recommendation to increase tuition by 27%. As the budget was finally passed by the House and Senate and signed by the Governor, the increase recommended was a 22% tuition increase. And as we have been doing for the past several years, we have attempted to do roughly half of what the State recommends in their budget processes, and we ended up with an 11% recommendation. Part of the uncertainty is that we set these tuitions tentatively in May, when there was no bill, at a somewhat lower rate with an expectation that the final bill passed would allow us to increase tuition by only 8%, which would have been again roughly half. In conference committee those monies were removed from the budget. I think it is also important to recognize that as we look around, as Weldon said, the scholarship fund -- not only was it's purchasing power maintained, but it was also increased to accommodate those students who then became eligible for aid or more aid because of the tuition increase.

I might also add that if some units in the State were setting their budgets on a basis of a 3% or 4% tuition increase, they must not have been listening very much over the entire spring operation when these 1/3 increases were being recommended.

Mr. Teaford:

I think we also might want to point out, Mr. President, in light of our discussion earlier about library hours and cost containment, one of the options which was chosen by the University was not to increase tuition by the recommended percentages and that resulted in the cost containment. We deal in a lot of rough choices, and that is just one more of them.

Mr. Redman:

The other question I have is -- and this is an interest to Mrs. Bowser, I think -- our enrollment in the Agricultural College, as I read it, dropped from 1,290 to 1,268, is that correct?

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes, that is correct. That decline though in the number of agricultural students is slowing down --

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

I was going to say, that is a lesser drop than it has been.

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes, that is right. When we take the credit hours involved we actually had a slight increase in the total FTE's enrollments.

Mr. Redman:

Well, we hope we get it around to where it will go up, instead of thinking we're doing great if it only goes down 10% instead of 50%.

President Jennings:

Well, remember that 1,200 is roughly half of what the enrollment in the College of Agriculture was in 1976. Over that period of time it has dropped by roughly by 50%.

Mr. Redman:

I hope it is not a continuing trend. I was certainly impressed when we had the meeting at Wooster and some of the things that those folks are doing and the people we got from Texas to implement these new agricultural experiments, and so on. Hopefully this will attract additional students in the College of Agriculture.

President Jennings:

It is also a national trend, let's recognize that --

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, there are reasons for it.

President Jennings:

The career opportunities are easily perceived as being somewhat less than they were.

Mr. Teaford:

Part of the reason though is that the College of Agriculture has split into two colleges.

President Jennings:

Yes, Home Economics is separate now. When I talk about the half, I am talking about just the current College of Agriculture. The Home Economics has been removed from that, but even if you remove the Home Economics, it is still a 50% decline.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Ihrig.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig:

Thank you.

President Jennings:

Mr. Chairman, let me just make one comment about that enrollment report. It is very good considering all that we have been through on the enrollment activities. The uncertainty that Weldon and his people are having to deal with on the enrollment, I'm very confident, will continue, not only in the yield figures as we move toward selective admissions throughout the institution, but our retention rates will continue to improve as the years go on. But how much they will improve will be very difficult to project, and we should still have uncertainty. Also, I want to be sure to emphasize that any declines we have overall is not policy. The policy basically is to keep the enrollment where it is right not, declines or increases are simply because statistically we missed the numbers by a small amount. And when you miss by 400 out of 60,000, it ain't to bad, Mr. Accountant.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

George B. Ganyard

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on May 25, 1987, of George B. Ganyard, Instructor Emeritus in the Cooperative Extension Service.

Mr. Ganyard was born on October 29, 1898, in Stow, Ohio. He received his B.S. in Agriculture from The Ohio State University in 1921; then spent thirteen years operating a dairy farm in Medina County.

Mr. Ganyard began his Extension experience when he joined the faculty at The Ohio State University in 1934 as a County Agricultural Agent in Richland County. In 1948, he became the County Agricultural Agent in Franklin County and continued in this position until his retirement in 1965, when he was named Instructor Emeritus. Mr. Ganyard was respected by his peers and associates throughout the State as he worked to provide excellent Extension educational programs for the citizens in his county.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of George B. Ganyard its deepest sympathy. It was directed

When the Institute became part of The Ohio State University Hospitals, Dr. Gardner was the first Director of Psychological Services, an appointment he held from 1959 to 1966. From 1966 until his health-related retirement in 1980, Mac served as Chief Psychologist in the Adult Psychiatry Clinic of University Hospitals. During this period he was instrumental in developing Group Psychotherapy and Human Sexuality programs within the Department of Psychiatry; he also made significant contributions to the teaching and training of medical students, psychiatric residents, and psychology interns. Upon his retirement in 1980, he was named Associate Professor Emeritus.

In 1976, Dr. Gardner was awarded the Distinguished Service Award by the Ohio Psychological Association in recognition of his numerous contributions to the discipline of Psychology throughout the State of Ohio. Two years later, Dr. Gardner served as President of the Ohio Psychological Association.

Dr. Wiltberger graduated from The Ohio State University with a Bachelor's degree in 1936 and, in 1940, received his Doctor of Medicine degree. He served an internship and later completed his residency in orthopaedic surgery in 1947 at the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, Michigan. Dr. Wiltberger's post-graduate training was interrupted by his service in the United States Army Medical Corp in Europe and Africa from August 1942 through April 1946, at which time he was discharged as a captain with two bronze star decorations.

Dr. Wiltberger was appointed Clinical Instructor at The Ohio State University College of Medicine in 1952 and received promotions through July 1969, at which time he was appointed Clinical Professor. Upon his retirement in 1984, he was named Clinical Professor Emeritus.

Dr. Wiltberger was a pioneer in the treatment of ruptured intervertebral disc disease by the use of intervertebral dowel fusion, both in the lumbar and cervical spine. This technique is now performed throughout the world and was first described by Dr. Wiltberger. His bibliography includes twenty-three publications relative to orthopaedic surgery, as well as numerous presentations at national and international meetings.

Dr. Wiltberger's achievements include membership in the society of Sigma Xi, as well as election to the Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society while in medical school. He was a member of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, The American Board of Orthopaedic Surgery and The American College of Surgeons. In addition to this, he was a member of eleven other medical and surgical societies. Dr. Wiltberger was elected to membership in The Ohio State University's President's Council in 1979, and received the Alumni Achievement Award in 1980. He received the order of Hippocrates from The Ohio State University College of Medicine Medical Alumni Society in April 1983.

Benjamin Roland Wiltberger (contd)

In addition to his academic career, Dr. Wiltberger was involved in the private practice of orthopaedic surgery at The Ohio State University Hospitals, Riverside Methodist Hospital and St. Anthony Hospital, where he served as chief of staff. Throughout his career, Dr. Wiltberger was a loyal, generous, innovative, enthusiastic teacher and supporter of the Division of Orthopaedic Surgery of The Ohio State University College of Medicine. His contributions to orthopaedic surgery and to education have been appreciated by his many residents and medical students. His absence is strongly felt by The Ohio State University College of Medicine and the community of Columbus, Ohio.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Benjamin Roland Wiltberger its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

November 5 and 6, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings made the following statement:

Mr. Chairman, one more item -- I would like Dick Jackson to update us on an issue that is on the air right now. It is a serious issue and some of the discussion on the air is making fun of it. I think it is a much more serious issue than the people on the radio are making of it, and I would like Dick Jackson to update us on the issue.

Mr. Jackson:

Thank you, Mr. President, Members of the Board. As you know, last night there was a report on Channel 4 about the fifth floor of the Main Library and the presence there of semen, urine, tobacco juice, and other staining in the area. We have, this morning, contracted with a custodial firm to clean those areas up. This has been an ongoing problem at the University in a number of areas. It is a problem today, as evidenced by the public discussion that is going on, and will continue to be a problem over the years to come. So we are in the process of contracting to have it cleaned up and we will go through the entire library to make sure that there are no other areas, and if there are, they will be cleaned also. We will be using proper cleaning procedures as are dictated by the appropriate authorities. We will also have a spokesman for the University, because there is some interest by the press at this point. We think we can straighten this issue up, but I would suggest to you all that it is not something that we will resolve today, because it will be an ongoing problem.

Mrs. Bowser:

I assume that area will be closed until such a time that --

Mr. Jackson:

It is not closed at this point and I don't think it is necessary in order to accomplish the work, nor is it a hazard to anyone.

Mrs. Bowser:

Okay.

President Jennings:

But I can assure this Board that Mr. Jackson and the entire University takes this issue very seriously. This is not a trivial issue and should not be taken lightly by anybody. This is something that any organization has to deal with; it is unfortunate, but it is not a light issue. That completes my agenda, Mr. Chairman.

Commencement Speaker

Henry Ponder

Henry Ponder, president of Fisk University in Nashville, graduated from Ohio State in 1963 with a doctoral degree in agricultural economics. He also holds a master's degree from Oklahoma State University and a bachelor's degree from Langston University.

Before assuming the presidency at Fisk, he was president of Benedict College in Columbia, South Carolina. His other academic positions include vice president for academic affairs and dean of the college, Alabama A & M University; chairperson, Department of Business and Economics, Fort Valley State College, Georgia; and chairperson, Department of Agribusiness, Virginia State College, Virginia.

Ponder has served as an economic consultant to the Irving Trust Company of New York City. His business experience also includes work with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York's Department of Banking Studies, the Philadelphia National Bank, the Omaha National Bank, the U.S. Department of Treasury, and the Chase Manhattan Bank.

He is involved with numerous civic organizations, among them the Better Business Bureau, the Nashville Chamber of Commerce, the Tennessee Repertory Theatre, the YMCA, the Nashville Institute for the Arts, the United Way of Middle Tennessee, the Martin Luther King Jr. Health Science Magnet School, and the Bishop Desmond Tutu Southern African Refugee Scholarship Fund.

He has been listed in several directories of prominent individuals such as Who's Who Among Black Americans, Community Leaders of America, Men of Achievement, Directory of Distinguished Americans, International Who's Who of Intellectuals, and The Book of Honor. Among his many awards are three Distinguished Alumnus Awards—one from each of the colleges that awarded him degrees. In 1986 he was named as one of the 100 most effective college presidents in the United States, according to a Bowling Green research survey. In June of this year, Ponder was a recipient of the President's 300th Commencement Award from Ohio State. We congratulate him for his accomplishment, and we welcome him back as speaker for the University's 302nd commencement.

Recipients of Honors

Josephine Sitterle Failer Doctor of Humanities

Since graduating from Ohio State in 1939 with a bachelor's degree in pharmacy, Josephine Sitterle Failer has been a dedicated supporter of the University. Deeply interested in Ohio State students, she has served in a variety of leadership capacities and has given countless hours of volunteer time to numerous projects throughout the last half century.

Within the College of Pharmacy, she established a student loan fund for pharmacy students, organized many college events, provided leadership for fund-raising efforts, and has held several volunteer leadership positions. Failer has also been very involved in Ohio State's Alumni Association and has been a member of the organization's board of directors and reunion committees.

She has been very active in other University organizations such as Friends of the Library of The Ohio State University, Friends of WOSU, and Program 60, through which people 60 years and older enroll in University classes.

A donor every year since the founding of The Ohio State University Development Fund in 1939, Failer has shared both her time and resources with the University; she became a member of The Presidents Club in 1965, has been a member of the club's executive committee, and has been a leader in numerous other fund-raising projects as well.

Her previous awards from the University include a Distinguished Service Award, the Alumni Centennial Award, the Centennial Service Award, the Ralph D. Mershon Alumni Award, and the Everett D. Reese Medal. The University is pleased to honor this dedicated and distinguished alumna.

Ann Hutchinson Guest Doctor of Humanities

Ann Hutchinson Guest is regarded internationally as the senior expert in the field of Labanotation, a system of dance notation that uses symbols to indicate very specific movement. Labanotation allows entire dance works to be recorded on paper in a manner that is, according to Guest, somewhat comparable to music notation.

Guest has been a proponent of the idea that dance should have libraries of written works which, like music scores, would accurately preserve great works of art for future study and performance. She has resurrected historical dances that previously existed only in period writings, and it is largely through her efforts that Labanotation has gained acceptance throughout the world. As a dance scholar and historian, she has studied 24 old and contemporary systems of dance notation—she is fluent in five methods of notation. She is, in addition, the author of the standard text of the Laban system of notation.

Guest was born in New York City, and her education includes work at Cambridge University in England and the Joss-Leeder Dance School, where she studied modern dance and Labanotation. Subsequently, she danced professionally for eight years in modern dance concerts and Broadway shows.

She was one of the founding faculty members of the High School of Performing Arts in New York City and the Department of Dance at the Juilliard School, where she taught for 10 years. She was among the notation experts who set up the Dance Notation Bureau in New York in 1940, and in 1962, she founded the Language of Dance Centre in London, which she heads today. She was also instrumental in establishing the Labanotation Institute at the University of Surrey in 1985. Her original research continues to be the major influence affecting the development of the notation of human movement, and her writings form the basis for the study of this discipline in higher education. The University proudly confers this award on her for her lifetime of accomplishment and distinguished contributions to the world of dance.

Recipients of Honors

Janet Taylor Spence Doctor of Science

Janet Taylor Spence is a distinguished scholar who has made important contributions to the body of primary research literature in psychology. The impact of her doctoral dissertation has been monumental in its effect on research in personality theory, motivation, learning, and psychopathology. Her dissertation was, for many years, one of the most widely cited articles in psychological literature. Much of her later work has focused on achievement and motivation and on gender roles.

Spence holds a bachelor's degree from Oberlin College and master's and doctoral degrees from the State University of Iowa. She has worked at several institutions, including Harvard, Yale, Northwestern, Iowa, and the University of Texas, where she has served as department chairperson and is currently a member of the faculty.

She is among the most productive scholars in her field; she has written or co-written more than 100 articles and over 20 books and book chapters. She has also been very involved with professional organizations—she has been elected president of the American Psychological Association and has served in several leadership capacities in other organizations, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Psychonomic Society, the Southwestern Psychological Association, and the Society of Experimental Social Psychology.

Her professional activities also include service as trustee, the James McKeen Cattell Foundation; as chair, visiting committee to the Harvard University Department of Psychology and Social Relations; as a member on the editorial committee of the Annual Review of Psychology; as a member on the board of governors, Center for Creative Leadership; and as a member on the advisory committee, Hogg Foundation for Mental Health. Ohio State is proud to honor her for her valuable contributions to her profession and to society.

Paolo Emilio Taviani Doctor of Humane Letters

Paolo Emilio Taviani, a leader of the Italian Resistance during World War II, has been a major intellectual presence in Italian academic and political life for over 40 years. Currently a senator in the Italian government, Taviani is one of a few living parliamentarians who has held an elected seat in Italy without interruption from 1945 to the present.

Born in Genoa, he holds doctoral degrees in jurisprudence, in social sciences, and in letters and philosophy. After college he began a teaching career in law and political science and later taught economics and history. He is a prolific and renowned scholar—he has published more than 20 books and dozens of reviews and articles on subjects related to the social sciences. He produced two exhaustive studies of Christopher Columbus' life and voyages, which have brought him international recognition as the greatest living authority on Columbus.

In addition to his distinguished academic career, Taviani has been a central participant in much of the social and economic history of Italy and western Europe. In 1943, during the German occupation of Italy, he helped form the National Committee for the Liberation of Liguria and served clandestinely as a partisan commander in the Resistance—actions for which he was much decorated. Also in 1943, he helped create the Christian Democrat Party. He was among the founders of the Italian Republic and a deputy to the Constitutional Committee.

After the war, he resumed his academic work and also began a career in the Italian political arena. He has served in numerous governmental capacities, including national vice secretary and national secretary of the Christian Democrat Party, representative to Parliament, senator of the Republic, chairman of the Senate foreign affairs committee, and he has held several cabinet positions. Ohio State is proud to honor him for his achievement, his leadership, and his contributions to twentieth-century civilization.

Recipients of Honors

C. K. Tseng Doctor of Science

C. K. Tseng is a distinguished international professor, scholar, and humanitarian, as well as a pioneer and leader in both basic and applied aspects of the aquatic sciences in the People's Republic of China. An expert in the study of algae, he received his doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1942 and is director emeritus of the Institute of Oceanology, Tsingtao, China.

Tseng's advanced professional training in the midwestern United States and subsequently at Scripps Institute of Oceanography has been a prelude to a life of leadership, service, and innovation within his country. His influence and activities have extended well beyond the boundaries of China and have been instrumental in re-establishing east-west relations; his work has fostered extensive international exchanges between scientific communities in both hemispheres.

During his career he has chaired the departments of Botany and Fisheries at Shandong University, China, and co-founded the Institute of Oceanology. He developed techniques for the successful cultivation of two economically important seaweeds, making China a leading world producer of these plants. He and his students are responsible for some of the earliest work in applying modern biotechnology to the study of marine organisms and to the genetic improvement of commercial seaweed stocks.

Since the end of the Cultural Revolution, Tseng has orchestrated events that have brought researchers and scholars together from all over the world. He has been the key figure in the successful development of relationships between aquatic scientists of China and the western world and a model for scientists in other fields to follow. The University congratulates him for his immense contributions to the world of science.

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE
ONE THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY-SIXTH MEETING
OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Columbus, Ohio, December 3 and 4, 1987

The Board of Trustees met at its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, December 3, and Friday, December 4, 1987, at The Ohio State University Fawcett Center for Tomorrow, Columbus, Ohio, pursuant to adjournment.

Minutes of the last meeting were approved.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Chairman, Mr. Redman, called the meeting of the Board of Trustees to order on December 3, 1987, at 6:30 p.m. He requested the Secretary to call the roll. The meeting recessed into Executive Session for the purpose of considering legal issues and personnel-related matters.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, Leonard J. Immke, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, and Milton A. Wolf.

Mr. Redman reconvened the meeting on December 4, 1987, at 10:15 a.m.

Present: Edmund C. Redman, Chairman, Leonard J. Immke, John W. Berry, Shirley D. Bowser, Hamilton J. Teaford, John J. Barone, and Milton A. Wolf.

--0--

Mr. Redman:

Let's proceed, then, to the Committee reports. Mr. Wolf, in Mr. Kessler's absence, would you give us some report on the Development Fund?

Mr. Wolf:

I don't have any information because Mr. Kessler was expected here and unfortunately no documents or information was passed on to me.

Mr. Redman:

Perhaps we could have the report at the next meeting.

Mr. Wolf:

Certainly.

Mr. Redman:

The Research Foundation Board of Directors --

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Chairman, on the Research Foundation I wish to report that for the month of October, as shown in the agenda book, there are ninety-four (94) awards listed that will provide a gross income of $7.3 million.

For the first four months of the fiscal year (July 1 to October 31) we received 442 awards with a gross income of $40.2 million. This can be compared to the first four months of the last fiscal year in which we had 373 awards with a gross income of $29.4 million. This represents a 36.89% increase in funding for the four month period. As reported last month, much of the large increase we experienced in the first quarter of the fiscal year was due to the timing of several large awards and to the slowness in processing awards by several agencies during the past fiscal year. These factors are now beginning to "wash out" and some areas of solid growth may be seen including the Department of Health and Human Services, the State of Ohio, and the Industrial sector.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Barone: (contd)

Some of the highlights of the awards for October are as follows:

- * a $1.3 million award from the Department of Health and Human Services, National Institutes of Health, to Professor Robert J. Fass of the Department of Internal Medicine to support a clinical study group on the AIDS problem.
- * a $639,000 award from the Department of Health and Human Services, National Institutes of Health, to Professor John H. Rinehart of the Department of Internal Medicine to conduct clinical trials in the area of immunotherapy.
- * a $223,000 award from the Department of Education to Professor Joseph J. Quaranta of the Department of Educational Theory and Practice to conduct an inservice training program for elementary and secondary school/university staff aimed at developing programs for alcohol and drug free schools.

These, of course, are only a few of the awards received by University faculty. Anyone may consult the full listing provided in our agenda books or you may get one from Mr. Tom Sweeney.

That concludes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Barone. It is indeed impressive.

Mr. Barone:

I might add that the AIDS program has created a tremendous amount of publicity in the medical field. We feel that this award to Ohio State is most beneficial and has given us national attention. Under the guidance of our good friend, Dr. Tzagournis, these things, I know, will be very productive and are in able hands.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Barone. I would like to have a report now on the University Hospitals Board. Mr. Immke or Mrs. Bowser --

Mr. Immke:

I don't have any information to report to you at this time.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

No, there wasn't a meeting last month.

Mr. Redman:

Well, I would like to make a report, if I may -- one in which I take great interest and only because I have paid some personal attention to some particular problems. I did want to report to the Board that I met with the Committee on revising our billing procedure yesterday, with Dr. Senhauser, the members of his Committee, and Dr. Tzagournis. I think it was an excellent meeting in that the physicians seemed to accept the Board's approach that this was beneficial to all parties, including the physicians themselves. At the request of former Trustee, Mr. Jack Havens, we had a consultant from Cleveland report to the Committee and discuss in detail answers to questions which were of concern to the physicians. I was impressed with this gentleman and I think the Committee was impressed, as well.

One of the comments which he made was that if he was engaged to undertake this, which is a simplified billing procedure -- to take care of Mr. Teaford's requirements -- that it could be done and be implemented within 90 to 120 days. This would, indeed, be expeditious. He claims that he may be able to do this based upon the fact that they have sophisticated computer hardware in their office in Cleveland, on which they have already spent $3 million and they intend to expand that. He is confident that what we have here is an accounting problem and that they have the solution. Presumably we will move forward and get that underway.

I don't know whether Mr. Covert is here or not -- is Mike Covert here?

Dr. Tzagournis:

I'm here, Mr. Chairman. If there is anything I can answer, I would be happy to.

Mr. Redman:

Well, I was impressed with Mr. Covert's statement on the helicopter. Would you want to address that?

Dr. Tzagournis:

The helicopter is quite busy. The last figure I heard was that in the first month of its operation it made 41 runs, more than one run a day. It has taken patients to Children's Hospital, Mt. Carmel, St. Anthony, and University Hospitals.

Mr. Redman:

So, we are off and running?

Dr. Tzagournis:

Yes.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

I think, too, as I understand it, that the vast majority of patients came to University Hospitals.

President Jennings:

I think the number was 26.

Mrs. Bowser:

Twenty-six out of 41 -- and they can fly in certain inclement weather. I live outside of Franklin County and that helicopter is important to those of us who live in surrounding areas. It is very important that you have a helicopter that can service those areas in bad weather conditions. I don't know much about airplanes, but as I understand it, helicopters are well equipped to do that.

Mr. Redman:

How many pilots, Dr. Tzagournis, do we have?

Dr. Tzagournis:

Two.

Mrs. Bowser:

Two. Two mechanics and a stand-by engine.

Mr. Redman:

That is about all I have to report on. Can we have a report on the University Foundation?

Mr. Teaford:

Once again, Mr. Chairman, the Foundation meets only in September and April. I told you about September, and I will tell you about April.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Teaford. That then completes the Committee reports.

--0--

Mr. Redman:

I would like to call on Dr. Russell Spillman to introduce Patrick Haney, a senior in Political Science, and Parul Kapadia, a sophomore in Psychology/Pre-Medicine, to talk about the Honors Program.

Dr. Spillman:

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Board, and President Jennings, I am very pleased to present these two members of our Honors Program, Parul Kapadia and Patrick Haney, who I think will have a fine presentation on our Honors Program.

Dr. Spillman: (contd)

Mr. Patrick Haney:

Dr. Jennings and Members of the Board, it is an honor to speak to you here this morning about the kinds of things that are going on in the Honors Program. I would like to take just a few minutes to share with you the kinds of opportunities that are available to students at The Ohio State University and Honors, from my own perspective as I look back on the last three and half years here at Ohio State.

The first thing that I would like to talk to you about is the Honors courses as an example of a way to shrink the University and promote both breadth and intensity. In my own experience I have taken Honors courses in my major field of study, political science, that have enabled me to work with just a few students and a faculty member intensely on an area of interest. I have also taken Honors courses in social sciences and the liberal arts that have enabled me to take classes in classics, comparative studies, English, and so forth with a small number of students and a faculty member. It also enables us to interact more -- students interact with faculty, and in my experience it has produced a quarter full of work that I am much more proud of and much more excited by than any other courses that I have taken at the University. Incidentally, just last night our English class met at my professor's house and had our last class and then watched movies of some of the books that we had been reading. We watched "The Picture of Dorian Gray" last night, which with the weather and everything made for quite a depressing evening.

Another opportunity in Honors is the Honors House. The old Presidents' house on Twelfth Avenue was recently renovated and is now the home of the University's Honors Center. The Honors House is an area for students to come and study, to lounge, and also an area for student organizations to have meetings. I know that a couple of you have been by the house -- Mr. Teaford, I enjoyed having lunch with you; and Mrs. Bowser, I understand that you've been there, and I would like to invite all of you to come by Honors House, as well.

Other opportunities for students in Honors, and also at the University at-large that I've experienced, has been a trip to West Point for a National Security Conference. The Student Council on U.S. Affairs is at West Point every November, and I had the opportunity to go to this Conference -- it was less than two weeks ago. I sat at the arms control round table. There were 165 students from 115 schools and about 50 cadets at West Point taking part in the Conference. Our round table focused on issues of arms control, especially as arms control now goes into a new phase seeking reductions in both the strategic forces and theatre forces, and also the SDI debate.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

I am also working on a senior honors thesis. The senior thesis, as I see it, will be a culmination of my work here at the University. My thesis deals with the farewell address of President Eisenhower. The address in which he warned the American people about the trends of the military industrial complex and the scientific technological elite. My focus and my thesis is on why did a General give such an address. In this way I hope to find out both the historical context and, more importantly, the physical writing of the address -- how it was drafted, what changes took place. In an effort to do this I will be traveling to the Eisenhower Library in Abilene, Kansas, the second weekend in January to do research on the President's papers and on other peoples' papers. I've been in contact with the speech writer's family and I will be working with his papers at the University of Minnesota. I will also be going to Johns Hopkins where there are some other papers that the President wrote, as well. My hope at the end of this project is to put together a piece of archival primary research on why this address was given. I hope it will illuminate the question of the types of forces that take place in a political economy. And for us to look at -- perhaps the President wanted to look at politics in a new way, a way that enlarged a pluralistic vision of our society, to say that there are more forces at hand here than simple democratic forces or simple elitist forces.

In and out of the classroom my experience in Honors has been one that has helped me strive towards a high level of achievement. As I enter the crunch of finals week, I now start to get my application materials together for graduate school. It is both a hectic time and one that I wish would be over, but one that I think once I am in graduate school, I will look back on fondly and remember the times at this University and the opportunities that I have had: I had lunch with Mr. Teaford, and spoke with the President and the Provost earlier in the week, and to be with you today. These times have helped me to grow and will enable me to represent the University and myself with a very high standard in graduate school and in my profession. Thank you.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Haney. And now, Parul Kapadia.

Ms. Parul Kapadia:

Mr. President, Dr. Jennings, and Members of the Board, I will be providing a slightly different perspective on Honors, maybe a younger perspective, focusing more on the first year and beginning in the Honors Program.

When I think about a word that I could use to characterize my experience in the Honors Program thus far, the word opportunity is the one that comes to mind. When I first came to Ohio State, many people warned me or cautioned me about how I would feel like just a drop in the bucket, I'd feel like just one of a crowd and be kind of lost. I am happy to say that I can't think of one time since I've been here that I've ever had that feeling of being lost or just being known by my social security number (which took me a while to memorize). But I think one of the reasons I've never felt this way is because of the Honors Program at Ohio State. My first quarter here I was enrolled in the Honors calculus series. I had an excellent professor, who will probably turn out to be one of the best that I will have at Ohio State. It was a small class, and he created an atmosphere in the class that made us very comfortable. We felt free to ask questions, to question him, to suggest different approaches, and also to just raise our hands and say, "Wait, we are completely lost, can you back up?" I think that is something that is very important in a class and it was very similar to a high school class in that way. Also, because it was a small class, the students really got to know each other. And I think we almost created a support system amongst ourselves, as it was our first quarter at Ohio State. I made a lot of friends in that class, many of whom are good friends of mine now.

Something else that has helped me was living in the Honors dorm, Taylor Tower. While -- this eludes to the opportunity I spoke of earlier -- the academics and the Honors courses provided a challenge academically, Taylor Tower gave me the opportunity to become involved in different activities in student life, in terms of Honors. When I first came to Taylor Tower, I went through orientation and I got involved and signed up for an organization called the Honors Community Association, of which Pat is President this year. This year I am heading up a program which I am very excited about. It is a pilot program this year, but I feel that if we can make it big, it can eventually become somewhat of a recruitment tool for the Ohio State Honors Program. It involves pairing incoming freshman Honors students with upper classman. It is a big brother/big sister type of support program which might give students advice on their major, help them with scheduling, and all sorts of little things that are new to them when they first come to college.

I am very excited about this program. It provided me with yet another opportunity this past October when I had a chance to travel to Dallas for the National Collegiate Honors Council Annual Convention. We went there to present this particular program as a beginning program at Ohio State and also to present the Honors Community Association. We gave that presentation and it went very well. I feel that I got a lot of ideas back from that Conference on how I can expand the program next year, how we can work to make it bigger and better, and I think we were also able to give some ideas to other schools. The Conference was a unique experience for me because I was exposed to Honors students from all over the country -- that was very fascinating. I also had never been to Dallas, so that was a nice trip.

Ms. Kapadia: (contd)

My academic course work has also led to other opportunities. It allowed me to be eligible for the Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma Honorary Societies, the two organizations of which I am President this year. When I look in terms of future opportunities, I am a pre-med student thinking of majoring in psychology, and the vast resources of Ohio State's health sciences -- the medical school, the optometry school, all of the various health sciences schools, I am hoping I can take advantage of those opportunities and the benefits of having such vast resources right here at Ohio State. I'm hoping to become involved in some research over the summer, or possibly next year, in some of the laboratories, or possibly the neurology laboratory. I hope to get some lab experience and make sure that medicine is the field that I want to go into.

That pretty much summarizes how Honors has gone for me so far, I just hope everything continues to go as well as it did this past year.

Mr. Haney:

I think that if anyone of you had any questions about the Honors Program or about the Honors Societies, Parul mentioned that she is President of the Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Eta Sigma, and I'm President of Mortar Board -- Dr. Jennings is an honorary member of Mortar Board, the National Seniority Society. Mrs. Bowser, are you a member of Mortar Board?

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, and Alpha Lambda Delta.

Mr. Haney:

So if you have any questions about the Honors Program or about what is going on in the Societies, we would be happy to respond to those.

Mr. Berry:

May I ask a question? How many students are involved in the Honors Program?

Mr. Haney:

Currently the people designated as Honors Students at the University is somewhere between 2,000-3,000 students. A new University Honors Society was started last year. The Society began with this incoming freshman class, so now there will be an even more structured recognition and program for new Honor students. Right now it is between 2,000 and 3,000 students designated as Honors Students.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, as you know, it was at my suggestion that we have these representatives of the Honors Program here as a result of having met with some of them. I find it a particularly good occasion for them to be here and I wish all those cameras were aimed there, because what we are hearing here is what Ohio State is about and what this administration is doing to make it the great university it is. It is not the reason why the members of the press came, but I hope that the Ladies and Gentlemen of the press will include a report on this when they report about the doings at Ohio State University.

Mr. Teaforde: (contd)

Mrs. Bowser:

I would like to concur with this and I'm not sure whether it's the old President's house, or the President's old house, but it's certainly a tribute to the administration and to this University -- the renewal of belief in the really scholastically prepared students. That is a remarkable facility that Dr. Al Kuhn heads up. I urge all of you Board Members to just take some time and go over there, because it just sort of renews your whole faith in what we are doing here. It is a marvelous tribute.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mrs. Bowser.

Mr. Scott:

I would like to make a comment about Pat Haney. I have followed his career for a long time. He is a St. Charles graduate. Pat was a truly outstanding student at St. Charles and I think that most observers would have predicted, at that time, that he was a youngster that we should watch. I know a little bit more about Pat than most of you, because my son, David, was a classmate of Pat's. I had anticipated and hoped that David would have had the wisdom to attend Ohio State, we didn't get David, but, Pat, we are very glad that we got you.

Mr. Haney:

Thank you, Mr. Scott. We did try our best to get David, as well.

Mr. Redman:

Is there any other comment? If not, thank you folks.

Mr. Redman made the following statement:

Before I ask for a vote on the President's recommendation, I would like to read the following statement.

I think it is important for everyone to put the events of the past several weeks into their proper perspective. First and foremost is the recognition of the University's commitment to excellence in pursuing its mission of teaching, research and service. This is an educational enterprise dedicated to the common good. Institutional decisions are reached by critical evaluation over time with special attention being given to a multitude of possible concerns. Such was indeed the case recently with respect to the University's Men's Varsity Football Program.

The Board appreciates President Jennings's leadership in dealing with these matters and with the opinions expressed in reaction thereto. It is indeed difficult for many to have an institutional perspective regarding recent events. But it is the institutional perspective that must prevail -- the University's overall mission. Individuals must have a high regard for the institutional process at work. Indeed this vibrant educational institution is bursting with meritorious activities that are newsworthy and that far surpass any individual personnel changes. Much activity is occurring around us that benefits staff, the State and society in general. One need not look far across our topography to see building activity -- the new Cancer Research Institute, our new Supercomputer, the Wexner Center for Visual Arts, our state-of-the-art Chemistry Building, and many other renovations which support our mission. One could also see building, learning and shaping of minds going on all about us. Academic excellence in our graduate and undergraduate programs is what attracts young talented minds to study at this great university.

As our reach expands and our academic achievement multiplies, it is hoped that the media will continue to demonstrate the same quest for enlightenment that it has provided in covering the events of the past several days.

PERSONNEL ACTIONS (contd)

In any event, the institution moves forward, daily business is conducted and students continue to seek knowledge. Our University sustains its ongoing focus on excellence, maintains and supports its diversity and stands ready to meet the challenge and commitments inherent within our major research institution. These organizational values and traditions take precedence over the actions of individuals.

We cannot forget our fundamental mission which is to provide our students with the basic skills and competencies which they need to have in order to be productive members of society. That must be accomplished while also enhancing our research possibilities and our service mission. Accomplishing these goals and ambitions requires a shared sense of purpose and loyalty to the ideals which make The Ohio State University one of the great public universities in this nation.

Finally, we are very pleased today to confirm the selection of Jim Jones as the University's new Athletic Director. We are pleased to do this, in part, because of Mr. Jones's longstanding commitment to and understanding of The Ohio State University. He has earned the trust of his co-workers, the students, the administration and the community. It is hoped that with his leadership we can continue the traditions that have made the University great -- excellence in teaching, research and service.

Upon motion of Mr. Teaford, seconded by Mr. Wolf, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

N. Paul Hudson

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on April 13, 1987, of Dr. N. Paul Hudson, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Microbiology.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

N. Paul Hudson (contd)

N. Paul Hudson was born in Lincoln, Illinois, on January 9, 1895. He held the degrees A.B., James Millikan University, 1917; Ph.D., University of Chicago, 1923; and M.D., Harvard Medical School, 1925. He also held the honorary degree Sc.D., James Millikan University, 1951. Dr. Hudson's distinguished university career included service as an Instructor and later Professor of Bacteriology at the University of Chicago; and as Professor and Chairman of Bacteriology, Dean of the Graduate School, Research Professor of Bacteriology and Assistant Dean of the College of Medicine at The Ohio State University.

Dr. Hudson served from 1927 to 1929 as one of the leaders of the West African Yellow Fever Commission of the Rockefeller Foundation, leading to effective control of this disease. From 1940 to 1941, he was Rockefeller Foundation representative in London for the War Health Program, and from 1943 to 1945, he was on leave to serve as a consultant to the War Department. For his distinguished service as a research scientist, teacher, academic administrator and public servant, Dr. Hudson was recommended for the honorary degree Doctor of Science. Upon his retirement in 1961, he was named Professor Emeritus.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed in the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Jack L. Landes

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 4, 1987, of Jack L. Landes, Assistant Director Emeritus in the Office of Campus Planning and Space Utilization.

Dr. Landes was born January 28, 1914, in Oak Grove, Missouri. He entered Central Missouri State College in 1929, and in 1933 and 1934 received three baccalaureate degrees, in education, music and physics. During the ensuing 15 years, he served in public schools as a teacher and administrator, and completed requirements for and was awarded masters degrees by the University of Missouri and the University of Illinois, in 1943 and 1950, respectively.

Dr. Landes joined the Office of Field Services at the University of Illinois in 1949 and, while serving in an administrative capacity there for seven years, received the EdD in 1953, his 6th degree in higher education.

Dr. Landes came to The Ohio State University in 1957, after experience with the Cincinnati public school system helping to plan facilities to meet burgeoning school populations there. He became the Assistant Director of the Office of University Plant Studies -- later renamed the Office of Campus Planning and Space Utilization -- and had a major role in providing for increasing space needs during a period of substantial University growth. During his 22-year tenure, he was directly responsible for project planning for nearly 150 construction projects on the several campuses of The Ohio State University, representing almost half of the 11 million gross square feet of space added to the campus during that time.

Dr. Landes was a member of a number of professional societies and held a faculty appointment in the College of Education with the rank of Associate Professor of Educational Administration. He retired and was named Assistant Director Emeritus.

In addition to his lifelong interests in education, music and planning, Dr. Landes was an avid and respected gardener who received much acclaim for the development of the property at his Columbus home. He was an enthusiastic participant in musical programs in his church as a tenor in the church choir, and was responsible for organizing the chorus at the Barber Roselea Senior Citizens Center in Columbus.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Francis Willard McCoy

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on October 15, 1987, of Francis Willard McCoy, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Internal Medicine and former Director of the Division of Rheumatology.

Dr. McCoy was born on January 24, 1914, in Barberton, Ohio, where he spent the early years of his life. He attended The Ohio State University and was awarded a premedical Bachelor of Arts degree in 1936 and a Master of Science degree in 1938. Dr. McCoy attended medical school at The Ohio State University and was awarded the Doctor of Medicine in 1942.

Following medical school, Dr. McCoy completed internship and residency training at The Ohio State University, and received subspecialty training at Watkins Memorial Hospital in Kansas, as well as the Hospital for Special Surgery in New York City. He completed a research fellowship at the latter institution in 1955.

Dr. McCoy served in the U. S. Air Corps from 1943 until 1946.

Dr. McCoy began teaching in 1937 in the Department of Anatomy at The Ohio State University and later held a faculty appointment in the Department of Medicine. In 1970, he was appointed Director of the Division of Rheumatology, and he served in this capacity until 1978. In the early 1970's, Dr. McCoy was promoted to full professor. In 1981, after an illustrious career as Director of Rheumatology, Dr. McCoy retired from the faculty and was awarded the title Professor Emeritus.

Dr. McCoy was active in many local and state institutions and participated in a number of national organizations. He served as consultant to the Veterans Administration, as well as the U. S. Air Force. Later in his career, he served as Acting Chief of Medicine at the Veterans Administration Clinic in Columbus, Ohio.

Throughout his life, Dr. McCoy maintained an active role in teaching medical students and other trainees. He is remembered for his constant readiness to help with clinical problems and to be of service to his colleagues at the University. He will be remembered for his gentle manner in dealing with patients and staff alike.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Waldron Devol Sheets

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on October 31, 1987, of Waldron D. "Deve" Sheets, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Chemical Engineering.

Professor Sheets was born September 9, 1903, in Willow, West Virginia. He was a graduate of the Department of Chemical Engineering at The Ohio State University where he earned the professional degree of Chemical Engineer in 1940. He was a Major in the U.S. Army Sanitation Corps during World War II and retired from military service in 1946.

Professor Sheets was appointed as a Research Engineer in the Engineering Experiment Station in 1947, and as an Assistant Professor of Chemical Engineering in 1950. Upon his retirement in 1971, he was named Professor Emeritus.

Professor Sheets worked in the Water Resources Center Building in the 1930's, while a student, and continued there as Research Engineer during most of his career at Ohio State. He was instrumental in establishing the Water Resources Center in 1964, and the W. D. Sheets Sanitary Engineering Laboratory in the Center was dedicated in his honor at his retirement. His research was in the treatment of municipal and industrial wastewaters.

In 1948, he began a program of short courses at the University to train operators of water and wastewater treatment plants. By 1964, the demand for this training was so great that the Operator Training Committee of Ohio, Inc., was established off campus under his leadership. Last year over 2,000 operators throughout Ohio took these training courses. Professor Sheets received the Wendell La Due Citation from the Ohio Section of the American Water Works Association in October 1968, for his role in developing the "Manual for Water and Waste Water Plant Operators," a publication which became a model for the nation.

Just prior to his death he was elected to the Water Management Association of Ohio Hall of Fame, honoring those who have "given years of distinguished service in behalf of bettering water management in the State of Ohio." Professor Sheets's first graduate student presented this award.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Mr. Wolf, seconded by Mr. Barone, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

LEASE OF LAND
TO THE OHIO BUILDING AUTHORITY (contd)

Mr. Jackson:

I think there are two people who would like to address the Board regarding this lease. Mr. Richard King, who is the City Manager of Upper Arlington, has asked to say a word or two. Richard, if you would like to come forward to the table and microphone, we would appreciate it.

Mr. Richard King:

Chairman Redman, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Board, and President Jennings, since August 1987, I and many members of my staff have been involved with University officials, State officials, and City residents in the College View subdivision of Upper Arlington, to determine and then assess the impact of the State Data Center proposed for OSU land on the east side of North Star Road, just south of Lane Avenue. In the beginning of this effort, because good information for any of the parties was unavailable or incomplete, the perceived enormity of the project, fueled by significant rumors and what I will call intrigue, was viewed as a potentially serious encroachment on the quality of the residential environment to the west. Despite the attempts by OSU representatives to ease concerns through public discussions of draft development standards, Upper Arlington residents were justifiably frightened and prone to believe the worst. The issue was further complicated in these early stages as the two parties, The Ohio State University and the City of Upper Arlington -- two parties that had really never worked together at the highest levels of their respective organizations on such a major problem -- needed to reconcile broader topics of style, philosophy, and approach. These early rough waters were successfully negotiated and established a basis for where we are today, which is an area of information sharing, joint problem solving and increasing levels of acceptance. Today, I tell you that the City administration is comfortable with the terms of the proposed lease as they relate to site access, building set back, and building height. We view them as an acceptable package forming the basis for minimal impact on the residential neighborhood; however, that basis we're confident will be enhanced by completion of the site development parameters generally referenced in the lease documents that you have, a process to which the City has been invited to make a contribution. We are grateful for that opportunity and will respond with our best efforts. We are confident about our contributing to the content of the site development parameters and we will do so cognizant they have a strong draft effort now already responsive to elements of neighborhood concerns.

In summary, the City is pleased with the evolution of the relationship with the University, with the substance of standards produced by that relationship, and with the opportunity for further input. I appreciate this opportunity to speak to you this morning and will be glad to respond to any questions or inquiries that you have.

LEASE OF LAND
TO THE OHIO BUILDING AUTHORITY (contd)

Mr. Barone:

Are there any questions?

Mr. Redman:

I just want to say to, Mr. King, that I am an old resident of that area. I built a house at the corner of Berkshire and Beaumont in 1941. I lived there ten years and know lots of folks in that area. I received perhaps fifteen to twenty letters from residents presently there and I appreciated their concerns. I responded to all the letters that I received, assuring the residents that Ohio State was interested in being a good neighbor. I think that most of the folks were properly concerned about what was going to be built next to their houses and I assured them that we would give every consideration to that, short of denying the University the right to use its own land. Most folks agreed that that was appropriate and I think it is a good solution, that Mr. Jackson has outlined, to the entire problem. However, I must say that I agree with you about a continuing dialogue between the University and the City of Upper Arlington and in any other matters that may come between us. So, I just wanted to give you that assurance, Mr. King.

Mr. King:

Thank you.

Mr. Teaford:

I think, too, Mr. Chairman, the Board appreciates your coming and reporting to us when something happens favorably, as well. I think that is very comforting.

Mr. King:

I know that feeling, as well.

Mr. Barone:

We want to thank you, Mr. King, for your presentation and especially since you completed the presentation smiling.

Mr. Jackson:

Thank you, Richard.

Mr. Barone:

At this time, we also have Dr. Medard Lutmerding --

Dr. Medard Lutmerding:

Mr. Redman, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees, and President Jennings, The Ohio State University shares three of its borders with the City of Columbus and one with Upper Arlington. I represent the neighbors living along the Upper Arlington border. As neighbors, we were very concerned about the plan to lease part of the farmland on North Star Road to the State of Ohio for a State Computer Center.

Naturally, we hate to see the loss of open space along the North Star corridor, with its unobstructed panoramic view of the Olentangy River Valley and the City.

For several months, despite our efforts, The Ohio State University did not welcome our efforts to affect the development nor understand our concerns. Only recently has The Ohio State University administration been working closely with the City Manager of Upper Arlington, and through him, the Citizens Committee.

What is on your agenda today gives us modest hope that the development, when it comes, will not destroy the character and quality of our neighborhood which we think is an enormous asset to the University. We feel that the University has a unique opportunity to develop a showcase research park. Any new development should have a campus environment equal at least to the Oval. It should also reflect a design quality that recognizes the scale and residential character of the neighborhood. Please remember that the City of Upper Arlington is the western gateway to The Ohio State University. This quality residential neighborhood on the immediate border of the future research park will make it more attractive to future tenants and more valuable to Ohio State.

We are aware that the lease document contains three standards concerning development:

1. No access from North Star Road
2. A building height limitation of 50 feet
3. A setback of not less than 150 feet

We are also told that Ohio State University administrators will subsequently execute a document clarifying and embellishing these standards. These clarifications and embellishments will be of utmost importance to our acceptance of the development. If these additional promises are fulfilled, we feel that we can accept the development with regret, but with some comfort.

There are still certain reservations, including:

1. Noise levels
2. Lighting intensity
3. Landscaping
4. Development quality

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

LEASE OF LAND

Dr. Lutmerding: (contd)

Additionally, we still intend to explore the possibility of increasing the current setback if possible, by working directly with the State Architect's Office. We view the 150 foot dimension as minimally acceptable.

We feel that we have set an example of responsible restraint. We fully realize that this property does not belong to those of us living along its edge.

We do hope that the recent display of cooperation with the City of Upper Arlington will continue. Much can be accomplished for both sides with meaningful dialogue and an open exchange of ideas.

The community, as a whole, is looking at this project as a precedent to how future development of the corridor will progress. If this project is done properly, the University can count on the support and cooperation of the citizens of Upper Arlington. Thank you.

Mr. Barone:

Thank you, Dr. Lutmerding. Does any one want to ask Dr. Lutmerding any questions?

Mr. Teaford:

I would just like to add that I certainly agree that the neighborhood committee has indeed acted very responsibly on this and I think that has had much to do with getting a successful resolution. We do appreciate it.

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Jackson, will you confirm Dr. Lutmerding's statement in his report?

Mr. Jackson:

Yes. I appreciate your comments and I think in the early days of communication there wasn't anything to communicate. I know some people are not quite sure they believe that, but there wasn't very much to communicate. I think that the communication has improved and we look forward to continuing to work with you. I guess I would like to point out that in light of your one comment about the land utilization, as we see this project at this point, and we don't know any more about it than you do really, but it looks like the land utilization is somewhere in the neighborhood of about 35%. Which for a fifteen acre sight is relatively small, but that doesn't mean anything if it isn't done right. And we would agree with you on that. So, we are looking forward to the development of this project and we will continue to work through Richard, to you, and appreciate your comments and your coming here today. Thank you. Mr. Chairman, we would ask for your approval of this resolution.

Mr. Jackson: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

I would like to make one comment, Mr. Jackson. In the resolution itself, I don't see any reference to the $1,800,000, that you mentioned we are to receive.

Mr. Jackson:

Mr. Chairman, I think, back under Tab 6 you will find, under the additional information, it talks about the $1,800,000.

Mr. Redman:

So, am I to understand that that now has been determined?

Mr. Jackson:

Yes, that is correct.

Mr. Redman:

Then you are satisfied that we are going to receive that. Thank you.

Upon motion of Mr. Immke, seconded by Mr. Berry, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Chairman, at this time I would like to call on Mr. Ihrig to speak on the Cost Containment Program.

Mr. Ihrig:

Thank you, Mr. Barone. The 1987-88 budget approved in July included $12 million in targeted annual savings to be generated by the University's inaugural cost containment program. Today we are able to report to you that the efforts of the University Faculty and Staff resulted in cost reductions that will generate annual savings totalling $12,541,166, which is 5% over goal, as shown in the chart under Tab 7. For these efforts, eligible faculty and staff at Ohio State are being recommended to receive one-time bonuses which range from $439 to $575 as shown on the second chart under Tab 7. Based upon the recommendation of the Faculty Compensation and Benefits Committee, the individual faculty bonuses will be returned to their departments for use as discretionary enrichment funds. Deans and members of the President's Staff are excluded from receiving bonuses.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

The process, created last winter, began with the setting of targets and providing the call for cost containment proposals from all colleges and offices, including earnings units. The only areas excluded were restricted operations in which external agencies defined the use of the funds, such as sponsored research projects as well as gift and endowment income accounts. Also, employees under collective bargaining agreements were not included since the program was not a part of their agreement.

We began the program with a great deal of communication throughout the University that included: a brochure; On Campus articles; articles in the Lantern; group meetings throughout the University with slide presentations; meetings with the various Senate Committees including the Fiscal Committee, Senate Steering Committee, the Faculty Compensation and Benefits Committee; as well as the Staff Advisory Committee.

Many colleges and offices have established their own internal cost containment committees; used their own publication activities to promote the program and to solicit suggestions; and held many meetings throughout the University. In August we received 540 individual proposals from the colleges and offices which totalled over $13 million. At that time four-person review teams were created from volunteer faculty, staff and students of the University and 136 individuals participated in these review teams. The teams were to review each of the cost containment proposals in areas other than their own and to look at the criteria for judging the cost containment proposals: true annual cost savings to the University, in that the cost savings would continue on a regular basis; that they were not passing costs on to other parts of the University, in other words the costs were a net reduction to the entire University; and quality must be maintained or enhanced.

In the final review of results of these activities and these proposals that were done throughout October and November -- while about a half a million dollars worth of proposals did not pass the scrutiny, the net amount of the $12.5 million did pass and have been approved. And they are in the process now of making the internal budget adjustments between the various units and developing the cash balances.

It is important to note that the purpose of Cost Containment is not only to create internally generated resources by reducing annual operating costs while enhancing quality, it is also directed at opening the decision-making processes throughout the University to involve all faculty and staff. Prior reallocation programs are top-down driven, with the few hundred managers making the decisions where to cut. The intent of Cost Containment is to involve the thousands of faculty and staff to question not only whether we are doing things right, but more importantly, are we doing the right things. Thousands of intelligent people motivated to become more involved in finding ways to improve instruction, research and support services, while cutting costs, are much more effective than a few hundred directing the efforts.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

This is not to say that our faculty and staff haven't been working to maintain a cost-effective University -- Ohio State's faculty and staff have always been extremely cost conscious. This program is to challenge each of us to extend our efforts to do even more by going beyond making operations efficient, to finding better, more cost effective ways to enhance teaching, research and support services.

The first year results have been more than successful in generating the targeted annual savings; however, we have been less than successful in effectively communicating with our associates throughout the University the intent and purpose of this new Program. Therefore, we are now talking with department chairs and members of various committees to receive their ideas for improving the 1988 cost containment programs. The feedback is spirited and healthy -- and is providing us with good insights regarding areas for improvement. When the bonus checks, along with letters, are distributed explaining the program to eligible faculty and staff in mid-December we hope to gain even more interest on the part of all the faculty and staff in how to improve this program as we look forward to establishing this for the next year. I would be glad to respond to any questions about the program and we are recommending it for your approval.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, too, I think that everyone should realize that the administration does understand that more communication on this subject is still necessary. And I think the other thing that everybody needs to know is that contrary to what Secretary Bennett says, this University is remarkably good at not wasting money. This is just one more effort to improve on an already good situation.

Mr. Berry:

Other than that how much -- assuming the goals are met and everything, what dollars are we talking about in bonuses?

Mr. Ihrig:

The bonus amount will be just over $5.3 million. The final exact number is still being worked on, but it is between $5.3 and $5.4 million.

Mr. Berry:

So what you are saying is, we achieved $12.5 million and we pay back $5.3 million.

Mr. Ihrig:

That is correct.

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Berry:

So we saved a net of $7 million.

Mr. Ihrig:

For this year. But the $12.5 million is recurring continuing savings, where the bonus is a one-time savings this year.

Mr. Berry:

All right.

Mr. Teaford:

Also, it is important to notice that the professional staff is not taking the bonuses. The faculty are having those bonuses go to their departments.

President Jennings:

Yes. The faculty -- that was on the recommendation of the Faculty Compensation and Benefits Committee. They felt it would be more appropriate to return the equivalent bonus money to the department for the betterment of the individual department, rather than to the individual faculty member.

Mrs. Bowser:

Mr. Ihrig, did I hear you say that next year's program is in the process of being discussed.

Mr. Ihrig:

That is correct. Through all of these open discussions we have had letters from individuals which we are responding to, and we have a lot of good ideas which we are evaluating at this time to make a full set of recommendations for next year.

Mrs. Bowser:

So you are taking all of the communication efforts that you can in order to --

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes. This is a learning process for all of us. It has not been done in higher education and it has very seldom been done even in many service industries. So we are plowing new ground and our associates from around the country are watching us very carefully, especially the private schools, they are very interested in what we are doing.

Mr. Barone:

Do you have additional pamphlets on this program? Can anyone

December 3 and 4, 1987 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Barone: (contd)

have them? I think they are self-explanatory and very helpful. If anyone desires one, they can obtain one from you?

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes, that's correct.

Mr. Barone:

Any further discussion? Thank you, Mr. Ihrig.

Mr. Immke:

I call upon Dr. Lena Bailey to give her report.

Dr. Lena Bailey

I'm Lena Bailey, Dean of the College of Home Economics, and we are delighted to be invited to share with you information about our hospitality program. This program is one of our newest undergraduate programs -- it has been in place about 3 1/2 years as it is currently implemented. It is one of about 19 or 20 undergraduate options in our College. It is quickly coming to the forefront as one of the most popular undergraduate programs in the College.

I have with me today the Chair of the Department where this program is housed, Dr. Wayne Johnson, on my right, and on my left is Mr. Frank Pauze, who is Director of the Hospitality Management Program. Along with our comments today, we have a few slides we want to share with you and those slides will expand a bit upon the information that was provided to you earlier that dealt with the curriculum and its history, as well as some of our hopes regarding the program for the future. I would like for Wayne to comment a moment or two before Frank shares with you the information we've planned.

Dr. Wayne Johnson:

Thank you, Dr. Bailey. I would just like to make a few comments about the Department of Human Nutrition and Food Management. We have had a very long history and a long tradition of excellence in academic programming in the Department. Particularly in those various fields of dietetics and human nutrition, both at the undergraduate and graduate level. The restaurant management program, as you will hear later, was initiated back in 1946, but in the early '80's a move was made to broaden the restaurant management program and to add a degree in hotel administration.

When I came here in 1983, one of the real challenges that I saw

Dr. Johnson: (contd)

was the opportunity to be able to step in and help to direct the beginnings of the new program. Of course, we wanted to get one of the very best people we could find who had the experience, the educational background, the drive and energy to be able to come in and help us put this program together. We anticipate and we are working toward making it one of the very top in the country. We were fortunate in 1984, to be able to hire Frank Pauze. In my way of thinking, he has done a job for us that very few other people could have done. So, Frank will be telling you the specifics of the program, where we were, where we are now, and where we hope to be in the future. Frank --

Mr. Pauze:

Well, again, that you very much for letting us come here today. We're happy to be in a University that is committed to excellence, that is dedicated to the pursuit of quality. There is no doubt about that -- otherwise I wouldn't be here.

(Start of Slide Presentation)

In terms of where we are housed, we are happy to be housed in the College of Home Economics, another quality oriented part of this University. In terms of ratings, we are proud to say that through Dean Bailey's administration, the College has gone from eighth place in the country, to approximately fifth in 1983. In terms of the hospitality education programs, whether they are called hotel/restaurant programs or hotel/restaurant institution programs, etc., the most recent poll shows Cornell and Michigan State the leaders. They have been the leaders and they have been in the business for about fifty years. We have a way to go to catch up. OSU, quite frankly, was not even on the list back in 1984-85. Another poll will be coming out this year and I hope we make that. You can see that the other land-grant institutions are the ones that are leading the pack.

In terms of the tri-state area, our competition in Ohio rests with Bowling Green and their active and creative program up there; Purdue, that you have probably heard about; and Michigan State. Those are the three programs that are in the tri-state area that really rival us in terms of competition.

As Wayne mentioned, the program was founded in 1945 by a gentleman by the name of Herb Gill, who was a student at the time, along with three of his roommates. They decided that they wanted to get into the restaurant industry, went to the Provost at the time and said let's start a program. In 1982, Dean Bailey headed a task force that looked at the restaurant degree program and redesigned the curriculum and it is the basis of the curriculum that we have today. In 1984-85, this curriculum was implemented with approximately 50 students. We are proud to say that over the three years we have grown quite significantly, we have more than 270 students in the program right now.

The degree is a tagged degree. The piece of paper actually says a Bachelor of Science in Hospitality Management. Some of the students are proud of that because it does not say Home Economics, it doesn't make a difference to us. The majors that they are enrolled in are hotel administration or restaurant management, one of those two options.

We are proud that we have this kind of broad curriculum strength -- by the way, we do know how to spell business, that is not a slander against the College of Business by any means. We have a broad liberal arts base, in the BER area and the undergraduate curriculum, and we support Provost Brand's efforts to broaden that and strengthen that liberal arts base. About 25-30% of our curriculum is in the College of Business, laying the foundation for some of our course work back in Home Economics later on. We have a definite human resource emphasis in the program and one of the corner stones, which we will tell you about in a minute, is the internship program. The bottom line to all of this, though, is that we are really human resource oriented. If you know anything about the hotel and restaurant field, it is a people business. You must meet the numbers, but you also have to be very willing and able to deal with people. And we also, throughout the curriculum, structure analysis and critical thinking skills throughout every single course so that our students are pressed to form analyses and form opinions. We really push them on thinking. So this is not a vocational program by any stretch of the imagination, it is a management program.

Most programs in the country are either housed in what we call a focused area, in a culinary side, focusing on food service or whatever. Other programs, particularly the leaders, are broad based, management oriented, and that is where we tend to envision ourselves -- on the management side.

The enrollment patterns over the last couple of years are a double-edged sword. We are getting increased enrollment with very little advertising, in fact no advertising, word of mouth is spreading. Last quarter we graduated eight students and brought in fifty-three. We have that kind of pattern continuing. Regression analysis on that line, the solid line, would show us capping out at our target of 450 to 500 students in two years. Naturally, with an immature program like this that is growing rapidly, the lag period between faculty resources and the enrollment stats is significant. So what we intend to do is somehow over the next couple of years slow down that enrollment a little bit, so that our lag time between faculty resources and student enrollment can catch up. We would envision that our target enrollment for undergraduates would be 450-500. At that point we would want the full-time equivalency of 12 faculty members and three staff support people.

We are proud to say that over the last couple of years while the enrollment has been doubling and quadrupling, our grade-point average overall has gone up from a 2.2 to a 2.6. So while we are bringing in the students, we are bringing in good quality top-notch students. Four years ago we had one student on the dean's list of 73. Last autumn quarter the dean's list had 69 names on it, 16 of which were hospitality management majors.

The real cornerstone of this program lies in what we call progressive management development. Other schools call it internships, work experience, co-ops, practicums, whatever. We do not want to give credits just for going out in the industry and working. Eighty-five percent of our students work 20-30 hours per week in the field while going to school full-time. We don't want to give credits for that. We have developed a three-level internship sequence, a management development sequence, that goes from 5 credits, to 10 credits, to 15 credits. It goes from an hourly position, to a supervisory position in the junior year, to an assistant manager, and then to an entry level career position in their senior years.

The entire internship sequence is based on competency, not hours. When I went to school at the University of New Hampshire in hotel administration, we were asked to put in 1200 hours -- we could have been a waiter for 1200 hours, come back with a letter from your employer, check it off, and get a transcript. We have a competency-based system here where there are certain check lists, certain analyses that have to be done by the students. They meet with a faculty member one-on-one for a half-hour each week for a debriefing as they go through this rotation, and we have check lists and appraisals back from the industry as they go through. We push the critical analysis, the thinking skills throughout the program.

The internship sites when we started in 1984-85, we worked with 4 charter sites in Columbus. And I must say that we have also had requests from different properties in Columbus which we have turned down, based on management teams at the properties. We are not after bricks and mortar. The Hyatt's got a neat lobby, but I can promise you that if the Hyatt's management team wasn't up to par, we would not be working with the Hyatt. This year in 1987-88, we have approximately 250 majors. When this slide was made up, we were working with 12 sites; we now have 14 and we are putting out 47 students each quarter. As we get to 450 majors, we are going to require 90 students per quarter for approximately 24 sites. The industry saturation point at this time, although we have enough properties, we can target about 16 or 17 properties that we would want to work with. As a result, we have a deficit of about 28 students per quarter. If we had a facility that we could house ourselves in, we would be able to handle those 28-30 students in-house. So we are approaching a crunch demand.

The job scene still looks good for grads. Almost every program in the country can tell you that they have 100% placement. That is very easy, because all the programs in the country combined only turn out about 10% of the industry need every single year. The recent poll by Central Michigan said students weren't interested in food service. And before the Board gets upset, if you notice the bottom one is Oklahoma State University, not OSU. In our program, about 70% of the students are in hotel administration, about 30% are in restaurant. In the lodging industry you have rooms only and you have full-service food and beverage properties. Approximately 80% of our grads go into those full-service food and beverage hotels. And 90% of our restaurant grads go into the multi-unit, full-service restaurants. So the headline about students not being interested in the food service is clearly not indicative of our program.

In terms of the industry, I don't know if very many people know this, but the hospitality industry is 10% of the gross national product. Forty-five billion meals per year, almost 3 million room nights, seventy billion pounds of food, fifty-three million pieces of equipment, every single year. The industry employs approximately 6% of the entire population of the United States. So it is a wealth of industry.

We are lucky because Ohio is a hot bed for the hospitality industry. Columbus, as you know, has these corporate headquarters. We are developing a partnership with the industry and as a result we have a middle-management advisory board and a CEO advisory board. Once every six months President Jennings, Dean Bailey, Dr. Johnson, and myself, meet with these five people: Dan Evans from Bob Evans, Pat Ross from Rax, Bill Ingram from White Castle, Bill Denk - CEO of Red Roof, and Jim Pickett. So we are developing that partnership around the industry in terms of our advisory board. Columbus is also the regional headquarters for these kinds of companies and we have a high profile there. When we go to Ohio, there are 57 corporate headquarters from this industry in Ohio -- Dayton has NCR Corporation, the world leader in point of sale computer equipment in the hospitality industry. If we go to Troy, we have Hobart Corporation, again world leader in food service equipment. We go to Stouffers up in Cleveland, L. J. Minor, the list is endless. Proctor and Gamble is the major supplier of amenities packages for the hotels in this field.

In terms of research within this industry these are some of the things we have proposed and ongoing: right now we are developing a robotics food service automation program for some of the fast food companies; Dr. Marion Kramer is working on flexible pouch food storage so that we have a 100% vacuum proof container to store meats at room temperature for a six-month shelf life -- that will help out in terms of food service supply; we have a CEO leadership study going on with McDonalds; and Rax we have a program of looking at consumer dietary studies in the areas of fast foods. What are people eating after they have lunch at McDonalds? Can they counterbalance the Big Mac?

I would like to say that you will probably recognize the slogan for the campaign of "A Distinguished Past -- a Dynamic Future." Our part of the campaign calls for a chair for $1.5 million. I am glad to say that this morning there is a company that has on its agenda at their board meeting this morning, as top priority, the funding of that chair. So we are very optimistic about the funding of that chair. We have a proposal out for $50,000 for computer hardware; we already have a guarantee of software packages for about $40,000, once we get the hardware. We have added $6,000 a year to our scholarship for hospitality majors, of which 2 of those scholarships are targeted for minorities. Four thousand dollars a year comes in and is added to general support. This particular year we also had approved at the University-level a position for an intern coordinator. It was not funded until 1988-89, so Dr. Johnson went out and got $7,000 from his internal funding; I hit the bricks and got about $10,000 from some local companies to carry us through.

So, in general, with the wealth of industry, geography, the work ethic of the students, I guess our slogan is "Carpediem" -- seize the day, seize the opportunity, move forward with quality and excellence. Thank you.

Dr. Bailey:

That concludes our presentation, however we are willing to entertain any questions from you and give it our best.

Mr. Immke:

Any questions?

Mrs. Bowser:

When I came on the Board, Home Economics was a School. Now it is a full College with some very creative programs. I know Dean Bailey had a lot to do with that. I told the participants earlier, I think this is the kind of thing about Ohio State that makes me very proud. We have come a long way in this area, it is an area that there is a demand for, and it is well organized. I appreciated having the materials before the Board Meeting, which doesn't always happen as far as the presenters are concerned. I think it is a fabulous program.

Mr. Immke:

I do, too.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, as you know this is a College which has become near and dear to my heart, since my wife is a graduate student in the College. But I think it is interesting to note, too, that this has historically had a reputation of being a woman's college. We have some evidence here and on our agenda is the appointment of Dr. Davis as the Chair in the department that my wife is in, in Family Relations and Human Development. I think that is also significant in that we will finally realize that this is a department that has a broad-base of interest and in the areas they cover.

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Immke:

Dr. Spillman --

Dr. Russell Spillman:

President and Members of the Board, I am pleased this morning to present you with another one of our very important student organizations. We have with us this morning representatives of the Residence Halls Advisory Council -- Todd Dailey who is the President and Gary Breakfield who is the Vice President. Todd is from Chillicothe, and he is a senior major in business information systems; Gary is from Sabina, a senior also, majoring in mathematics. They would like to tell you a bit about what is going on in residence halls. Todd, I will turn it over to you.

Mr. Todd Dailey:

Mr. Teaford, President Jennings, and Members of the Board, I would like to thank you today for giving us an opportunity to speak with you. I guess, first of all, Residence Halls Advisory Council is, for the amount of work that we do, a fairly little-known organization on campus. So, first of all, we would like to go through and let the members know just exactly what we are. Residence Halls Advisory Council was formed in 1981 as a subcommittee of the Council on Student Affairs. At that time, our purpose was to review and make recommendations to the Office of Residence and Dining Halls and to advise them on policies from a student perspective. Since then, we have gone on to become an independent student organization of our own and have kept our goal of representing the students' voice on campus. The Office of Residence and Dining Halls has been very supportive of that and they also recognize that our recommendations to them on residence halls policy are very important to them and they are very supportive of us in that respect.

Our voting members consist of the hall presidents of each independent residence hall student government. Also we have liaison officers which represent us to each office of residence and dining halls separate offices: the business office; the administration office; the residence life office; the food service office; and we also have a representative of their security committee. As such, we try best as we can to represent all the interests of residence hall students. This year our goals for 1987-88 school year, we set five goals at the beginning of the year: 1) to promote human awareness on campus; 2) to provide leadership training opportunities for hall council executives on campus; 3) to involve residence halls advisory council with other campus organizations; 4) to strengthen the relationship between residence halls advisory council and the area in hall governments on campus; and 5) to make a commitment to provide alternative programming as a result of the change in the legal drinking age on campus and the whole State. Certainly, these are fairly broad goals, but we think to an extent we can achieve all of these goals or at least make some good progress with these goals. And I believe that our group has done well this year, and I am very proud of all of our members with the amount of work that we have seen put in by them.

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

So with that I would like to turn over the floor to Mr. Breakfield and he is going to go over some of the specific accomplishments we have achieved this year.

Mr. Gary Breakfield:

Thus far this year we have made some progress toward these goals that Todd mentioned. I would like to go over just a few of the specific things on our agenda that we have accomplished this year.

First of all in the fall, during Alcohol Awareness Week, we sent a contract to each resident in our halls asking them for a commitment, to sign a contract which stated that they would not drink for the extent of Alcohol Awareness Week. I believe we made it about a five-day period. We hoped that students that did have a drinking problem that it might actually click with them when they attempted to stop for 4 or 5 days and found that they had some problems with it. Hopefully, they may actually go out and seek some help. That was our goal for the program.

We have also funded some different awareness type programs. One in particular, the Karen Thompson Program, was held the beginning of last November and concerned civil rights. Presently we are involved, as anybody that reads the Lantern would know, with the issue of condom sales in the residence halls and AIDS awareness education to the residence halls students. We are in the process of conducting a survey with the polymetrics lab to determine how the residents feel about the situation. We are also in an ongoing process of educating the students through different programming as to the different aspects of sexually transmitted diseases. We are in the process of trying to obtain a company to come on The Ohio State University Campus and rent lofts to students for the residence halls. We are trying to avoid the problem that evolve when students making their own. Sometimes they don't exactly follow the loft construction guidelines, and they can be unsafe and fire hazards. We have companies that are willing to come in with fire safe lofts and we are in the process right now of seeing if we can find a suitable arrangement with one of those companies.

We are working with the security policy with the residence and dining halls as to the security of the doors at night, the access in and out, and the traffic of the residence halls during different hours of the day. We are trying to make it as convenient as possible for the residents, as well as making the residence halls as secure as possible.

We are representing Ohio State -- over Halloween weekend we went to Syracuse and represented Ohio State residence halls at the North Atlantic Association of College University Residence Halls Convention. And I believe in April we will be going to the

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Breakfield: (contd)

University of Wisconsin-La Crosse for the national convention and representing Ohio State there.

We have not fulfilled all of the goals that we have set for ourselves thus far this year. Still on our agenda, we are going to attempt as much as possible to involve minority support groups in the Residence Halls Advisory Council. Groups such as the Black Association of North Campus Students, the Olentangy Association of Black Students -- I'm not sure of the name of the south area group for a black support, the Asian Support Group -- we are trying to involve them as much as we can and get them involved in RHAC so we can help them and they can help us in trying to work out what some call a racism problem here at Ohio State.

We also intend to restructure our constitution to better facilitate our goals. Our constitution was written in 1981 and with the evolution of our group it has been somewhat outdated. We are going to try and restructure it so that the constitution facilitates our needs and will allow us to direct our group toward the eventual goals that we have for the group. We are going to attempt to incorporate graduate residence halls and graduate living environments into the Residence Halls Advisory Council, such as Jones Tower and Morrison Tower, and now we have a new situation in Park Hall, where we have graduates and undergraduates living in the same building. We want to set down long-range goals for our group, not just until the end of Spring Quarter, but possibly goals that can be attained over the next 3-4 years. What could be done here on campus such as the -- there are endless possibilities of what could be done for the residence halls students through our organization.

That, right now, is where our group stands as far as the actual implementation of programming and procedures.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you. Any questions of either Todd or Gary?

President Jennings:

I think it might be enlightening for all of us if you would explain what a loft is.

Mr. Breakfield:

I'm the Chairperson of the Loft Committee. What it is, essentially, in some of the rooms -- right now the most feasible place to put them is in the south campus in the Olentangy doubles. The beds are on the floor, and what a loft would do is add a structure to place the bed on so it goes approximately 4 1/2 to 5 feet in the air and you can put a desk or a couch underneath there. As many can tell you, the residence halls rooms can be cramped at times. It is a way to allow more and better utilization of the space and make the residence halls rooms seem much larger and much more spacious.

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

You can actually build those in the rooms? I hate to walk in St. John's under the scoreboard, I would be --

President Jennings:

That is what their committee is all about, to perhaps put some regulations into the construction of these because they can get a little --

Mr. Breakfield:

The University has very strict guidelines as to exactly what materials need to be used in building lofts. That shuts off to most students the possibility of actually putting one in. So what we have done, is we have contacted some outside companies which would build them to specifications and rent them to students.

Mrs. Bowser:

I am surprised that some enterprising student hasn't gone into the loft construction business.

President Jennings:

Sure. Well that is probably what is going to happen is somebody -- when they go for bids to rent these. But it is basically a high bunk bed --

Mr. Immke:

Thank you both. Thank you, Dr. Spillman.

--0--

Mr. Immke:

I would like to call on John Barone now for a Research Foundation Committee report.

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Chairman, on the Research Foundation I am happy to report that the Research Foundation grants and contracts for the months of November and December 1987 are shown in the Board agenda book. There are 160 awards listed which provide a gross income of $13.7 million.

For the first six months of the fiscal year (July 1 to December 31) we received 602 awards with a gross income of $54.1 million. This compares to the first six months of the last fiscal year, in which we had 512 awards with a gross income of $45.6 million. This represents an 18.45% increase in funding for the six month period.

Mr. Barone: (contd)

Approximately 70% of the funds received in December came from the federal government. These awards were spread among all of the usual federal agencies except for the Departments of Energy and Education. In the case of the Department of Education, we failed to receive the renewal award of more than $5 million for the National Center for Research in Vocational Education. In spite of this loss, overall federal funding remains up by 5.05% for the first six months of this fiscal year. Increases were received in all other funding sectors for the month of December, however the rate of growth was less than that experienced in previous months.

Some highlights of awards for November and December are:

- * $4.5 million award from the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, to Professor Randall J. Olsen of the Center for Human Resource Research to support a continuation of the National Longitudinal Surveys of Labor Market Experience. That is a little different from our President, when he said how much money was given for research in cranberry juice.
- * $527,000 grant from the government of Indonesia to Professor James J. Buffer of the Department of Education Administration to provide professional development teacher education programs for the faculty of the Institutes for Teacher Training and Education in Indonesia.
- * $500,000 award from the National Science Foundation to Professor P. E. Kolattukudy of the Biotechnology Programs to provide equipment for an integrated plant propagation facility.
- * $365,653 award from the National Institutes of Health to Dean Manuel Tzagournis of Medicine Administration and Professor William B. Malarkey of the Department of Internal Medicine to support continuation of the General Clinical Research Center. (This is a partial funding; approximately $1.0 million more is expected this fiscal year.)
- * $252,424 contract from the National Institutes of Health to Professors Lawrence E. Mathes, Richard G. Olsen, and Melinda J. Tarr of the Department of Veterinary Pathobiology for continuation of work to develop animal models infected with retroviruses for testing of antiviral agents.

These, of course, are only a few of the awards received by University faculty members these past two months. I would strongly suggest that each of you consult the full listing provided for additional information which I have placed in the hands of Madison Scott. I would like to bring out along with that a little background information that was made. For example: $4,498,900 was given to the National Longitudinal Surveys of the Labor Market. This work is performed and involves all the tasks necessary to complete the tenth round of the National Longitudinal Survey of Labor Market Experience for the youth cohort. They will be preparing the data tape from the 1987 and 1988 surveys of young women and developing questionnaires for the 1989 survey for the mature women. Data tapes will also be prepared for the 1987 survey of the mature woman.

Along with that, I would like to bring out one other factor and that is along with the slides what we saw today, there has been a $500,000 grant for the integrated plant propagation facilities in the Biotechnological Programs with Dr. P. E. Kolattukudy. The Ohio State University Biotechnological Center has chosen to build a center of excellence in plants, microbes and their interactions. A group of scientists involved in the molecular biology of plants and their interaction with microbes are being housed in a well-equipped, newly modeled laboratory. And a new group of about 10 faculty members will join this intercollegiate program.

Dr. Tzagournis and Dr. Malarkey are working at The Ohio State University Clinic Research Center to provide a controlled environment for clinical investigations that is not found under the general medical ward. Also to ensure that research studies progress as smoothly and efficiently as possible by providing a staff of skilled professionals to help investigate and conduct their research. This research unit affords OSU scientists, both basic and clinical, the opportunity to seek pathological and psychological insights into the diseases and mechanisms, develop new diagnostic tests, and pursue new treatments and methodologies. It is the only arena for testing new developments from the laboratory and exploring the relevance to man. I suggest to Dr. Tzagournis and Dr. Malarkey that this should be a very interesting and successful program that the University Medical School can be very proud of. Jack, do you have anything you want to add on to this?

Dr. Jack Hollander:

No.

Mr. Barone:

I think that Jack is doing a tremendous job. I don't know what we would do in the research program without him. And the longer I get to know him, he amazes me with what he is doing on behalf of research at OSU. I think that we all owe Jack a tremendous amount, because he is doing a tremendous work and I hope he lives forever and stays here forever. That is the end of my report.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, John. Mrs. Bowser, will you give the Hospitals Board report?

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

With your permission, Mr. Immke, I am going to highlight some of these items rather than read the full minutes. The Hospitals Board's Executive Committee met both December 17 and January 28. We have had two meetings since we last met. We have recommended to the Board of Trustees the Medical Staff appointments which appear before you.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has completed its survey and they met with key people both from the Medical Staff and from the Hospitals Board, and we have had conferences about that. There were very few deficiencies, but that preliminary report will be presented within the next 60 days.

The Hospitals Board is beginning to implement a reorganization of the Board. We have brought this to you before. There will be three committees: 1) the Strategic Planning Committee; 2) the Administration/Operations Committee; and 3) the Professional Affairs/Research Committee. We hope that this will modernize, so to speak, our responsibilities in these different areas. We will keep you posted as to how that is coming along.

I know that there has been some interest on the Board about the Comparative Analysis not only of hospitals locally, but hospitals in the Big 10 and mid-west. We are beginning to gather some data on that. I think it was surprising that the findings did not show as much as we had anticipated they would. But we will be bringing some of those reports to you as they occur.

Dr. Mekhjian brought to our attention at the last Board meeting the good cooperation we have with the VA, which is located to the west of our campus, and he hoped that would continue. There are some negotiations going on, but they are being handled well.

Dr. David Schuller is heading a committee for Ambulatory Surgery which is taking a look at what we are doing and seeing if we need to upgrade or make any changes, whether we should upgrade our present facilities or move to a different location. Those were very interesting findings and that will be continued to looked at.

And, lastly, Mr. Jackson reported that the Cancer Hospital is having a few difficulties, but he is on top of it and it looks like it is progressing as fast as humanly possible. He is taking every step possible to see that we get in there eventually -- seeing that we have level floors, and the right color bricks, and all the things that are important.

I would be happy to discuss any of this or answer any questions, but it is before you.

Mr. Immke:

If not level floors, at least all the slants going in the same direction -- parallel floors. Any questions? That concludes our committee reports.

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Immke: (contd)

Professor Boris Mityagin:

Can I speak about one candidate?

President Jennings:

Excuse me?

February 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

PERSONNEL ACTIONS (contd)

Professor Mityagin:

Can I speak about one candidate?

President Jennings:

Well, you ordinarily should have requested that ahead of time and gotten it on the schedule, but perhaps one minute --

Professor Mityagin:

Okay. I could not make this request two weeks before this session, according to regulations, because the case was not and could not be in the agenda at that time. The person agreed to be a candidate only two days ago. How that case could be in that agenda two weeks ago? I am talking about Greg Baker, the candidate for Ohio Eminent Scholar. He agreed to be appointed only two days ago. How could I act two weeks ago --

President Jennings:

You're being allowed to speak now. What is the point?

Professor Mityagin:

I could not speak because I am not prepared to speak. I am strongly against this appointment and I would like to present all the objections to the Board of Trustees. I would do that during the next session and I would ask two weeks in advance to talk about this issue. I would prepare all the objections, I would consult lawyers on this matter. I could not speak today, and I don't understand why this issue is in the agenda if Greg Baker agreed to be appointed only two days ago.

President Jennings:

Thank you. This is a recommendation that has been before a faculty committee of the Department of Mathematics, is recommended by that faculty committee. There was a complete opportunity for the faculty to debate this recommendation fully. It has been recommended by the Department Chairman and by the Dean of the College, and recommended now by the Provost. I would recommend it for your approval.

Upon motion of Mr. Barone, seconded by Mrs. Bowser, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

John W. Black

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on December 5, 1987, of John W. Black, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Communication.

Three honorary doctoral degrees were conferred upon him: an Sc.D. from Bowling Green State University; an L.H.D. from Wabash College; and an L.H.D. from The Ohio State University.

He authored or co-authored nine books, 18 chapters in books, and 145 journal articles.

Dr. Black carried out research in experimental phonetics in Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Milan and Rome, Italy, and Chiba, Japan. He was consultant to many organizations and agencies to include the U.S. Navy, The Veterans' Administration, Danish Institute for the Deaf in Copenhagen, the Practicing Law Institute of Dallas, Texas, and the Linguistic Circle of Rome, Italy. He was distinguished for his research in experimental phonetics and was highly successful in transmitting his enthusiasm and excitement for research to his students. His rigor, excellence, and genuine concern for his students contributed significantly to their development, the academic unit he served, and thus to the quality of the University.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Sydney Nettleton Fisher

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on December 10, 1987, of Dr. Sydney N. Fisher, Professor Emeritus in the Department of History.

Born on August 8, 1906, in Warsaw, New York, Dr. Fisher received his undergraduate education on a four-year scholarship at Oberlin College which awarded him an A.B. degree in 1928 and an M.A. degree in 1932. He continued his graduate studies, specializing in Middle East history, at the University of Illinois where he received his Ph.D. degree in 1935. At Princeton University and the University of Brussels, Dr. Fisher pursued post-doctoral studies under grants from the American Council of Learned Societies. Because of his exceptional academic record, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi.

Dr. Fisher's long and distinguished teaching career began at Robert College in Istanbul, Turkey, immediately after his undergraduate days at Oberlin. With the exception of one year at Denison and brief terms at several other universities, Dr. Fisher's brilliant teaching career was dedicated to The Ohio State University where he began as an instructor in 1937 and achieved a full professorship in 1955. Upon his retirement in 1972, he was named Professor Emeritus. World War II found Dr. Fisher serving his government in Washington, D.C., with the Board of Economic Warfare and the Department of State.

Administrative duties and research challenged Dr. Fisher's talents and energy. Graduate studies in the Department of History as well as area and international programs at the University greatly benefited from his contributions. A highly respectable list of books and articles flowed from his pen, including what became a standard college textbook: The Middle East: A History. At the time of his death, Dr. Fisher was busily engaged in preparing a fourth revised edition. The Royal Historical Society in London recognized Dr. Fisher's scholarly accomplishments by electing him a Fellow in 1951. The Board of Trustees demonstrated its appreciation of Dr. Fisher's numerous, significant contributions to the University by granting him the Distinguished Service Award in 1982.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

William H. R. Howard

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 12, 1987, of Dr. William H. R. Howard, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Radiology.

Dr. William Harry Howard graduated from The Ohio State University in 1938 with an A.B. degree. He received his M.D. degree from Western Reserve University in 1942. Dr. Howard was appointed an Instructor in the Department of Radiology at The Ohio State University in 1946 and was promoted to Assistant Professor in 1952, Associate Professor in 1958, and Professor in 1968. Dr. Howard was also a Clinical Professor in the Department of Pediatrics. Dr. Howard retired in 1982 and at that time was named Professor Emeritus.

During his 46 years of service as a faculty member, he pioneered in the teaching and promotion of Pediatric Radiology having taught hundreds of physicians and particularly radiologists this subject. Dr. Howard served as the Chairman of the Department of Radiology at Children's Hospital from 1950 until his retirement in 1982. He served as a member of the Board of Directors of Children's Hospital and held membership in numerous medical organizations, among them the American College of Radiology and the Society for Pediatric Radiology of which he was a charter member. He made important contributions in the field of Pediatric Radiology for which he was known in the State of Ohio and nationally.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Carleton L. Lohse

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on November 1, 1987, of Carleton L. Lohse, Associate Professor in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Born on November 10, 1936, in Minot, North Dakota, Dr. Lohse received his D.V.M. degree in 1960 from Iowa State University, and his Ph.D. degree in 1971 from the University of Sydney, Australia. Dr. Lohse had been Associate Professor of Veterinary Anatomy at Ohio State since 1985. He taught gross and microscopic anatomy and was involved in anatomical research. He served as the department's acting chairperson in 1986. Prior to his appointment at Ohio State, Dr. Lohse was on the veterinary anatomy faculty at the University of California at Davis for 13 years.

A member of several professional anatomical associations, Dr. Lohse had been president and secretary of the American Association of Veterinary Anatomists.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Arthur Tye

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on October 1, 1987, of Arthur Tye, Professor Emeritus in the College of Pharmacy.

Arthur Tye was born in Rutherglen, Australia, on September 13, 1909. Following two years of pre-medical education at Wesley College, he entered the Melbourne College of Pharmacy, graduating with the Ph.C. degree in 1930. He managed a community pharmacy in Melbourne, until his interests took him to Hong Kong, and then to Peking Union Medical College, where he served as Instructor of Pharmacology and Chief Assistant of the Department of Pharmacy (1932-37); and later as Professor of Pharmacy and Head of the Department of Pharmacy (1937-41). He joined the faculty of the National University of Peking as Professor of Pharmacy in 1942, where he developed an interest in pharmaceutical manufacturing, serving as Chief Pharmacist for Fu-Min Laboratories (1942-44); and Chief Pharmacist and Head of the Pharmaceutical Division of the Dio-Oriental Chemical Corporation in Tientsin (1945-47); also serving as Managing Director of Pharmacie Universelle, China's first professional prescription pharmacy.

In 1947, he joined the nascent graduate program at The Ohio State University College of Pharmacy. His doctoral dissertation (1950) introduced a more sophisticated method of quantifying the potency of morphine and other analgetics. Hired as an Assistant Professor in 1951, he transformed the traditional instruction in "materia medica" to a modern series of courses in pharmacology. Promoted to Associate Professor in 1953 and Professor in 1960, he embarked upon an intensive period of research, which resulted in nearly 40 scientific publications, and directed 36 graduate students at both the master's and doctoral level. His research may have reached its zenith in a series of brilliant collaborative papers with Popat Patil and Jules LaPidus which explored the structure-activity relationship of the optical isomers of ephedrine. He was one of the first pharmacologists in a College of Pharmacy to be elected to the American Society of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics. Dr. Tye also provided staunch support of the College's continuing education program and a reasoned and moderating influence in undergraduate curriculum development. He lent his zest to the annual Ohio Pharmaceutical Seminar (1956-60), encouraged the establishment of the College's Pharmacy Extension Services (1963), and worked with Jules LaPidus and others to formulate a series of courses integrating concepts of medicinal chemistry into the traditional offerings in pharmacology (1969). Upon his retirement in 1970, he was named Professor Emeritus.

On behalf of the University Community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Arthur Tye its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Ms. Casto, seconded by Mr. Teaford, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

The annual income shall be distributed to the College of Veterinary Medicine. All income in 1988 and 1989 will be returned to the principal. Should the fund reach $500,000 within five years, it shall be known as The Thomas E. Powers Professorship in Clinical Pharmacology. Should it reach $1.25 million in five years, it shall become The Thomas E. Powers Chair in Clinical Pharmacology.

The professorship or chair holder will embody the principals of Dr. Powers. The appointee's qualifications will include a world-class record in research activities, teaching, and public service. The appointee will also promote dialogue between academia, industry, and government.

Beginning in 1990 (at the discretion of the Dean), the fund can be used to support research and education in veterinary clinical pharmacology. A primary consideration would be the commencement of The Thomas E. Powers Visiting Lecturer in Clinical Pharmacology.

It is the desire of the donor(s) that this fund should benefit the University in perpetuity. If the need for this fund should cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income, then another use shall be designated by the Board of Trustees in consultation with the

It is the desire of the donor that the scholarship(s) be given each year to an Ohio student(s). However, preference should be given first to a student(s) from Ottawa County and second to a student(s) from Northwest Ohio. Scholarship recipient(s) shall be chosen by the College of Education Scholarship Committee in consultation with the University Committee on Student Financial Aid.

It is the desire of the donor that this fund should benefit the University in perpetuity. If the need for this fund should cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income, then another use shall be designated by the Board of Trustees in consultation with the person then responsible for teacher education.

The Geraldine McFadden Kuhn Scholarship was established February 5, 1988, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, with gifts to The Ohio State University Development Fund from Wayne Heskett Kuhn (B.M.E. '41) of Marion, Ohio.

All gifts are to be invested in the University's Permanent Endowment Fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University, with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates.

Twenty percent (20%) of the annual income shall be added to the fund's principal. The remaining eighty percent (80%) shall be used to provide one or more scholarships to deserving students of merit who are attending The Ohio State University at Marion and are pursuing study leading to a degree awarded by the College of Home Economics or the Department of English under the College of Humanities. The selection of the recipient

Mr. Redman:

We'd like to have Professor Boris Mityagin of the Department of Mathematics address the Board, and we've allocated 10 minutes to that subject. Mr. Mityagin --

Professor Mityagin:

Thank you for a chance to speak at your meeting. The Department of Mathematics at OSU is one of the best in state universities in the country, and I'm sorry to be here and to speak not about its achievements and bright future, but about strange events which took place there in the last four or five years.

In May 1984 the Ohio Governor made a surprising decision to give as an award, an Ohio Eminent Scholar Chair in Scientific Computation and Numerical Analysis to Department of Mathematics for our "outstanding graduate and research program in scientific computation." Although everybody from a C-average graduate student to our triple-A president knew that such a program, either outstanding or mediocre, either research or graduate, does not exist and did never exist. Governor's decision was a part of Ohio Eminent Scholar Program established in 1983 by Ohio Legislature to attract outstanding scientists to the State of Ohio.

How the OSU top officials succeeded to convince the Board of Regents and the Governor to declare a non-existing program to be a winner in state-wide competition, or at least one of the best in the State, is a mystery. Proposal emphasized the Departments achievements but it was irrelevant to the field of the award. How cynical were authors of proposal. You can see from the statement of its leading writer Dr. J. Greenberg, "I think Ohio State is regarded as something of a joke in the area of applied and computational mathematics." It's a direct quotation. I would not agree with judgmental part of this statement, but a naked fact is no program in scientific computation did ever exist.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Professor Mityagin: (contd)

It was absolutely obvious that Department of Mathematics does not satisfy the Board of Regents' guidelines to the area's potential for excellence. To support the point of that requirement the proposal listed eight Department of Mathematics members and five faculty members from other departments. The list is impressive but none of listed was an expert in the area. How attractive the program was, you could judge from the fact that of eight listed Math faculty members, four left in the next two years, including the leading writer of the proposal, and two spent most of the four years on leave working in the other scientific centers.

Those paradoxes partly could be explained by the fact that the proposal has been admitted by OSU top officials to the Board of Regents in October '83 without any or at least any open discussion in the Department.

I skip long story of many years of painful and drainful search for an expert, but how could you attract an expert if there is nothing in the Department to attract him? You could not, and it pushes you to misrepresentation and mockery more and more as time goes on, after your first tries and failures to that direction.

There is no doubt, and I want to point that out, that scientific computation and numerical analysis are important areas to be developed in Math Department or other departments of OSU. A lot has been done, in particular the creation of a State Center on Supercomputers. It is not the issue in this discussion. The point is that Legislative decision of 1983 on an Ohio Eminent Scholar Program gave no channels for the area without any presence in the Department, and misuse of the program aimed to enhance excellence of State academic institutions just for getting funds and money for a university or a department was a deviation from the Legislative intentions and violation of its decision.

The Department made heroic efforts to find good candidate. In late '84 two offers made had been rejected. In 1986-87 one person applied and after long discussion he was even rejected as a candidate for associate professor position.

In fall 1987 Jennings's Administration was embarrassed, embarrassed, embarrassed by the fact that for three and a half years the position had not been filled yet. It reminded everybody about the '84 mockery and the only way to close the deal, put it aside and forget it, was to hire any person available. It happened that Dr. Baker applied for that position at that time and the procedures went ahead at the high gear. The search committee was ignored.

In December 9, 1987 session of advisory committee in the Department took place, nobody claimed that Dr. Baker satisfied the description and specifications of that position. Moreover, the overwhelming majority of faculty members who spoke in that meeting made clear that Dr. Baker is not qualified as the eminent scholar. The consensus of the meeting was expressed perfectly by Dr. Harvey Friedman, a university professor. After scientific presentation on Baker's papers and claims that they are on the level of Bachelor's diploma, Dr. Friedman said, "Oh, I thought that he (Dr. Baker) is much worse," but he knows something about integral equations; now, of course I will support his case.

One could claim that it was strange to ignore the issue of scientific level when you are talking on such a serious appointment. But don't blame my colleagues or our chairman. They were tired and psychologically exhausted by four years discussions. You could be also amazed that for four years they resisted to yield to administration pressures to hire any person available. Now, in December 1987, Department gave up and advisory committee voted to recommend this appointment.

It should be mentioned that although at least on the paper Dr. Baker is an expert in fluid dynamics, the opinion of our leading faculty members from Aeronautics or Mechanical Engineering Department was ignored also. They told to Chairman and Dean explicitly that it would be strange to appoint Dr. Baker as an Eminent Scholar.

No out-of-Math Department faculty member has expressed any support for Dr. Baker as a candidate for Ohio Eminent Scholar. It is true that some of them, and I would say the same, would be glad to have him at Campus as our faculty member. But it is presumably true about any hiring in our University, whether we are talking about full professor or tenure-track assistant professor. Scientific merits would put Dr. Baker hardly among our top 20 members, for sure not among top 15. I am talking about Department, not about the University.

To accept such a level for eminent scholar would be a mockery. It would jeopardize the implementation of the entire Ohio Eminent Scholar Program at OSU and the State of Ohio. How could we or you explain to our associate professors who are better than Dr. Baker, but have not been promoted because of our standards for full professor positions lately, that such a hiring is in the best interests of our University? How could we or you explain to an outstanding, recently hired faculty member in the same area, who is much -- in another department, who is much better than Dr. Baker, but who with his great respect to The Ohio State University and to the title of Ohio Eminent Scholar, did not dare to apply for that position a year ago? How could we explain to him that such a hiring is not a mockery? You could not, because it is a mockery. The money has been given to enhance excellence and to attract an outstanding and eminent scholar.

Today President Jennings recommends to hire the only person available, the only for two years, as a way to cash in a million dollars. Such a perversion is not the way to excellence. Such an action is incompatible with our goal to be in 15-20 years among top 10 national universities. Such a hiring puts a low ceiling to our search for excellence. Thank you.

President Jennings:

Thank you, Professor Mityagin. I'd like to have Dr. Brand review the process that went on in this hiring. I should say that I first of all apologize to Dr. Baker and hope that the slanderous discussion of his qualifications is ignored by Dr. Baker. That type of discussion on the individual is inappropriate in a public setting. And I think that secondly it should be recognized that the eminent scholar decisions were not made by the Governor or the Legislature. They were made by the Board of Regents and on the basis of a peer reviewed process. Members of the peer committees were selected from all over the State and did not include Ohio State University.

I would like Dr. Brand to discuss the appointment process because I do not agree that Dr. Baker is a selection that does not represent eminence in mathematics. I think Dr. Baker can stand with any of the eminent scholars selected at The Ohio State University and can stand with any of the mathematicians in applied mathematics throughout the country, and will be of great benefit to The Ohio State University.

Myles, if you can review the process, I'd appreciate that.

Dr. Brand:

Yes, I will. The Mathematics Department has a very careful screening process, indeed a model such process. Let me just speak briefly about the selection of Dr. Baker.

In addition to widely advertising the position including affirmative action ads, the Department has an Advisory Committee consisting of 12 persons, 8 of whom are elected by the Department. This Advisory Committee holds open meetings with an advanced agenda announced and the minutes distributed to all the faculty members.

If eight committee members in the Department vote positively by a secret ballot in an open meeting for a motion on documentation, the Committee selects a list of six to eight external referees who are then contacted by the Chairman and asked to evaluate the candidates professional attributes and suitability for the position. When the responses have been obtained from the referees, the Committee then schedules a meeting to determine the suitability of the candidate for appointment.

This Committee meeting is announced in advance to all faculty and the faculty have access to the candidates' credentials including reference letters, and these are made available to all members of the Department. At the Committee session faculty members who are not on the Committee are given ample opportunity to discuss their views of the candidate in this open meeting.

When this discussion is completed the Committee votes by secret ballot, either in open meeting or by mail ballot, on the motion to recommend appointment. Eight of the 12 positive votes are required to make a recommendation for appointment.

Regarding the qualifications of Dr. Baker, the University is indeed fortunate to have a man of such eminence. Regarding his scientific credentials, seven leading applied mathematicians, full professors at large centers of applied mathematics of research in this country and abroad, including the University of Minnesota, MIT, Cal Tech, Princeton, the Courant Institute from New York University, University of Arizona, and University of Oxford in England, have provided evaluations of Dr. Baker's research. Uniformly they place him among the strongest computational fluid dynamicists of his generation.

As to international standing, Professor T. Brooke Benjamin of Oxford writes, and let me quote, "Dr. Baker has established an excellent international reputation as a leading contributor to numerical studies in hydrodynamic problems. He is evidently a master of modern computation and unlike other notable workers in the field, his research is greatly reinforced by a deep understanding of the fluid mechanical problems that are explored numerically."

In keeping with the Ohio Eminent Scholar proposal, Dr. Baker has direct connections with industry. At the present time he is employed by Exxon Research. He was a faculty member and director of the multi-disciplinary applied mathematics program at Arizona, and this program includes students and faculty from the entire spectrum of science and engineering departments in the university.

All in all, it's hard to envision a candidate who could more accurately embody the qualities envisioned for the eminent scholar unless it's the same Gregory Baker 10 years hence. I also take serious exception with the claim that there was pressure from the Administration. That is simply false. Time and again, we have emphasized that we will refuse to make an offer unless we have a man or woman of true eminence. We do so in the case of Dr. Baker. The Dean of the College of Mathematical and Physical Sciences, William Kern, and the Chairman of the Math Department are here to answer any questions about process or qualifications that you might have. Thank you.

Mr. Redman:

If there's no further discussion? Thank you, Professor Mityagin.

Professor Mityagin:

Thank you.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

Appreciate your presence.

President Jennings:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I've got one more item. As you know, we are in the process of a major curriculum review at Ohio State University, and it is one of the most important academic issues that we are currently engaged in, and I would like Dr. Brand to briefly update you as to where we stand on that issue. Myles, if you would?

Dr. Brand:

Yes, thank you for the opportunity. I'm very pleased to be able to report progress on the curriculum review. Let me briefly remind you of the process.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Dr. Brand: (contd)

A year ago last spring we set up a university-wide committee chaired by Professor Gerald Reagan to outline the conceptual framework for curriculum review at this University.

Unlike other universities, we are undertaking a complete curriculum review. We are looking at general education university-wide. We are also looking at the majors programs in every case, over 200, I should mention, and all the support and delivery services for education. So we're doing a full review.

That committee came forward with its report. The Arts and Sciences, the five colleges of Arts and Sciences, were then charged to form a committee to provide a model, at a conceptual level sufficient to be specific about the curriculum without yet talking about implementation.

That committee has been working very hard for almost a year now and has engaged the faculty completely in the debate. They have come forward with a first draft and expect by the end of the Spring Quarter to win acceptance from the faculty of a strong general education model, the first step in the process. That model will emphasize basic skills and competencies for all our students including writing and communication skills. It will assure that every student is scientifically and technologically literate, an important feature that's not shared by other curriculum reviews across the country. It will include a strong international affairs element, a language component, a strong social science component, as well as a strong humanities and fine arts component.

The faculty have been fully engaged in this process, as well as the students. We are now beginning to look forward to the implementation of the process in the next few years. Recently we had to Campus, as part of a lecture series, Ernest Boyer, who is from the Carnegie Foundation. Mr. Boyer is extremely knowledgeable about curriculum reforms across the country and indeed wrote a book recently, called College, that was very well received. Mr. Boyer had extremely laudatory things to say about our program, both its extent and its depth. I believe we're on the right track and I also believe that this will take Ohio State one step further towards greatness.

Mr. President, I'm very pleased about this proposal.

President Jennings:

Thank you, Myles. I appreciate those brief comments. The brevity of those comments should not indicate the lack of importance. This is one of the most important things going on at the University, not only now but in an historical context. It is a debate that is raging in academic circles across the country. It is a debate that has been engaged by virtually all segments of the educational community and the public, I might add, as well.

I'm also extremely pleased to point out that whether it's Ernie Boyer or Bloom at the University of Chicago, that the most current activities they've engaged in is the curriculum review and they have discovered what Ohio State has been engaged in for the past two years and indicated that Ohio State is substantially ahead of the rest of the country.

Now, at this time of the year in a university I know you're all aware, and the faculty is all aware, that we are now engaged in the planning process for the next fiscal year beginning in July of 1988. As Myles pointed out, the next steps of this curriculum will be taking place this coming fall, first steps being the development of the courses and experimental activity. I think it is important to point out not only to this Board but to the faculty, staff, and students that this is not only an extraordinarily important item, and a timely item, but this is going to be an expensive proposition as well. It is an expense that we recognize and it is an expense that should be made.

I want to indicate that when the budget material comes to you in May and June of this year, there will be a special allocation of $3 million to the Provost's Office to fund the costs associated with this curriculum. Those costs are going to involve not only course development, but will involve laboratory activity in the sciences and additional faculty as class sizes are smaller and more extensive. They will cut across the entire gamut of the institution. We expect the cost to be $3 million. It may go higher than that, but at this stage the 88-89 budget will include an allocation of $3 million to the Provost for specifically the costs associated with this curriculum. There will be additional new money, recurring money as well -- and I say recurring money, our folks know what recurring money is. That means they get it the following year, too, and the following year after that. That will be in the allocation. We can expect these costs to be well worth it, and well worth it to the future of this University, and well worth it to our most important clientele, namely the students of this Institution.

It is particularly timely that this freshman class of 1988 is the class of '92 where there will be a major celebration in Columbus, and this class will be engaged in that celebration. But they will be the first graduates of a major new curriculum that I think will lead the nation in undergraduate education.

Mr. Chairman, that completes my report.

Mr. Redman:

Okay. I would like to have committee reports, if any, from the Development Fund. Mr. Kessler?

Mr. Kessler:

No report.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

No report. The Research Board, Mr. Barone?

Mr. Barone:

We met yesterday and I will make that report at the June meeting, because I just gave a report at the last meeting.

Mr. Redman:

Very good. And the University Hospitals Board, Mrs. Bowser?

Mrs. Bowser:

We met last Thursday, February 25, and it was the first meeting we'd had using our new format of committee structure. As you know, we've gone through an evaluation and this is the first time that we have met with this new structure. It went very well for the first time, and you will probably be hearing more about it as we continue.

At our next meeting we plan to compare our Hospitals' effectiveness against other Big 10 hospitals with regard to the quality assurance and the various business measures. And I think, Mr. Kessler asked once, "You give us this information, but what is that compared to." So the Hospitals Board will be taking a look at that and hopefully we'll be sharing that with you.

Dr. Mekhjian reported that the medical staff and the administrative leadership have been meeting regularly since January to discuss items of mutual concern related to budget reductions, bed allocation and census, and utilization of the nursing staff. We're also taking a look at the emergency department and the efficiency with which we're working there.

Mr. Covert reported to the Hospitals Board that the obstetrics and newborn patient care area has been licensed again by the Ohio Department of Health. And that the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals has given the hospital another full three-year accreditation. We really appreciate all the work that went into that, both from the medical staff and the administrative staff.

We continued on the Hospitals Board talking with Mr. Covert and his staff about the pressures, the financial pressures that are going to come to bear on the Hospitals this next year. It's sort of coming from different directions both with Medicare and Medicaid.

There was some announcement picked up by the press that lay-offs would be the way we would be handling this. We were assured that it wouldn't be across-the-board kinds of lay-offs, that this would be taken care of through normal attrition and retirement, and so on and so forth. But we're looking at everything in order to keep the costs in-line with what we know our income to be.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser: (contd)

And lastly, in our Board's search for continuing education programs, next month we're hoping to have a special meeting with Dr. William Cleverley, who is really an outstanding expert across the nation in hospital administration. He's on our staff and we've never utilized his services. So we will be bringing him to the next Board meeting and discussing with him some of his ideas as to how we can financially --

Mr. Redman:

You mean the Hospitals Board?

Mrs. Bowser:

The Hospitals Board. That happens at Ohio State occasionally when we have a real expert right in our own backyard and we use other experts. We forget that we have someone on staff that's traveling the country doing the same thing. So we're looking forward to having Dr. Cleverley with us and utilizing his services. That's my report.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, I think the changes that the Hospitals Board has made in terms of committees and everything are very much to be commended, and in fact maybe ought to be emulated. But I think that we really need to call attention to what significant things the Hospitals Board has done over the last year in terms of their structure and improving the information they're able to give us, and indeed the information that they themselves now know about the Hospitals and its administration.

Mr. Redman:

Well, I agree, Mr. Teaford.

Mrs. Bowser:

Thank you. It hasn't been without a certain amount of pain.

Mr. Redman:

Any comments about Mrs. Bowser's report? If not, I had a couple of items. I'd like to ask Mr. Ihrig to review the MedOhio financial statements of -- did you give these to the other members of the Board, Mr. Ihrig?

Mr. Ihrig:

The Members of the Fiscal Committee had them and I apologize for not having copies for the other Board Members.

Mr. Teaford:

Perhaps you can send those to us.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig:

Yes. The period of seven months through January 31, the operations of the MedOhio are running under the projected budget, as they have been and they're taking actions to make sure that these come closer to budget. The actual year-to-date detail, averaged daily, are running around 165 versus a budget of 200. And that's resulted in a loss during the seven month period of $436,500, versus a projected loss of $154,000.

As of December, the Great Western facility was closed as was in the original plan to eventually close that facility and look for other opportunities for that based on the actual volumes that they had seen before and were projecting on that. The amount of referrals from those facilities -- the Hospitals Board at the last meeting was provided information regarding referrals. There were a total of 1,241 referrals during the July through January period, of which 48 per cent, or 596, were referred to University Hospitals.

If you look at the data without the emergency room referrals, since they would be referred to the nearest hospital facility, the per cent of referrals to Ohio State increases to 52 per cent. That ranges from a high of 83 per cent from the Upper Arlington facility, down to a low of 32 per cent from the Great Western facility. And most of those -- the orthopedics and related services received the most referrals followed by the emergency department, otolaryngology, dermatology and neurology. So there are referral activities going on, and the operation of the facilities -- trying to bring in the expenditures to the level of revenues -- continues. The Hospitals have just recently entered into the new agreement with another physicians group who will do the operation, the medical operation, of these facilities. They're looking for a significant turn around, not only in the number of visits, but also in the number of referrals to University Hospitals.

Mr. Redman:

Do you recall, Mr. Ihrig, when we decided to engage in this activity and invest $6 million in it, that we said at the time that we anticipated losses in the first couple of years?

Mr. Ihrig:

That's correct.

Mr. Redman:

But that the primary function was to help the medical department with referrals for basic medical services that seem to be declining at the University Hospitals. Is it realistic to assume that if someone is in Reynoldsburg, that they're going to be referred to Ohio State University and drive past Grant and Mercy or several other hospitals to get here?

Mr. Ihrig:

I think that depends on the medical specialty. In terms of emergency treatment, they will go to the nearest facility that can provide the service.

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

So they wouldn't come here?

Mr. Ihrig:

Not for an emergency, but for other types of referrals that are on a nonemergency basis. Based upon the physician's evaluation in order to have those services done, then I think that the large majority of the referrals can be expected to come to University Hospitals, because "it isn't a case of having to get to the nearest facility." It's the physician that is needed and the type of medical service that they need that predominates in that instance.

Mr. Redman:

Has anybody made a survey of the people that actually attend your -- I suppose most of the Board knows it -- I used to be connected with Big Bear. We were continuously conducting surveys of the women that shopped in the stores, why they were there, why they didn't go there, why they shopped other stores, why they went to Kroger's, or whether it was because it was nearer, or the prices were better, or what.

Don't you think it might be appropriate to make some sort of survey of our own people here? And also it seems to me that MedOhio is not very well-known throughout the community, so that it seems to me we need to upgrade our advertising, or promotion, or something, to approach it in a business-like way.

Mr. Barone:

Professional.

Mr. Ihrig:

I agree with you, Mr. Redman. And the Hospitals, as they reported, are looking into taking steps along those lines, both looking at the cost side as well as looking at what is attracting people to MedOhio, and how to upgrade the number of people coming to the facility.

Mrs. Bowser:

They've been looking at that very issue. The first report they brought to us the Board didn't feel that it was comprehensive enough, that there were too few people interviewed. Dr. Jennings can back me up on this.

President Jennings:

Yes.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

They need to go back and do some more work before it is acceptable to us.

Mr. Redman:

Who did the interviewing, Mrs. Bowser?

Mrs. Bowser:

There's someone on staff now.

President Jennings:

Someone on staff, it was a very small sample. But the key was, on the general marketing plan, that in some areas it was far too broad a plan and in other areas was far too narrow. I hasten to add that our struggles on this involve the marketing of the overall Hospitals facilities.

Mrs. Bowser:

That's right.

President Jennings:

MedOhio will be an important piece of that, but a piece of that. We've asked our sales people in the Hospitals to come back with a revised proposal on the marketing of the Hospitals in general.

Mrs. Bowser:

I think there are two comments. If you may notice, if you watch TV, there is quite a bit of marketing of local hospitals done. And I think Ohio State -- and I don't have anybody here to comment to back me up -- I think we're looking at a way to market in keeping with our mission and our goal here, which is a little bit different than the private hospitals. One of the success stories, and Scottie can back me up on this, is our in-house insurance program which you call UAHP. This has had phenomenal success. So we know we have a good thing here. What we need to do is tell that story. I think a plan was proposed and it stopped with Dr. Jennings, who has now put himself in the marketing field and said no, this isn't the way we want to go, go back and work this out a little bit. We had quite a discussion at the last Board meeting about it.

Mr. Kessler:

Mr. Chairman?

Mr. Redman:

Yes, Sir.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Kessler:

In reading the statements -- and I know we were concerned when we made the investment -- in looking at the numbers, our losses are greater than we had projected by $300,000. I think it might be appropriate, Weldon, either through you or through our representatives on the Hospitals Board, to ask at a meeting in the next couple of months maybe to have them report to us on what they're doing about it to get back to their projection, as well as how they are marketing. That may go into a broader issue which you're touching on now, how we're marketing the whole Hospitals. I think this is a marketing problem more than a cost containment problem. So I think it would be appropriate, Mr. Chairman, maybe to ask Mr. Immke and Mrs. Bowser to ask the Hospitals to come back to us within the next couple of months with a complete review of the marketing plan, with the Hospitals included specifically.

Mrs. Bowser:

I just don't want you Trustees to think we aren't working on it. We are working, but we aren't satisfied with the plan that's come before us so far.

Mr. Redman:

I think, Mrs. Bowser, the only judgment we can render is when we look at the statements, they're not good. We entered into it with our eyes open --

Mrs. Bowser:

That's right.

Mr. Redman:

It was totally laid out, but we did have certain expectancies. I'm only making a suggestion in the hope that it will help. When I was on the Turnpike Commission some years ago, we continuously received complaints about the food service in the restaurants. There are 17 of them and 241 miles. It's a captive audience if you're on the turnpike and you're 50 miles from nowhere.

Mrs. Bowser:

Same way with the Ohio State Parks. I know about food service.

Mr. Redman:

And it got so bad that the Commission decided to put our own inspectors out. Now, I suggest that whoever does your marketing survey should not be from the administration. We had our inspectors report directly back to the Commission. They didn't know when they went in, who they were, and it's surprising how quickly some of the restaurant operations shaped up. Now, we finally decided that we wouldn't give the whole turnpike to any one franchisee. We split it up, and it took a lot of steps. It took a year to get it straightened out, but it was bad, it really needed help. That's what I'm thinking here, it's not the same type thing, I'm only saying that your marketing survey is where we need some help.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman: (contd)

Mrs. Bowser:

We'll take those comments back.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, too, I want to add something to what you had said before. I believe the principal reason we did this was an educational one. It might be useful to include in that report how we are doing on the educational mission of having MedOhio. I think we had no illusion that this wasn't -- we weren't going in this for the profit; we were going in this for educational purposes. I think that should be included in any report.

President Jennings:

Thank you, Mr. Teaford, that's a very important comment. That's one of the reasons that we were not satisfied with the marketing plan. It had a business emphasis only and not the educational and referral emphasis -- which is really the key -- to get our medical students, our residents, and our interns into an environment that is not just tertiary care. Because everyday our University Hospitals is becoming more of a tertiary care center. We want our students exposed to heart transplants, bone marrow transplants, major cancers, and so forth; but we also want them to be exposed to the common cold, pneumonia, and to appendectomies. Though you've all heard the speech before, we did a thousand heart procedures last year and only 17 appendectomies. When our students graduate, they're more likely to see an appendectomy than they are a heart procedure. And we need to have that balance. Thank you.

Mr. Redman:

If there's no other discussion, then I think we should put that in the minutes, Mr. Secretary, and ask the Hospitals Board to do as Mr. Kessler has requested.

I want to report on the Hospitals billing in response to Mr. Teaford's earlier instruction. I must say that it's been sort of like the tortoise and the hare, we haven't really dashed out there and gotten this job done. I must admit that it has complexities, and the doctors who are involved in it want to be sure that they don't end up on the short end of the stick. Dr. Tzagournis told me that Arthur Andersen had made a report. But when I met with the Price Waterhouse folks, I told them that I thought they should come back now with some sort of a detailed plan within 90 days. And the reason I said 90 days, was because of the fact that I'm going to be gone from here in 90 days. My term expires in May, and hopefully we would have something concrete to give the Board. We could have a fix on what it is we're going to do or we're not going to do, we're going to have a plan or we're not going to have a plan, and let's get it down on paper so everybody can look at it. If the doctors have complaints, let's get those all in this process before we develop the plan.

March 3 and 4, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

At the May meeting I hope to give you something that will spell out precisely how this is to be done. Now, it won't have all of the "T's" crossed and the "I's" dotted because it will take perhaps six months to install anything that everybody agrees on. It's not an easy task, but I think it's time that we get our teeth into it and have something specific to show how we're going to do it, and if we're going to do it, and everybody gets a chance for some input. So hopefully I'll have another meeting or two with the committee. They've requested that I do so. And I'm willing to help. Because I told the Price Waterhouse people I wasn't going to make the installation, because if I was, I would hope to get paid, you know. But I will be glad to participate and help in any way that I can. I think I can be helpful, but I'd like to get it done before I depart.

Mr. Redman:

Dr. James C. Garland, Chairperson of the Department of Physics, and two of his colleagues, will give a presentation on Materials Science.

Dr. Brand:

Mr. Chairman, may I take a moment to introduce them?

Mr. Redman:

Yes.

Dr. Brand:

Recently, the news media reported on major new discoveries in high temperature superconductors. Although these amazing new materials have drawn unusual public interest they also highlight, in a very dramatic way, how important new materials are in our modern society. Major advances in materials research in the past decade include, in addition to the discovery of high temperature superconductivity, the development of a new chemical process for producing novel ceramics and alloys, the miniaturization of electronic devices, the development of optical methods for data transmission, and the introduction of biomaterials relevant to a wide variety of modern applications.

Materials research is now emerging as a coherent field of research in itself. A vital combination of many traditional disciplines ranging from solid-state physics and polymer chemistry to metallurgy and mechanical engineering. Work in this field combines the intellectual challenges of the most fundamental problems in mathematics, chemistry, physics, and many areas of engineering. This field encompasses the excitement of improving the quality of life for the 21st century. It is increasingly clear to many of us that research in materials is essential to the health of all U.S. industries, including those in the State of Ohio.

Today, I have asked three Ohio State faculty members to brief you on materials research here. These faculty members are playing a key role in our rapidly developing and expanding efforts in materials research. Professor James Garland is currently Chairperson of our Physics Department. He is an authority on superconductivity in composite materials. Jim is a former Director of the Ohio State Materials Research Laboratory and a former Acting Vice President of Research and Graduate Studies. Jim received his bachelor's degree from Princeton, his Ph.D. in experimental solid-state physics from Cornell, and has been at Ohio State for eighteen years.

Professor Dennis Readey is the Chairperson of the Department of Ceramic Engineering and is a nationally renowned expert on ceramic materials. Dennis joined Ohio State in 1977, as a full professor, and before that time he was senior scientist and manager of the Rathion Company. He has also been with the Department of Energy in Washington.

And, Dr. Arthur Epstein is both a Professor of Physics and a Professor of Chemistry. Art came to Ohio State in 1985 from Xerox. He is a leading researcher in new materials based on polymers and also on the new high temperature superconductors. Art did his undergraduate work at Brooklyn Poly Tech and received his master's and Ph.D. degrees in solid-state physics from the University of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen, if you would --

Dr. James Garland:

Thank you. It is really a pleasure to come before you all and talk about this subject which is not only dear to my own heart, but that of many of my colleagues at the University, in several different colleges and many departments.

From the earliest days of civilization human beings have used materials made of various substances in order to provide themselves with a more hospitable environment. Because early man had only a very rudimentary understanding of matter, and of the laws that govern matter, they were pretty much stuck with using substances that occurred naturally in nature: wood, stone, earth, and later -- as we were able to refine materials into their basic elements -- iron, copper, gold, and some of the other elements. These materials were used to provide shelter, clothing, containers for food and water, tools, and weapons.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

As society advanced people learned primarily through trial and error, to combine these natural substances together to make synthetic substances. These synthetic substances had properties that were better than the natural occurring. For example, the Romans had an early form of concrete, there are Japanese swords many hundreds of years old that are made of a form of tempered steel.

But the real advance came with the discovery that matter was made of atoms; that atoms were the basic building blocks of nature; that atoms could be formed together to make solids, liquids, and molecules; and that there were basic fundamental laws that guided the way atoms interacted with one another. This knowledge of the atomic nature of matter laid the groundwork for scientists and engineers to make enormous progress in the fabrication and application of materials.

Up to the 20th century, materials were used almost exclusively for structural purposes, and such considerations as strength, hardness, corrosion-resistance were the primary concern. In the 20th century, we discovered that we could exploit exotic materials for these electrical, magnetic, and thermal properties as well. While we have not lost site of their applications for structured purposes -- and I point to certain Teflon and various graphite deposits as examples -- we now use materials also for their electrical and electronic properties. For example, silicon, germanium, and gallium arsenide are all examples of materials which are used not because they can contain anything or support anything, but simply because they have desirable electrical properties.

Dr. Brand alluded to superconducting ceramics -- the so called high temperature superconductors that have very much caught the public fancy. That subject is a nice example of materials research at its most sophisticated. For example, let me show you a drawing -- this is a hand made transparency that was used at a Physics meeting last month -- of the crystal structure of one of the new high temperature superconductors. We have learned that these new superconductors are made up of crystals that are unbelievably tiny -- only a few atoms across. This drawing of various colored balls refers to different kinds of elements that go into making up this crystal. Notice how complicated the crystal is, how the atoms organize themselves into regular, repeating patterns. If we were to go into this crystal and pluck out that little green oxygen atom right there, superficially we haven't changed the material at all. It still looks the same, feels the same, weighs about the same, has the same texture, but it is no longer a superconductor. It is now an insulator, like an ordinary piece of glass.

In a sense, the development of this type of material is analogous to microsurgery, but instead of using scalpels to do the surgery we are using the tools of electron microscopes, fourier transform spectrometers, and molecular beam epitaxy machines -- ultra-sophisticated and ultra-expensive surgical tools.

Dr. Garland: (contd)

Why do we make this kind of effort? The reason is that advanced materials are at the very foundation of a modern technological society. Here is an example from the space shuttle. The space shuttle is really the embodiment of modern materials research. Titanium alloys and graphite fiber composites are used for structural purposes, providing incredible strength with very light weight. The Challenger disaster was attributed to a failure of a material, the "O" rings in the booster rockets. Materials research is a part of the development of this kind of machine. Here I have listed some of the more exotic materials that are used in the electronics in the space shuttle -- the guidance mechanism, the control, the communication.

What do we mean by the phrase "materials research?" It's a little bit confusing, because the phrase embodies many different traditional academic specialties, crossing the boundaries between those specialties. Here is my flow chart that explains what materials research is in the context of Ohio State.

This green list shows some of the academic departments and some of the subspecialties within those departments where materials research is done. But the point I want to emphasize is that materials research, unlike most of the traditional research areas, really is a team effort. It requires scientists and engineers to work together, learning to speak a common language, and sharing their expertise. It is clear to me that all major universities have to make major initiatives into this general area if we are really going to contribute to the advancement of our civilization.

Now, I think next on the schedule is Dennis Readey, who is going to go into a little more detail about materials research -- what it is and how it fits into programs at Ohio State.

Professor Dennis Readey:

Thank you, Dr. Garland. As Jim pointed out, I am going to try and tell you a bit more about what constitutes Materials Research and Application and its importance at Ohio State and why it is particularly important at this time.

This definition of Materials Research and Applications shown in the overhead was developed by the National Academy of Sciences. The key here is that it is a "multidisciplinary" activity, as Jim pointed out, developed only during the last three decades. It deals with the generation and application of knowledge relating to the composition, the structure, and processing of materials to their properties and use. I can illustrate that by looking at the use of materials from the beginning of man on this Earth. The interesting thing is that we have described various periods of man's civilization by the materials that we have used. The Stone Age existed up to about 5,000 B.C.; the Bronze Age up to about 1,000 B.C.; at which time the Iron Age began. It lasted up to about 1900. I will define the Materials Age as starting about 1900 for the following reasons. In 1700 - 1800, different materials were being made by altering their compositions. It was not known exactly what was happening, but it was discovered that by changing compositions one could change the properties of materials. So the effect of composition on properties was becoming known during this period.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

In the mid-1800's, the chemists began looking at the structure of molecules. So the concept of the effect of structure on properties started to become important. About 1863, metallurgists began looking at the structure of metals and rocks using microscopes -- examining the structure at a different level. So we had developed in about 1900, the ability to look at the structure at a microscopic-level and a compositional-level. Interestingly enough, this is when some of the various academic disciplines in materials got started. Metallurgical engineering began about 1850, and, of course, you all know that ceramic engineering, as an academic discipline, was started here in 1894 at Ohio State by General Orton, the son of the first President of the University. So Ohio State has been a leader in the materials field from its inception.

Right after the turn of the century, the discovery of x-rays and the ability to examine the structure of crystals occurred. Now the investigation of structure at the atomic level gave all the tools necessary to identify the structure materials and relate structure to properties. As a result, from then on, the structure/properties relationship for a wide variety of materials was developed. In 1947, the development of the transistor was probably the first major success in the field of materials research and applications. Since that time, has come the development of analytical instruments and computers, largely because of the development of the transistors, which now allow us to tailor materials such as metals, ceramics, polymers, electronic materials, and composites at the atomic level

How this is done is depicted in the next transparency. I have tried to describe here, in the form of tetrahedral arrangement, the interacting between the synthesis of materials characterizing those materials by determining their properties. And the one thing that allows us to do that better today than ever before is the wide range of analytical instruments that are now available. Likewise, the existence of computing capabilities such as the supercomputer facility here at Ohio State allows us to perform theory and modeling experiments at the atomic level. We can now design materials at the atomic level and determine if they really work the way the model predicts. Of course, that leads to application -- what we use materials for, what are the required properties for that material.

This next overhead shows the overall process for the development of a material having a given set of properties for a certain application. For example, we may want mechanical strength, or specific electrical, magnetic or optical properties. These in turn are determined by the structure. The chemical structure or composition, crystal structure, and the microscopic structure in turn are determined by the fabrication processes.

Professor Readey: (contd)

The interaction between processing, structure, and properties of materials leads to this interdisciplinary approach. It requires people from many different academic disciplines to be involved in the development and processing of new materials. In this particular viewgraph, I have tried to illustrate this in terms of three concentric circles. The outer one being the directly applied field such as: engineering, leading to applied sciences, and finally basic sciences. This cross-hatched or the gray area is the area covered by Materials Research and Applications. You can see it covers chemistry, physics, mathematics, metallurgy, ceramics, polymers, and a number of departments in engineering. As Dr. Garland pointed out, these are all academic disciplines that we have here at Ohio State -- all parts of materials research in engineering. This is one of the advantages of a large multidisciplinary university such as Ohio State.

The application of new materials generated by materials research "enables" the development of new or the improvement of old technologies. Jim gave the example of the space shuttle, here is the example of optical communications -- fiberoptics. This viewgraph shows a single glass fiber. The major breakthrough here was attaining a purity of this glass purer than semiconductive materials. As a result, one can transmit optical signals over long distances. Optical signals can transmit much more information than normal electric signals. So this single fiber essentially replaces all these copper wires in communicating or transmitting the same amount of information.

Given the importance of materials in current applications, the future applications from materials are even more important. Here is an example of laser fusion. This is an instrument at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California which is -- these are laser banks here -- using lasers to generate small thermonuclear explosions which generate energy by nuclear fusion. One of the key breakthroughs was the development of laser glass. This is a piece of laser glass in one of these lasers that was developed by Owens-Illinois in Toledo. Another future application that is going to depend very strongly on the development of improved materials is another area of energy generation, also nuclear fusion using so-called magnetic confinement techniques. This is a picture of a Tokamak reactor. In order for this fusion process to operate properly, you need magnets made of high temperature superconductors. And we know now, in the last year, high temperature ceramic superconductors are possible. However, much work has to be done now in developing these into useful materials to make devices such as nuclear fusion a possibility.

I will now turn the presentation over to Dr. Epstein, who will show you some examples of new materials.

Dr. Arthur Epstein:

Thank you, Dennis. We are focusing here today on materials and their development and their impact on society. I thought it might be useful to show you some examples of new materials. It is hard to bring an entire laser fusion facility in here or bring in a space shuttle, but we thought we would focus on two kinds of classes of materials -- ceramics and plastics or polymers. They are two of the many kinds of new materials that are being studied now that have impact and an understanding of science and the development of new technologies.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Specializing to ceramics and plastics, these materials are familiar to you, you have seen them before -- ceramics are the kinds of dishes you have at home, you drop them on the floor they break, they're brittle, these are the old fashion kinds of ceramics. Old fashion kinds of plastics are the old, cheap toys you had as a child, they would fall apart, they would melt very easily. An old plastic bag -- you went to a supermarket 15 years ago and they would give you a plastic bag with a carton of milk in it. You would shutter because you knew that carton of milk was going to break right through the plastic bag and be on the floor, spilling all over the place, all over your clothes, all over your car. You hated it -- you didn't want to see anything plastic.

Well, those are the old versions. They were brittle, they were weak, they did not conduct electricity, they were insulators. I brought along several examples to show you how in these two classes of materials things are changing very rapidly. We now have new compositions that are tough, they are strong, they can now have designed into them electrical or optical functions. You are welcome to come up here afterwards and look at these. If you look at the list, unbreakable dishes are new kinds of ceramics. I didn't bring any in you, all have them at home -- your Corell dinnerware, your unbreakable mugs. You know they are tough and you're not afraid to throw them at the radiator because they are not going to break.

As we go into higher technology -- this is an example of silicon carbide, the raw mineral. It is now possible to form this raw mineral into a turbo-charged rotor, such as this. And this turbo-charged rotor is now being tested in some Buick automobiles, I believe, as a turbo-charger. It has tremendous advantages over the normal metal turbo-chargers, because it is much lighter and therefore it can turn much more rapidly -- turn it on very quickly and get a fast start.

Moving over, this is an example of a zirconia scissor, which is made up of another kind of ceramic. It has an advantage in that it doesn't wear. I can be used to make cutting blades for a newspaper plant. It would cut the newspaper print and you wouldn't have to replace them very frequently at all. The Coors Company in Colorado, now makes a ceramic hammerhead as a demonstration to show their ability to control ceramics. They have handed these out to the carpenters in the Denver area as tests. I'm not quite sure how well the tests are going, but I guess you can always use it to open a can of Coors beer if you are really desperate.

Here is an example of a new kind of electrical function. I will put a little more liquid nitrogen -- liquid air -- into it. These other ceramics are very strong and tough, but they are insulators and they do not conduct electricity. More recently we are learning how to incorporate electrical or electronic functions into ceramics. That can be of great importance. Here we have an example of new high temperature superconductors. We call them high temperature because we did get them to be superconducting by using only liquid air, which is very cheap, very inexpensive and not difficult to control. You can see right now here in the room -- what we have is a small demonstration here of a magnet which can levitate on top of the superconductor. You are welcome to come up and take a look at that. You can see it sitting on top of the magnet.

Moving on from the ceramics to the other class of materials we are going to discuss -- plastics. Plastics, as I mentioned earlier, were these very weak materials, they aged in the sunlight and turned very brittle. Here is an example of a nonbrittle plastic. If we take an Ohio State bag, you can no longer tear it so easily. You can load it up with real heavy text books from Physics and Chemistry and Engineering and it doesn't break. It's because we have learned how to control the order of the atoms in a polymer for our plastics so they are very tough and very strong.

Another example of very tough and very strong is to use some epoxy plastic reinforced with fiberglass to make a spring. And this new light weight spring is going into Corvettes. It saves about 200 to 300 pounds in the weight of the car. It also does not rust. Both of these kinds of materials do not conduct electricity. You can now also design electrical functions into plastics. I have an example of a plastic called polyacetylene which can now be made almost as conducting as copper. In fact, it is more conducting than copper on a weight basis, depending on how much it weighs. It will have applications in things such as a space shuttle or an air craft, and possibly even light weight wiring in automobiles. You can take these plastics and you can form them into sheets and these sheets will have properties for example, of modulating optical signals or optical signal processing, or also for absorbing radar -- if you want to make something invisible to radar. If you drape a cloth over a tank -- you can drape a cloth of this type of material on it and you wouldn't be able to see the tank by radar.

The Japanese have taken some of these plastics and made rechargeable batteries out of them. This type of battery made of this plastic has a greater charge in it than nickel-cadmium batteries and doesn't have the toxicity problems of cadmium. Well, those examples are there for you to look at.

In the last year or two the major national societies have issued reports concerning the future of materials and materials research. Each of these major societies which are responsible for the broad administration of science and engineering in this country, the American Chemical Society, the American Physical Society, the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Engineering, and the National Research Council have all concluded that it is essential to have a thrust in materials research in this country at this time. We are on the leading edge of new materials being developed and those materials affect us -- the consumer economy and also the high technology economy.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

The importance of materials is indicated in the kinds of support that goes into their research and development. These are conservative numbers for the amount of money that is spent in doing research and development in the area of materials. I limit the numbers to only the kind of upstream research that one would do at a University, or at a basic research or applied research laboratory or company. The Federal government spends on the order of about $2 - $3 billion a year in research in materials. That number is easily ten times larger if you talk about engineering applications and prototype production -- those are much more expensive functions. For example, it would be $30 billion if we included making new kinds of experimental aircrafts, even larger if we threw in the entire space plane type project. But this is a very conservative number of just actually the development of the new materials themselves, rather than the prototypes. Similarly, in industry at least $10 billion a year is for the development of the materials. If we put in the numbers for the development of the prototypes, that number is ten times larger. There is a large investment in this area. That large investment is mimicked in other countries. The Ministry for International Trade and Industry has made materials a major priority in Japan, France, Germany, and most industrial countries at this time.

What are OSU activities? The departments involved are listed here. This is the same list that Jim Garland had, so I won't repeat them. They involve most of the departments in Engineering, as well as Applied Mathematics, Physics, and Chemistry. If we total it up, there are on the order of about 80 or 85 faculty that are currently involved, with about 200-300 graduate students. In consideration of the importance of materials at this time, the rapid advances and the thrust in other organizations in this direction, we need to move in the next year to enhancing this role, integrating it, and hiring new faculty to enhance this to bring in a greater range of activities and to make this an even stronger aspect.

Let me summarize our presentation then. Materials have a major role in the development of society. We saw how materials have been key in taking man from the Stone Age to the Bronze Age, to the Iron Age, to the Steel Age; and now to the Semiconductor Electronic Age, New Materials Age. We're now talking about fiberoptics, ceramics, polymers, and plastics. These ages are even described by the kinds of materials you use and those are rapidly changing.

Materials studies are highly interdisciplinary. It requires structuring a little bit differently in that it requires people to interact; to go between synthesis, processing, experiment, using new equipment, using theory, and using applications. Materials and their processes are leading to new technologies which are showing up both in the consumer market and in terms of high technology.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

And, finally, what is going on is a major national and international thrust in materials at this time. It has been recognized that it is the underpinnings of new technologies, the underpinnings of exports, the underpinnings of society, in many ways, in that there is an increased investment in this area on a world-wide basis. And, finally, The Ohio State University has a substantial base in materials. It is among the ten leading institutions in terms of the production of graduate students, the kinds of research we do here, and our leadership position. But it is also important to build on that base, to invest in it, and to increase the number of faculty in order to move forward in that area. Thank you.

Dr. Brand:

Thank you, Gentlemen. It's clear that materials research is vitally important for our national competitiveness. I take it that it was noticed when Art indicated that Japan is making a tremendous investment in this area. It is not merely basic science research that is at issue, but also the development of these applications. We want to be able to enter into the new industries that are developing. It is good for our nation to develop in these areas, and it is very good for the State of Ohio. I think that the role of Ohio State, here, is especially important.

It is also noteworthy that everyone who spoke stressed that it is a team effort between two of our strongest colleges, Engineering and Math and Physical Sciences. We have a substantial competitive advantage on the national scene, because of the strength we have across many disciplines. Here is where the scale of Ohio State really works to our favor -- our ability to cross disciplines with strength. Opportunity is upon us now. We have strength now, but the field is changing rapidly. We are looking towards making a continued major effort in this area.

Let me leave you with one thought -- and that is the Sargent Preston of the Yukon principle for academic administration: "the scenery only changes for the lead dog." Thank you.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Dr. Brand.

Mr. Redman:

Let us then have the committee reports from the Development Fund Board of Directors. Mr. Kessler --

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Kessler:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to make a brief report on the Development Fund Board meeting on March 11.

Vice President Tobin updated the Board on the progress of the Campaign. As of February 29, 1988, Campaign receipts totaled $265 million or 76 percent of the $350 million Campaign goal. Mr. Tobin said all indications lead him to believe that by the end of this calendar year, more than $300 million of the $350 million Campaign goal will have been achieved.

The Board heard a report on planning for a Campaign mass appeal and discussed at great length the alumni survey to be used as a part of a possible mass appeal effort. They also heard a report on the Columbus Campaign which has raised $116.9 million, or 87 percent of its $135 million goal.

The next meeting of the Development Fund Board will be Monday, June 27, at the Fawcett Center.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Kessler. Are there any comments or questions? If not we will move to the Research Foundation Board of Directors, Mr. Barone ---

Mr. Barone:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The Research Foundation met last in February for which I gave a report and a written report was entered. However, the contract between Children's Hospital and the Research Foundation was finalized at that time and Mr. Thompson gave a full report on the contents of that contract between Children's Hospital and the Research Foundation today. Our next meeting will be in June.

Mr. Redman:

O.K. Any comment? Thank you, Mr. Barone. We would like to hear from the University Hospitals Board.

Mrs. Bowser:

The Hospitals Board Executive Committee met in joint session with its Strategic Planning Committee on March 31. The members present received the Touche-Ross Management Letter and reviewed recommendations from the audit firm on improvements in the various systems. I think the University Trustees already received that letter in their packet of material. We reviewed the Administration's response to the recommendation and the Board asked for an update in September on the implementation of the changes. There were no major areas of loss or deficiencies.

The Strategic Planning updates were given by Dr. St. Pierre, Dr. Tzagournis, and Mr. Covert relative to the drafts of the College of Medicine and Hospitals portion of the Strategic Plan. Each individual highlighted recommendations for change from their constituent groups.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

It was pointed out that one area of concurrence still needing to be finalized among faculty is a consensus on Centers of Emphasis. Both the College of Medicine Executive Committee and the Strategic Planning Committee will meet to finalize recommended changes in the plan so that the total plan can be presented to the President in the next few weeks. And then the President will take the steps to present it to the Board of Trustees. Both the College of Medicine and the University Hospitals Board has been working on the strategic plan for some time and they are right down now to -- and I think Centers of Emphasis were finalized yesterday, as far as the College of Medicine was concerned.

Following the Strategic Planning session, a review of operating statistics and monthly analysis of financial performance took place. The Board was also briefed on the growth of the University Alternative Health Plan by representatives from Mr. Scott's office. The Plan represents approximately two percent of the Hospitals' total business. It was an excellent summary. Congratulations are in order for both Mr. Scott and Dr. Tzagournis in the development of this program and the meeting of service needs. To date over 9,000 employees participate in the University's PPO.

The Hospitals Board reviewed the medical staff's "Do Not Resuscitate" policy as well as guidelines for the termination of life support systems. This issue has been of major interest to the Board and I believe Dr. Mekhjian and the Medical Staff Administrative Committee are to be commended for the development of guidelines in this most sensitive area.

Lastly, the Board had an opportunity to visit briefly with Dr. David Schuller, the new Medical Director for the Cancer Hospital. He shared some of his thoughts as he approached this particular position, and we look forward to his leadership in the development of our total cancer program at The Ohio State University Hospitals.

That is my report.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mrs. Bowser. I had a couple of questions. One with regard to the financial report, did we get that?

Mrs. Bowser:

The Hospitals portion of that?

Mr. Redman:

Hospitals.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

I think we did when we met with the auditors last month.

Mr. Redman:

Can you, off the top of your head, tell me how our occupancy is?

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, I think, Mr. Covert --

Mr. Covert:

Our occupancy in terms of the open beds that we have at this point, Mr. Chairman, is 79 percent. Between 79 and 85, depending upon the day of the week.

Mr. Redman:

Are we going up or are we going down?

Mr. Covert:

No. In terms of admissions we are holding pretty much to what we expected this year. We, as you know, budgeted for approximately 28,650 or so admissions and we are ahead of that this year. We see ourselves being down in terms of our length of stay; where we had been at 8.2 days on the average, per patient stay now is someplace in the neighborhood of 7.7 to 7.9 days. So, our admissions are holding firm in Columbus and outside Columbus, but the length of time that people are in is shorter and that is what we are seeing nationally. That is pretty typical for hospitals not only in the area, but the country.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you. My second question, Mrs. Bowser, was about what I read in the newspaper about the helicopter. What is the latest withdrawal by one of our partners in that --

Mrs. Bowser:

Several of our partners, but Mr. Covert is our in-house authority on helicopters, let him --

Mr. Covert:

Approximately one month ago we had received an indication from St. Anthony's, I believe, that they were going to at least temporarily, if not permanently, pull out of the Consortium activity. They would continue to utilize the services of the sky and helicopter service specifically and would continue to contract to do that. Several weeks ago we received the same indication from Mt. Carmel. They would continue to contract and utilize the service, but as an investment in and of itself, they were not prepared to do that. Following that, we had a discussion with one hospital locally and several other groups that are reshoving their interest in establishing a consortium. Cleveland and Cincinnati are also interested in being investors in that activity. It would be a consortium or network of helicopters and there are other hospitals that either own or operate helicopters services presently.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Covert: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

Would that mean that they would participate in the operation at Ohio State or are you just going to ban together for administration?

Mr. Covert:

No, we would ban together at this point in some form of affiliation. We are looking at it from two standpoints -- from a financial standpoint, obviously, but at the same time from a care and a backup standpoint. You may not be aware of it, but at this time we do serve as backup for the University of Kentucky, as they also serve as backup for us. We also serve as a backup for Miami Valley, Dayton, and Cleveland Metro Life Flight out of Cleveland. We have had negotiations with the University of Cincinnati, as they are involved in their own helicopter service out there -- it's certainly a backup for each other. I anticipate that deal will be finalized.

Mr. Redman:

How are we doing on that financially?

Mr. Covert:

The helicopter service in and of itself is a loss at this point in time. That was expected to be the case. As you know, as we indicated, in terms of its direct operation, this would not be a money making --

Mr. Redman:

Well, we anticipated that when we entered the program, but the loss of our partners, I think, would bring into question whether the loss is beyond reasonable expectation.

Mr. Covert:

The additional loss, if that is the question you are asking, that will incur as a result of that is approximately $500,000 to $600,000 --

Mr. Redman:

A year?

Mr. Covert:

A year. The reason that I say that is that it really depends on the volume of flights. Our volume of flights has increased tremendously. We had projected some 350 flights for the year. Within a little less than five months operation at this point, we are almost at 300 flights. We are now projecting, as we have revised our estimates as we go into the busy months of the year, that we may end up having over 600 flights. Now that can make a difference, obviously, in terms of revenues being generated that support the program directly. We will have more of a report for you probably in another month, as we complete our six month activity.

Mr. Covert: (contd)

Mr. Redman:

In other words, you don't think this is an exercise in futility.

Mr. Covert:

No, Sir.

Mr. Kessler:

I have a question. If you have a consortium of financial partners, I assume that is a contract. How do they just drop out after they enter into it?

Mr. Covert:

Well, we -- obviously they decided at that point in time that they were willing to lose their investment that they had made up to that point. They will simply not belong any longer as an investor.

Mr. Kessler:

But, there is no penalty, there is no --

President Jennings:

They have lost their investment.

Mr. Covert:

They have lost their investment, the extended investment at that point in time.

Mr. Kessler:

And there is no money to pay back to either of those two institutions?

Mr. Covert:

That is correct.

Mr. Teaford:

Am I right that we are the only ones left?

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Covert:

That is correct. Technically, if you would call it, we are a consortium in terms of having affiliations, in terms of consortium of investors --

Mr. Kessler:

How much did they lose when they pulled out?

Mr. Covert:

I'll just give you my approximates at this point -- for each one, probably in the neighborhood of $400,000 to $600,000.

Mr. Redman:

That's for three.

Mr. Covert:

That is for each, that is correct. That is a conscious decision, obviously, that they made to continue or not --

Mr. Kessler:

That investment was to buy the helicopter or what?

Mr. Covert:

No, it was the investment that each hospital had to put in on the front end.

Mr. Kessler:

Where did that money go?

Mr. Covert:

O.K. That money is still there supporting the program, but they will not --

President Jennings:

It's a leased aircraft.

Mr. Covert:

The penalty is that they will not get any money back that they invested.

Mr. Kessler:

So they kissed-off that much money. Thank you.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

And you can see their reason. They are faced with lots of cut-backs, too. And they can still use it, but they don't have to put the investment in.

Mr. Covert:

When we first went into it, OSU represented some 50% of the flights. After we got into it more, because we have a very extensive network external to Columbus, we represented over 80% of the flights.

Mr. Redman:

Any other questions, Mr. Kessler?

Mr. Kessler:

Thank you. That answers my question, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Redman:

My last question is when -- do we have a target date for opening the Cancer Hospital?

Dr. Tzagournis:

December of 1988.

Mr. Redman:

And that would be on a partial basis, Dr. Tzagournis?

Dr. Tzagournis:

Yes. They will be phased in over approximately three months.

Mrs. Bowser:

The contractor is suppose to turn it over to the University in August and then the University has to do their thing.

Mr. Jackson:

I might add that I think the contractor's delivery date is optimistic.

Mrs. Bowser:

That is standard operating procedure.

Mr. Jackson:

I still think that the end of the year, as Dr. Tzagournis has said, is the appropriate time.

April 7 and 8, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mrs. Bowser. Are there any other questions?

AMENDMENTS TO THE RULES OF THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY

Resolution No. 88-104

Synopsis: Amendments to rule 3335-47-01 are being proposed.

WHEREAS the University Senate pursuant to rule 3335-1-09 of the Administrative Code is authorized to recommend through the President to the Board of Trustees the adoption of amendments to the Rules of the University Faculty as approved by the University Senate; and

WHEREAS the proposed changes in the Rules of the University Faculty were approved by the University Senate on March 5, 1988, as follows:

AMENDMENTS TO THE RULES OF THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY (contd)

AMENDED RULE

3335-47-01 General considerations.

- (A) The faculty is primarily responsible for initiating recommendations involving faculty appointments, reappointments, nonrenewal, and dismissal. The faculty also has a strong voice in the appointment and evaluation of department chairpersons, deans, and other academic administrative officers. Although the faculty plays a fundamental role in these matters, the final authority for the decision is lodged in the board of trustees or delegated by it to the president, the vice president for academic affairs and provost, or other academic administrative officer. The board or its delegate will give serious consideration to faculty peer recommendations. Faculty recommendations will be accepted unless they are not supported by the evidence presented regarding how the candidate meets published university criteria as set forth in faculty rule 3335-47-02 of the Administrative Code or unless the recommendations are unacceptable for other compelling reasons. When the decision of the board or its delegate departs from the faculty recommendation, the reasons for the departure will be communicated to the faculty group which made the recommendation.
- (B) Nominations for promotion and/or tenure originate in the department or appropriate academic unit in accordance with the procedures established by the unit. The recommendation must provide a comprehensive assessment of the candidate's qualifications, together with detailed evidence to support the nomination. It must also include information about the nature and extent of consultation on the matter within the academic unit and must present any significant evidence and differences of opinion which would support a contrary recommendation. Nominations will subsequently be considered by the college, and if favorable concurrence is obtained, the dean will forward the nomination, along with the dean's assessment and recommendation, to the vice president for academic affairs and provost. Recommendations are subject to the approval of the vice president for academic affairs and provost, the president, and the board of trustees.
- (C) No teacher attains tenure automatically. It may be acquired either in the original appointment to the regular faculty rank of professor, upon promotion from within the university to the rank of associate professor, or following a probationary period (as specified in rule 3335-47-09 of the Administrative Code). The granting of tenure requires the recommendation of the dean of the college after consultation with the chairperson of the applicable department, with the concurrence of the dean of the graduate school, the vice president for academic affairs and provost, the president, and the board of trustees.
- (D) When some of the nominations from a college involve the granting of tenure, the dean should provide a statement showing how the proposed actions will affect the long-range staffing pattern of the department and of the college, taking into consideration expected attrition, budgetary limitations, the need for flexibility, and the effect on that fraction of the faculty already tenured.

AMENDMENTS TO THE RULES OF THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY (contd)

- (E) Recommendations for promotion and/or tenure should be based on the merit of the individual, on a consideration of comparable achievement in the faculty member's own field or in closely related fields and on the judicious use of the fiscal resources of the department and college. Whenever possible, consideration should be given to how the nominee stands in relation to other people in the same field outside of the university who might be considered alternative candidates for the position. All available evidence should be considered and it is the responsibility of the academic units to provide complete documentation.
- (F) In accordance with a policy of equality of opportunity, decisions concerning appointment, promotion, and tenure are based on the following criteria without discrimination as to race, creed, religion, national origin, age, sex, handicap, or Vietnam-era veteran status.

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the foregoing amendments to the Rules of the University Faculty be adopted as recommended by the University Senate.

Upon motion of Mr. Barone, seconded by Mr. Immke, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 88-107

Synopsis: Resolutions honoring the service of six of the University's faculty members who have recently died are being proposed.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

Raymond E. Cray

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 6, 1988, of Raymond E. Cray, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Poultry Science.

Professor Cray was born on August 13, 1900, in Stockton, New Jersey, and lived during his early years on the family poultry farm. He received the B.S. in Agriculture degree from Rutgers University in 1922. Following graduation, he was employed by the New Jersey Agricultural College as an assistant poultry extension specialist until 1924 when he was appointed as a poultry extension specialist at The Ohio State University. During the period from 1924 to 1942, Professor Cray fostered the formation, organization and development of cooperative egg marketing programs in Ohio that provided market outlets for many of Ohio's egg producers. He was also involved in projects that led to the formation of The Ohio Poultry Improvement Association to control disease and provide a basis for using genetics in the selective breeding of poultry. He also received a M.S. degree from The Ohio State University in 1930.

From 1942 to 1949, Mr. Cray was employed by the Ralston Purina Company to establish egg marketing programs in several other states. Parallel work was undertaken for marketing programs in broiler and duck growing. In 1949, he returned to The Ohio State University to teach and conduct research in poultry marketing.

Professor Cray published a variety of extension, industry and scientific articles on poultry, egg and meat marketing. From 1957 to 1963, Professor Cray served with The Ohio State University's Agency for International Development Project at the Punjam Agricultural University in India to establish and upgrade poultry science activities at this institution. He returned to The Ohio State University in 1963 in an administrative capacity for the Agency for International Development Programs in Brazil and India. Professor Cray retired in 1966 and was named Professor Emeritus.

Professor Cray was a member of The Poultry Science Association, American Agricultural Economics Association, American Marketing Association, OSU Faculty Club, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, AAUP, and Kappa Sigma.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

R. Frank Donley

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 3, 1988, of R. Frank Donley, Instructor Emeritus in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Frank Donley was born in August 1910, in Columbus, Ohio, and practiced medicine for many years in this city. He was one of Columbus' most distinguished obstetricians, and taught several generations of obstetricians and gynecologists. He did his pre-med education at the University of Dayton and the University of Cincinnati, graduating from medical school in 1935. Following that he was an intern at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Dayton (1934-35), a resident in obstetrics and gynecology at St. Ann's Hospital in Cleveland (1935-36), and at Mt. Carmel in Columbus (1936-37). He was a dedicated teacher, and taught for 12 years at the Mt. Carmel School of Nursing. He was a member of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and prior to 20 years of military service, practiced general medicine for three years. Dr. Donley gave more than 20 years of his life to The Ohio State University as a clinical instructor, and for the past 10 years was a dedicated part-time instructor in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. He taught many residents and medical students during this period of time, and was considered one of the deans of obstetrics in this city. Upon his retirement in 1981, he was named Instructor Emeritus.

We have great appreciation and admiration for this man who was a gentleman, a scholar and a master clinician. He will be remembered for the contributions and the unselfishness that he gave of himself during his lifetime to the practice of exemplary health care for women in Columbus, Ohio.

On behalf of the university community, the Board of Trustees and the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Mars G. Fontana

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 29, 1988, of Mars G. Fontana, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Metallurgical Engineering.

Dr. Fontana received his B.S. in 1931 from the University of Michigan and then continued graduate study there in Chemical Engineering. In 1934, after completing his doctoral research, he accepted a position at the DuPont Company in Wilmington, Delaware. For the next 53 years, Mars Fontana gave his productive mind, body, and spirit to the advancement of the science and engineering of materials developments and the prevention of corrosion and material failures in engineering systems. The first nine of those years were spent at DuPont; the next thirty at The Ohio State University; and the last fourteen as a senior adviser, writer, and lecturer.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Mars G. Fontana (contd)

Mars Fontana carefully studied the mechanisms of the interactions of water, harsh chemicals, and stresses on metallic alloys. At DuPont, his science and engineering talents merged as he framed the mechanisms of corrosive attack and designed alloys, inhibitors, coatings, and electrolytic protection systems to prevent failures in production plant systems. These efforts led to his famous definition of "The Eight Forms of Corrosion." At The Ohio State University, he created a Corrosion Research Center and organized and led the Department of Metallurgical Engineering that put Ohio State in the forefront of materials research and corrosion science. Dr. Fontana is widely recognized as the "Father of Modern Corrosion Science and Engineering."

In his role as Department Chairman, he recruited and nurtured young faculty members, he led efforts to obtain funds for new laboratories, and he took an active part in the administration of the College of Engineering and in the faculty governance of the University. In the latter regard, he served as a member of the Faculty Council and as an effective senior faculty adviser during many University crises. By the time of his retirement in 1975, he had presented most of the important international lectures in his field and he had been named a Regents' Professor; a member of the National Academy of Engineering; a Fellow of all of the technical societies in his field; and had been named Professor Emeritus.

In 1981, the Board of Trustees officially renamed the building that he had worked so hard to create the, "Mars G. Fontana Laboratories." Other responsibilities and honors fell on him over the years. He was particularly proud of his honorary doctorate from Michigan and his honorary membership in the American Society for Metals. Just two years ago, he was the first recipient of the Outstanding Educator Award of The Metallurgical Society of AIME.

Mars Fontana, the teacher, changed the lives of all the students in his classes. He emphasized good analysis, clear and concise presentations, and simplicity wherever possible. In his consulting work and later industrial leadership as a director at Worthington Industries, he was famous for his ability to find the key to a complex problem, to identify the critical concerns, and to propose practical and successful courses of action. He passed that on to his students during his entire teaching career. His book, Corrosion Engineering, used throughout the world as the definitive engineering textbook on corrosion, emphasizes clear thinking and conciseness.

In Mars Fontana's life, responding to a sophomore student with a question was just as important as meeting a visiting dignitary. He was always open to questions and new ideas. He was very accessible and available to young people. He treated everyone with respect. He was generous with his own funds in many ways. Quietly he helped students and friends over rough spots. His generosity, along with that of his colleagues, friends and family, led to the endowment of the Mars G. Fontana Professorship. Earlier, a scholarship fund was created in his name.

The Department of Metallurgical Engineering and the Fontana Corrosion Center at The Ohio State University, its faculty, and its students are deeply indebted to his creative efforts. All of the companies for whom he consulted and the men and women who run them were enriched by the advice of Mars Fontana. The quality of public higher education is better because of his dedication to the pursuit of excellence in teaching, research, and public service.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees wishes to express its deep sympathy to Mars Fontana's wife, Betty, and his children Martha, Mary, Elizabeth, David, and Thomas and their spouses, his beloved grandchildren, and his brother and sister. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Gerald H. Goedde

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on January 1, 1988, of Gerald H. Goedde, Instructor Emeritus in the Cooperative Extension Service.

Mr. Goedde was born on April 5, 1923, in Ottawa, Ohio. He received his B.S. in Dairy Science from The Ohio State University in 1950; then spent two years as Farm Manager in Lapeer, Michigan; two years as Fieldman for The Nestle Company, Marysville, Ohio; and eleven years as Field Supervisor and Technician for Central Ohio Breeding Association in Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Goedde began his Extension experience when he joined the faculty at The Ohio State University in 1965 as a County Extension Agent, 4-H in Miami County. In 1970, he became the Country Agricultural Agent in Miami County and continued in this position until his retirement in 1985. Upon his retirement, he was named Instructor Emeritus. Mr. Goedde was respected by his peers and associates throughout the State as he worked to provide excellent Extension educational programs for the citizens in his county.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses its sympathy and understanding to the family of Mr. Goedde. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Richard A. Popham

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 3, 1988, of Richard A. Popham, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Botany.

Richard A. Popham was born September 29, 1913, in Charleston, Illinois. He received a bachelor's degree from Eastern Illinois University in 1936, a master's degree from The Ohio State University in 1937, and a doctorate from The Ohio State University in 1940. He retired in 1980, after serving on the faculty since 1940. He was on leave for four years during World War II on civilian service. Returning to The Ohio State University in 1946 as Assistant Professor, he became Associate Professor in 1950, and full Professor in 1968. In 1982, he was given the title Professor Emeritus.

Professor Popham specialized in the study of developmental plant anatomy. His teaching induced him to write two texts for plant anatomy students: Developmental Plant Anatomy (1952) and Laboratory Manual For Plant Anatomy (1966). He taught the beginning botany course every year, and supervised that course from 1965 to 1969.

Richard Popham's research, which resulted in over 40 papers published in scientific journals, was mainly concerned with plant growth and the factors affecting plant development. He served as a consultant to the Battelle Memorial Institute (1958-1969), and as Research Collaborator for the Brookhaven National Laboratory (1964-1980). He directed 9 students through their masters degrees, and 4 students through their doctorates.

Richard A. Popham was strongly committed to service. He was a member and long-time treasurer (1937-1980) of the Ohio State Chapter of Gamma Alpha Graduate Fraternity, which he also served as national treasurer and president. He served Ohio State and its students on the Ohio Staters (1956-1969; 1976-1980). In 1962, he was made a faculty member of the student Sphinx Honorary Society, and in 1966 he received the Alfred J. Wright Student Leaders Award for guidance and counsel of students. He belonged to numerous professional societies, and was particularly active in two. In the Ohio Academy of Science, he served for many years on its Council, was the Business Manager of its Journal (1949-1963), and was its President (1965-1966). In the Botanical Society of America, he was the Business Manager of its journal, the American Journal of Botany (1972-1981).

Many honors came to Richard A. Popham. He was elected Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (1940) and the Ohio Academy of Science (1944). He was elected a member of a number of honorary societies: Kappa Delta Pi (education); Phi Epsilon Phi (botany); Gamma Sigma Delta (agriculture); and the Society of the Sigma Xi (scientific research). In 1982, he was awarded the Certificate of Merit of the Botanical Society of America, given to only a few botanists for outstanding contributions to their profession. Richard Allen Popham will be remembered as an outstanding teacher and scientist who was fully dedicated to excellence in both.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the estate of Richard A. Popham as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

He served as the corporate representative from Ohio for the American College Testing Program from 1978-85 and was a member of the Board of Trustees of the American College Testing Program from 1984-87. He was president-elect of The Ohio State University Retirees Association.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy and sense of understanding in their loss. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Mr. Immke, seconded by Mr. Barone, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

Mr. Redman:

I would like to have Dr. Frank Hale, Vice Provost for Minority Affairs, make a presentation to the Board.

Dr. Frank Hale:

Chairman, Members of the Board, and audience in the room, I wanted to come today to provide you with an update on the activities of the Office of Minority Affairs. First of all, I would like to express my appreciation to you for your leadership and support in terms of affirmative action and minority programming that has taken place over the years at this University. I want to give specific reference and appreciation to the leadership as designated by our own President, Ed Jennings, who has taken a very strong position through the years in giving support to our office. And, most recently, to the Action Plan which has obviously been global, in terms of its impact both on this campus and throughout the United States.

We are pleased that not only the University, but so many of our sister institutions around the country have been delighted with the step that we have taken. It is a courageous step that has caused many of them to take various aspects of our program and extrapolate to the extent that they can't meet their own needs. We are called upon, many of us on this campus, from time to time, to give some indication of the steps that we have taken. Many universities not having the initiatives already in place on their campuses have really borrowed from us, and in a sense that has made our job more difficult as they have attempted to achieve parity.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Just to give you a recent overview of some of the things that we are doing -- we would like to indicate that we have been very active around the State. In fact, we have been invited in by the superintendents, senior high school principals, and counselors in the major metropolitan areas throughout the State of Ohio to let them know about what we are doing on our campus. They have been very effective in the sense that they have called upon the various high schools around the State to invite us in and to provide a model. This model is very different from the traditional model of two or three recruiters going into the schools, placing the catalogue before the students and just saying "come." In many instances in the past when we have written to these high schools, they have placed our announcements on bulletin boards and students may or may not have been aware of the fact of our coming. It has not been uncommon for us to go to high schools with very high concentrations of minority students only to discover that four or five had been notified.

What we are doing now is having student receptions in high schools where we have 50% or more minority students. We have been meeting with 50 to 125 students at a time -- meeting at a time that is convenient for them and their particular counselors. Sometimes we go in the morning and have a continental breakfast or something of the sort and sit down and spend about an hour. We take with us our staff, our Director of the Freshman Foundation Program, our Director of the Minority Scholars Program, 2 or 3 academic counselors, and some students who are graduates of the particular high school we are attending. We have found that the results have been gratifying. In fact, our application rate is 28% above what it was this time last year. Our acceptance rate is much higher than it was last year. So what we are saying is, that the Action Plan is not only in place on paper, but as Ramseyer used to say "we are cutting through the paper." We are really getting some implementation going there.

The other thing that we would like to bring to your attention is that we noticed in 1980 that at this institution, as far as top minority scholars were concerned, it was extremely difficult for us to attract them. We had 80 national merit semi-finalists and of those 80 only four remained in the State of Ohio, and only one of those four came to The Ohio State University. As a result, with your support and your encouragement, we established what we called a Minority Scholars Program in 1982. It began with a pilot effort right here in downtown Columbus, with the sixteen public high schools. We were able to offer 21 of our top, brightest students scholarships to come here at the level of $1,000 a year. These are students who had completed the college preparatory curriculum and had a 3.0 average, B average or above. That program has since evolved to the point that the following year we brought in 45 students, the next year 60 students, 85, and as of this year we brought in 130 of those students. We anticipate that this September we will have 175 of those students.

What has really excited us is the fact that we have already engaged five of the top scholars right here in Columbus and Franklin County. Those students were able to meet with the President the day before yesterday -- the number one students at Briggs, Independence, Columbus Alternative, and Brookhaven, and the number two student at Dublin High School. All of these students rank at the very highest levels -- 3.75 and above and scoring at the level of 26 and above on the ACT. We think this is extremely remarkable. It is like going out and getting the top recruits in football. We have, in fact, landed a coup getting the very top students for The Ohio State University this coming year. We want to thank you for creating the kind of atmosphere that lets people know that we mean business at The Ohio State University with respect to affirmative action.

We have two other programs that we think in the long run, over and beyond the Young Scholars Program, are going to provide us with the foundation to attract more and more better students. We had, as you know, in October 1985 a community forum on this campus in which we invited the Vice President for the College Board to come to our campus, Adrienne Bailey. And what we were doing at that time was evaluating the report, "Equality and Excellence: The Educational Status of Black Americans." In that report we noted that most black students are tracked into vocational areas in the high schools and have not taken the kind of academic content courses -- the science courses, the technical courses -- that would make them competitive. We said we wanted to do something about that in Columbus and Franklin County. And what we did was to invite a team of persons from 42 schools in Columbus -- sixteen high schools and twenty-six middle schools -- an administrator, a high school counselor, a teacher of math, a teacher of english, and a parent representative; a team of five from each of those 42 schools. And to show you the kind of support that we have from the Columbus Public Schools, they granted those 210 persons a full day leave so that they could come out here and interact with our people in the English Department, and in the Math Department, and in other departments throughout the University.

As a result of that, we have established a College Readiness Program on our campus, in which we provide offices over in Scott Hall for two personnel from the Columbus Public Schools. All through the year now students are being shuttled in and out of this University so that our departments and colleges can "show and tell" what the possibilities are for the future. Along with that, beginning this summer, we will have an early-bird program that has been funded by the Affirmative Action Grant Program at this University. We will be inviting 142 middle school students from the eight middle schools that are contiguous with to The Ohio State University in the northeast/northwest quadrants. We know that if we capture these students early enough, it is going to make a difference, and in the future we will not have to pine because of the fact that only 26% of black high school students are enrolling in college -- many for financial reasons, but many more because they have been inadequately prepared.

Dr. Hale: (contd)

So we are pleased that we have the kind of collaboration that is going on between Ohio State University, the Columbus Public School system, and other school systems throughout the state. We know that this could not have been done without your support and without your help. And because of that fact, we wanted to acknowledge that support, express appreciation for it, and give you an update in terms of what is going on. Thank you very much.

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the following slate of officers for 1988-89 be elected:

John W. Berry, Vice Chairman

Madison H. Scott, Secretary

James L. Nichols, Treasurer

Upon motion of Mr. Kessler, seconded by Mr. Teaford, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

--0--

Mr. Redman:

I would now like to have the committee reports, and first the Research Foundation, Mr. Barone --

Mr. Barone:

Mr. Chairman, at this time I would like to read a short report of the Research Foundation, I believe you all have it.

The Research Foundation grants and contracts for the month of March 1988 are shown in the Board agenda book. There are 102 awards listed which provide a gross income of $9.5 million.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

For the first nine months of the fiscal year (July 1, 1987 to March 31, 1988) we received 896 awards with a gross income of $76 million. Last year at this time we had 792 awards with a gross income of $63.8 million. This represents a 19 percent increase in funding for the nine month period.

The Federal sector increased significantly this month due largely to increased funding from the Department of Health and Human Services. Funding increases were also received from the State of Ohio and the Other Non-Federal sectors for the month of March 1988.

Some highlights of awards for March are:

- $504,000 award from the National Institutes of Health to David J. Lim of the College of Medicine for continuation of research into inflammation of the middle ear.
- $400,000 award from the Department of Education to Sheldon R. Simon of the Department of Surgery and colleagues in medicine and engineering to set up a rehabilitation engineering center for the study of human performance.
- $194,000 award from the National Institutes of Health to Dean John M. Cassady of the College of Pharmacy for research on the natural inhibitors of cancer.
- $50,000 award from the Ohio Air Quality Development Authority to Walter E. Carey of the Office of Radiation Safety to develop a course to train contractors in the correction of radon problems in homes.

These are some of the most interesting awards from the report. It shows an increase in the research department, but I think we should all be proud of the people that are doing it. Next month we will have our annual election of officers. That concludes my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you, Mr. Barone. We would like to now have the Development Fund Board from Mr. Kessler.

Mr. Kessler:

No report.

Mr. Redman:

O.K. The University Hospitals Board --

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, Mr. Chairman. You will have to bear with me while I read this. We met last Thursday and we used our new committee format. We all met simultaneously, so I wasn't in all the committee meetings. We now have three committees: the Professional Affairs Committee, the Administrative/Operations Committee, and the Strategic Planning Committee.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Professional Affairs Committee reviewed the present Emergency Department admissions policy and learned that our new Risk Manager had joined the organization. We expect to receive a report from him in the next several months. Dr. Keller reported on our quality assurance activities in the Emergency Department and we learned of the need to improve centralization of patient records in both the Hospitals and Clinics. This is an area that will continue to be studied by the Medical Staff Administrative Committee as well as by the Board. Dr. Cornwell gave an overview of the College of Medicine research activities and we anticipate that this will be a regular agenda item for this Committee. We also learned of Dr. Balcerzak's application to the Board of Regents for funding for an Eminent Scholar grant in Cancer. We were quite impressed with the extent of the work that has been done in this regard, as well as his efforts to lead the grant team.

In the Administrative/Operations Committee it was reported by the Hospitals Administration that the Hospitals will finish the year close to budget projections and that we will receive the budget for 1988-89 at our May meeting. Mr. Ihrig gave a fine presentation on the University overhead assessments to the Hospitals. We were very appreciative of the summary he provided to the Committee. We received a report on our MedOhio facilities, similar to that which the Board of Trustees heard from Mr. Covert last month. The Committee discussed traffic and parking concerns at length, and asked that a study be jointly conducted by Mr. Jackson and Mr. Covert to identify ways to improve our efficiency on behalf of patients, visitors and employees.

The Strategic Planning Committee, of which I am a member, met and approved the Strategic Plan for the College of Medicine. You may remember we have been working on this for several years and it's now come to its finalized form. Also approved were a series of goals to be completed by the administration in 1988 and 1989, relative to implementation of the plan. I think that plan will be presented to the President and he in turn will present it to the Board of Trustees in the very near future.

Following the committee meetings the Hospitals Board met and we presented a formal resolution to Mr. Bill Hagler, who is a nephew of Mrs. Josephine Failer. We received a rendering from the Hospitals' administration on a new signage for the Failer Plaza in front of the Hospitals. You may remember that that Plaza was dedicated to Jo and, true to Jo's personality and form, she wanted very little designation. And the Hospitals Board feels now that they would like to make that a little bit more prominent, so we did have a rendering and that will be proceeding.

Mrs. Bowser: (contd)

I recommended that the Board members schedule a day-long seminar to allow time for reflection on stewardship responsibilities and optimal ways to carry them out. Mr. Covert has agreed to arrange for such a seminar, as well as for a joint meeting between the Hospitals Board and the Board of Trustees. That will be coming up, I suppose, in the next six weeks and I really urge you all to try to attend.

Submitted by Leonard J. Immke and Shirley D. Bowser.

Mr. Redman:

Does that complete your report, Mrs. Bowser?

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes, that's it.

Mr. Redman:

I might say that since I have been interested in the billing at the Hospitals Clinic we have moved to the point where Ernst and Whinney have made their first determination of the various practice plans. This was according to the new schedule and I hope that the Board will designate someone to foster the implementation of the plan which has now been agreed to. I have talked to Mike Covert and Dr. Tzagournis about the other side of the billing which is of the Hospitals services, separate from the physicians services. They are moving forward in that area with the idea of having a single bill for the Hospitals side. It would appear that for the moment there are no hurdles -- everybody has agreed to go ahead. There are some physicians who have reservations about the plan but are willing to cooperate. I think it is up to us to implement it and help the doctors anyway we can to get in installed.

Mrs. Bowser:

Mr. Chairman, I think you should be commended publicly for your interest in this area and I would say you probably moved that along about five years. That is your area of expertise and I think that those present should know that you handled it beautifully. And I except that challenge to see that it's on schedule.

Mr. Redman:

Very well. I think that is about all I can offer. Except to say that I've told the Committee that if I could be helpful, I will be glad to come back and help anyway I can to implement the darn thing.

Mr. Teaford:

Well, we'll tell them if they don't shape up, you're coming back. That will scare them.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Redman:

Jennings is glad enough to be rid of me now, he doesn't want me hanging around here. Have we anything else then, Mr. Secretary? Mr. President will you present your agenda.

Mr. Teaford:

Mr. Chairman, you have wanted a report from me on the Foundation Board for some time and I have one finally.

Mr. Redman:

O.K., Mr. Teaford. I'm surprised, but I am willing.

Mr. Teaford:

As you know, that Board only meets twice a year and so it gives me very little opportunity to report, but we did indeed meet last month. You have heard the report in terms of the money and how much has come in from Vice President Tobin. One of the things we discussed is what do we do when we hit the goal before the end. There was a good discussion on that, and I think you will soon find out what we will do.

The only other thing of interest was -- it is interesting to me that very little of the money that is being donated is actually in the Foundation. It is almost all coming into the University. The Foundation Board adopted a policy some time ago that until there is at least $10 million there it would be invested as part of the University's portfolio. There is still only about $4 million in their coffers, so that continues to be the way they do it. The officers were reelected at the last meeting as well.

Mr. Redman:

Do you find anything wrong with that, Mr. Teaford?

Mr. Teaford:

No, I like it as a matter of fact. That is my report, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Redman:

Thank you. You are going to urge Mr. Tobin to speed up the contributions, I assume, so we will get our goal by the year end.

Mr. Teaford:

That's right.

Mr. Redman:

We don't want him to rest on his laurels.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Teaford:

That's right, that's right, no sitting back. He leaned forward when you said that.

RESOLUTION IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 88-120

Synopsis: A resolution honoring the service of one of the University's faculty members who has recently died is being proposed.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

RESOLUTION IN MEMORIAM (contd)

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolution in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the family of the deceased.

Ross L. Mooney

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on February 7, 1988, of Dr. Ross L. Mooney, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Educational Policy and Leadership.

Born on April 17, 1906, Dr. Mooney attended public schools in Lebanon, Ohio. He later received his A.B. from Miami University in 1929, and his Ph.D. from Yale University in 1935. He was appointed Assistant Professor and Research Associate to the Bureau of Educational Research at The Ohio State University in 1938, where he did research in the college personnel field. He served as Acting Junior Dean (personnel officer) and Acting Dean of the College of Education during 1944-45. He was appointed Professor and Research Associate of the Bureau of Educational Research in 1946 and did research on education as a creative enterprise. Dr. Mooney was appointed Coordinator of Research in the College of Education at The Ohio State University from 1957-60 where he developed research programs in education, psychology, music, and fine arts. He returned to the Bureau of Educational Research and Service in 1960, and remained until 1965 when the Bureau was dissolved into the School of Education. Upon his retirement in 1975, he was named Professor Emeritus.

In the Americans Abroad Program of the U.S. Department of State, Dr. Mooney served as consultant to The Henrietta Szold Institute (an agency for research and development in education) in Jerusalem, Israel. He was a member of the NDEA Guidance Institute staff at the University of Maine during the summers of 1961, 1962, 1966, and 1967. He was also a consultant to the Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Army Corps of Engineers in the summer of 1956. He had been the major participant and lecturer in nationally sponsored workshops by the Council for Advancement of Small Colleges (1965); Phi Delta Kappa (1964); U.S. Office of Education (1964); University Council for Educational Administration (1961); Carnegie Corporation (1962); and the National Science Foundation (1957). Also, with similar services to universities such as: MIT, Stanford, Chicago, North Carolina, Syracuse, Pennsylvania State, and Harvard.

Dr. Mooney wrote numerous publications in the personnel and guidance field (e.g., Mooney Problem Check Lists); in educational administration (e.g., "The Problem of Leadership in the University," Harvard Educational Review, Winter 1963); and in the field of "education as a creative enterprise" (most recently, with Taher Razik, Explorations in Creativity, Harper & Row, Publishers, 1967).

At the June 1973 Commencement, Dr. Mooney received the University's Distinguished Teaching Award. In recent years, he continued to work with graduate students and colleagues in an active role as Professor Emeritus.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

RESOLUTION IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Upon motion of Mr. Berry, seconded by Mr. Teaford, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

The Lawrence D. Jones Scholarship Fund

The Lawrence D. Jones Scholarship Fund was established May 5, 1988, by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with a gift to The Ohio State University Development Fund in memory of Dean Lawrence D. Jones (B.C.E. '23) from his wife, Alice Jones of Columbus, Ohio.

All gifts are to be invested in the University's permanent endowment fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates.

Ten percent (10%) of the annual income shall be reinvested in the fund's principal to assure future growth. The remaining ninety percent (90%) of the annual income shall be used to provide one or more scholarships to students who have demonstrated superior academic ability as engineering majors at The Ohio State University. Preference will be given to Ohio residents. Additional consideration will be extended to students with proven financial need. Recipients will be named annually, but may be eligible to compete for renewed awards. Selection will be made by the Dean of the College of Engineering with assistance from the University Committee on Student Financial Aid.

Dean Lawrence D. Jones had a lifelong interest in the study of history. This interest should be considered if the need for this fund should cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income within the area of engineering education at The Ohio State University. If this occurs, the income may be used for any purpose whatsoever as determined by the Board of Trustees, with preference being given to the recommendations from the appropriate administrative officials of the University who are then responsible for engineering and history education.

If the need for all or part of this income for the purpose indicated should cease to exist, or if the administrative organization for teacher education should change, the Board of Trustees upon recommendation of the chief executive officer of the University shall designate another use for the income no longer needed for this initial purpose, and shall reassign administrative responsibility to use the income as it deems advisable.

The endowment is named for the company's founder, the late Theodore I. Bogner, and his sons, Robert P. Bogner and the late Richard B. Bogner.

All gifts are to be invested in the University's permanent endowment fund, under the rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University with the right to invest and reinvest as occasion dictates.

The annual income shall be used to provide scholarships to students enrolled in the construction technology program at the Agricultural Technical Institute. Scholarship recipients shall be chosen cooperatively by the Chairperson of the Department of Engineering Technologies and the coordinator of Student Services, in consultation with the University Committee on Student Financial Aid.

It is the desire of the donors that this fund should benefit the University in perpetuity. If the need for this fund should cease to exist or so diminish as to provide unused income, then another use shall be designated by the Board of Trustees to carry out the desire of the donors.

President Jennings made the following statement:

Mr. Chairman, in keeping with the normal budget cycle for the University, it is my responsibility to report to you our budget plans for next year at this meeting, so that a resolution on the operating budget can be brought before this Board in June for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1988.

We continue to benefit from a bi-partisan state legislative climate that values higher education, and from increasing success in private fundraising. Examples of the benefits of the Academic Challenge, Eminent Scholars, the Ohio Supercomputer Center, and other important special projects for higher education abound to recognize the State's foresight. We are recruiting faculty to fill endowed professorships and awarding new academic scholarships to students thanks to generous contributions from our supporters around the State and the nation.

However, the State is now feeling the effects of an income tax base that is currently lower than it was in 1982. The State lacks the funds to meet higher education's full needs. Private dollars must continue to be designated for our margin of excellence, not the basic requirements of the institution, or their special benefits will be irreparably diluted.

While we continue to have a growing budget at Ohio State, there is a critical difference this year in the rate of that growth. State funding is, and will be for the foreseeable future, growing at a slower rate than we have seen in the past. The State budget increases provide only a 3.5 percent increase in the General Funds Budget for the coming fiscal year.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

For an historical comparison, our increase last year was 4.1 percent in the first year of the current biennium. That compares to increases of 11 percent and 9 percent in the biennium just before. Our recovery period from the difficult years of budget retrenchment was enormously helpful in restoring budgetary equilibrium.

However, we can no longer rely upon the State for increases at those earlier rates. Growth in State funding will continue, but at a slower pace than before. We at Ohio State, rather than scale back our ambitious plans, must be prepared to sustain our momentum on our own.

To continue to enhance excellence, and to continue to capitalize upon opportunities as they arise, we must strengthen our resolve to make difficult judgments among competing priorities as we manage the growth and the impressive progress toward pre-eminence that we see rapidly advancing all around us, in all areas of the University community.

Last year, we experimented with a program of cost containment to help generate internal savings to fund our ambitious plans. It also included monetary incentives for participation in the form of individual bonuses.

While our experiment was successful in realizing the targeted savings, the institution needs to consider other approaches to achieve the broader goals of the cost containment concept: improved information sharing and shared decision-making; greater team work across normal departmental or office boundaries; and, in particular, quality enhancement throughout the institution.

To succeed in meeting those goals, I believe the pursuit of excellence should be separated from the necessity of cutting costs. Under cost containment, cutbacks somehow became the goal, rather than assuming a proper place as a side effect of quality enhancement through the creative use of resources.

For the coming year, I will recommend that our efforts to generate new funds internally return to the reallocation system we have used successfully in the past. Through reallocation, we will find the resources within the institution to enable us to hold tuition within the rates of increase recommended by the General Assembly, fund the enhancement of excellence in colleges and offices, and reward faculty and staff members through competitive levels of compensation.

The budget planning guidelines I am outlining today for the 1988-89 fiscal year have been developed after consultation with our faculty, staff, and students through the University's Fiscal Committee and the Faculty Compensation and Benefits Committee of the University Senate. Their long hours of dedicated work on these important issues should be recognized and is very much appreciated.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Our first priority in setting budget guidelines must be keeping student tuition increases to the lowest possible levels. The State recommendation incorporated in the biennium budget guidelines was an 8 percent tuition increase this year.

You will recall that last year, when faced with recommended tuition increases of 22 percent from the General Assembly, we succeeded in holding Ohio State's increase to 10.9 percent. The year before, in 1986 -- for the first time in many years -- Ohio State did not increase tuition at all. However, with continued modest State support, our ability to set Ohio State's tuition below the state-recommended increases has been exhausted.

This year, we must reluctantly accede to the funding levels for the instructional subsidy provided in the State budget by the General Assembly. This will require that an 8 percent tuition increase for Ohio resident students be recommended.

We will, additionally, raise certain non-resident tuition levels at a higher rate. The diversity of the campus generated by attracting students from varied backgrounds is important to the quality educational environment we provide. However, we need to bring the relative share of costs paid by out-of-state students more in line with that assumed by Ohio residents through their tuition plus instructional subsidy from the State.

In allocating funds within the institution, our first priority will be providing sufficient funding for student financial aid to ensure that we maintain the purchasing power of our grants to students with demonstrated need. We also will provide funds so that students newly eligible for aid due to the increase in tuition will receive the assistance they need.

At the same time, we will continue strongly urging our State officials to renew their commitment to returning the share of higher education costs paid by student tuition to the traditional one-third share. We must look to the State to provide sufficient funding for Ohio's public colleges and universities to hold their tuition adjustments closer to the inflation rates in order to maintain accessibility.

For the record, Ohio State's tuition ranks us fifth in the Big Ten, and tenth of the thirteen public universities in the State of Ohio.

A fundamental principle of Ohio State's land-grant mission is accessibility. I believe that no qualified student should be denied access to Ohio's flagship university on the basis of insufficient financial resources. Providing adequate State funding to keep our tuition as low as possible must be a priority goal for all the citizens of Ohio.

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings: (contd)

Other costs for students include various fees and charges for residence and dining halls, parking, bookstores, and other aspects of campus life. These charges are assessed by auxiliary services, which we expect to be self-supporting within centrally established guidelines. This year, we will ease prior restrictions on price increases in the auxiliaries, allowing each area to make its case for price changes based on their own goals and markets, and in a context of continuing to reduce internal costs.

However, we also will expect attention to be focused on the important goal of keeping an Ohio State education accessible in all respects, and the overall average of the increases is not to exceed the 8 percent tuition increase.

Our compensation for faculty and staff must remain competitive. The rising costs of benefits makes that more difficult each year. This year, just to maintain current medical benefits, our costs will increase some 40 percent -- despite the continuing efforts of University Hospitals and the Office of Personnel Services to find imaginative new ways to meet the needs of our employees while holding costs down.

Salaries, however, remain the centerpiece of compensation. I will recommend a 1.5 percent across-the-board increase for all our faculty and staff members, with an additional 2.5 percent for merit increases. We also will continue our practice of making a central pool available for equity and excellence adjustments and to address market issues, totalling another 1 percent.

With these salary guidelines and the substantial increases in medical benefit rates paid by the institution, we will have an increase in salary and benefit costs of 6.8 percent. At this level, we are able to maintain our competitive position among the nation's best comprehensive research-oriented universities.

For equipment and supplies budgets in the colleges and offices, I will recommend budget increases of 3 percent, with options for each area to request additional funds for special priority needs.

In proposing these recommendations, I have not for one moment considered moving away from continuing our progress in identifying and enhancing excellence, as well as maintaining competitive levels of compensation for faculty and staff. However, to meet the guidelines I have outlined, the institution will need to generate $12 million dollars in additional resources if we are to balance our budget.

As I mentioned briefly at the outset, it is my intention to return to a reallocation process for internal generation of new funds. However, just as I have been committed to developing institutional flexibility through total resource management, I will expect the process of reallocation by the colleges and offices to reflect the same flexibility in setting goals.

Furthermore, no area, large or small, will have its budget approved if its own budget approach is seen to be simplistic across-the-board percentage reallocations. This principle has been stated year after year. But year after year, too many of us have looked to across-the-board budget reductions to meet goals. As we return to reallocation, such across-the-board approaches will be unacceptable.

Admittedly, setting and funding priorities calls for difficult decisions. But we must recognize differing needs and, indeed, differing achievements in prior years that have left some areas truly lean and efficient, while others cling to out-of-date procedures and programs of dubious value to our fundamental priorities. Those differentiations must be made as part of the budget process, in the context of anticipating a substantial reallocation each spring.

Our understanding of total resource management also must be expanded to include human resources. Vice Presidents Weldon Ihrig and Madison Scott have been evaluating last year's cost containment effort and talking to faculty, staff, and students across the institution to hear their comments and suggestions. I will ask them, in the coming months, to develop its broader goals and most useful characteristics, in articulating a revised program that focuses on quality enhancement first and foremost.

As we focus on reassessment of all of that we do with firm commitment to quality, I have confidence that cost savings will be realized as a part of our success, rather than as the primary goal. And, while opportunities for bonuses as well as other recognitions for accomplishments will be considered, they will accrue directly to the individuals or groups involved, based upon the results achieved.

Part of total resource management is looking to ourselves for staffing the growth areas of the University. While the faculty are basically specialized, by and large our outstanding staff suffers no such limitation. As programs, projects, or services become obsolete, the people who made those efforts work need to be given opportunities to direct their skills and their loyalty to Ohio State into new areas and to match their professional growth to the priority directions of the institution.

For the coming year, new hiring to staff growth areas in the institution will be focused on internal redistribution and finding new opportunities for our most valuable quality asset, Ohio State's human resources.

The 1988-89 University budget we will present for your approval in June will be in accordance with these guidelines, which seek to make the best possible use of our substantial advantages of size, diversity, and institutional flexibility.

We have the capacity and the commitment to continue the pursuit of recognized pre-eminence, without losing sight of our fundamental land-grant mission. Working together, our faculty and staff members, along with our students, will continue to further Ohio State's unique identity as an outstanding example of comprehensive excellence.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I will be happy to respond to any questions that you or the Board might have.

Mr. Redman:

The only question I have, President Jennings, is the one I asked in the committee meeting, that I don't think you touched on in your report -- you're recommended budget will balance and the income will exceed or at least equal the expenses?

President Jennings:

The recommended budget will balance, Mr. Chairman, that is primarily why the $12 million internal reallocation -- although we don't at this stage know, it will be on the order of $970 - $980 million. You will not yet have, Mr. Len Immke, a billion dollar budget.

Mr. Redman:

Well, he can aspire to that. Thank you, Mr. President. Are there any other questions?

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

APPRECIATION TO EDMUND C. REDMAN

President Jennings:

Mr. Chairman, I have one more small assignment. Knowing that you're not quite done yet, that this isn't quite over until May 13, you still have some duties, Sir -- Ohio State would like to recognize, in all seriousness, your great contributions to the University. It has been a great nine years, and for seven of those nine years I have very much enjoyed working with you. It is particularly gratifying this year when we had so little controversy in the University while you were Chairman. And I am absolutely confident that if Central Billing also doesn't work, that we will call you back and ask you to be part of it. Those more senior members of the Board will recognize that not only did you provide great service to the University in terms of Central Billing, but also in your Hospitals Board membership. In addition, early on in your tenure, you were questioning us greatly on how we were making easements in the University, and had some problems in that regard straightened out.

I will mention also, that you are a long-time alumni of The Ohio State University. I think it is now sixty one years since you have graduated from Ohio State. And I think it is worth noting that as you look at the young people today, they are fine young people. They are much better behaved than the Class of 1927, who, for President William Oxley Thompson, that class gave him the great privilege of electing a cow as the homecoming queen for Ohio State. And noting that you were leading that --

Mrs. Bowser:

Leading the cow?

President Jennings:

Leading the campaign to elect a cow. Now for the students in the room, I am not recommending that for this student body. We would like to present you with this small token of our appreciation -- a gavel that you might cherish. And we thank you very much.

President Jennings presented Mr. Redman with a gavel, inscribed as follows, in recognition of outstanding service as a member and chairman of the Board of Trustees:

EDMUND C. REDMAN

in appreciation of his service

Member 1979-1988

Chairman 1987-1988

May 4 and 5, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

APPRECIATION TO EDMUND C. REDMAN (contd)

Mr. Redman made the following statement:

Thank you, Mr. President. I will indeed cherish that. You said to keep the meeting short and I did mention that I had an hour and a half speech to make, so if you want to sit back and relax I will proceed. It would be remiss on my part if I failed to make a few remarks about nine years here, during which time we've had: two presidents, three provosts -- and this is not necessarily in the order of their importance -- three athletic directors, three football coaches, we've installed a hospitals board, hospitals administrator and we've begun the building of a cancer hospital. And regardless of the turmoil that went with all of these matters, I want to say that I applaud the Governors, both Governor Rhodes and Governor Celeste, for their appointments to this Board. I think we have all worked together well, that we've helped each other, we've been supportive, and I think if that tradition is carried on, that is the best that I can ask. And with that Mr. Chairman, I will bid you adieu.

Commencement Speaker

Erich Bloch Doctor of Science and Engineering

Erich Bloch is director of the National Science Foundation (NSF), the federal agency responsible for strengthening our nation's scientific and engineering research and education capabilities. He has held that position since his 1984 confirmation by the U.S. Senate and oversees an annual budget of $1.7 billion. During his three years of leadership, the NSF has emerged as a major force in helping our nation regain its competitive edge in science and technology.

After receiving his degree in electrical engineering from the University of Buffalo in 1952, he began work at IBM in what was then the new field of computer research. His contributions were major factors in IBM's emergence as a leader in the computer industry, and he had risen to the position of vice president for technical personnel development before he left for the NSF.

Under Bloch's direction, the NSF established several innovative programs that have had significant impact on higher education and the American science community. Among these programs are the engineering research centers at various universities, which are strengthening the United States' competitive technological base. Ohio State is the site of one of these centers—the Engineering Research Center for Net Shape Manufacturing.

He also has garnered unprecedented support from the White House for a plan to double the NSF budget. These additional funds will be used primarily to enhance the academic enterprise across the country.

Ohio State welcomes him as speaker for this 304th commencement and is proud to confer upon him an honorary degree.

Recipients of Honors

Philip Johnson Doctor of Arts

Architect, historian, and critic Philip Johnson has had considerable influence on the profession of architecture. While he is credited with bringing Modernism to America, his career has been marked by a refusal to limit his work to a single style.

A native of Cleveland, Johnson earned his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Architecture degrees from Harvard University and attended the Harvard Graduate School of Design.

As director of the Department of Architecture at the Museum of Modern Art during the 1930s, he curated important shows and contributed to books that introduced Modernism to the public. He also encouraged noted European architects to settle in this country.

Johnson used Modernism throughout much of his career and designed some of the greatest American Modernist buildings. Most notable are his Glass House, built in 1949 and one of the best known works of architecture in the world, and the Seagram's Building (co-designed with architect Mies van der Rohe) in 1954-58.

He eventually integrated other design elements as well. For example, he reintroduced decoration into many projects, established a strong connection with Minimalist sculpture, and ultimately broke with Modernism altogether and returned to historical allusions in architectural design. Today his buildings can be found in most major cities in a variety of contexts across the country.

The importance of his work has been widely recognized—among his awards are the 1978 Gold Medal from the American Institute of Architecture and the first Pritzker Architecture Prize, instituted in 1979. The University is pleased at the opportunity to honor him for a lifetime of distinguished achievement.

Roy Lichtenstein Doctor of Fine Arts

Artist Roy Lichtenstein, an Ohio State alumnus, has attained great distinction as a scholar and master of contemporary art. His work is represented in nearly every major collection of modern art, both nationally and internationally.

He earned his Bachelor and Master of Fine Arts degrees at Ohio State and then spent 13 years painting and working as a graphic and engineering draftsman, window designer, and sheet metal designer. He also taught at several institutions including Ohio State, the New York State College of Education, and Rutgers University.

The turning point in his career was his first solo exhibition in 1962 at the Leo Castelli Gallery in New York City. From that time on, he devoted himself full time to artmaking, becoming a major force in the Pop Art movement and drawing inspiration from comic strips and advertisements, as well as art history itself.

He has received innumerable awards, commissions, and grants, has held international solo exhibitions, and in 1970 was elected to the American Institute of Arts and Letters. Among his recent works are Mural With Blue Brushstroke, in New York City, which was written about in a 1986 issue of LIFE magazine; Salute to Painting, at the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis; and Brushstrokes in Flight, at Port Columbus International Airport. The University welcomes him back as a distinguished alumnus and takes pride in his professional accomplishment.

Recipients of Honors

Toni Mendez Distinguished Service Award

Toni Mendez, now president of her own New York literary and licensing agency, began her career as a dancer and choreographer. She created several shows in conjunction with newspaper cartoonists—projects which proved to be a segue into her present agency work.

She has represented not only individuals but also publishing companies, newspaper syndicates, and government agencies in book and licensing projects. Among her highly successful projects in television, print, and licensing are Space Cadet, Milton Caniff's Steve Canyon, B. Kliban's Cat, and the federal government's Smokey the Bear program. Her television projects include working with Norman Lear's production company, Tandem, on the television series All in the Family.

While not an alumna, she has been very involved with Ohio State and has given generously of her time, talent, and resources to the University. In 1977, Mendez was instrumental in establishing Ohio State's Library for Communication and Graphic Arts. Since then she has added her papers to the collection—papers that reveal the inner workings of the comics publishing and merchandising industry.

Mendez was a charter member of the National Campaign Committee for The Ohio State University Campaign, helped plan the University's Festival of Cartoon Art, and has been a guest lecturer for advanced-level fiction writing classes. She has also encouraged support for the University in artistic, literary, and media circles in New York and across the country. Ohio State is indeed indebted to her for her enthusiastic and innovative support.

INTRODUCTION OF LESLIE H. WEXNER

Mr. Immke introduced the new member of the Board of Trustees:

I am pleased to have the opportunity to officially welcome Les Wexner as the newest member of The Ohio State University Board of Trustees. Mr. Wexner is very familiar to the Ohio State family through his work with The Ohio State University Foundation, as a speaker at commencement, and as a benefactor of the arts on campus. He is the founder, President, and Chairman of the Board of The Limited, Inc., which operates 3,200 stores and mail order divisions. Les has been extremely productive in civic, charitable, and corporate activities across the country and he will be, I am sure, an asset to our Board. Please join me in welcoming Les Wexner as a Trustee.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Immke:

Dr. Brand would you introduce Andrea Lunsford, Professor in the Department of English, who will make a presentation to the Board?

Dr. Brand:

My pleasure, Mr. Chairman. As you know, we are engaged in a major curriculum review and reform. We are looking at the entire undergraduate experience from the core or basic education courses through the majors, through the support and delivery systems. One of our major changes will be an increase in the requirements in writing and communication courses. Indeed, we are tripling that -- if the proposal passes the faculty -- we are proposing to triple it for all students. We are asking not only the English Department to assume a part of the instructional load, but the individual units as well so that students will obtain writing experiences in their major programs and in their areas of interest, as well as basic composition courses.

In order to carry out this significant increase in writing skills instruction, Professor Andrea Lunsford, who is Vice Chair of the Composition and Rhetoric Department in English, has been working with faculty members in other colleges. Professor Lunsford came to Ohio State last year from the University of British Columbia. She is a national leader in writing instruction movements -- she has two books in press now, for example. In addition, she chairs the National Conference on Composition Writing in Colleges. I am also proud to say that she is an Ohio State Ph.D. in 1977. Professor Lunsford will relate one experience she is having right now in working with the College of Agriculture in developing writing instruction within that College. It is a very exciting program, very successful, and something we can certainly be proud of. Professor Lunsford if you would --

Dr. Andrea A. Lunsford:

I have with me this morning Professor Carl Zulauf from Agricultural Economics, who is going to talk a little about his part of the program as well. Thank you, for that introduction Myles. With all this talk about Buckeyes, I think that I am a real "super Buckeye." I was lecturing in England a couple of years ago and in a really interesting interpretation of my C.V., I was introduced, to my alarm, as the first person to graduate from Ohio State University. The original Buckeye, and with my gray hairs I can speak with great authority on all topics having to do with OSU.

I am, of course, delighted to speak to this body today about my special interest, which is writing in all of its aspects across the University curriculum. As you know, the country is awash in stories of the illiteracy of American youth and problems with writing throughout the country and especially in the public schools. The Appleby Stanford Study of a few years ago revealed that in spite of some real improvements in public schools we still could only count on any student in high school spending about four minutes a day in actual writing. This was a surprise to some and not so much a surprise to others. In report after report, like A Nation at Risk and many other commission reports, we have heard calls for a renewed interest in and increased emphasis on writing throughout the grade levels.

Well why are people so exercised about writing? Why are we so interested in this subject at Ohio State University? I think first of all because writing is not simply a matter of dotting our "i's" or getting our commas in the right places. Those activities are important, of course; they allow us to be better understood by people. But they are really a very, very small part of what writing entails. The larger part of writing entails creating a conceptual framework and then sustaining a sophisticated line of reasoning within that conceptual framework. That is the hard and big part of writing. And it is the definition of writing that people like Gene Fowler have in mind when they say, "Oh, writing is easy, all you do is sit staring a blank piece of paper until drops of blood start to form on your forehead." I have been in that position myself only recently. So perhaps writing is one of the most intellectually challenging acts possible -- it's obvious, of course, that I think it is.

Still, why is it so important to learning, let's say in a field like agriculture? Why have a Learning Through Writing Project at all, especially -- and I want to emphasize this -- since writing is very, very labor and time intensive? You can not teach writing, just as you could not coach football with one coach and seven hundred players; neither can you teach writing with one teacher and six or seven hundred students. It is very time and labor intensive. Well, I want to give three brief answers to that question and then just talk very briefly about the Learning Through Writing Project in Agriculture.

My first answer to the question, "Why is writing important to agriculture?" comes from evidence from the professional work place. To present to you only one small piece of evidence, a five-year study of ten professions in the United States found that members of those professions -- and these were professions as varied as chemists, consulting engineers, chief executive officers, and city managers, a very broad spectrum of professions in the United States -- not only spent between 40% and 50% of their time in some kind of writing or writing related activity, but that they ranked writing as most important in understanding the new information related to their profession and as most important in getting ahead in that profession. They also reminded us that writing skills are developed over a lifetime. If we could only just inoculate students as they came through the doors and say, "here is your dose of writing and now you will be a good writer." And they reminded us that skills in writing are not easily transferred from one field to another. So that if I had to go to work in President Jennings's office next week, although I am a pretty strong writer, I would have a lot of learning to do to be able to do the kind of writing that President Jennings's office would demand of me. Or if I decided to go into law, again, I might be a very strong writer, but I would have a lot of learning to do. So skills in writing develop over a lifetime and change from one field to another. At least we hope they develop over the lifetime. I was thinking of one of Ohio State's famous students, James Thurber, who, approaching the age of sixty, said that he thought he could detect inflammation of the sentence structure and hardening of the paragraphs as he approached sixty. Of course, you can look at his writing and see that that was not the case.

For my second answer to the question, "Why use writing to learn material in agriculture?" comes from studies of learners. These studies also corroborate the evidence provided by professionals on the job. Now I won't get on my favorite hobby horse about learning theory or harangue you about that. Let me just summarize by saying that research in artificial intelligence and in cognitive studies is beginning to map the territory of memory, which is, of course, instrumental to all of writing and to all of learning. The researchers are finding that writing is very closely tied to memory. There are, of course, historical reasons for this in the west. The Ohio State University's Brain Behavioral Lab which is, as far as I know, unique in higher education in this country, is exploring those relationships and studying the ways that the cognitive and social aspects of writing work to embed information in our neural pathways and to embed strategies for problem solving in those pathways as well. I think this sounds kind of formidable, but we all know what the artificial intelligence researchers are talking about. If we really want to figure something out, if we work through it in writing, we will know it in a way that we don't know it in any other way. I take it, in my very limited understanding, that that is what these people are studying.

Well, my third and final answer to the question, "Why we should use writing to learn material in agriculture?" comes from demographic information which I think urges us to connect writing to learning throughout the school years, including and perhaps particularly in the college years. Recent information from the Department of Labor presents us with some pretty startling pieces of information about our changing population and our changing student body. For instance, starting in September, thirty percent of the first graders in urban areas will be the first born of parents who dropped out of school for pregnancy -- thirty percent of the first graders. Those are children that will not come to school with much of a background in writing. Fifty percent of our population will soon have English as a second language, that is going to present us with some real challenges. Children, of course we know this already, spend upwards of forty hours a week watching television. And this is my favorite statistic from the Labor Department -- ninety-three percent of the American families do not match the norm for American families. So we have a seven percent norm -- that is to say families with two parents, and with one parent around to do some talking, reading, and writing with the child before the child comes to school.

Well such figures graphically demonstrate that the schools alone can no longer rely on traditional institutions to link writing and learning -- the family, for instance, the church, or even large social institutions like the Boy and Girl Scouts. And I want to tell you if you can remember being in the Scouts, you did a lot of writing to get those badges. Those institutional supports are not as helpful to us as they once were. Still, we know for sure that facility in writing, or what the researchers call literate behavior, is an essential ingredient to learning. So in the face of such answers and such pieces of demographic information, what is a great land-grant, multiversity like Ohio State to do?

Well, I think we can begin to pick up the ball, to run with it, to take the initiative ourselves in linking writing and learning throughout our college years as forcefully and rigorously as we possibly can. It is entirely appropriate in this regard that the College of Agriculture, so closely identified with all of Ohio State and traditionally so dedicated to excellence in education for undergraduates and graduates, takes the lead in such a bold endeavor, and so the Learning Through Writing Project was born. I have distributed to you a one-page description of the goals of that project. The agriculture faculty quickly grasped the implications of the curricular review we have conducted under Provost Brand's direction and they also quickly grasped the importance of writing in the revision in the curriculum. So they proposed an experimental project designed to integrate writing more fully into their curriculum right across-the-board. This they have done, following their fine proposal with a very elegant research design and then implemented that design this quarter with rigor and enthusiasm. A core group of instructors redesigned their courses to integrate writing more fully into the whole course. A systematic evaluation of that program has gone on throughout the quarter and, in fact, tomorrow morning at 9:00 we will gather with the agricultural faculty to read pieces of writing that the students produced at the end of the quarter, compared to pieces of writing that the students produced at the beginning of the quarter. So we will have some very hard information about what changes occurred in writing over the course of this term with writing intensive activities imbedded in the courses. We don't have that information today to share with you, but some of the teacher evaluations of the program and the student evaluations are in.

I would like to conclude my remarks by quoting from one of the student evaluations of a class in which a particular kind of writing assignment had been introduced. On a 3 x 5 card the students were asked to write a mini-essay of what had gone on in their reading assignments and class discussions for the week. They had to do this all the time, quite regularly. You can imagine when this was announced in this particular class that many of the students probably felt as a lot of these students did. I have five pages here of comments from the students about the series of assignments that they didn't really warm up to at the first announcement. But many of the responses are very similar to the one that I will read to you now: "I believe that this idea of using file cards to judge the length of writing assignments is an excellent one. You needed (you being the teacher) a way to verify that the class was understanding the material." Of course that is one of the values of writing for the teacher, you can tell whether the student "gets it" or not. "The assignments were long enough to encourage creative thinking on our part, but they were short enough to prevent one from being dragged down by the assignment. I am not keen on writing assignments in general, but these were actually helpful," the student says. "I believe you have a good idea here and I will continue to use it. And, finally, I hate to say this, but these assignments were almost fun."

If we can get students to say writing assignments are almost fun, I think we will have succeeded in our endeavors. I would like to turn to Professor Zulauf, now, for a few words about the professorial part of this project. And, of course, we would be happy to answer any questions that you might have. Thank you, very much for letting me come here this morning.

Professor Carl R. Zulauf:

Thank you, Andrea. It is my pleasure to be here today and to follow-up on Andrea's introduction. I would just like to make a couple of observations about this program. I became interested in writing because I kept hearing from potential employers of students how writing, and communication in general, was so important to them. And how, in their view, the educational system was letting them down. They were having to spend a lot of time retraining writing and communication skills. I have a couple of observations on the proposal itself. First of all, it has been very helpful to be with faculty in the College who are committed to writing and to hear the diversity of ways of incorporating writing into one's course. Andrea has touched on one, another professor has rediscovered and reemphasized essay take home exams and grading them on the holistic style of writing, as opposed to subject matter; another is emphasizing term papers; another one that I am using is a congressional writing style -- one page, briefing paper for a representative or senator. Students have found it to be very useful, very helpful, and informative, as well as improving writing skills.

Dr. Lunsford:

Fun?

Professor Zulauf:

Fun, to a point. And, finally, I would like to say that the access to Andrea has been very helpful. To get a professional view from someone other than just subject matter discipline and outside your subject matter has been very useful. She has presented a lot of ideas -- some I've excepted, some I have not, but a lot of ideas for consideration that has broadened appreciation for writing. This holistic view of writing is something I was always leaning to, but could never conceptualize. It has been very useful to experience this assignment. I could not commend it highly enough, so I thank you very much.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

Am I permitted a personal comment?

President Jennings:

Yes, please.

Mrs. Bowser:

My father, who also served on the Board of Trustees, came to Ohio State in 1925 and, came to be recognized in the State of Ohio as quite an agriculturalist. He came and majored in English in the Arts College. His father felt that agriculture was something that he could learn at home, but that he needed to know how to speak and write in order to promote the agriculture that he knew. And so it delights me to see the College of Agriculture associated with this writing project.

Dr. Lunsford:

Well, they are the first.

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, they are first in my heart, too.

Dr. Lunsford:

Thank you, again.

Dr. Brand:

Mr. Chairman, may I make some concluding remarks? I want to complement Andrea, as well as the faculty members in the College of Agriculture.

We are moving past the kind of fragmentation that often infects a large institution. The cooperative efforts between the Arts and Sciences and the professional schools is clearly the direction that we are going to have to follow. I fully believe that Ohio State is leading the way nationally on this. When we look at the large universities, particularly the land-grant institutions that have the full range of activities that we have, it is only by taking advantage of that full range and collaborating amongst ourselves that we will have a true comparative advantage nationally. So, I see this as part of a larger effort and, again, I must complement all those who participated in this.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, Myles.

Mr. Immke:

I would like to call on Mr. Barone to make the committee report for the Research Foundation.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Barone:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Members, I would like to give the report of what occurred at our meeting yesterday morning at the Faculty Club.

Research Foundation grants and contracts for the month of April 1988 are shown in the Board Agenda book. I would suggest to the Members to go through those, they are part of the agenda and are itemized there. There are 116 awards listed which provide a gross income of $7.5 million.

For the first ten months of the fiscal year (July 1, 1987 to April 30, 1988) we received 1,012 awards with a gross income of $83.5 million. Last year at this time we had 900 awards with a gross income of $71.6 million. This represents a 16 1/2 percent increase in funding for the ten month period. I believe this is the greatest ever for the Research Foundation.

Industrial funding increased significantly this month. Notable increases were also received from the National Science Foundation and the Department of Health and Human Services for the month of April 1988.

Some highlights of awards for April are:

- * $278,542 award from the National Cancer Institute to the Department of Internal Medicine, for continuation of research into improved methods of treating cancer.
- * $173,685 award from the National Institute of Health to the College of Nursing to determine the effects of an exercise training program with cancer patients.
- * $45,000 award from the U.S. Department of Education to the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures to establish an Ohio State-Purdue University Russian Language Program at the Pushkin Institute in Moscow, USSR.

I think with President Regan's visit to Moscow, if anybody saw that, they could see the importance of being able to speak Russian. And the number of Russians that were able to speak English so fluently was amazing. I think this, in turn, should be very beneficial because it will teach the language, in Moscow.

I think we should thank Shirley for this next one --

- * $50,000 award from the Kellogg Foundation to the Cooperative Extension Service, to promote family community leadership.

Thank you, Shirley. That completes my report; however, I would like to ad-lib on one of the facts that we discussed at length yesterday -- and Weldon can testify to that and that is to the fact -- we have a Research Foundation that brings in approximately $100 million a year and it is in a building that most of the employees there and anyone that sees it would think it is rather shabby. It needs a lot of remodeling and a lot of repairing. I just can't feel that any organization that brings in $100 million -- we should make some effort to better the working conditions, number one. And secondly, I think the award people who see the building would -- I would say that is very poor salesmanship to have something in such disrepair. I would like to have the Board think about this and have Weldon, with the help of Mr. Jackson, to see if we can better the working conditions and the facilities of the Research Foundation. Thank you.

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, Mr. Barone. Mrs. Bowser, Hospitals Board Report --

Mrs. Bowser:

Yes. The Hospitals Board's Executive Committee met last Thursday and welcomed Joel Teaford who is the new member from the Trustees. We reviewed the Hospitals' proposed budget and heard updated reports on the progress of MedOhio physician recruitment.

A Cancer Hospital report was provided by Dr. David Schuller who shared with the members present a revised equipment list identifying major pieces of equipment yet to be funded for the operation of the Research Institute. These requests included the purchase of a cyclotron, PET scanner, a microtron, as well as additional operating rooms and computer hardware. The total amount comes to $10 million. It is anticipated that these needs will be reviewed with the President and that development dollars will be utilized to purchase the equipment. In addition, Dr. Schuller shared a new draft of an organization chart depicting the administrative reporting relationships of the Cancer Hospital. Though there are some differences of opinion on the proposed structure, it is anticipated that these will be worked out and brought back to the Hospitals Board for their consideration. Many of the recommendations made were to assist the Hospital in its application for an exemption from the Medicare DRG system. In this way, additional revenues can be generated for the Hospitals.

Insofar as the Hospitals budget proposal is concerned, the Hospitals propose to generate 28,645 admissions and revenues of $230 million. It is anticipated that an 8% rate adjustment will be made. Expenses are projected to be approximately $214 million. The details associated with this budget can be provided to you by Mr. Covert or Mr. Ihrig. After extensive review by the Operations and Executive Committees of the Board, this budget is recommended to the President and the Board of Trustees for their approval as part of the total budget package of the University.

There being no other major business, the Board adjourned its official meeting so that it could hear a presentation on the Hospitals' proposed fund raising efforts for the future. I submit this report.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Immke:

Thank you, Mrs. Bowser. Any questions? That completes our committee reports for this month.

WHEREAS the University Senate pursuant to rule 3335-1-09 of the Administrative Code is authorized to recommend through the President to the Board of Trustees the adoption of amendments to the Rules of the University Faculty as approved by the University Senate; and

WHEREAS the proposed changes in the Rules of the University Faculty were approved by the University Senate on May 7, 1988, as follows:

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

AMENDMENTS TO THE RULES OF THE UNIVERSITY FACULTY (contd)

AMENDED RULES

3335-7-15 Changes of schedules.

- (A) No instructor shall change the hour or place of meeting of any class to which a student has been assigned except with the approval of the office of the university registrar.
- (B) Instructors who deviate from regular university schedules by holding special sessions or examinations must have received approval from their department chairperson, regional campus dean and director or college dean to hold such special sessions or examinations. Such instructors shall accommodate students who may have conflicts because of required attendance in regularly scheduled classes. This rule does not apply to policies for the scheduling of final examinations which are provided in rule 3335-7-20 of the Administrative Code.

3335-9-22 Group absences.

- (A) Whenever possible, group absences shall be planned so that they do not conflict with regularly scheduled classes.
- (B) When a student misses class in order to participate in a university sanctioned event, such as a field trip for another class, or an athletic or band event, or a specially scheduled class or examination scheduled in accordance with rule 3335-7-15 of the Administrative Code, it is the student's responsibility to present, at the earliest possible date, documentation of the required absence to each instructor whose class is to be missed. Documentation may include a copy of the course syllabus that shows the scheduled activity from a class scheduling an event or special session, or a memo from the instructor, coach, or person in authority requiring the absence. It shall be the responsibility of the instructor of the class or coordinator of the event causing the student to miss class to provide such documentation to the student. - (C) Instructors of the regularly scheduled classes which have been missed by students attending special sessions or examinations should make reasonable efforts to assist students who miss a class due to authorized absence. The instructor, however, is not obligated to provide make-up classes, laboratory exercises, field trips, or examinations. The student is responsible for material covered in class during the absence. If an examination will be missed, the student should make alternate arrangements prior to the absence with the instructor of the class.

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the foregoing amendments to the Rules of the University Faculty be adopted as recommended by the University Senate.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM

Resolution No. 88-138

Synopsis: Resolutions honoring the service of three of the University's faculty members who have recently died are being proposed.

RESOLVED, That the Board adopt the following Resolutions in Memoriam and that the President be requested to convey a copy to the families of the deceased.

Nicholas T. Bobrovnikoff

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on March 21, 1988, of Nicholas T. Bobrovnikoff, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Astronomy and former Director of the Perkins Observatory.

Professor Bobrovnikoff was born in Starobielsk, near Kharkov in Ukrainia, in 1896. He graduated from the Institute of Mining Engineering in Petrograd in 1916. Russia was then engaged in World War I, and Bobrovnikoff immediately joined the Russian Army, in which he served as a Junior officer until 1918. When Russia dropped out of the war in 1918, he entered the University of Kharkov, but after the Revolution occurred he joined General Denikin's White Army and fought against the Bolsheviks. Dr. Bobrovnikoff was wounded and suffered from frozen feet and typhus before Denikin's army collapsed in March 1920. By good fortune he was evacuated from the Crimea to Cyprus by a British warship.

Nicholas T. Bobrovnikoff (contd)

After nearly starving, Dr. Bobrovnikoff made his way to Prague, where he studied astronomy, physics, and mathematics at the Charles University, graduating in 1924. He was able to come to the United States to do graduate work at Yerkes Observatory at the University of Chicago. There he developed his interest in the spectra of comets, the subject of his Ph.D. thesis in 1927.

Receiving the Martin Kellogg Post-graduate Fellowship at the Lick Observatory in California, Dr. Bobrovnikoff wrote an authoritative memoir on the motion of the tails of Halley's comet at its 1910 apparition.

Dr. Bobrovnikoff became an American citizen in 1930, and married Mildred Schairer, who had taught school on Mount Hamilton while he was there. That same year he was appointed assistant professor at the Perkins Observatory, then operated by Ohio Wesleyan University. The great depression was then at its worst and Professor Bobrovnikoff had to struggle to survive and obtain any funds for research. In 1933, he was named Acting Director of the Observatory, and with the cooperation of Professor Alpheus Smith of The Ohio State University Physics Department, he played a major part in arranging the agreement under which Ohio State and Ohio Wesleyan have since jointly operated the Perkins Observatory.

Professor Bobrovnikoff served as Director of the Observatory until 1952, and continued working at the University, except for several years on leave for defense work, until his retirement in 1966. Upon his retirement he was named Professor Emeritus.

In spite of his heavy load of administrative work, Professor Bobrovnikoff published about 75 research papers. The majority concerned cometary spectra, but he was also one of the pioneers in the study of molecules in stellar atmospheres. He contributed to the identification of the bands of the oxides of titanium, scandium and zirconium in stellar spectra. In his last years, Professor Bobrovnikoff did unique research on the history of physical observations of comets, and also published a book, Astronomy Before the Telescope, in 1984.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to Professor Bobrovnikoff's three children its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Paul G. Craig

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on April 9, 1988, of Paul G. Craig, Professor Emeritus in the School of Public Administration.

A native of Middletown, Ohio, Dr. Craig received his bachelor's degree (1950) from Otterbein College and his master's (1951) and Ph.D. (1953) degrees in economics from The Ohio State University. He served as a faculty member from 1951 to 1970, advancing through the academic ranks from graduate assistant to professor, and again from 1972 until his retirement in 1980. Professor Craig served as Chairperson of the Department of Economics, as the first Dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, and as the Chairperson of the Coordinating Council of Deans for the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences. He was Vice President for Academic Affairs at Florida State University from 1970-72.

During his career at Ohio State, Dr. Craig developed the business forecasting and managerial economics courses of the MBA and the Executive Development Programs of what is now the College of Business. He also created the public budgeting courses of the School of Public Administration. As a teacher, he was superb. Blessed with energy, enthusiasm, and curiosity, compounded with a provocative, analytical mind, leavened with wit and laughter, Paul Craig was indeed a master at the craft of teaching. His many students will long remember him with appreciation and delight.

As a departmental and decanal administrator, Professor Craig was innovative and effective. He left each organization he served better than he found it. As Chair, he rebuilt the Department of Economics. As Dean, he gave the newly-created College of Social and Behavioral Sciences form and a sense of unity. Paul Craig served his University in many other ways, as a member of the Faculty Council, Faculty Advisory Committee to the President and Board of Trustees, as President of the Faculty Club, and in numerous formal and informal roles both before and after his retirement. Upon his retirement in 1980, he was named Professor Emeritus. In recognition of his many contributions to Ohio State, he received its Distinguished Service Award in 1986.

Professor Craig was no closet economist. He was one of those who cross-walk the worlds of the university, business and government. He worked as a consultant in economic forecasting, regional analysis for banks, insurance companies and governments. His was a rare capacity for translating technical analysis into realistic counsel for corporate and public decision-making. He served many well and represented his University to the extramural community with efficiency, candor, vigor and uncommon wit. His many civic and professional activities were of like character and quality.

Paul Craig was a unique man who delighted his friends, stimulated his associates, and improved the institutions and agencies that he touched. This University is fortunate that he was for so many years a distinguished member of its faculty.

On behalf of the University community, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family of Paul G. Craig its deepest sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Delos D. Wickens

The Board of Trustees of The Ohio State University expresses its sorrow upon the death on April 9, 1988, of Delos D. Wickens, Professor Emeritus in the Department of Psychology.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORIAM (contd)

Delos D. Wickens (contd)

Professor Wickens was born on October 6, 1909, in Rochester, New York. He received his AB degree from Centre College of Kentucky in 1931, and his Masters and Ph.D. degrees from the University of North Carolina in 1937. He first came to The Ohio State University in 1937 and stayed until 1939, and then he returned in 1946 and remained on the faculty until his retirement in 1980. In addition, during this period of time he had various visiting research and professorial positions at Oberlin College, the University of Colorado, the University of Wisconsin, the University of California at Berkeley, Louisiana State University, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Professor Wickens's field was experimental psychology, and within that he specialized in the psychological processes underlying learning and memory. Following his retirement, he remained very actively involved in his research, and in addition to his appointment at The Ohio State University, he held appointments at Ohio Wesleyan University and Colorado State University.

Professor Wickens had a very distinguished career that was marked by well over 100 publications, including several books. In addition, his career was highlighted by his receiving a Distinguished Research Award from Ohio State University in 1980; a Distinguished Teaching Award from the American Psychological Association in 1979; the Howard Crosby Warren Medal of The Society of Experimental Psychologists for his outstanding research contributions; and in 1983 he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. In addition, he was the presiding officer (President) of the Midwestern Psychological Association, both Divisions 1 and 3 of the American Psychological Association, the Psychonomics Society, the psychology section (J) of AAAS, and the Society of Experimental Psychologists.

On behalf of the University, the Board of Trustees expresses to the family its deep sympathy. It was directed that this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees and that a copy be tendered to the family as an expression of the Board's heartfelt sympathy.

Upon motion of Mr. Wolf, seconded by Mr. Barone, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous voice vote.

President Jennings:

Mr. Chairman, Professor Paul G. Craig long-time member of the faculty and also served on the Investment Advisory Committee and Jim Nichols has asked to say a word about Professor Craig.

Mr. Nichols:

I think that many people on the campus are well aware of Dr. Craig's efforts on both the academic and administrative side of the University. I first came to know Professor Craig as a student here in the 1960's. I think it is less well-known, except among the Trustees, his efforts involving the investments and investments policies of the University. When I came as Treasurer nearly seven years ago, he had already spent about three years serving on the Investment Committee of the

Mr. Nichols: (contd)

University, which includes the Fiscal Affairs Committee of the Board. During those nearly seven years, he always made himself available to attend meetings. Some years there were maybe only two or three years, other years there were maybe monthly meetings. He was always available for consultation and on his professor side -- his academic side he would send me articles from time-to-time of research and suggest that perhaps I should look at these and see if it may not help me in terms of the investments of the University. He was always willing to give us his frank opinion in the meetings. Sometimes they were controversial, I know, but they were always interesting to listen to and discuss with Dr. Craig.

I believe, in the process of developing the University's Investment Policy some years ago, and about four years ago developing on our Income Distribution Policy, as well as our ongoing issues with various investments and debt related issues that he was always helpful. I will miss him personally in his counsel, and I am sure that that is true of all of the Trustees that have had an opportunity to work with him. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to put that into the public record, a part of Dr. Craig that the general public is not aware of.

President Jennings:

Thank you, Jim. Those are very kind words and he will be missed.

That endowment was for the College of Engineering should be expanded as the years go by, in terms, of increasing the funds from the operation of the Transportation Research Center.

President Jennings made the following statement:

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I will call on Mr. Ihrig to summarize our discussion of yesterday. I would point out that since you have passed that $1,125 easement that that will be incorporated into this budget.

Mr. Berry:

That will make a significant impact.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings:

Weldon, will you summarize --

Mr. Ihrig:

During this summary what I will be doing is referencing this budget document, the gray document, that is at your places. Yesterday we reviewed in detail the process to develop the budget and pulled together the numbers for a balanced budget showing resources of $990.1 million to support planned uses of $989.8 million. Before going on, I would like to paraphrase that while these numbers are very large -- this will be, most likely, the last Current Funds Budget under a billion dollars on an annual basis -- that it isn't the dollars themselves that are the important part of this University, it is the people and the activities that they support that provide the excellence and the opportunities at Ohio State University. So these are only one of the means to an end.

In the second section of it, page 1, the document shows the overall budgeted resources in total. So this is a total University budget related to all sources of funds from State appropriations to fees, as well as the various gifts and grant activities that will be received and expended, and the sponsored research, as well as the earnings operations. As page 4 of the document shows, this represents a 5.4 percent increase in the total resources over the current fiscal year. The recommended budget for 1988-89 does incorporate the budget planning guidelines presented by President Jennings at your May Board meeting.

In addition to grouping Ohio State's budgets by campus, pages 6 and 7 show the sources and uses of funds by the basic fund categories we use to account for current revenues and expenditures: General Funds, Earnings Operations, and Restricted Funds are the three main categories. The Restricted Funds, budgeted at $223 million or 22 percent of the total, are monies received for specific purposes specified by an external entity such as in the case of Federal or private sponsored research. These funds are accounted for so that they are only spent for the purposes agreed upon with the external organization or person providing the funds.

Earnings Operations, budgeted at $325 million, or 33 percent of the total, are all those units who charge separately for their services, which includes University Hospitals, student dormitories, copying services, as well as sales of publications. These operations earn the revenues they spend, as well as pay University overhead and facilities costs. And we do budget those just like any earnings operations outside the University, with a profit and loss statement for which they are directed to break even and a balance sheet to pay their total costs. They also receive interest income on their positive balances, pay interest on any negative balances, and participate in allocations and reallocations throughout the University.

Mr. Ihrig: (contd)

The General Funds, budgeted at $441 million or 45 percent of the total, are the unrestricted, non-earnings resources used to fund the core instructional, administrative, and physical plant activities at Ohio State. As shown on page 8 under the column titled "Unrestricted General," the major two sources of these funds are State instructional appropriations and student tuition and fees.

It is important to note that while the University's accounting system is based upon these three fund groups, management actions to support the needs of instruction, research, and support services are based upon making the best use of all available resources. The deans, vice presidents and department chairs have the flexibility and the responsibility to make maximum use of all available resources to support their priority needs.

Page 8 also summarizes the distribution of the University's total current resources for 1988-89 fiscal year. The column titled "All Funds" shows State appropriations as $316 million, which represent 32.0 percent of total resources, a decrease from the 32.4 percent last year; while student tuitions represent 15.5 percent of current resources versus 15.1 percent last year.

The General Funds budget at Ohio State is directly impacted by student enrollment expectations, not only the numbers on each campus, but also the mix of students by class rank and program. Enrollments affect not only tuition revenue, but also the amount of State instructional subsidies. Since Ohio State Columbus has a legislated enrollment limit of 40,000 Full Time Equivalent (FTE) students, the mix between class rank and program will have the greatest impact on these resources.

Pages 13 and 14 show Ohio State's historical enrollments along with our expectations for this coming Autumn Quarter. The projected headcount enrollment of 52,893 on the Columbus Campus is expected to result in a non-exempt FTE enrollment of 40,297 versus the 40,598 this past Autumn Quarter. This decrease in non-exempt FTE results from the planned effort to reach the 40,000 FTE limit mandated by the General Assembly in the early 1970's.

As in prior years, we are concerned about the total impact on Ohio State's students of all student related charges that the University controls. The chart on page 20 shows that the increase in the package of University controlled charges to resident undergraduate and graduate students, including tuition, residence hall room and board, books, parking, and football and basketball tickets are about 7.8 percent, in total -- that is with a 7.8 increase, with a tuition increase recommended of 7.9 percent at the undergraduate resident level.

This 7.9 percent increase matches the State tuition assumptions used in the development of the instructional subsidy funding levels provided by the General Assembly. Since 1982, this University has been able to enhance accessibility by keeping tuition increases to approximately 50 percent of the levels included in the State budget. However, with modest increases in State support of this biennium and 3.6 percent this budget year, it is unfortunately our situation to no longer be able to retain this lower rate of increase. We have to set Ohio State's tuition level this year at the same level that has been recommended in the State budget.

Comparing Ohio State undergraduate fees with the Big Ten is difficult due to the variety of tuition arrangements, and not all of the Universities have yet decided on their new tuition rates. However, preliminary data indicates that this fee increase will keep Ohio State at its current rank of fifth out of the 9 public institutions in the Big 10. So this means that Michigan, Michigan State, Minnesota, and Wisconsin will still have tuitions higher than Ohio State. We also expect that Ohio State will retain its current ranking of 10th out of the 13 State universities in Ohio. And while we don't think that the University in quality in any sense ranks at those low levels, in the areas of tuitions we think we should be there. That is why we work very hard to keep our marketing positions as low as we can for accessibility.

The chart on page 21 provides a summary of undergraduate tuition since 1970-71, and the interesting column is the fifth one, which shows the tuitions over this period in constant 1988-1989 dollars. Over the past 18 years, Ohio State's undergraduate tuitions have increased only 7.47 percent over the inflationary rates of that period. This averages less than 1/2 of 1 percent increase per year over inflation. If we could add an excellence value factor to these data, I'm confident that Ohio State's students would be realizing a bargain exceeded nowhere else in the nation.

Details of the earnings budgets are provided on pages 27-31, and the table on page 27 shows that the University-wide average change in earnings rates for 1988-89 is only 4.9 percent, with a total average rate increase of 5.9 percent when tuitions are included.

Details on restricted and regional campus budgets are provided on pages 32-35.

We are presenting this balanced 1988-89 current funds budget totaling $990.1 million for your consideration and recommend its approval.

I would be very happy to respond to any questions regarding this budget.

Mr. Wexner:

Just to polarize the point, what if Ohio State were the most expensive, why would that be bad?

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig:

Because of the overall diversity of students that we have at Ohio State, our primary mission has been to maximize that diversity so that students from all economic levels have the ability to come to Ohio State.

Mr. Wexner:

What would be the range of difference? I didn't look at the page.

President Jennings:

In terms of the public sector of higher education -- if we would go to the top of the public sector you would have roughly a 50 percent increase in tuition.

Mr. Wexner:

I was asking about the 13 that you mentioned.

President Jennings:

Oh, the 13 --

Mr. Teaford:

Miami is about 50 percent higher.

President Jennings:

We go roughly 50 percent -- for both state and nationally in terms of the public sector. Private sector would be out of the question. The basic ingredient here is the accessibility issue. The implementation of that is a three-legged stool, it is the low tuition, adequate student financial aid, and work opportunities. Roughly 70 percent of our student body is involved in some sort of scholarship or work opportunity at the institution. And as this institution compares more to the classic land-grant -- in the Big 10 that would be Purdue, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan State, Minnesota. Whereas, Michigan, the University of Indiana, and the University of Iowa are not land-grant institutions and do not typically have the classic land-grant mission of educational opportunities to all those individuals intellectually qualified, but not necessarily financially qualified.

Mr. Wexner:

If I heard correctly, our mandate of service would be the same as Michigan States and they're the highest?

President Jennings:

Of the land-grant institutions, Michigan State is the highest in the Big 10.

Mr. Teaford:

Michigan is higher than Michigan State.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mr. Ihrig:

They're the land-grants, Michigan State.

Mr. Wexner:

I am seeing us as more analagous to Michigan State than Michigan.

Mr. Ihrig:

That is correct.

Mr. Wexner:

And Michigan State --

Mr. Ihrig:

Would be -- of the comparable institutions as far as the land-grant mission, Michigan State would be the highest in the Big 10.

Mr. Wexner:

And how much higher would they be than us?

Mr. Ihrig:

They are about $1,000 a year higher.

Mr. Teaford:

So, again, 50 percent.

Mr. Ihrig:

Miami University in Ohio is the highest in the State, and they are about $1,000 a year higher than Ohio State.

Mr. Wexner:

I think we should discuss that at greater length. I'm not proposing rejecting this proposal, but I guess as a merchant I'm interested in a competitor that does very well that has a price 50 percent higher than mine and seems to be serving its customers.

Mr. Teaford:

The reason Michigan State has the highest tuition is the State of Michigan is not supporting the --

President Jennings:

Oh no, the State of Michigan is actually supporting it better than we are. We are not only a low tuition institution, but we are a low State supported institution. We have come off of being a high tuition institution, you know when Weldon reports that less than 1/2 percent a year relative to inflation in the last 18 years. Ten years ago we were third in the Big 10 to Michigan and Michigan State, we have purposely driven that down. In the context of a State policy, over the last several years, we have been attempting to drive down tuition as a percent of cost to the traditional land-grant 1/3. We made great progress on that in the early '80's, moving from the 47 percent down to about 34 percent State-wide. This legislation that we are working with right now drives that number back up to State-wide about 40 percent for students paying the percent of cost. Tuition is indeed tied directly to State appropriations. You can see that. The way that we are budgeted, typically tuition is an off-set to our State appropriations. It is even more of an off-set at Ohio State because we have been doing less than what the State formulas have been recommending for several years now. This is the first time in seven years that we have done what the State appropriation is, the rest of the time it has been less. But we do continue to discuss that issue and monitor that issue. You should also note that in this budget is an appropriation for scholarships that keeps the purchasing power of the scholarship budget constant so that any student now at Ohio State, or coming to Ohio State, will have the same financial opportunities for scholarships that they had before, in terms of a percent of cost. So the students won't get driven out on the basis of these tuition increases either because of the 8 percent increase or because of new eligibilities because of the 8 percent increase. There is no question that we are a low tuition institution relative to not only the private, but relative to our public counterparts.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

Mrs. Bowser:

I feel very strongly that we have to keep ourselves accessible to students. If it gets too high, there are students that even if you do have scholarship packages, are going to have difficulty coming up with the money to come. We do have a land-grant mission here and that is to make ourselves accessible.

President Jennings:

Absolutely.

Mr. Teaford:

As a matter of fact, it is hard to justify public education if not on the accessibility basis. We shouldn't be in that area if we do not have accessibility.

President Jennings:

But there again, I think, it is a very instructive to note that this budget reports 32 percent of it coming from the State of Ohio. John was saying yesterday, if you asked the public how much of our budget comes from the State of Ohio, most people would say 75-80%. The other important thing to note in this budget is about 30 percent from the State of Ohio, another 15 percent from the federal government, or about 45 percent of total tax dollars in this budget. You look at the budget of a major comprehensive private institution, you find that institution is about 15 percent supported by their home state, and about 30 percent supported by the federal government, or about 45 percent tax dollars in the comprehensive private institution.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

The federal tax dollars in the private schools are much higher because it comes from the student aid package which is given at the federal level as a percent of cost. If you qualify for student aid at Ohio State, you qualify for about $4,000 a year full aid. If you qualify at MIT, you qualify for $15,000 for aid. The point is that our cost structure -- not only are our prices lower, but our cost structure is substantially less. The old argument that the privates have to have higher tuition because of no tax dollars, that doesn't fly with the comprehensive privates, because the amount of tax dollars are roughly about the same. Now the privates don't like me saying that -- and the student aid of course doesn't show up in the budget as tax dollars, but it is there.

It is instructive also to note in the privates that more and more their student body comes from only two economic classes: the quite well-to-do or the quite poor. The privates have a big financial aid package, but they don't have the middle class. We have a lot of students where their economics background doesn't qualify them for direct aid, but does qualify them for work opportunities and so forth. Our lower tuitions, in general, allow us to keep bringing in that middle class at this institution. I think this is a major long-term advantage that we have today, in terms of our pricing structure as federal student financial aid begins to decline. But at the same time, that doesn't hit the argument about Michigan State or Purdue or Wisconsin who are above us.

Mr. Wexner:

I would find it enlightening to look at those -- not only a chart that measures us against State institutions and regionals, but against, let's say, the ten best land-grant or comparable institutions on a national level. I would like to look at our performance, say, against Texas, as well as Indiana -- whoever you might think the ten best competitors in terms of size, mandate, and quality of education are. I think we should be looking at a national model not a local model, because that is who we are competing with.

President Jennings:

We do look at that and you will find, generally, tuition goes down as you move west.

Mr. Wexner:

I'm thinking in terms of excellence.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings:

Oh, I understand. That is why I keep insisting about comparing the State appropriation, because if you start on the East Coast, you will find high tuitions, generally, at the land-grant institutions. As you move west -- Texas, for example, has very low tuition.

Mr. Wexner:

But again, I think, that would even be useful in dealing with the Legislature, because if they have all the Ohio institutions competing with all the Ohio institutions, and they don't understand that we are competing with Texas or Oklahoma or whomever --

President Jennings:

In terms of publics, the best comparisons are the Big 10. There are some -- Berkeley is a public that we compare with, and UCLA, the Texas schools, the University of North Carolina. If you get outside of the publics, the Big 10 is our comparison. We do compare our faculty salaries to what we call Category 1, Ph.D. granting, institutions.

Mr. Teaford:

Unfortunately, the way the State funds -- the State treats us exactly the same as Shawnee State; namely X dollars per student. And there is no differentiation at all. That is the way the whole system of Regents -- I mean there was talk at one time that we weren't going to have a Regents anymore, but that is not true now. It would really take going to square one on all the funding, because they don't think we are any different from Shawnee State.

President Jennings:

Well, there is some differentiation because we get State subsidy on categories, so we get more for our graduate program and upper divisions. But for similar students at Shawnee State and Ohio State, the State subsidy is the same.

Mr. Wexner:

Education at higher levels.

President Jennings:

Well, that is right. The other thing, too, about the land-grant mission is that 100 years ago Ohio State was one of the few opportunities for quality education for the middle and poor class, but not today. In Ohio there are some very fine undergraduate opportunities other than Ohio State. The Legislature has already made that decision by putting a limit on our enrollment. We could easily, for example, right now have 80,000 to 90,000 students, or we could easily move to that in terms of our applications. But with this enrollment ceiling -- now we like that enrollment ceiling, because then you would also have a massive campus over on West Campus. We don't think we can get any bigger than we are now. But in terms of the land-grant mission, the State has always said, "every student can't go to Ohio State who wants to," because there is not enough room. And that is one of the reasons that we've gone to the selective admissions. But it is a question that we are constantly looking at, "what should our levels be?"

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

President Jennings: (contd)

Mr. Berry:

Which is an advantage though. There are pros and cons in everything.

President Jennings:

Oh, yes. Well, the other thing that is coming, too, is that as selective admissions becomes more institutionalized -- and we are already seeing it, our attrition is declining, students aren't flunking out -- we are going to have more students in the upper division in junior and senior year on a relative basis. Since I've been here, the freshman class has dropped from 8,200 to 6,300, but the size of the institution remains the same.

Mr. Berry:

I think all universities and colleges across the country, public and private, have definitely one thing in common and that is they don't have enough money for everything they would like to do. And I don't think they ever will.

President Jennings:

They never have, but it is getting more critical. We talked a little bit about obsolescence. I think a classic example is that late this year we will become the first higher education institution to own the next generation Cray supercomputer. A $22 million expenditure, plus an annual operating budget of $7 million. That machine -- I was talking to some NSF people just the other day, and they expect that machine to be obsolete, totally obsolete in three years. Here is a $22 million expenditure that is going to be out-of-date in three years. That is a pretty rapid turnover. While $22 million in a billion dollar budget might not seem like a lot, it is still a lot of money.

Mrs. Bowser:

Well, the MRI -- by the time we got the building built we had to get the update, because in the year and a half, or two years it took to build the building --

President Jennings:

We actually slowed it down by a year to get a higher level of technology. This stuff is changing so rapidly. The biotech --

President Jennings: (contd)

we used to kid the biological science people that all they needed was a petrie dish and a microscope, not any more. We put $5 million into Rightmire Hall essentially for research in biotech. And if Pappachan Kolattukudy were here, today, he would say that is just the beginning. And he is right!

Mr. Berry:

Well, I think, again, I'll say for the record, Weldon, we complement you and your people for putting together this budget and President Jennings for setting out the guidelines. Overall, I think this is a very good budget considering all the pros and cons of it.

1988-89 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET

Resolution No. 88-143

Synopsis: The budget for fiscal year 1988-89 is being submitted for adoption.

WHEREAS the levels of State support have been established for the second year of the 1987-89 biennium; and

WHEREAS appropriate planning and consultation within the University has been accomplished; and

WHEREAS the President is now prepared to present the 1988-89 budget:

NOW THEREFORE

BE IT RESOLVED, That the University Current Funds Budget for fiscal year 1988-89, as described in the accompanying text and tables, be approved, with authorization for the President to make expenditures within the projected income levels; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That student fees be increased for all students beginning Autumn Quarter 1988, as specified in the Schedule of Student Fees incorporated in this resolution effective Autumn Quarter 1988; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Secretary be instructed to incorporate all supporting documents into the minutes of the meeting, including faculty tenure approvals, salary rolls with promotions, and fees and charges for the fiscal year 1988-89, and to file these materials with the official records of this University.

Mr. Immke made the following statement:

Before I ask for your motion on that, the Personnel Committee of this Board met on June 2, 1988, and the following report is submitted to the Board of Trustees.

The position of President of this University is a highly visible one and as such, the President's performance is constantly being assessed by a variety of constituents, including faculty/staff/students, alumni, the media, and the public, in general. As is customary, the Board's Personnel Committee has also reviewed and discussed the salient components of the President's performance. This report is a result of that process for 1988.

June 2 and 3, 1988 meeting, Board of Trustees

The Board continues to appreciate the leadership effort on behalf of the University by President Jennings. His devoted service combined with his energetic commitment has been admirable. Given his performance and demonstrated ability to get the job done we have determined that President Jennings's salary should be increased by 8 percent for fiscal year ending June 30, 1989.

The salary increase was determined based upon relevant market consideration and salaries of presidents of other major land-grant research institutions. The Secretary of the Board is hereby authorized and directed to develop the appropriate documents to effectuate this change in salary.

May I now have a motion to approve the President's budget report and recommendations, as well as the Personnel Committee's proposal relative to President Jennings's salary for the coming year?

Upon motion of Mr. Berry, seconded by Mr. Wexner, the Board of Trustees adopted the foregoing resolution by unanimous roll call vote.

1988-89 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

I. INTRODUCTION

This year, the budget for the next fiscal year, 1988-89, can be presented to this Board at its June meeting, which is consistent with normal university practices. Since the Ohio General Assembly enacted a biennial budget effective 1 July 1987, we know the rate of State support available. This enables the 1988-89 budget to be brought forward at this June meeting of the Board of Trustees.

While pleased that we know the level of State funding, the rate of increase, at only 3.6 percent for instructional subsidies, makes even more imperative that $12 million in internal reallocations occur again in 1988-89. This University's long-standing commitment to keeping costs as low as possible is being further challenged as Ohio State seeks to provide the resources needed to continue its initiatives to enhance excellence in teaching, research, and related service. Faculty and staff members already have contributed significantly to the overall quality that exists at Ohio State. Our challenge is to do even more, as we are faced with lower rates of increase from State resources.

Another notable aspect of this budget is that this will be the first budget since 1982 in which Ohio State's recommended tuition increase will be at the level included in State biennial budget legislation. In prior years, this University has met its commitment to accessibility by keeping tuition increases to approximately 50 percent of the levels included in the State budget, and even had no tuition increase in 1986-87. However, Ohio State's financial ability to maintain these lower rates of tuition increases no longer exists, and we must now recommend increases at the rates proposed by the Ohio General Assembly. It is our hope that future tuition increases can be held to lower levels as the State budget is developed for the next biennium.

1988-89 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY (contd)

Even with 1988-89 being an extremely tight year in the level of budget increases, the faculty and staff have shown and will continue to demonstrate their commitment to assuring the highest quality instruction, research and services within the available resources.

II. SOURCE OF FUNDS

Current Funds Budget Resources proposed for 1988-89 total $990,160,000 as summarized by funding source in the Budgeted Resources. This amount includes State support totaling $316,440,000, which represents 32.0 percent of the total income budget. Other major sources of income include student tuitions, 15.5 percent, Federal grants and contracts, 10.2 percent, and Hospital Sales and Services at 20.3 percent.

The core instructional and general budgets of the University -- Unrestricted General Funds -- are estimated to have resources of $441.86 million, which amounts to 45 percent of total resources. Earnings operations -- such as University Hospitals, Residence Halls, Athletics, and the like -- are budgeted to bring in $325.12 million, which accounts for 33 percent of total resources. The remaining 22 percent of resources is in the restricted fund group which includes sponsored research projects, most private gifts, and such State-funded activities as the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

As reported earlier, it has been a goal of the University to hold tuition increases below the rates of increases recommended by the General Assembly, but this year -- with continued modest increases in State support -- our ability to achieve this goal has been exhausted. We are therefore recommending for Ohio residents the 8 percent increase in student Instructional and General fees that underlies the State funding models for 1988-89.

The review of tuition charges for non-resident students begun last year has been continued. The results of this review have indicated that the amounts for undergraduate, graduate, and law non-resident students continue to fall short of equitable levels. Therefore, selective increases of not more than 16 percent are being recommended for the non-resident surcharge.

The recommended tuition rates for both residents and non-residents of the various colleges and schools are shown in the Student Fee Schedule. While the rate of tuition increase for Ohio residents matches that recommended by the General Assembly, we continue to hope for significant improvements in future biennia that will return Ohio undergraduate students' share of their cost of higher education to the 33 percent level from the current 41 percent.

A major funding source for the University continues to be revenues from the sales and services of the earnings units. Continuing efforts to monitor and limit increases in all fees and charges of the University, the average increase in all University rates and charges will be approximately 6 percent. The weighted average of the earnings operations in total has been held to just under 5 percent, with Athletics proposing average rate increases of only 2 percent. Since the earnings operations have participated fully in the cost containment and reallocation activities this biennium, they are also eligible to compete for special needs allocations along with general funds units.

1988-89 CURRENT FUNDS BUDGET
THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY (contd)

The other income components of the 1988-89 Current Funds Budget are in line with expected growth from 1987-88 revenues. Projected total revenues for 1988-89 show an increase of $50,330,000, which is some 5.4 percent above the estimated revenues for 1987-88. The projected rate of increase is slightly higher at the Regional Campuses and lower at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, with the net increase for Central Campus being approximately 5.5 percent.

III. USES OF FUNDS

As detailed in the Budgeted Uses schedule, and in the supporting documents, this University's planned expenditures from current funds total $989,840,000. This level of recommended Current Funds expenditures will support the following budget planning guidelines:

- * Increase faculty, administrative and professional, and classified staff salaries by 1.5 percent and provide 2.5 percent in salary funds for merit increases, with a 1.0 percent pool available on a competitive basis for equity, excellence, and market adjustments.
- * Fund Compensation increases for negotiated wage settlements.
- * Fund increases of 3.0 percent in supplies, equipment, and general expense continuing budgets.
- * Provide funding to maintain the purchasing power of University-funded student financial aid, plus cover new students who may qualify with the increases in tuition.
- * Generate internal reallocations of $12.0 million across all campuses and fund groups.
- * Provide resources to meet mandatory cost increases, such as utilities and employee benefits. Extraordinary cost increases in these categories include the mandated removal of PCB transformers and an unusually high increase -- of some 40 percent -- in the cost of providing medical benefits.

In addition, the 1988-90 State Capital Improvements bill is expected to provide more than $10.0 million for acquisition of instructional and computer equipment, to be supplemented by a University allocation of $2.3 million for research equipment and library acquisitions.

This balanced budget for 1988-89 is being presented for Board of Trustees approval.
